WARD FAMILY MOVED INTO NEW HOME FOR CHRISTMAS

Henry Ward and family moved into their new home on their farm south of Klemme last week Friday and were very comfortably settled by Christmas. The new house was indeed a very fine Christmas present for the Ward family. The new house is modern in every respect and is ideally arranged for farm use.

Dorance Grange Entertained At Birthday Dinner

Dorance Grange was thirteen years old on December 21st, and his mother invited thirteen boys to come and help him celebrate from four until ten in the evening. The boys enjoyed sliding on the hill south of town until time for the lovely dinner which Dorance's mother served at six o'clock. After the dinner Dorance and his friends all enjoyed the show at the Avery Theatre at Garner. The boys left many presents to help Dorance remember such a happy occasion.

If you see two men putting their heads together the chances are that one is telling the other a joke.

THE NEW YEAR

By GEORGE COOPER
in Indianapolis News

A SONG for the Old
While its knell is tolled,
And its parting moments fly!
But a song and a cheer
For the glad New Year,
While we watch the Old Year die!
Oh! its grief and pain
Ne'er can come again,
And its care lies buried deep;
But what joy untold
Doth the New Year hold,
And what hopes within it sleep!

A song for the Old,
While its knell is tolled,
And the friends it gave so true!
But, with hearts of glee,
Let us merrily
Welcome in the bright, bright New!
For the heights we gained,
For the good attained,
We will not the Old despise;
But a joy more sweet,
Making life complete,
In the golden New Year lies.

A song for the Old,
While its knell is tolled,
With a grander, broader zeal,
And a forward view,
Let us greet the New,
Heart and purpose ever leal!
Let the ills we met,
And the sad regret,
With the Old be buried deep;
For what joy untold
Doth the New Year hold,
And what hopes within it sleep!

IOWA STATE HIGHWAY GARAGE DAMAGED BY FIRE THURSDAY

The Iowa State highway garage and equipment building located in east Garner was almost totally destroyed by fire on Thursday evening December 19th. The blaze was discovered about 6 o'clock. S. C. Broms Rock Island station agent, first noticed the fire in the upper story of the garage on the south and near the chimney, and he turned in the alarm.

The night was bitter cold and the firemen worked under difficulties. The blaze spread rapidly and before it could be gotten under control, nearly the entire roof was demolished.

Several state owned trucks, snow plows and other equipment which was stored in the garage, were gotten out without any great amount of damage.

Carpenters were put at work the latter part of the past week repairing the roof and making the place tenantable until spring at which time the state will rebuild the entire structure, so we are informed.

LEGION MEN ANNOUNCE NAMES OF POULTRY WINNERS

On Saturday night, December 21 the Klemme Legion gave away a turkey, two geese and five ducks. The turkey went to T. H. McVoy of Iowa Falls; the two geese to Walt Thada and Carl Sanderfelt. Klemme and the five ducks were also distributed to local parties: Mrs. Wm. Bell, "Buck" Kluckhohn, LeRoy Johnson, Ewald Josten, and "Doc" Shoafstall.

AUTO LICENSE FEE BECOMES DELINQUENT FEBRUARY 1ST

County treasurer R. L. McMillin says that many people appear to have the wrong impression of when automobile licenses become delinquent. The new law says: Auto licenses for 1936 can be bought without penalty any time before February 1st.

THIS WEEK

11 Husbands, 1 Bachelor
Fish at 12,000 Feet
Measuring Beauty
Homes and Automobiles

In New York Mr. Reisman took his young twenty-three-year-old secretary to live with his family. When he was sitting with her in his automobile one night, after midnight, his thirty-five-year-old wife, of whom he is said to have grown tired, came out with a revolver and killed the secretary. There is no news in this, except that Mrs. Reisman is to be tried by a jury of 11 husbands and one bachelor. It would seem that one or two women might have been placed on the jury; if a man were tried by 11 wives and one spinster, he might complain. However, if all 11 husbands should read their consciences frankly they might make the best possible jury for the accused woman.

The highest navigable body of water on earth is Lake Titicaca, 12,000 feet above sea level, belonging to Bolivia and Peru.

Uncle Sam has agreed to send experts and show those countries how to stock the lake with fish.

Some physicist might answer this question:

"Will the fish be affected by the high altitude as human beings are affected, or would the fact that water (with its ball-bearing molecules) is not compressible keep the fish from knowing whether the atmospheric pressure is great or slight?"

An English professional beauty, Rosemary Andree, convinced that her figure is the world's most beautiful, is challenged by an American girl named Mardee Hoff. Miss Hoff's friends say her figure is better than any since the Venus Accrouple was cut out of marble. Mardee Hoff's figures might interest you: Age twenty-one; Titian hair; bust 34; hips, 36; waist, 24; thigh, 19½; ankle 8.

Nothing is said about what is back of the forehead, or the size of the head, but both are probably satisfactory. Science says, "Intelligence goes with beauty," and that is probably true, except when intelligence is spoiled by flattery.

You read with horror about the number of deaths by automobiles on highways, and then read with surprise the report that 34,500 persons were killed in their homes by accident last year, making the home about as dangerous as the highway. The real danger is carelessness. The fault is with human beings, not with automobiles.

Men that work in crowded rooms, travel in crowded trains, sleep with their windows closed, may learn something from the sad fate of vast schools of salmon crowding in to spawn. Their great numbers exhausted the oxygen in the water and they floated on the surface dead.

An ancient Jewish writer said: "The blood is the life." He might have added: "Oxygen is the life of the blood."

Children should be taught that from the cradle.

Members of congress are bothered by thousands of letters from advocates of the Townsend plan, asking:

"Will you vote to give everybody past sixty $200 a month pension, or will you not?"

Doctor Townsend says many congressmen have promised to support the bill. You would ask: Have they told how to get the $8,000,000,000 that the Townsend plan would cost every year?

The Republican party decides to hold its 1936 convention in Cleveland, casting 54 votes for Cleveland, 39 for Chicago and 6 for Kansas City. Each city had offered $150,000 as its contribution to convention expenses. The delegates will spend more than that, and then there is the glory.

Republican delegates will see a beautiful city on a beautiful lake, and find themselves in a congenial Ohio atmosphere that has produced Presidents.

In Peiping, Chinese students, young men and women, "stormed through the streets" demanding that China defy Japan and fight to prevent further seizure of Chinese territory. Many students were wounded, 10 killed, 20 Chinese girls in the front rank defied bullets.

Students shouting "Down with Japanese imperialism!" cannot do the work of airplanes, tanks and explosives. No use in shouting if you are not prepared for war.

Those who have doubted that this earth is round, including one colored clergyman in the South, who writes frequently on the subject, would be convinced by photographs of the earth taken in the stratosphere, 72,000 feet up. Forty thousand square miles of the earth's surface appear on the photograph as a section of the sphere.

Golden Phantoms

FASCINATING TALES OF LOST MINES

©W.N.U. By Editha L. Watson.

THE BOILING HELL

FORTY-FIVE miles south of Valentine, Texas, in the Cuesta del Burro mountains, is a mine which is not lost nor hidden, but over which a phantom stands guard and forbids anyone to approach. It is not a golden phantom, this forbidding specter, but a silvery white one, looking for all the world like rising steam.

It is said that the indefatigable Spanish explorers, wandering about through the Southwest, discovered this silver mine in 1519—21 years before Coronado made his historic journey into New Mexico and Arizona. Espejo, whose name also stands high in the list of the conquerors, heard of the mine and started an expedition toward it, but after six months of wandering in the desert the Spaniards turned back. Only two men of the party, whose names were Maldinado and Candelario, persisted. They left their comrades on the return trail and kept on—and they found the mine.

Candelario sold his interest to Maldinado after a while, and went back to Mexico where life was more pleasant. But Maldinado was a man of iron with a heart of stone. He forced the Indians to work long hours, bringing out silver ore, and was cruel to them—as cruel as a man can be, which is very cruel, indeed.

The shaft had been sunk some 50 feet when the thing happened which gave the mine its name. One moment the Indians were laboring in the fairly dry atmosphere of the mine—the next, and a pick drove through the wall, releasing a flood of scalding water from hot springs which rose to the surface nearby. The miners were scalded to death by this boiling flood.

After this the Indians refused to work in the mine, but Maldinado compelled many of them to go down nevertheless, and to stand in the steaming water as they worked. No flesh could stand such treatment; the Indians died as fast as they went down, but Maldinado kept sending in replacements, and kept the work going.

At last, after some time spent in this horrible slavery, the tribe planned an uprising. Maldinado heard of the plot, and with his own hands he beheaded several of the ringleaders. Then a maiden named Valentia—whether Mexican or Indian is not related—whom the miners loved dearly, came and wept over the bodies of the slain, and the sight of her grief enraged the brutal Maldinado still further. With an oath, he rushed over to her and stabbed her through the heart.

Until then, the rebellious Indians had stood quietly in the grasp of their captors, but this murder was more than they could bear. Jerking away from the guards, they surrounded Maldinado, and quickly carried him to the seething pit where so many of their people had lost their lives. Here they were going to cast him into the boiling waters below, but before they could do so, a shrill scream, in a girlish voice, caused them to halt. It was the sister of Valentia, the murdered girl, who called to them.

She stepped forward, a Texan Pocahontas, and claimed the prisoner for her own, as tribal custom permitted. How it happened that her love for so brutal a man could have grown in spite of his cruelty to the Indians, and why his murder of her sister had not turned that love to hate, only she knew. She had taken the only means possible to save him: it was a widespread law that a prisoner might be claimed by some woman of the tribe, and must become her property. In deference to this law the Indians freed Maldinado and allowed him to depart with his fair rescuer. They went to Zacatecas, Mex., and were married, and it is said that Maldinado experienced a change of heart, became pleasant and considerate, and lived out the rest of his life well-liked by those who knew him.

The Boiling Hell was abandoned when he left it. The Mexicans say that bones of his victims still lie about, and that the place is a rendezvous for their ghosts. No one cares to go near it, and its steaming silver specter stands guard in solitude.

AZTEC GOLD

MONTANA Espanosa (the haunted or horrible mountain) is the name of a mountain long known in Mexican stories. There the gold once lay in nuggets larger than a man's head, and Montezuma's slaves toiled at the work of lifting out this precious weight.

Legend tells that a certain class of criminals was taken to "Frightful mountain" for judgment. Here the accused was instructed to lift a great golden nugget of such huge size that only a veritable Samson could budge it. If the accused were guilty, he could not manage to take up the vast lump of gold, but if he were innocent, the load became light, and he could juggle the enormous weight with ease.

From the locations given in ancient stories of this mountain, it has been decided that Santiago mountain, in Texas, must be the place. It certainly answers the descriptions as far as location goes, but so far the most hopeful treasure-seekers have not been able to find a nugget even as large as a baseball, to say nothing of the size of a man's head.

Snug Bloomers to Protect the To

PATTERN 9621

Warmth is mother's first thought when winds blow cold. It's then the two-to-ten-year olds need the extra protection of snug bloomers 'neath their brief frocks. This frock buttons down the front so the kiddie may button it as easily as a coat; partly stitched pleats add skirt fullness, and puffed sleeves create little-girl charm. A quick pull, and bloomers are in place. The kiddie that has both frock and bloomers of wool challis will be warm as toast the whole winter long.

Pattern 9621 may be ordered in sizes 2, 4, 6, 8 and 10. Size 6 requires 2½ yards 36 inch fabric and ¼ yard contrasting.

Send fifteen cents in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for this pattern. Be sure to write plainly your name, address, style number and size. Complete, diagrammed sew chart included.

Breaking In New Shoes Is All These Girls Do

Nobody likes to break in a new pair of shoes. The old ones feel so comfortable. Suppose, however, it was your job to test new shoes by breaking them in, you would have, to say the least, one of the oddest of vocations. Then you would be on a par with Miss Peggy Robertshaw and Miss C. Davies of Liverpool.

All these two English girls have to do is to walk 12 miles each day, wearing a pair of new shoes to test them. Each girl has a pedometer attached to her leg. When she has walked the prescribed number of miles in new shoes her pedometer is officially checked and a record is made of the condition of the footwear.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Choosy Thief

A milk thief can push a milkman too far and make him pretty mad. Fred Allen, in Flint, Mich., took the complaints of his customers complacently when they said they didn't get their milk. But when the thief began leaving notes in the bottles saying, "Make it chocolate," Allen blew up and told the police they'd have to do something about it.

Rid Yourself of Kidney Poisons

DO you suffer burning, scanty or too frequent urination, backache, headache, dizziness, loss of energy, leg pains, swellings and puffiness under the eyes? Are you tired, nervous—feel all unstrung and don't know what is wrong?

Then give some thought to your kidneys. Be sure they function properly for functional kidney disorder permits excess waste to stay in the blood, and to poison and upset the whole system.

Use Doan's Pills. Doan's are for the kidneys only. They are recommended the world over. You can get the genuine, time-tested Doan's at any drug store.

LOW TEMPERATURES, SNOW IN NORTH IOWA FOR CHRISTMAS

Sub-zero temperatures have been prevalent the past week and snow covers all of the state, giving us real winter weather for Christmas.

The temperatures recorded were as low as fourteen degrees below the zero mark. Christmas day saw the thermometer hang at the zero mark all day.

CANNING MEAT NOW WILL SAVE LOT OF SWEATING

Swiss steak on Monday, ham timbales on Tuesday, noodle soup for Wednesday's lunch, liver and bacon for Thursday—this is a cross section of the farm housewifes train of thought as she puts her menu ideas and home butchered meats simultaneously into cans.

These ideas and meats, neatly labeled on shelves, will prove valuable in July when it is too hot either to think or cook and, incidentally, when the price of pork chops will be high.

The idea that canned beef and pork are tough and unpalatable has been discarded by the up-to-date housewife who knows that canning methods should vary for different cuts of meats. Using special method of canning less tender cuts instead of following the procedure for the choice cuts results in a better product.

Precooking and canning less tender cuts of beef in broth is a recently developed method. It sets the flavor and color, provides proper shrinkage, retains food value eliminates dryness, lowers spoilage danger and lessens the loss of liquid.

Chuck, shank and other less choice cuts canned by this method should be boned and cut across the grain of the meat, when possible into uniform slices about 1½ inches thick. The cold meat is then precooked by plunging it into boiling broth, bringing promptly back to the simmering point and allowing it to simmer at 190 to 200 degrees Fahrenheit for 15 to 20 minutes or until it has lost its raw appearance and has developed a bright pink color when cut.

Care must be taken to have sufficient liquid to permit the meat to be loosely suspended so that it will heat uniformly. Overcooking results in brownish meat instead of bright pink. Cutting the meat into 1½ inch cubes before placing it in containers exposes the pink surface and improves the color. Two teaspoonsful of salt are added to each jar and the boiling broth used to fill the jar. Choose a pressure cooker for processing if available. If not the hot water bath can be used successfully if directions are followed.

Broth may be used for shrinking and precooking several batches of meat. Its strength increases with each cooking and helps give a better flavor. It must be kept hot, and used the same day it is made. At the end of the day, left-over broth may be canned by processing.

Mr. and Mrs. William Coobs came from Elkader to visit Klemme relatives and then drove to Marion, S. D., to spend New Years with his mother. They will then return to Klemme for a longer visit.

Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Arnold had a big Christmas dinner for the following relatives: Roy, of Ames; F. A. Arnold and Asa; Mrs. C. A. Arnold and Minnie Lenz; Dr. and Mrs. Tice and sons of Mason City; and Mr. and Mrs. Schneider of Goodell

Mrs. G. W. Kluckhohn, Mrs Sadie Turgasen and son, Donald o Mankato, Minn., Frank Kluckhohn and children, and Mr. and Mrs Carold Larson, were all Christmas dinner guests at the Fred Kluckhohn home.

Mr. Wellemeyer gave away a few gift articles to the little children under twelve years of age the Saturday before Christmas. The lucky ones were: Ruth Bell, Shirley Temple doll; Julia Bell, rocking chair; Iris Schaefer, little ceda. chest; Joan Ulrich, doll cradle.

D. L. Hunter and family left on Saturday for Charter Oak, Iowa, to spend Christmas with relatives. Mr. Hunter expected to put in rather a lot of time during the holiday vacation buying livestock and machinery for his farm, which he will operate near Charter Oak after completing his school work here.

Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Schneider entertained Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Jorgenson and Raymond, Jr., to a fine goose dinner Friday evening at their home east of Klemme. Miss Doris was home from Moravia, and next week Bob will leave for Ames where he will continue his course in animal husbandry.

We thought it quite interesting when we learned the other day that LeRoy Lau and Paul Sampson are the only two members left of their original C. C. C. camp, over two thousand boys having gone through the camp. There are now two hundred members in the camp which is located at Leon, Iowa,

BROWN HAND BAG TO BE CROCHETED

By GRANDMOTHER CLARK

Crocheted hand bags are still popular. They look good, are easy to make and cost very little, and the personal pride in hand-made articles must not be overlooked. This neat looking bag measures 5½ by 9 inches and being made of dark brown cotton is a very serviceable bag. Can be made in a few days in spare time.

Package No. 739 contains sufficient brown Mountain Craft crochet cotton to complete the bag, also instructions and crochet hook. Zipper and bag lining not included. This package will be mailed to you for 40 cents. Should you want the instructions only, send us 10 cents.

Address Home Craft Co., Dept. B, Nineteenth and St. Louis Ave., St. Louis, Mo. Inclose a stamped addressed envelope for reply when writing for any information.

Big Tree Forests Once Stood Over Eastern U. S.

Great forests of sequoia trees, related to the Big Trees of California and the coast redwoods of the Pacific slope, once stood over most of what is now the United States. New finds of their remains have recently been made, and are now in possession of the Smithsonian institution in Washington, where they are being studied by Dr. R. W. Brown of the United States Geological Survey.

One lot of specimens consists of an ancient driftwood deposit found in Maryland, near Washington, and the other is of sequoia cones from the Cannonball river region in North Dakota. No cones were found in the Maryland deposit, but it is considered likely that some of the logs are of redwood; sequoia cones have been found in other Maryland deposits. The trees in both collections are of Cretaceous geological age, about 120,000,000 years ago.—Science Service.

City Over 3,300 Years Old Bared by Archeologists

An entire Egyptian city, built 1,390 years before the birth of Christ, for the first time in history has been laid bare in all the splendor of its careful town planning. It was built between Cairo and Luxor by the great Pharaoh Akhenaten, who here tried to rid the Egyptian religion of its abuses.

But the city, with its processional way, coronation hall, and temple of the shining spirit, lasted no more than ten years, passing with its founder. The new pharaoh moved the capital of Egypt to another site, and now John Pendleton heads a party of British excavators who are completing the discovery of this ancient city.

The Marriage Problem

By HENDRIK VAN LOON

Author of "The Story of the Bible," "The Story of Mankind," etc.

Marriage Will Cease to Last "Until Death," but Will Be Dissolved by the "Death of Love"

EXHAUSTIVE researches through the Mesopotamian brickyards have incontrovertibly shown that the question, "What will become of marriage a hundred years hence?" was first discussed in the "Babylonian Bugle" during the seventh year of the reign of King Chedorlaomer.

The paper in question offered 18 Hittite slave-girls for the most reasonable answer and his majesty (whom you will remember as a distinguished contemporary of Abraham) was to be the judge. The answer unfortunately was lost when Alexander the Great used that particular issue of the famous news-sheet to build himself a new banqueting hall in the ruined palace of Nebuchadnezzar.

So much for ancient history.

As for the future, of course, I don't know anything definite, but I am quite certain that this same question will be one of the main issues discussed by the "Interastral Radio Tabloid" for the year 2035.

For the problem has two enormous and distinct advantages from the point of view of the average publisher.

In the first place, everybody is interested in it.

In the second place, it is quite impossible to reach a definite conclusion.

Wherefore, Caesar has just as much chance to guess right (or wrong) as Caesar's lowest stable boy. That makes for a happy democracy of feeling and that in turn is a great spur to an increased circulation.

In fairness to the reader I ought to offer this little preamble. Then, having established a suitable alibi for the benefit of my great-great-grandchildren, I beg to state that in my own opinion marriage a hundred years hence will be very much like marriage today or like marriage ten thousand years ago.

I do not mean to say that there are no individual cases of men and women who are perfectly happy alone, but the average man needs the companionship of some one of the other sex quite as much as the average woman needs the companionship of her male enemy.

The modern school of red-blooded, square-jawed he-citizen has erected an imaginary cave-man who went about with a ferocious pair of biceps, who stole himself a wife from his neighbor's lair, who dragged her by main force to his own roost and kept her there in a state of miserable bondage until the end of her days "against her will."

But there is no reason to suppose that paleolithic woman was at heart different from her sister of the present intermediary-glacial period. Like most primitive creatures she was a slave to fashion and tradition and knew all the tricks of the "how-dare-you-sir?" invocation.

What those earliest ancestors thought of the institution of marriage, that, alas! we do not know.

Curiously enough it was the capitalistic system, that poplar bogeyman of all our evils, which at last set woman free from her Bedouin-inherited bondage. As long as marriage was the only career which could assure the average woman a modicum of economic security, she was forced to accept her male companion at his own valuation. The moment typewriters became cheap she could snap her fingers at her liege-lord and bid him remove his belongings from her apartment.

And that little fact, so it seems to me, will be the basis for the development of marriage during the next hundred years.

I do not believe that the biological nature of either man or woman will suffer any great changes.

There will be much less "obeying" and "honoring" and much more "cherishing."

Marriage (as my excellent friend Rabbi Brown points out in his matrimonial formula) will cease to last until "death," but it will be dissolved by the "death of love." That is to say, people will continue to live together as long as they love each other and not a day longer.

Of course, a statement like this is apt to provide unbounded fury on the part of those who believe in the Oriental doctrine of female submission. And they wave their hands and loudly shout, "This wretch believes in unlimited divorce!"

But that is exactly what (in my opinion) will not happen. Just because divorce will be so much easier a hundred years hence, people will have much less recourse to the courts than today.

When both parties know that they must do their best to gain and retain the affection and the respect of their companion or else he (or she) will be able to get out of the mutual contract without committing perjury (the unavoidable part of our present divorce code) they will both try much harder than ever before to make a success of their common venture.

what Irvin S. Cobb thinks about:

Us Present-Day Sissies.

SANTA MONICA, CALIF.—Our ancestors, the men and women who whittled this country out of ramping wilderness—they were different, although perhaps difficult to get along with. They'd fight you over almost any issue—their personal rights, their public wrongs, their national principles, their private prejudices, their outer boundaries, their internal policies. They fought one another; they fought foreign powers. But, excusing politicians and professional whiners, they didn't do such an awful lot of fretting over the painfully primitive conditions of a pioneering life. We, their children, with too many laws we won't enforce, too many criminals we won't punish, too many unjust taxes we won't rebel against—we complain about everything. It's as though a race of eagles bred a breed of worms that turn only to turn the other cheek. I guess we're getting peevishly flabby.

Irvin S. Cobb.

I woke up this morning feeling as flabby as a cold flapjack, and I don't know when I've been peevisher. So I sat down and wrote this.

N.B.—And never mind telling me that a worm hasn't any cheek. I know that as well as you do.

Van Sweringen's Passing.

GRANTED, that in these shifting times there is a somewhat prevalent tendency to regard it this way and be governed accordingly: for a man to have been a success is a crime, but to have been a failure is a profession.

Even so, there's still a thrill, reading of the career of M. J. Van Sweringen. Horatio Alger might have written him. He starts life as a newsboy in Cleveland. Today, at fifty-four, he lies dead there.

How many millions he left, nobody knows. Probably he didn't much care. It must have been the sport and not the size of the game-bag that made him a dominant figure in railroading and finance.

That's one side of the American picture. The other side is that almost every one of us knows, or has heard, of a former reputed millionaire who'd like to get a good job somewhere selling newspapers.

The Source of an Idea.

I RAN across it the other day—this ancient one.

Shipwrecked mariners in crisis. Sea rising, life raft sinking beneath them, no rescue craft in sight. Situation seems to call for professions of faith. But nobody can quote from the Scriptures, nobody can sing a hymn, nobody even knows a prayer. Desperately, the mate speaks up: "Men, we gotta do somethin' pious—let's pass the hat."

I read that antique wheeze and in a flash the puzzle was solved. Now I know where they got the original idea—those economic wizards in and out of congress, who, in times like these, bob up with various theories, but all aimed at the same purpose; namely, that financial security can be restored not by giving industry a chance to recuperate, but by taking away the previous fruits of industry.

Hollywood's Newest Grievance.

HOLLYWOOD sentiment is that those alleged polygamists recently on trial over at Kingman, in Arizona, should be penalized for breaking the rules. You see, the curious colony up there in the desert favors having a lot of wives all at once, whereas the Hollywood championship team prefers various wives, one at a time, which prevents confusion and works out to the same gratifying high scores in the end.

But no matter how the law may serve those Arizona husbands, I would put in a plea for the female co-defendants charged with marrying 'em so copiously. For I've just seen some newspaper pictures of the male prisoners. Gentlemen of the jury, if they be true likenesses, those poor near-sighted women already have suffered enough. Talk about being more sinned against than sinning.

That Banker's Identity.

IF THE President won't name him, I shan't. But I'll bet anything—anything I have left, I mean—that the distinguished banker who told him this country could safely go in debt for quite a lot more billions is the same financial wizard who counseled me about my dainty little investments in the blithe, braw days before 1929. It certainly sounds like the same fellow.

On second thought, maybe not. Because the last I heard of my banker, he was sitting by the steam-pipes at a county poor-farm back East, telling the other inmates about an infallible system for beating those stock market boys. You see, he was sucker enough to follow his own advice. Can you imagine?

Thinning Benefit to the Wood Lot

Many Treble Stand of Trees and Provide Fuel at the Same Time.

By R. B. PARMENTER, Extension Forester, Massachusetts State College.
WNU Service.

Owners of farm woodlots can treble the final value of the stand and at the same time obtain plenty of fuel wood for this winter by following a few simple rules.

The farm wood lot is distinctly an important part of the farm and is capable of producing a steady income. Careful selection of the trees that go into the wood box will save many dollars to the owner of the wood lot through increased value of the remaining trees.

In a fully stocked forest, the final stand will consist of from 100 to 150 trees to the acre. The main object of stand improvement is to select on each acre that many trees of the best form and species and develop them for the final crop. Only a small percentage of stems will ever reach maturity, and it would be a serious mistake to leave only the final number in a growing stand.

Rather the owner should pick out the best species to save, and free them from competition by cutting away a few of the less desirable species. Don't remove anything more than is necessary to accomplish this result. Limit the work to opening a space around the crown of each tree that will close completely within five years.

In uneven-aged stands the valuable species should be released, in land densely stocked with young hardwoods of one to three inches in diameter, selective thinning will promote sound timber production.

Cutting out all dead, defective, and dying trees and those of inferior species is advised. If the work is carefully planned and executed, the wood lot will grow surprisingly.

Screw Worms Reach Corn Belt; Winter Kills Them

The screw worm, one of the most destructive pests of live stock, attacked animals this year in several northern states. Strong flyers, though they are, these insects could never have traveled under their own power so far from the South, where they cause heavy losses among all classes of live stock, according to Dr. F. C. Bishopp of the bureau of entomology and plant quarantine, United States Department of Agriculture. Apparently, Doctor Bishopp says, the pest, in its maggot stage, was carried on infested cattle and sheep shipped North in response to the stimulation of rising meat prices and abundant feed in the corn belt. In this new territory it spread in 14 counties in central western Illinois, in eastern Missouri, and in southwestern Iowa. There have been more than 7,000 screw worm cases in Illinois and the pest killed about 400 animals there.

Cold always checks the screw worm, even in the South. As the fly is a southern species, it is not likely to survive the winter in the corn belt. An outbreak next year, therefore, need be feared only if infested animals are allowed to come in.

Hybrid Seed Corn

When pure lines are cross-fertilized hybrid seed corn is obtained. In crossing pure lines the silks of one strain are fertilized with pollen from the tassel of another unrelated strain. On a large scale, writes Earl Sievering in the Prairie Farmer, this cross-pollination is controlled by planting two unrelated pure lines systematically through a field. All tassels are removed from one strain before any pollen is shed. The silks on the detasseled plants are fertilized with pollen from the tassels of the other unrelated strain. Hybrid seed is harvested from the detasseled plants.

Frosted Sudan Grass

Frosted sudan grass is not dangerous in any appreciable degree to cattle pasturing on it, according to Dr. C. J. Willard of the Ohio experiment station. He says that the Michigan experiment station has pastured frosted sudan for three years without injury to cattle, and in 20 years not a dozen cases of poisoning have been reported east of the Mississippi river. Prussic acid is the component that would cause poisoning in sudan grass.

Fertilizer for Fruit Trees

The only conditions under which it is unprofitable to use fertilizers in the fall is where the soil is acid or there is a possibility of leaching during the winter, as in the case of sandy soils. As far as growth and yield are concerned, nitrogenous fertilizers have been found as beneficial for fall applications as complete fertilizers, experiments having shown that fruit tree roots seem to have a great capacity for storing nitrogen.

Wild Rice Yield

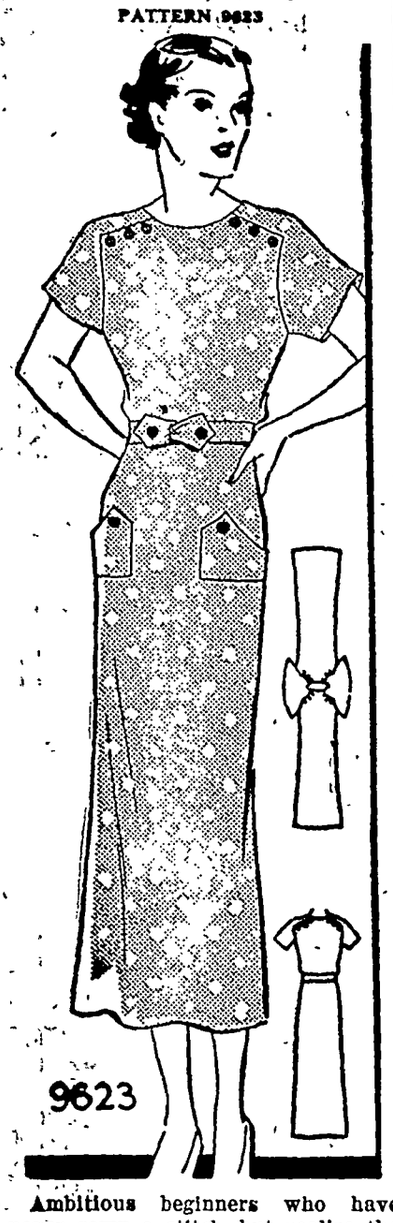
Chippewa Indians in Wisconsin and Minnesota will harvest a wild rice crop of 40,000 pounds this year. This rice is the principal food of mallard, teal, black ducks, wild geese and mudhens. The rice must be planted by hand annually in the lowland waters of these states. It grows over six feet tall and is harvested by the Indians from canoes. Strangely, the wild rice is not native to these northern waters but was originally planted here by the Chippewas.—Farm Journal.

Yoke-Sleeve Design House Frock That's Very Easy to Make



Ambitious beginners who have never sewn a stitch, but realize the economy in a home-made frock, will find this simple yoke-sleeve design an excellent way to learn to sew. The collarless neck (so comfortable, and easy to iron), short sleeves and yoke cut in one, and an absolutely plain skirt, sum up its easy-to-make features. A few yards of pretty percale or broadcloth, and a card or two of bright buttons will find you launched on a career that's to prove of great satisfaction and financial saving to you.

Pattern 9623 may be ordered only in sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42. Size 16 requires 3¼ yards 36-inch fabric.

Send fifteen cents in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for this pattern. Be sure to write plainly your name, address, style number and size. Complete, diagrammed sew chart included.

Send your order to The Sewing Circle Pattern Dept., 232 W. Eighteenth St., New York, N. Y.

OF INTEREST TO THE HOUSEWIFE

When sheets wear in the middle, rip hems and make sheets into pillow cases out of each sheet.

Wrinkles may be easily removed from a chiffon dress if it is hung in a bathroom filled with steam. When thoroughly steamed hang in the air to dry.

One quart of boiling water, three tablespoonfuls of linseed oil and one tablespoonful of turpentine mixed together and applied to hardwood floors with a woolen cloth will remove all the dust and dirt that has accumulated on them.

Put a teaspoonful of borax into starch water. It will give a gloss to the starched things.

If a beef loaf is seared in hot bacon drippings before baking in the oven, it will not become dry.

After oiling a sewing machine, sew through a piece of blotting paper. This will prevent any surplus oil from soiling material.

No Ticker Tape in Wall Street of Bryce Canyon

It's 1,500 feet straight down from the top of the spires of the towering "skyscrapers" (mountains) to the tree-lined "street" which marks the floor of Bryce Canyon National park, in southern Utah. But no cluttering ticker tape, no scurrying messenger boys, no cries of excited brokers disturb the silence.

One hears only the chirp of birds, and perhaps the exclamations of wonder on the part of touring strangers as they view the many colors of the rocks.

THE WISH

By Sara Henderson Hay

Four candles marked the number of his years—
My neighbor's little boy—
And he was dazzled by a cake with tiers,
And many a brave toy.
But when the day turned golden in the skies,
And he as well went drowsily to bed,
He sighed, and mournfully winked his dewy eyes.
"I wanted a gun—" he said.

Across his tumbled curls our glances met—
His mother's and my own—
And starkly, hideously, in her eyes was writ
The brutal Word all motherhood has known,
That twisted sword, the ominous phrase addressed
To gentle Mary's breast!

And quiet between us, rosy with dreaming, slept
The Child Humanity, the thoughtless one,
Dear, foolish, reasonless, the world's small son,
Wanting a gun!

"God keep him from his wish," his mother said,
And caught her quivering lip, and suddenly wept.

BROTHERHOOD ENTERTAINED FAMILIES MONDAY EVE

The Men's Brotherhood of the M. E. Church met Monday evening at the church. They had invited their wives and families to join them in a pot-luck supper. After a delicious meal, several musical numbers were enjoyed, and a program of foolishness was presented. Every one present had a fine time.

It was voted to turn these Monday evening meetings into a birthday supper, such as they have at the Liberty Church. So starting with the first Monday of next month the people who have birthdays in February will be the guests, the people who had birthdays in January will put on the program and the people who had birthdays in December will have charge of the supper and washing of the dishes It will be a potluck supper each time, and each family is supposed to bring one covered dish and sandwiches. This will be held for the entire congregation and friends of the congregation.

COUNTY DEBT CONCILIATION COMMITTEE GIVES DATES

SUNDAY MATINEE AT AVERY BEGINS EARLY THIS WEEK

Due to the length of the picture "Mutiny on the Bounty," manager Chas. Marks announces that the first show Sunday afternoon will begin earlier than usual. The first matinee begins at 1:30 and the time of the starting of the other shows will be 3:40, 6:20 and 9 p. m.

"Mutiny on the Bounty" is regarded as the biggest picture of the year.

Reformed Aid Officers Elected

At the last regular monthly meeting of the Reformed Ladies Aid the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, Mrs. Henry Barz; vice-pres, Mrs. G. Goll; Sec'y, Mrs. Richard Ax; Treas. Mrs. Carl Anderson. The serving committee and the silver committee remained the same.

Former Klemme Man Reports Good Business At Rowan

Returning from Hampton Sunday evening the writer and family stopped for a short visit with Mr. and Mrs. Ed Hughes, who are running a service station on Highway 10 at the north edge of Rowan. They report they have enjoyed a fine business since taking over the place about ten weeks ago. Mrs. Hughes has been ill for a few weeks but is on the road to recovery again.

Mr. Hughes has made some changes in the place and expects to make a number of improvements next spring.

VAGABONDS LOSE TO PABST BLUE RIBBON TEAM

The Klemme Vagabonds lost to the Pabst Blue Ribbon team of Mason City on the local floor Monday night 42 to 17. Superior height accounted for the big margin of points.

The locals led 3 to 2 at the quarter and trailed the rest of the game 14 to 9; 32 to 13; and 42 to 17.

Three Weddings Interest Community During Week

MILDRED LEMKE IS BRIDE OF YOUNG BELMOND FARMER

Marriage Took Place At St. Francis Church on January Second

Miss Mildred Lemke, Klemme, and Mr. Vernon V. McLaughlin, Belmond, were united in marriage at the St. Francis Church in Belmond on Thursday morning, January 2nd, with the Rev. Fr. S. J Mauer officiating. The bride and groom were attended by Miss Loyola McLaughlin as bridesmaid and Mr. Leon Lemke as best man.

The bride was dressed in green with accessories to match, and the bridesmaid wore a rust colored dress with accessories to match. The groom was attired in dark blue and the best man in dark brown.

Following the ceremony at the church the bridal party came to Klemme where a three course wedding breakfast was served at the home of Mrs. Daisy Lemke, mother of the bride.

A reception and dance was given Thursday evening at the hall in Goodell which was attended by a large crowd and the young couple were presented with many nice gifts

Mrs. McLaughlin was born near Klemme and raised in this community. She attended the Klemme Schools and graduated from high school in 1932.

Mr. McLaughlin is a son of Mr. and Mrs. W. T. McLaughlin of Belmond. He was born at Churchville in Warren County and came to Wright County with his parents in 1920 where they lived on a farm near Belmond. He graduated from the Belmond High School in 1928. Mr. and Mrs. McLaughlin will farm near Belmond.

A shower was given Friday evening at the W. T. McLaughlin home by the groom's sisters, Kathryn and Loyola and a mock wedding was staged.

VERA BACHMAN AND WAYNE HURD MARRIED LAST WEEK

The Wm. Kirkwood home in Klemme was the scene of a wedding last week Thursday afternoon, January 2nd when Miss Vera Bachman became the bride of Mr. Wayne Hurd, both of Klemme. Rev. Harry Henlein, pastor of the U. B. Church at Goodell officiated. The couple were attended by George Netland and Ethel Netland as witnesses.

Both of the contracting parties have spent most of their life in this community. The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Bachman who reside on a farm near Klemme. Mr. Hurd is the son of Mrs. Wm. Kirkwood of Klemme.

A miscellaneous shower was given this Wednesday afternoon by Mrs. Wm. Kirkwood in honor of the newlyweds. Wednesday evening of this week a dance and reception will be held for Mr. and Mrs. Hurd at the community hall in Goodell.

Mr. and Mrs. Hurd will go to housekeeping this spring on a farm southeast of Klemme.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S S. S. CLASS HAD WATCH PARTY

The young people's class of the Methodist Sunday School held a New Year's Eve watch party at the home of their teacher, Mrs. Wm. Zabilka last Tuesday evening. The time was spent in playing various games and doing stunts. A delicious lunch was served. They all helped ring the church bell at twelve o'clock.

CLEAR LAKE CHURCH SCENE OF FORMAL WEDDING

Local Young Man and Bride Now Reside at Mason City

The Congregational Church at Clear Lake was the scene of a formal wedding on New Year's Eve when Ruth Evangeline Peterson became the bride of Dorance Smith Day. The altar was very prettily decorated with sprigs and wreaths of evergreens tied with white chiffon while white tapers burned in the background.

Miss Gracka Quandt played the wedding march and Lois Petersen, neice of the bride, sang 'Oh, Promise Me" and "I Love You Truly."

The Bride wore a white satin gown trimmed in point lace and carried a bouquet of white rosebuds, white sweet peas and orchids. She was attended by her only sister, Mrs Clarence Conklin, who wore a Copen blue velvet dress trimmed in silver with silver slippers, and carried a bouquet of pink rosebuds and pink sweet peas.

Mr. Days best man was Mr. Byrnes Missman, his boyhood friend and close companion, also a Fraternity brother. Both wore black tuxedos with a white rose boutonniere. The ring ceremny was used, and the Rev. Blough performed the ceremony. Don Phillips and Vincent Minnette, both of Clear Lake, served as ushers.

Mr. and Mrs. George Petersen parents of the bride, entertained at a reception at their home to all the invited guests. Lucille and Evelyn Petersen poured at the buffet luncheon, and a four tiered wedding cake decorated by the groom's mother, Mrs. J. N. Day, graced the center of the table. Pink and white carnations and pink tapers also were table decorations.

Guests at the wedding were: Mr. and Mrs. J. N. Day and Mrs. Wm. Smith, parents and grandmother of the groom; Dr. Missman of Klemme Mr. and Mrs. Donald Nissen of Sioux City; Mr. and Mrs. Bert Mathews, Clear Lake; Rufus Nixon, Jr., a Fraternity brother, of Grand Forks, N. Dak.; Mr. and Mrs. Geo Petersen; Mr. and Mrs. Fred A. Petersen, Mr. and Mrs. Vern Petersen, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Petersen, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Petersen, Mr. and Mrs. Pete Petersen, Mr. and Mrs Clarence Conklin, Mrs. Kenneth Gordon, the Rev. Blough, all of Clear Lake; Mr. and Mrs. Harry Cash of Fertile, Iowa.

The couple left on a short wedding trip following the reception and will be at home at 203 2nd St S. E., Mason City, Iowa.

The Bride is a graduate of the Clear Lake High School and took one year of post-graduate work and typing.

The groom, who is the only son of Postmaster and Mrs. J. N. Day of Klemme, was born and raised here, attending the Klemme Schools. He took an active part in athletics and declamatory work and after graduating from high school, for two years attended the University of Iowa, where he was affiliated with the Alpha Tau Omeago fraternity.

Story of the Turkey

On His Way to the Dining Table.

Prepared by the National Geographic Society, Washington, D. C.—WNU Service.

ONE of the largest of wild game birds which has been domesticated, the turkey has become "the national festival bird" of various countries. As a wild bird in North America, the turkey supplied the numerous tribes of Indians and the early white settlers with "game" fowl in great abundance, whereas in later times the domesticated turkey has provided kings and presidents, as well as the more lowly in rank, in various nations with a class of meat that has come to be regarded as essential in the proper celebration of certain holidays.

The turkey is the only race of poultry that originated in the United States. When Francisco Fernandez, under the patronage of Philip II of Spain, arrived at the northern coast of Yucatan in 1517, turkeys were observed to have been domesticated by the natives. In 1518 Grijalva discovered Mexico and found domesticated turkeys in great numbers. Gomara and Hernandez refer to wild as well as domesticated forms.

Various Indian tribes fed freely upon turkey meat, obtained from both wild and domesticated flocks. The Aztecs were more inclined to domesticate the turkey than the northern Indians, but all tribes hunted the wild birds.

The flesh was not the only part of the turkey used by the Indians. Feathers served to adorn the wearing apparel, and they were also made into robes and blankets, being twisted separately into strands of wild hemp and then woven together.

In its original habitat the wild turkey ranged from the Atlantic coast to as far north as the Dakotas, and from southern Ontario to southern Mexico. It was not a native of the three Pacific coast states, nor of Idaho, Montana, Utah, Nevada and Wyoming.

With practically a whole continent for his home, the more favored haunts of the wild turkey were the forests and brush lands, where food was abundant and there was some protection from natural enemies. He fed on acorns, seeds, berries, grass and insects, especially grasshoppers.

Found Wild in Southern States.

The clearing of the forests and brush lands for agricultural purposes and the shooting of thousands of birds by hunters were two of the most important factors contributing to the gradual retreat of the wild turkey from northern and eastern states.

It is still to be found in Arizona, New Mexico, Kentucky, Tennessee, Pennsylvania, Maryland, Arkansas, Colorado, Oklahoma, Missouri, Mississippi, Louisiana, Alabama, Georgia, Florida, Texas, Virginia, West Virginia, and Mexico. Various state game departments are reintroducing the bird, and restocking depleted areas.

Although there is no doubt that the wild turkey originated in America, there is much doubt as to how it got its name. Some early writers have suggested that the name "turkey" was adopted because of the supposed resemblance between the adornments of the fowl's head and the fez worn by Turkish citizens. But the most widely accepted explanation is that the name bears some resemblance to the bird's repeated call-notes—"turk, turk, turk."

The turkey is not a migratory bird in the sense that ducks and geese migrate hundreds of miles from the south to the north in the spring and return in the fall, much to the delight of thousands of hunters.

The wild turkey is a handsome bird of stately carriage. His glossy plumage is mostly greenish bronze, with gold and coppery reflections. In the sunlight the effect is a delight to the eye. The feathers of the neck, breast, body, and back are tipped with a band of velvety black, thus accentuating the glowing sheen of the remainder of the plumage.

One outstanding characteristic of the turkey is that the upper portion of the neck and the head is bare of feathers, the skin being rich purple or blue. The folds or lumps of bare skin are called caruncles. There is a single wattle, and from the crown of the head there hangs a pencil-like projection of the skin, which reddens when the gobblers make love to the hens.

Another outstanding character of the turkey is the tuft of wiry, hairlike "beard" springing from the center of the breast. In some old male wild turkeys, the beard trails to the ground.

The feet of the wild turkey are light purple. They are equipped with short, heavy spurs, but while the male chicken fights principally with his spurs, the turkey fights almost entirely with his beak.

Gobbler's "Breast Sponge."

The wild gobbler is provided with an interesting appendage, which is not found on the females or on young gobblers. John James Audubon, writing in 1831, speaks of it as the "breast sponge," and it serves a very important function. In the spring, during the gobbling season, this sponge is filled with fat and serves to sustain the bird; he usually eats little while strutting, gobbling, and otherwise making love to the females.

As the mating season advances the gobbler usually becomes quite thin, as the reservoir of fat is used up. There is no pairing off in couples, as in the case of many other wild birds, for the wild turkey male is polygamous in the extreme and loves a large harem. Bitter fights among the old males are common, the victor claiming the harem of the vanquished. The defeated male must perforce seek battle with another for the possession of another flock of females, or he is obliged to join a group of disconsolate "bachelors."

The females select secluded spots for their nests and make a slight depression in the ground, into which a few dry leaves are scratched. From eight to fifteen eggs, somewhat smaller and more pointed than those of the domestic varieties, are laid.

After four weeks of incubating, the baby turks, or poults, appear, covered with gray down, dotted with dusky spots, and with two dusky stripes running from the top of the head down the sides of the back. The down is soon replaced by feathers, which are replaced by another coat of feathers when the birds molt. The molting season begins in August, and by the latter part of December all of the old feathers have been replaced by new ones.

The young gobbler acquires his "beard" in the center of the breast by November and it continues to grow rapidly until the third year, and thereafter more slowly.

The young turkeys receive the care of their mother until they are four or five months old, after which they look after themselves. At six or seven months of age, the young gobblers separate from the young and old hens and range by themselves. The old gobblers also range by themselves, usually in flocks of about fifteen. The sexes roost apart.

Plenty of Enemies.

This large and magnificent wild bird has always had numerous enemies, such as the fox, coon, mink, skunk, wolf, lynx, and coyote. Its bird enemies include owls, eagles, and hawks. One writer says "There is never a moment in the poor turkey's life that eternal vigilance is not the price of its existence." Not only must the turkey be on guard every hour of the day, but it must also seek roosting places that are more or less inaccessible to its natural enemies. For this reason turkeys favor trees growing in shallow water, which seems to provide some protection from night prowlers.

In early colonial days wild turkeys were very numerous in Massachusetts, and at the beginning of the Nineteenth century they could be purchased for six cents each, while large birds, ranging from 25 to 30 pounds, sold for 25 cents. When Cortez first visited the capital of Mexico, "no less than 500 turkeys, the cheapest meat in Mexico, were allowed for the feeding of the vultures and eagles kept in the royal aviaries."

The turkey was first introduced into Spain in 1519 by Francisco Fernandez. From that country it spread throughout Europe and England, being introduced into the latter country in 1524.

The turkey was introduced to Germany in 1530. The first mention of the bird in Italy was in an ordinance issued by the magistrate of Venice in 1556, "repressing the luxury of serving turkeys." In 1570 Bartolomeo Scappi, cook to Pope Pius V, published receipts for cooking turkey.

In recent years dressed turkeys have been imported into the United States from Hungary, Russia, Austria, and Ireland, and large numbers come from Argentina. Such is the irony of fate; being indigenous to the United States and existing here in countless numbers, the wild turkey was domesticated and later taken to other countries, from which it is now imported in the "dressed" form.

In Texas, Colorado, and the Dakotas many flocks of a thousand or more birds are raised annually. Frequently these large flocks are herded on the prairies in much the same manner as are sheep and cattle.

From the original wild stocks man has developed a number of useful varieties which differ largely in respect to plumage color. There are six standard varieties recognized by the American Poultry association: the Slate, the Bourbon Red, the Black, the Narragansett, the Bronze, and the White Holland.

SIAMESE TWINS NEW WASHINGTON PUZZLE

If One Is Sent to Congress, There's Problem.

Washington.—Some day one section of a pair of Siamese twins is going to be elected to an official position in Washington and the society of the nation's capital thrown into discord, turmoil and high fever.

One reading of a book called "Social Washington," which is one of the several tomes which purport to tell the "do's" and "don't's" of Washington society, would convince you that Siamese twins would furnish an almost insurmountable problem.

All social ranking in Washington depends upon the job you have. You go to dinner according to that job. You sit down to dinner according to that job; you get up from dinner according to that job, and you make your friends according to that job.

Heaven Help 'Em.

Heaven help those whose jobs carry little social weight. They may be twice as gracious as the senator who does his own laundry, but they'll go in to dinner like the bleacher ticket holders at Yankee stadium.

Even the guest of honor at a dinner, the book says, must be separated from the hostess by those who outrank him. If the guest of honor happens to be a friend from Sioux City, with no rank, he'll find himself far down the table.

The order of precedence recognized in Washington starts with the President and winds up somewhere in the neighborhood of Mount Vernon with the secretary of the Smithsonian institution and second and third foreign secretaries.

In Place Thirteen.

When the Siamese twin comes here as a congresswoman she'll be entitled to thirteenth place, right between the chief of operations of the navy (an admiral or vice admiral) and ex-Vice Presidents.

But how will the hostess solve the problem of the other twin who holds no rank?

They can't expect anybody to be nice about the other twin crowding in where she doesn't belong, for one of the most oft-repeated warnings in "Social Washington" is that officials never cede their places.

Any Vice President who happens to be at the same dinner with the twins will have to sit in the non-ranking twin's lap to hold his place in rank and dignity.

The thing would be even more complicated if the congresswoman twin happened to be the left twin. Then she'd be sitting on the left of her unofficial sister. This would undoubtedly lead to a family fight.

Even worse, however, would be for the nonranking twin to marry a senator, which would give her the tenth place in the batting order.

In such a situation the hostess would have to manage somehow to seat the chief of staff of the army and the chief of operations of the navy between the two twins. This would work a tremendous hardship on all concerned, especially during the soup course.

Science Blinks at Sun to Trap Rays for Power

Los Angeles.—Science blinked at the sun as H. E. McCoy, inventor, displayed a device which, he insists, will produce the highest temperature ever developed, by collecting sun rays and turning them into volumes of heat units for practical purposes.

McCoy and his assistant, Charles C. Gaston, explained the invention as consisting of three standard interchangeable 1,500-degree units, connected to standard automatic controls. From 1,000 to 50,000 degrees can be obtained by using additional units, they declared.

Although it is in its experimental stage, McCoy believes the apparatus will open many new fields. He is convinced that through it he will be enabled to recover mercury from cinnabar, smelt ore, superheat steam to drive turbines, operate power for heating and lighting and operate air conditioning and home electrical appliances.

Checkmate Weather Delays of Air Line Schedules

Chicago.—With the objective of checkmating delays of air line schedules caused by weather, forces of the United States weather bureau, Department of Commerce and air line meteorologists have established advanced scientific systems of weather reporting and analysis to improve materially scheduled performance of air lines.

"Through co-ordination of flying and ground personnel in forecasting and interpreting airway weather conditions, air lines are better equipped than ever to maintain a high percentage of completed schedules," Theodore Larsen, United Air Lines meteorologist, stated.

Gold Mine Is Offered at Auction; No Bidders

Johannesburg, Transvaal.—A gold mine which has produced over £1,000 worth of gold a month has gone begging here. When it was offered for sale, the auctioneer could not get a bid. The mine is the Dorothy Gold mine, between Randfontein and Venterspost. During the first three months of 1932, the auctioneer said, between $5,000 and $7,000 worth of gold was recovered each month. But no one bid.

Lights of New York

by L. L. STEVENSON

Of all the cats that make their homes in Broadway theaters, Minnie, of the Winter Garden, is perhaps the best known. For two years her bad breaks, feats and exploits have been recited here and there. Usually, during performances, she takes up quarters in some remote part of the theater where she is safe from shifting scenery and the feet of hurrying actors. Nevertheless, she has had her moments. Once, she walked on during a "mood" song number and took a position down stage, center. With the attention of the audience centered on Minnie, the number was ruined. She has done even better—or worse, according to the viewpoint—than that. It was the time when, with a scene approaching its climax, she chased a dog across the stage. Thus, a cat stopped the show.

Minnie began her theatrical career at the ripe age of six weeks, her first appearance having been with the last Joe Cook show, "Hold Your Horses." Cook used her as a prop to fit into a little wine goblet. When she outgrew the goblet, she was adopted by the members of the Cook company and the stage hands. Rapidly she acquired tricks that endeared her to her associates. Through some unique sense of timing, she would appear at the stage door at 8 a. m. and 2 p. m. on matinee days and settle herself at the door. As the performers came in, they stopped and caressed her. At 5:20 p. m. on matinee days and at 11:20 p. m. each evening, she was back again on the table for a bit of farewell petting.

Minnie is just as popular with members of the "At Home Aboard" company, and that brought her into the limelight again. On her second birthday, the various members of the cast took part in a party for her. It was a successful party except for one thing. Minnie drank so much cream that she was too sick to purr for two days. But the theater motto, "The show must go on" was so firmly ingrained in her that she didn't miss any stage door appearances.

Remaining in the Winter Garden a bit longer, there was the unique situation of union stage hands fighting among themselves to do extra work that carries with it no extra pay! In one number, Beatrice Lillie is perched on a little seat about nine feet above the stage level. There is no time for a ladder to be placed under her perch after the completion of her number, so it is necessary for some strong man of the back-stage crew to catch Lady Peel when she jumps. Eddie Dowling, stage director, volunteered for the job but the union men refused permission on the ground it was "striking" that particular set. Finally Jack Mears, the property man, won out on the ground that Miss Lillie is a piece of property, so it was his job to remove her from the set.

Possibly, I'm theater-minded today, but there is that matter of programs, especially those of musical shows with many numbers. In order to keep track of what's going on, careless customers use cigarette lighters, which is against the fire laws and dangerous, while the sight of flickering flames here and there in a darkened theater is not reassuring to the timid, to say the least. Now I'm wondering if the problem couldn't be solved by supplying the programs when the tickets are bought, thus giving a chance for advance perusal.

Although Irvin Cobb was a newspaper man for years and is a master of the typewriter, he is still a gentleman of the old school to the extent that he writes all his personal letters in long hand. Despite those years of taking notes, his handwriting is remarkably legible and, of course, the contents of those letters are extremely entertaining.

Elephant Makes Little of Mighty Large Job

East Orange, N. J.—An elephant—the kind that never forgets—obligingly shifted its weight in an overturned truck until it had righted the vehicle, and then went for a walk through town.

Its name is "No-Name" and it was being moved to a circus' winter quarters in New York when the truck capsized. No-Name weighs 8,700 pounds and the truck might have been by the side of the road yet if No-Name had not rolled over and brought it upright again.

The accident broke No-Name's chains and he ambled down the street. He paused once to snatch a box of prepared toast from a woman's hand, swallowed both toast and box. Then he wandered through a wide door into a garage and settled down for the night next to an automobile.

Question Whether or No This Ghost Kept Appointment.

Telscombe Cliffs, England.

STROLLING along these green-crested embankments from which on a clear day one may see the coast of France across the channel, I take stock of my old friend Sir Frederick O'Conner's latest tiger hunt in the kingdom of Nepal, where, on numerous previous occasions, the royal beasts to the number of 178 have fallen to his high-powered weapons.

Today, under a mackerel sky, a soft quartering wind from the sea, we talked of other things that had befallen us in far places. We had a fling at the supernatural, in which I professed not to take much stock.

"But there are so many truly mysterious and inexplicable manifestations met with in life that it is absurd to dismiss the subject out of hand," said the distinguished Irishman, who said in the next breath, "I myself had an experience that to this day remains unsolved. Perhaps you can explain it.

Happened in Mystic Land.

"It happened at Simla, summer capital of India; a gorgeous spot in the Himalayas, north of Delhi," began Sir Frederick. "I was stationed there on special duty for the government. That would be in 1920. My residence overlooked a wooded valley about two miles wide. On the opposite slope, partly concealed in the tropical growth, stood a small unoccupied bungalow. Because of its isolation and the view it commanded I made inquiries and found that it could be rented for a small fee. The agent volunteered the information that it was haunted by the ghost of the former occupant, an Englishman. Moreover, that I would find difficulties in getting servants to remain with me.

"Nonsense, I thought, and made up my mind to enjoy a few quiet week ends there with my Gurkha orderly to serve me. One afternoon he aroused me from a nap and announced the approach of a sahib (white man). 'He is coming up the road very slowly and wears a topi' (cork helmet). 'Very well, I will be out in a moment. Ask him to have a seat on the veranda.' When I appeared the Gurkha, much disturbed, advised me that the sahib had vanished. Nor did he reappear. I thought nothing of the occurrence until a week later when I received a visit from a brother officer and his wife, who spent the night under my roof. I told them about the mysterious visitor who had disappeared into space. The husband informed me that he sometimes experimented with spirit writing, that he had received many communications by simply placing a pencil in his fingers and allowing his hand to remain limp upon a sheet of blank paper. Would I permit him to recall the departed?

Making a Weird Test.

"'By all means; let's have a go at it,' I said. 'The night is dark and all conditions ideal. Here are pencil and paper. Proceed.' He began by asking in a perfectly natural tone of voice if there was present a spirit that had a communication for the living. His hand quivered spasmodically while the pencil wrote the word 'Yes.' He then asked if it was the spirit of the former occupant of the house. 'No,' but the writer would make an effort to summon him. 'Wait a moment.' We remained seated and in silence. Presently the hand began to move with increased energy. 'This is another spirit,' said the medium, 'evidently the one we want.' Additional questions were asked and the pencil wrote the name of the suicide—all afterward verified at Simla—and the cause for the act—despondency. Also that his shade was seen by the Gurkha a week prior. 'Would he reveal himself to me?' I asked. 'Yes, if it were possible for me to see him.' Not everybody is capable of seeing the ghost of one who has died. Through the medium I made an appointment for 8:30 o'clock the next night. It was agreed that I should be on the veranda at the appointed hour—alone."

Rendezvous With Spook.

"What about your Gurkha?"

"He was to remain indoors. I put him under a pledge of secrecy. On the following night I closed the door which usually remained open in the evening, had the Gurkha pull down the blinds within and seated myself in a rocking chair. Placing my watch, which was equipped with a radium dial, on a tabouret immediately in front of me, I watched the hour hand as it crept toward the Roman numeral VIII. Eight twenty-nine! Still waiting. My ears ceased suddenly to function. Save only for the throbbing of a pulse the world was silent. The hour hand touched 8:30. I arose, prepared to greet the shade, remaining upon my feet until 8:35, turning slowly to every point of the compass . . . Nothing."

"Did you expect him?"

"I did."

"And you believe that he kept the appointment?"

"I do. But mine were not eyes that could see beyond the grave."

Childlikeness Which Is Highest Gain of Humanity

There is a childhood into which we have to grow, just as there is a childhood which we must leave behind; a childlikeness which is the highest gain of humanity, and a childishness from which but few of those who are counted the wise among men, have freed themselves in their imagined progress toward the reality of things.—George MacDonald.

NO UPSETS

The proper treatment for a bilious child

THREE STEPS TO RELIEVING CONSTIPATION

A cleansing dose today; a smaller quantity tomorrow; less each time until bowels need no help at all

ANY mother knows the reason when her child stops playing, is little, is hard to manage. Constipation. But what a pity so few know a sensible way to set things right!

The ordinary laxatives, of even ordinary strength, must be carefully regulated as to dosage.

A liquid laxative is the answer mothers. The answer to all your worries over constipation. A liquid can be measured. The dose can be exactly suited to any age or need. Just reduce the dose each time, until the bowels are moving of their own accord and need no help.

This treatment will succeed with any child and with any adult.

The doctors use liquid laxatives. Hospitals use the liquid form. If it is best for their use, it is best for home use. The liquid laxative most families use is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. Any druggist has it.

Watch Your Kidneys!

Be Sure They Properly Cleanse the Blood

YOUR kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as nature intended—fail to remove impurities that poison the system when retained.

Then you may suffer nagging backache, dizziness, scanty or too frequent urination, getting up at night, puffiness under the eyes, feel nervous, miserable—all upset.

Don't delay? Use Doan's Pills. Doan's are especially for poorly functioning kidneys. They are recommended by grateful users the country over. Get them from any druggist.

WOULD PROTECT BANKING FIELD IN RURAL AREAS

American Bankers Association Announces Purpose to Combat Return of Excessive Number of Banks

CITES LAX CHARTER POLICIES IN THE PAST

Finds a Chief Cause of Bank Failures Was Too Many Banks—Existing Sound Banks Serving Communities Well

NEW YORK. — Existing sound banks, especially the small banks in the rural districts which are serving their communities well, should be protected from any return of the over-banked local conditions caused by former lax chartering policies, which were mainly to blame for the unfavorable failure record of the past, says the Economic Policy Commission of the American Bankers Association. This is brought out in a report covering an investigation by the commission of bank failures and public policies in chartering banks.

"The Commission's study gives an impressive revelation of how great a part mistaken public policies in the chartering of banks played in creating the unsound banking structure which finally collapsed with the Bank Holiday in March 1933," Robert V. Fleming, president of the association, says in a foreword.

"Over-production of banks, literally by thousands, over many years in the face of insistent warnings not only from bankers and others who recognized the danger, but even more so from the mounting records of bank failures themselves, is clearly shown to have constituted as a whole one of the greatest single economic errors in the history of the Nation."

A Recurrence Feared

He refers to fears of a recurrence of over-banking recently expressed by Federal banking authorities, to the powers given the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation by the provision of the Banking Act of 1935 over the admission of banks to membership in the insurance fund, to strengthened state laws and to the policies now being followed by both national and state supervisory authorities aimed to safeguard the nation against over-bauking.

"But sound laws and conscientious officials are not of themselves always sufficient safeguard in any field of our complex national life unless they have the active support of public opinion," he adds. "It is the purpose of the American Bankers Association to aid in marshaling public opinion in support of both national and state supervisory authorities in their efforts to strengthen and protect the banking structure."

The Economic Policy Commission summarizes its findings in part as follows:

"The facts show a distinct causal relationship between the over-chartering of banks and the abnormal bank failure conditions that prevailed from 1920 to the bank holiday in 1933. It is desirable that studies be made on the basis of experience to develop standards governing the number of banks or the volume of bank capital which can be successfully operated.

"Such a study would embrace the question whether banking facilities can best be supplied to the rural districts by small unit banks or by branches from banks of substantial capital in larger centers. Existing sound banks, which are serving their communities well should be protected from any return of the over-banked local conditions caused in the past by lax chartering policies.

Banking Officials Queried

"An inquiry among state bank commissioners shows a preponderant opinion against increasing materially the number of banks, coupled with the fact that present laws give them sufficient discretion to prevent a repetition of the grave errors of the past.

"Under prevailing abnormal conditions, with the Federal Government extensively exercising loaning powers in competition with the banks, and with industry itself so largely supplied with funds as to render it to a great degree independent of normal bank borrowing, the banking structure even with its present reduced numbers, finds it difficult to support its existing capital investment and operating personnel.

"These are new factors, intensifying the need for highly prudent and restrictive chartering policies. We urge the retirement of the Federal Government from the banking business as rapidly as the return of normal business conditions warrant."

Conference on Banking

NEW YORK. — An eastern states conference on banking service will be held by the American Bankers Association in Philadelphia January 23 and 24 as a part of the organization's nationwide program on banking development, it has been announced.

Robert V. Fleming, president of the association, will preside over the meetings. It is stated that this conference will be the first of several to be held in various parts of the country presenting a program the details of which are now in the course of preparation.

The general topic of the conference will embrace the managerial, legislative and operative problems confronted by all classes of banks. An outstanding phase of the meetings will be the development of plans for promoting a general better public understanding in regard to bank functions and policies.

Talking Birds, Animals, Are Few and Far Apart

Birds have widely demonstrated powers of conversation. Among other animals cases of talking are extremely rare. There are three recorded cases of dogs talking, but in these cases an elastic definition of "talking" is required, observes a writer in the New York Herald Tribune.

Dr. W. Reid Blair, director of the New York Zoological park, points out that the conversational abilities of dogs is much more apparent to their owners than to strangers. Dogs have a larynx and vocal cords and while they have possibilities for development this development has taken place to only a limited extent.

The best conversationalist in the animal kingdom is the Indian Myna, a small bird resembling the black bird or starling, states Doctor Blair. It surpasses the parrot or the crow. Talking by birds is an acquired art due to their contact with human society, and is a development of their power to mimic sounds. There is no evidence, states Doctor Blair, that birds which have acquired the art of talking in the human sense use this ability to talk when they are communicating among their own kind.

When animals are communicating with their own kind it is possible that they are using some method which was available to man in an earlier stage of development, but which he has lost since he developed the power of speech, Doctor Blair believes. As to the nature of the method used there is not much information available.

Sulphur Once Condensed From Fumes of Volcanoes

Men have been familiar with sulphur since before the beginning of written history, notes Thomas M. Beck, in the Chicago Tribune. Ancient scientists were peculiarly fascinated by it. The fact that it usually was found near volcanoes, and that it was about the only known mineral substance that was inflammable, led them to regard it as a sort of solid form of fire, possessed with a cosmic importance almost equal to that of the gods. This feeling that there is something supernatural about sulphur has continued to the present day.

The ancients were correct when they attributed magical properties to the substance. It has been said without exaggeration that sulphur plays some part, either directly or indirectly, in the preparation of 90 per cent of all the things we use.

Where do we get our sulphur? Until about thirty years ago almost all of it came from the neighborhood of volcanoes, where, during past ages it had been condensed from fumes issuing from the earth's interior. There was not much demand for the stuff in ancient times except as a curiosity. The first industrial demand for it came about the year 1500, when gunpowder, of which sulphur is an ingredient, began to come into general use.

Twenty-One Gun Salute

As far as our country is concerned we simply copied the 21 gun salute from the British; it has become the universal salute of powers of the first rank. The origin of it is not certain. The old salute of one war vessel to another was of seven guns. Possibly the old mystical significance of the number seven set it at this figure. Shore batteries, with better supplies of powder, came to be allowed to fire three guns to a ship's one. After potassium nitrate came into general use in the manufacture of powder (it does not deteriorate like the old sodium nitrate) the number of guns for the naval international salute was raised to equal the number of guns given by land forces—that is 21.

Charing Cross Gone

Up to the time of Charles II, Charing Cross stood among the fields in London. The name is derived from the Saxon word charrynge meaning a turning. In 1291 Edward I erected at Charing the last of 13 crosses which marked the route of the funeral procession of his wife, Eleanor, from Grantham, Lincolnshire, to Westminster. The cross was taken down in 1647. A modern memorial cross may be seen inside the Charing Cross station yard. It will be remembered that Eleanor journeyed with Edward I to the Holy Land and sucked the poison from a wound dealt her husband by a Moor.

Discarded Gas Cans Popular

The discarded gasoline can is one of the most widely used objects throughout Asia and Africa. It is employed chiefly for carrying or storing water, milk, clothes and money. However, writes Katherine Gardner, Rapid City, S. D., in Collier's Weekly, there are whole towns made out of these flattened tins and some people turn them into musical instruments and bird cages. In Tibet those with sacred animals stamped on their sides are even used in the temples for the burning of incense.

The Spiritual

The spiritual is a unique form of religious folksong evolved by the southern plantation negro. It is rendered without instrument of any sort, the fervent hand-clapping, tapping and patting of the feet, and the rhythmic movement of the body known as 'shoutin'." In this way is the true spiritual distinguished from that usually given by trained singers, from which, it is held, most of the real qualities are lacking.

1935 A HEALTHY YEAR

When the records are all in, 1935 will probably prove to be the healthiest year the nation has experienced in a long time. It is estimated that there will be 34,000 fewer deaths this year than last.

Contrary to the usual trend deaths from heart disease, cancer, Bright's disease, cerebral hemorrhage and some other maladies have decreased, while tuberculosis continues to decrease, as as been the case for several years. Of major causes of death, only influenza shows an increase. Deaths from external causes are fewer, and those from the tragic record of 1934, when more than 36,000 were killed.

Many Different Kinds of Synthetic Dyes Are Used

There are many different types of synthetic dyes, from the standpoints of both the chemist and the dyer, says a writer in the Chicago Tribune. The earliest coal tar colors were either acidic or basic in nature, and so were well adapted to combine with the basic or acid groups in silk or wool, but were not so useful for cotton. Cotton frequently is dyed by mordant dyes, in which cases a metallic hydroxide, usually that of chromium, is used as a sort of adhesive between the fiber and the color; or else by the substantive dyes, which show an inexplicable affinity for cellulose.

The fastest dyes, however, and therefore the ones most frequently used, are the sulphur and the vat dyes. The former are dyes of unknown composition formed by cooking certain colorless coal tar derivatives with sulphur; they are soluble in sodium sulphide solutions and are applied to the fabric in such a form, after which they are fixed by oxidation. The vat dyes, of which indigo is an example, are reduced chemically to water-soluble, colorless substances, which are applied in solution to cloth, and then, on exposure to air, changed back into the insoluble colored material. The acetate rayons present a problem in themselves; however, there have been developed a number of dyes that can be applied to them, but to them only.

Lamu Called Dying City Also Hill of the Devils

From Mombasa to Lamu in the archipelago off the mainland of East Africa an avenue to the queerest island in the world is a point that interests visitors

Lamu belongs to the Sultan of Zanzibar, and is rented from him by the British government.

Called by mainlanders "the dying city," Lamu was once the center of a large Arabic and Persian civilization, according to the American Express company High Arab buildings, with copper plated doors, line its streets and, defying gravitation, lean over the right-of-way in such manner as to give it the appearance of a covered passage way.

Behind the living town is a hill where hundreds of mansions lie half buried under the drifting sand. People of Lamu call it the "Hill of Devils" and refuse to accompany visitors to the area.

Lamu women walk under a movable tent called shiraa, which in prosperous days were carried by slaves, but are now supported by four small sticks which the women hold as they walk Like many other Lamu customs, it has been handed down from ancient times almost without change because of the absence of any outside influence on the life of the island.

Beds of Other Lands

Considering that about one-third of our lives are spent in bed, it is not wonderful that much trouble and expense are devoted to our sleeping places. In this country, observes a writer in the Montreal Herald, the healthy mattress has almost ousted the feather bed. French beds are noted for their hardness and German beds are very short. Many Norwegian beds are made to pull from recesses. The hammock rules in South and Central America. The Indians of Guinea plait most beautiful hammocks of grass. The Japanese lie upon matting laid on the floor, with a stiff, uncomfortable wooden head-rest—a bed of torture to travelers from other lands. The Chinese use low bedsteads, often elaborately carved. Their only mattresses and coverlets are made of matting.

Greenwich Royal Observatory

Greenwich Royal observatory was founded in 1675 primarily for the purpose of improving navigation but soon became the time base for England and some other countries. It was not until 1884, however, that representatives of 26 countries met in Washington and decided the astronomical day for the world should also begin there at noon. This astronomical day must not be confused with the calendar day which arbitrarily begins at the International Date Line.—Pathfinder Magazine.

Queen Victoria's Dolls

Charles Morris' "The Life of Queen Victoria" says: "We are told that at one time she was the proud possessor of 132 dolls. Although very ordinary little Dutch toys, many of them with painted wooden faces, they have all been preserved with other mementoes of the childhood of England's remarkable sovereign. Most of the dolls represent ballet dancers of the Queen's childhood in costume."

Ophir

Ophir was a seaport or region from which the Hebrews in the time of Solomon obtained gold. The precise geographical situation has long been a subject of doubt and discussion. It was probably in India or perhaps southern Arabia; at any rate, it appears from scriptural mention of the place that it was accessible by water from the towns on the Red sea.

Salt Universally Taxed

Salt is not only one of the most important articles in the daily diet of mankind but one of the earth's most plentiful substances. Yet today it is so universally taxed that it continues to be a luxury, in fact the first luxury, of two-thirds of the human race.—Collier's Weekly.

TO TAKE MYSTERY OUT OF BANKING

By ROBERT V. FLEMING,
President American Bankers Association

The American Bankers Association has cooperated wherever it could properly do so in every measure for national recovery. It has offered constructive recommendations for such changes in banking laws as we recognized were necessary, and we now have a better law under which to operate. The Banking Act of 1935 affords us opportunities for broader service and, at the same time, retains the fundamentals which we believe are so vital to our national welfare and which have played a large part in bringing our country, in a comparatively short space of time, to the position of the greatest industrial nation on the earth.

R. V. FLEMING

The Public and Banking

It is necessary that the public have a thorough understanding of the functions of banks, what they can do and what they cannot do, for it must be recognized that to many people the business of banking is still somewhat of a mystery.

We should frankly explain these functions to the public, acquaint them with the laws under which we operate and emphasize the vital part which banks play in the economic life of the Nation. Therefore, in order that there may be the fullest cooperation and understanding between the banks and the people of the country, it will also be one of our objectives to take the mystery out of banking wherever it exists in the public mind.

Banking Conferences

A series of Regional Conferences on Banking Service will be held in strategic sections of the country, embracing all types of banking. The new banking laws and the regulations issued thereunder will be carefully analyzed so that our bankers will have a thorough understanding of the broadened services now made possible.

The question of public relations and how we can best serve the people of our communities will be another topic of discussion. Clinics or forums on specific questions of interest to bankers and the problems confronting them in their particular localities will also be included in these conferences.

PUBLIC ATTITUDE HELPS THE BANKS

Annual Bankers Convention Says People Have Had Confidence Restored—Recommends Changed Government Policy

The restoration of public confidence in banking has put it in the position where it can function fully and vigorously in playing its full economic part in the progress of recovery, said the American Bankers Association in its annual convention resolutions.

"The passage of a generally constructive banking law in the Banking Act of 1935 has stabilized the banking situation and enabled bankers to devote undivided attention to the normal administration of their institutions in promoting the business and public welfare of their communities," the resolutions said.

"We feel that it is a particularly important feature of this law that it aims to create through the revision of the Federal Reserve Board a Supreme Court of Finance which, with the nonpolitical appointment of exceptionally competent men, should constitute one of the greatest forward steps in building a sound banking and credit system for this country."

The Government in Banking

Another resolution said:

"We particularly emphasize the desirability of the retirement of government from those fields of extending credits of various types which can be adequately served by privately owned institutions. We recognize that the exigencies of the now passing depression made necessary a large participation by government for a time in the task of meeting the public's emergency financial needs.

"Those conditions have been largely remedied and the obligation now rests upon the banks and other financial agencies to demonstrate to the people of this country that they are fully able and willing to meet all demands upon them for sound credit cooperation. It is our duty as bankers to facilitate in every effective way the retirement of government agencies from credit activities by promoting public understanding of the proper function of privately owned banking."

ACCURATE RECORDS

The keeping of accurate records constitutes an essential part of any successful business management, whether manufacturing, merchandising or farming. It is quite generally conceded that any good business concern keeps adequate records, and this procedure is equally important in the business of farming, declares the Bulletin of the American Bankers Association Agricultural Commission.

You Must Govern Self Before You Can Guide Your Offspring

Young Follow Example Set by Parents, Psychologist Shows.

"He's a chip off the old block," you say, little realizing, perhaps, how splendidly you are hitting the nail on the head. According to an article in the Parents' Magazine, "Not only in matters of temperament can the origin of a child's problem be traced to the parent but in the realm of attitudes there is very often a definite relationship."

"The major problems of divorce, discordant homes, widowhood, illness and other serious situations are reflected in the maladjustments of the children," in the opinion of Helen Sargent, supervisor of the psychological clinic, Northwestern university. Admitting that the roots and branches of such problems are so far reaching that each requires extensive study and individual solution, Miss Sargent declares:

"There are many less apparent connections between the ways in which adult members of the household choose for meeting their lives and certain trends which appear in youngsters."

High-Tensioned Mother.

The psychologist calls our attention to the "little terror" in the home, whose mother has been warned he has a nervous temperament and must not be overstimulated. She follows expert advice to the letter—makes him rest before going to bed, forbids him exciting radio programs, etc. But Sonny continues to grind his teeth, toss in bed, to "raise cain" in general during the day hours. Miss Sargent asks us to watch his mother in action

"With studied quiet she asks him to stop banging on the table while she is telephoning, then in a voice tense with annoyance tells the grocer what she thinks of the peas he sent yesterday. She arranges a simple routine for her son but herself rushes from one task to the next, creating an atmosphere of crackling electricity wherever she moves."

Mother, Daughter Egocentric.

Dorothy's another example. Miss Sargent points out the poor child simply can't or won't make friends and it worries mother. Yet mother confesses:

"I never have liked many people . . . When I'm with a group, I always wish to get back home . . . I don't miss people . . . I have my family."

Miss Sargent's theory is that if mother is to find out what's wrong with Dorothy, she must search her own character. "Mother must determine why her life has become so egocentric that she is content to do without friendly contacts that are a vital part of the life of the average human being."

The article clears up a number of points which must puzzle plenty of parents. Its theme song is, before you try to guide your child, you must be able to govern yourself. You must meet your own problems and find a solution or you simply can't map out the program that will benefit your offspring.

FLOYD GIBBONS Adventurers' Club

Hello, Everybody!

"Hero Conductor"

By FLOYD GIBBONS
Famous Headline Hunter.

STEP up to the front of the car, please. And have correct fares ready. We've got a trolley car conductor with us today as guest of honor, and we have to watch our street-car manners. Especially do we with a conductor like Richard Mayock, a man who has made quite a reputation for himself at this business of conducting trolleys.

For Dick is known the length and breadth of the District of Columbia as the "hero conductor of Washington." That's what the newspapers called Dick Mayock. And with good reason, too. For in the middle of April, 1923, he earned that title of his—earned it two or three times over.

Dick's car had just finished a trip into town—had turned at the Treasury building and started back. As the car left the Treasury behind it, rain began to fall, suddenly, and in such volume that it looked to Dick as if everything on the streets would be washed away.

Back in the car, the passengers were saying that it was a cloudburst. And that's exactly what it was.

The streets of Washington looked like canals, and Dick's trolley plowed through an almost unbroken stretch of water, which sometimes came as high as the hubs of the wheels.

The Terrors of Flood in the Nation's Capital.

The car reached the city limits at a place called Kenilworth junction, turned into an underpass that ran beneath a railroad bridge, and there it happened.

Dick opened the door to look out, and the sight he saw froze him still in his tracks.

Up ahead was a wall of water several feet high, rushing down into the underpass toward the front of the car. More water was shooting from the manholes in great spouts six feet tall.

Below, the flood had already risen to the bottom step of the car, and that great, onrushing wall of water was still to come.

The wall of water hit the car with a shock that shook it from end to end. The passengers—about twenty-five of them—rose from their seats and began stampeding for the door.

Conductor Keeps Cool in Face of Tragedy.

And right there was where Dick Mayock did some fast thinking. He looked out into that swirling flood and remembered that the river, at this point, was only a few hundred yards away.

Anyone who got caught in that rush of water outside stood a good chance of being swept into the river and drowned. He stood with his back to the door and told the passengers to get back in their seats. They weren't going to be drowned—not while he was responsible for them.

Those passengers must have known Dick meant business, because they fell back and started climbing up on top of the seats. The water was two feet high in the car, now, and rising steadily.

Shrieks and Sobs Fill the Air.

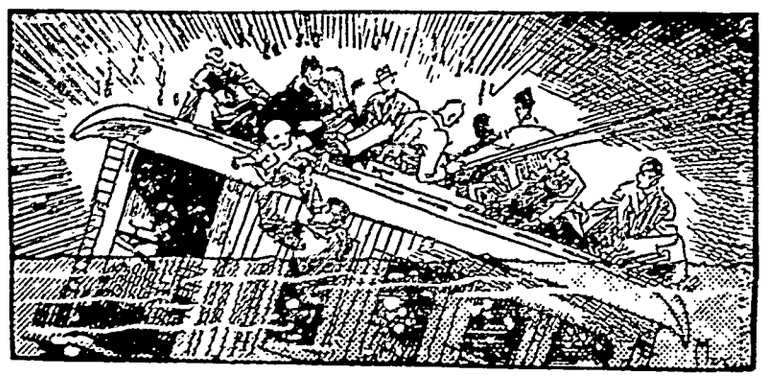
"When the water got to be waist-high," says Dick, "I began to think that my time had come. And I'm sure everyone else felt the same, for we seemed hopelessly trapped.



The Dark, Muddy Water Kept on Rising.

"The shrieks and the prayers of the women were pitiful. I had to do something, and do it quickly, so I grabbed an umbrella, broke all the windows on one side of the car, and climbed up on the roof.

"There, I pulled down the trolley pole to keep anyone from being electrocuted, and, lying flat on my stomach, helped the passengers up one at a time."

The dark, muddy water kept on rising. It was within a couple of feet of the top of the car when Dick thought he heard a moan coming from somewhere inside.

The passengers told him he'd be washed away if he tried to go back into that car, but Dick went anyway—worked his legs back in through a window while two men held onto his arms.

If Dick Was a Hero, Here Was a Heroine.

And the sight he saw when he got inside the car Dick will never forget if he lives to be a hundred.

There, in that almost filled car was a woman, dazedly clinging to a strap with one hand while she held a baby with the other, trying to keep its head out of the water.

Dick grabbed the baby, floundered to the side of the car and passed it through a window to the men on top. But when he turned back to help up the woman, she had disappeared, down into the muddy water that filled the bottom of the car.

Dick dived, and found her—pulled her to a window and thrust her out into the hands of those above.

Then he climbed to the roof himself and applied artificial respiration to the woman, who had swallowed water and was half drowned.

The water kept rising until it was flush with the car roof, and then it stopped. For two hours this strange little crew of cast-aways stayed on the roof, and then the fire department came.

A fireman with a rope tied around his waist tried to swim out to the car.

The current was too swift for him, though, and he had to be pulled back.

After two or three tries, he managed to reach an electric light pole 12 feet from the car, and the marooned passengers threw him an improvised line made of the trolley rope and some knotted neckties.

After he got to them, ladders were strung along the rope and soon the entire party was on land again. But, boy, what a shindig while it lasted!

Tulip Tree Wood Is Soft, White-Yellowish in Color

The tulip tree (Liriodendron Tulipfera, Linnaeus) also called yellow popular, and whitewood, is one of the most distinctive of American trees. The leaves are simple, alternate, usually four-lobed, four to six inches across, appear to have tips cut off at right angle to the stem, and are long-stalked. At the base of each leaf-stalk are two leaf-appendages. The flowers are tulipilke, one and one-half to two inches deep, greenish yellow with three reflexed sepals and six petals. The fruit is made up of long winged nutlets arranged in light brown, conelike clusters two and one-half to three inches long. The bark when young is smooth, bitter, ash-gray to brown, mottled with light blotches. On old trunks it becomes thick brown, deeply furrowed. The twigs are smooth, shiny, stout, reddish-brown, marked with pale obscure-breathing pores. Complete rings of stipule-scars surround the twigs. The buds are smooth, flattened, one-fourth to one-half an inch long blunt-pointed, reddish-brown, covered with one pair of bud-scales. Within the buds are small miniature leaves. The wood is soft, not strong, light, white-yellowish to brownish and works easily. It is used for furniture, interior finishings, woodenware, novelties and veneer. The tulip tree is found from Rhode Island to Michigan, south to Florida and Arkansas.—Indianapolis News.

Meaning of Filibuster

Nowadays we think of a filibuster as something which goes on in legislatures. It is correctly used in referring to parliamentary tactics for delaying legislation. It is therefore surprising to find that filibuster is a Spanish word originally referring to piracy, looting, etc. Following the Mexican war it was frequently heard when specifically applied to expeditions organized on American soil for invading countries to the south. Its Dutch equivalent was vrijbuiter from which we get our word freebooter.—Pathfinder Magazine.

African Dancers Rival Astaire, Says Scientist

Life Is Song and Dance on Ivory Coast

WASHINGTON.—The popular Fred Astaire has new rivals for dancing fame—in far-off Africa.

"Baoule dancers of the Ivory coast can well hold their own against, say Fred Astaire," declared Dr. Hans Himmelheber, German anthropologist now in this country. "Their dancing is unbelievable."

Doctor Himmelheber, who went to French West Africa last year expressly to study this little-known tribe, gives a glowing report of native life on the Ivory coast.

These Are Party Folks.

"Pleasure is the true purpose of life with these people. There is much dancing and singing, but no hell-raising. I saw only one drunken person among them," he told the Anthropological society of Washington.

A chief's program for an afternoon may have for its chief feature "showing off," the anthropologist found. That is, the chief promenades in all the glory he can manage. Good manners and beauty are more admired than cleverness among these people. They shun gaudy colors, and like sober and subdued effects in their much-cultivated arts.

Hairdressers are important aids to self-decoration, and Baoule men and women expect their "beauty parlor" operators to create striking new hair styles constantly.

Homes Are Bright, Too.

In their homes, these natives like pretty things around them, they told the German scientist. Their carved wood spoons, boxes, hooks, and other everyday possessions are being displayed to the civilized world as fine art.

The picture of the arts in African life has been distorted, Doctor Himmelheber declared, because it is not nearly so easy to convey the quality of African music and dancing as it is to show the sculptures and recite the poetry. Yet musical arts are advanced among the Baoule.

Ivory coast people are sandwiched between Liberia and the Gold coast, not far north of the African equator.

New Treatment Saves Drunks From Dangerous Comatose Condition

CHICAGO.—For drunks who have reached a state of coma, medical science has discovered an emergency treatment. The new treatment will bring them speedily out of the dangerous state of paralytic alcoholism which sometimes leads to death.

Dr. Leon J. Robinson and Dr. Sydney Selesnick of Boston City hospital report results of the treatment.

How Cases Are Treated.

These cases of acute alcholism are brought immediately to the hospital and are allowed to breathe a mixture of 10 per cent carbon dioxide and 90 per cent oxygen for half an hour or longer. This, in the words of the Boston physicians, is what happens:

"In every case of unarousable alcoholic coma, with slow, jerky, shallow respirations and cyanosis, carbon dioxide-oxygen inhalation caused the respirations to become deep and regular almost at once."

The doctors emphasize that this is an emergency treatment and is not indicated in the moderate degrees of intoxication so frequently encountered.

Takes Pint for Coma.

By comparing man with animals, these doctors believe that it would require about a pint of whisky taken at once to cause coma in man. This coma, accompanied by troubled breathing, paralysis and blueness of the skin, constitutes a medical emergency. Death may be definitely prevented and recovery hastened by the inhalation of this mixture.

'Human Echo' Puzzles Physicians in England

LONDON.—Medical scientists here are puzzled over the strange case of a seven-year-old boy who produces an echo in his sleep. The boy, a sort of human echo, has been observed by Dr. W. E. L. Allen, medical practioner of Hakwshead, Lancashire, and other witnesses.

They report that when the lad is in deep sleep he emits a loud knocking in response to similar noises produced accidentally or purposely in his vicinity. It is suggested that the outside sound transmitted to his brain produces a spasm yielding somehow the echoing sound, perhaps from the abdomen.

Glasses Which Fit Eyeballs Appeared 100 Years Ago

Why They Cannot Be Generally Used Now

CONTACT eye-glasses—shells made to fit incon[s]picuously between eyelids and eyeball—have been hailed with considerable publicity. The general impression seems to be that they are the latest thing in cosmetic[s] attractive eye glasses, something for person who must wear glasses finds the ordinary shell or metal frame uncomfortable or unbecoming.

They have aroused "vain hopes" patients ask about them," stated Dr. Ray K. Daily of Houston, Texas, at the St. Louis meeting of the Southwestern Medical association. When they are necessary, when they may be used and why they cannot be generally used at present was told by Doctor Daily.

They are really not very new, Doctor Daily points out that [w]ever, ments with contact glasses have been made for almost one hundred years.

Meet Technical Difficulties.

The chief deterrent to their use at first, the technical difficulty of manufacturing them, even for use in one eye condition for which they are particularly helpful and for which they were originally designed.

These technical difficulties have been overcome, but they are still very expensive. Doctor Daily does not think they can be generally included in the outfit of the eye specialist until prices have been greatly reduced and they are made accessible to the large mass of people.

There are no conditions for which contact glasses are definitely unsuitable, Doctor Daily said. One authority finds that persons with inelastic eyelids or eyes sensitive to smoke should not wear them.

Where They Are Used.

Chief indication for their use is in an eye condition known as keratoconus, said Doctor Daily. This is a cone-shaped deformity of the cornea of the eye, the condition for which contact glasses were originally devised and for which they do the most good. Vision is improved, the condition is kept from getting worse, and in some cases is actually improved, it appears from Doctor Daily's discussion. Fortunately, persons suffering from this condition have eyes very tolerant of contact glasses.

The glasses may be used for the more common conditions such as [far]sightedness, nearsightedness and astigmatism, in which the images are brought to a proper focus on the retina. Properly fitted and ground contact glasses are more helpful than ordinary glasses in these conditions, according to a German authority, quoted by Doctor Daily. Because the contact glasses fill large the field of vision, they are particularly helpful to drivers, pilots, sportsmen, swimmers and the like, Doctor Daily pointed out, even though they are not a necessity for the average person with ordinary eye defects. The inconspicuousness, of course, gives them particular appeal for actors and artists.

Hrdlicka Says Alaska Had Brain Surgeons 2,000 Years Back

WASHINGTON.—Indians of Alaska 2,000 years ago had brain surgeons available. They needed them, too, what with battles in those days being fought with stone shots and clubs.

A specimen of this ancient surgery, the first unearthed in Alaska, is the discovery announced by Dr. Ales Hrdlicka of the Smithsonian institution. Digging on Kodiak island, he found the skull of a man who had a cavity about two inches long and half an inch wide scraped in his skull down to a thin film of bone left over the brain. The wound healed perfectly, showing that the Indian brain doctor knew his business.

This skull cutting operation, called trephining, was popular in Europe 10,000 years ago, and was skillfully done by Indians of Peru and some other parts of America. Whether the intention was to relieve brain pressure or merely to let out disease spirits modern science is not certain.

Indian Art to Enliven Boulder Power House

WASHINGTON. — Old new America will combine at Boulder Dam, when artists get to work with Indian designs and gay paint.

In the control room, where workers regulate tremendous forces of electricity and huge bodies of water, the expanses of gray wall are to be enlivened with the Indian's jagged ideas of lightning flashes, and Indian symbols of cloud and falling rain.

Consulting Artist Allen Tupper True of the bureau of reclamation, has been studying Indian pottery designs, basketry patterns and sand paintings to adapt Indian symbols that represented natural forces. Indian motifs, he declares, offer possibilities superior to the classic Green and Egyptian motifs, lands, centaurs, and other hackneyed patterns.

Turning-Back Point Is the Measure of Success

On every hand we see people who have turned back, people who had pluck enough to begin things with enthusiasm, but did not have grit enough to carry them to a finish. The point at which you are tempted to turn back, the point when your grit leaves you, will measure your achievement power. Your ability to go on, to continue after everybody else has turned back, is a good measure of your possible success.

Aid to Digestion

It takes an iron constitution to keep feeling up to par under the strain of festive meals. That's why hostesses are wise in introducing a custom that is receiving a wider acceptance everywhere. Chewing gum does aid digestion and satisfies a certain craving for sweets after the heavy meal when you get to the point where you just can't swallow another mouthful.

Chewing gum may be served with coffee in the living room, passed around with the cigarettes, or put on the table immediately after dessert.

Sound Mind

The sounder the mind the more surely it is to direct the actions of the body with efficiency.

From Your Doctor the "Pain" Remedy You Take Is Safe.

Don't Entrust Your Own or Your Family's Well-Being to Unknown Preparations

BEFORE you take any preparation you don't know all about, for the relief of headaches; or the pains of rheumatism, neuritis or neuralgia, ask your doctor what he thinks about it — in comparison with Genuine Bayer Aspirin.

We say this because, before the discovery of Bayer Aspirin, most so-called "pain" remedies were advised against by physicians as being bad for the stomach; or, often, for the heart. And the discovery of Bayer Aspirin largely changed medical practice.

Countless thousands of people have taken Bayer Aspirin year in and out without ill effect, have proved that the medical findings about its safety were correct.

Remember this: Genuine Bayer Aspirin is rated among the fastest methods yet discovered for the relief of headaches and all common pains and safe for the average person when taken regularly.

You can get real Bayer Aspirin at any drug store — simply by never asking for it by the name "aspirin" alone, but always saying BAYER ASPIRIN when you buy.

Suede Topcoats in Style Parade

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

THE wonders being performed via leathercraft in the realm of costume design is almost too amazing to believe. Yet here they are—the very latest fashions created of supple suede, pigskin and other leathers going along in the style parade.

Comes in the procession any number of stunning sports jackets of plaided or checked leathers, if not in solid rich colorings. Laced together are their seams with leather thongs or else hand-stitched in a tailored way. All the latest improvements have they, such as zipper fastenings, wrists that strap to fit, adjustable collars that can be worn up or down and a whole list of other intriguing features to add to their lure as well as their practicality.

And what's this we see?—adorable slim, svelte, sweetly feminine evening gowns of exquisitely supple and daintily pastel-dyed suede, and little capes and evening wraps of the same. A few seasons ago we would not have believed that such miracles could be, now would we? But that was then. As to the immediate present, style-alert women are simply clamoring for the new apparel done in leather and suede. Indeed, it is not too much to say that the present adaptation of leather in a fabric way will go down in the history of fashion as an epoch-making event.

Just now, being winter, when comfort and protection are prime issues, interest centers about topcoats made of handsome suede that shields from cruel winds. When a vogue starts out in Hollywood, it does not take long before it spreads throughout the country. Which is what has happened in regard to the stunning coats of suede which a resident designer has been creating for enthusiastic members of the film colony.

The accompanying illustration tells of the type of suede topcoats favored by leading screen artists. Buckle, buckle, who's got the buckle? The swanky hand-stitched model done in a very light chestnut brown, as worn by Mary Carlisle to the left in the picture, answers the question. The three buckle fastenings, center-pleat action back, huge patch pockets and raglan sleeves are fashion firsts. This coat, designed for aviation, is also ideal for town and country on cold days in that suede so successfully keeps out winds. The matching suede hat is also hand-stitched.

The center coat is stunning in dark green, handsome, too, in any of the deep new reds. It is of a heavy suede that boldly defies wintry blasts. It has such outstanding features as wide lapels, contrasting stitching, broad belt and trim fitted lines. The brim of the matching suede hat turns down or up according to the whim of its wearer.

See in the foreground Kathleen Burke who joins the leather movement with a new suede swagger coat that is delightfully young in its lines. It is all hand laced, even to the unusual shoulder effect, the roomy slash pocket and the jaunty suede beret. Voris of Hollywood, artful leather designer, has decreed that even the wood buttons be laced on with leather thongs.

And have you heard about the tailored pigskin accessory trio comprised of belt, bag and hat? Stunning with tweeds and novelty wool coats! Pigskin accessories are meeting with great favor for sophisticated town wear.

SLEEVES "SAY IT"

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

Fashion turns the spotlight on sleeves this season. It is considered very smart for sleeves to contrast the dress and to be that elaborate and decorative they tone the entire costume. The model pictured is an Alix creation. It is of handsome black velvet and stresses extreme simplicity in its styling. The voguish sleeves are in striking contrast according to the latest dictate of fashion. They are of sumptuous gold and velvet lame in a Renaissance design. The shoes are quite the newest. They are of gold cloth and are heel-less.

VOGUE FOR VELVETS CAPTIVATES YOUTH

The vogue of velvet is not confined to dresses and millinery for grown-ups, but is also quite the rage in the realm of juveniles and young children's clothes. Little boys and girls from two years old have their velvet suits and dresses and the medieval inspiration which characterized the haute couture this season is just as noticeable in children's clothes.

These little velvet dresses in transparent bright rayon velvet, as well as in dull short-piled qualities, show high waistlines after the old-fashioned Italian styles, with honeycomb work and large stiff collarettes in Venetian lace or in heavy rayon gulpure, inspired by the Florentine school.

White Velvet Is Used to Take Place of Lingerie

White velvet, silk, cotton or ribbed, often takes the place of white lingerie, pique or linen, for white touches on dark frocks, particularly black. At Mouna Katorza's there is a charming collar to wear with a round-necked black frock. It is made of three rows of white velvet petals, narrow and pointed, mounted on chiffon, and worn flat around the neck at the base of the throat. At Judith Barbier's (famous for her artificial flowers and neckwear) there are several new ideas in white velvet. One is a round collar with a mass of white petals, rose-petals, in front; another is made of white ribbed velvet, a round collar with a turnover triangle in front stitched in arabesques of silver thread.

New Stocking Colors and Fads Appear in Offing

A much more colorful array of legs, clad in hose that match bright daytime suits or gowns, will be promenading the avenues soon.

Dark reds, jungle green, jug brown, wine, blueberry and burgundy tones match or else complement the frocks with which they are shown. For evening, pastels are rampant—shell pink, pale blue, ice green and even lavender.

The Greatest Deed
The Richest Man
8,000 Planes for England
What! the Whole World?

Universal Service lists the "ten greatest scientific achievements in 1935," and puts first the artificial heart "for keeping organs alive when separated from the body."

Arthur Brisbane

This invention, credited to Colonel Lindbergh and the learned Doctor Carrel of Rockefeller institute, may be important, letting scientists study the progress and nature of cancer and other diseases.

But that is not the year's greatest scientific achievement, although it is gratifying to know that Colonel Lindbergh, while so young, with no more "air" to conquer, has turned his concentrated mind toward science.

Vastly more important than any invention for studying human disease is the new 200-inch telescope lens that will enable men to study the universe more intelligently. That universe is more important than any cancer or gland.

The Nizam of Hyderabad, one of the numerous rulers whom the British keep on their thrones, in return for a servility that delivers their subjects to the British, is about to celebrate his silver jubilee as ruler.

He interests Americans, because he is called absolutely the richest man in the world, richer than Rockefeller, Ford or Mellon.

His income is put at $50,000,000 a year, which might be possible, although his real fortune bears no interest.

He has 14,000,000 Hindu subjects under his rule, thanks to the toleration of Great Britain, and after England has finished with the 14,000,000, they might well yield an average per year of $4 to the Nizam, which would give him $56,000,000 a year of new money.

The British, who realize what airplanes mean, as they study Italy and Ethiopia, have more than 2,000 planes ordered for immediate use, with full equipment and men ready, and, for every plane in the air, England will have three on the ground, ready to replace losses.

Thus Britain's program is 8,000 planes, compared with our retail buying.

Senator Pittman thinks Japan plans to conquer the United States and the rest of the world. He says Japan will "seize the Philippines as soon as the opportunity offers." That is probable; the Philippines are in Asia.

After the Philippines Japan will take Mexico, then the west coast of the United States, according to Senator Pittman, who wants to know whether this country will withdraw within itself as Japan advances, or make a definite stand somewhere.

The west coast would give him a definite answer about that.

There is an aristocracy even in crime. You read, "Hauptmann sings carols in death house."

Five other murderers in the same house sang the carols with him, "Jingle Bells," and also "Heilige Nacht" ("Holy Night"), which must have had a strange sound coming from the throats of murderers.

There are six murderers in the death house, and all sang together, but the other five are merely "also present," no names mentioned.

Their murders were not sufficiently interesting.

"Japanese airplanes bomb Kuyuan in China; many killed"—including civilians and soldiers.

Japanese ordered China's soldiers to evacuate the city, dropped bombs when they refused.

What will kind-hearted England and the League of Nations do about that? Not much. Premier Baldwin, justifying the sudden decision to carve up Ethiopia to satisfy Italy, reveals the fact that British ships feared to visit Italian ports during the recent unpleasantness. That brings danger too close.

The country has inflation now, with its 59-cent dollars and double the amount of cash circulating compared with prosperous 1929.

Inflation is not realized, because bankers, their vaults bulging, do not dare lend, not knowing what is good security or what upstanding 100 per cent American will be "flat broke" six months hence.

Mussolini calls those trying to starve his people with sanctions "egotistical, hypocritical," says Italy can go on in spite of them.

Tall Queen Elena, the king's wife, prays at the tomb of the Italian Unknown Soldier "for the triumph of Roman civilization in Africa."

If it is possible to talk or think in the tomb, that Unknown Soldier may have murmured: "So, they are still at it."

PULLORUM TEST BY TUBE RECOMMENDED

Whole Blood Plan Is Found Not Effective.

By Henry Van Rockel, Massachusetts State College.—WNU Service.

As a result of testing 14,000 chickens for pullorum disease, either with the whole blood method or the standard laboratory tube method, it is concluded that the whole blood test is not effective and should not be used to establish pullorum disease-free flocks.

The tube method has been used in Massachusetts for the past 15 years and has established many pullorum disease-free flocks in sections that once suffered heavy losses from the disease. The substitution of an inefficient whole blood test would mean a backward step in disease eradication for the poultry industry.

Its most serious fault is the variation in the whole blood-antigen dilution. The test calls for definite quantities of blood and antigen. If their ration varies from time to time in field testing, the results vary accordingly. Infected birds giving a weak reaction to the tube method would not react at all with the whole blood test.

Birds that reacted strongly with the tube test might give but a weak reaction with the whole blood test. Blood from some birds produced delayed reactions which were observed only after the birds had been returned to the flock, supposedly free from pullorum. With the laboratory tube method such birds were detected without delay.

The whole blood test cannot be carried out in the field with any degree of uniformity. Besides the variation in the whole blood-antigen dilution, such factors as temperature, light, dust and speed may exert objectional influences on the results of the test and lead to ineffective eradication of the disease from poultry flocks.

Feed Hopper Should Be Properly Constructed

The feed hopper is used for dry feed, which may be in the form of mash, bran or whole grain. It should be made to deliver all of the feed; otherwise what remains in the corners will become musty or foul and unfit for food.

The principle of the home-made type of hopper is to have a "V" shaped receptacle, of any size required, with a limited amount of feed in the trough as may be required for consumption. It should be made so as to prevent waste due to birds throwing the feed out while eating; they should not be able to scratch it out or to foul it in any way with droppings or mud.

It is usually advisable to have the trough off the ground just high enough for the birds using it to reach it conveniently. It should not be possible for birds to perch or roost on or over the hopper. Hoppers are usually not suitable receptacles in which to feed moist mashes.

Laying Mash for Geese

As the laying season approaches, geese should be given a laying mash composed of: 18 pounds bran, 20 pounds wheat middlings, 20 pounds whole ground oats, 20 pounds ground corn, 10 pounds alfalfa meal, 10 pounds meat scrap, 1 pound bone meal, ½ pound salt. This should be wet to a crumbly condition and fed each morning—what they will clean up in 15 minutes. Grit and oyster shells should be kept before geese during the laying season.—Wisconsin Agriculturist.

Potatoes Fed to Chickens

Raw potatoes are not recommended but good results are obtained by mixing boiled and mashed potatoes with grain mash, according to a poultry expert in the Montreal Herald. Start feeding a small quantity and gradually increase until potato mash is one-third of the substance in the grain mash. Never make sudden changes in rations for laying hens. In addition to the wheat fed at night add about one-third cracked corn, and one-third oats, so as to make variety.

In the Poultry Yard

Add salt to the drinking water or mash.

Place pine boughs in the pens for hens to pick on.

Eggs contain a beneficial gas, carbon dioxide, which helps to hold the original quality in the eggs. Cooling them to 40 or 50 degrees Fahrenheit retards the loss of carbon dioxide.

The simple flock record is essential in order that the degree and amount of profit (or loss) due to the operation of that flock may be definitely known.

England's "hen population" is estimated by experts to number 80,000,000, including those small flocks kept in back yards and gardens.

Production may be somewhat higher from confined hens, yet hens on range probably consume less of the costly feeds.

PROGRESS OF MONEY

When man hunted in primeval forests, he needed no money or means of exchange of goods. If he had a dog and wanted a sheep, he looked around for some other man who would barter an even exchange. But in a short time it was found that trading was made easier if one could offer in exchange a commodity which was used in several localities, and had the same value in all of them—hence this forerunner of modern money, says Ireland's Own.

No Need to Suffer "Morning Sickness"

"Morning sickness"—is caused by an acid condition. To avoid it, acid must be offset by alkalis—such as magnesia.

Why Physicians Recommend Milnesia Wafers

These mint-flavored, candy-like wafers are pure milk of magnesia in solid form—the most pleasant way to take it. Each wafer is approximately equal to a full adult dose of liquid milk of magnesia. Chewed thoroughly, then swallowed, they correct acidity in the mouth and throughout the digestive system and insure quick, complete elimination of the waste matters that cause gas, headaches, bloated feelings and a dozen other discomforts.

Milnesia Wafers come in bottles of 20 and 48, at 35c and 60c respectively, and in convenient tins for your handbag containing 12 at 20c. Each wafer is approximately one adult dose of milk of magnesia. All good drug stores sell and recommend them.

Ruling Of Supervisors Will Help Clarify Dog Situation

HANCOCK ASSESSORS HELD A SCHOOL OF INSTRUCTION

Twenty-four Hancock county assessors met at the court house in Garner, Monday afternoon, January 6th, in their annual school of instruction. Several matters, new to the assessors, were discussed, chief among which was the manner of listing dogs for taxation. In the past, collection of Iowa's dog tax has caused a great deal of trouble.

To remedy this matter the Board of Supervisors passed a resolution which is hoped will clarify the situation. The resolution passed by the Board reads:

"License fee for 1936: On male dogs $1 each; female dogs $3 each. Assessors to list all stray dogs. Dog catchers will be appointed, and dogs listed as strays or without ownership, will be destroyed by dog catcher, constable, or some other duly authorized person."

Each assesson is to keep a record book of all dogs. A dog harbored about one's place must be licensed by the person harboring same, or the dog will be considered a stray and be killed. Each assessor has a separate record book in which either ownership or disclaiming ownership to dogs must be made a matter of record.

In order to hold down the license fees on dogs and still maintain the Domestic Animal fund, it is necessary that all dogs permitted to live in the county be licensed. A large percent of damage to livestock by dogs of which no one claims ownership.

The Assessors have been given supplies and within a few days will be making their rounds inquiring into everyone's affairs. To inquire into your affairs is not only a prerogative but a duty of an assessor.

Assessors in this vicinity are: Klemme, Henry Suckow; Ell twp., Karl Kraus; Avery twp., Robert Roths; Twin Lake twp. Earl Ruka: Liberty twp., E. J. Blumer; Amsterdam twp., Fred Gorton; Concord twp. J. A. Love.

VAGABONDS WON DOUBLE BILL FROM ALEXANDER A. C.

The Klemme Vagabonds journeyed to Alexander Thursday night and won a double victory from the Independent team 33 to 27 and 34 to 5. The Vagabonds "Guards" held their oppements without a field goal during the entire game. Every player on the the reserve team, with the exception of the center, was a former guard.

The Vagabond regulars got off to a slow start and trailed the first half 11 to 5 and 17 to 12. The second half they started off with a bang and led 27 to 23, winning the game 33 to 27.

Headline News Of The Past Year

As is their annual custom, editors of the various news services have made up lists of what they consider the biggest news stories of the past year. These selections are made on the basis of dramatic interest, as well as actual importance.

Editors of the three leading services agreed fairly well in their selections, placing the Italo-Ethiopian war, invalidation of the NRA, the Hauptman trial, Huey Long's assassination, amd the deaths of Will Rogers and Wiley Post at or near the top of their lists.

Among the 10 most important stories, the Supreme Court's gold clause decision, the inauguration of trans-Pacific air-mail service, the Florida hurricane, German rearmament, the stratosphere flight, and the death of Kingsford-Smith also were given a place by one or more editors.

Other big stories mentioned included the dust storms in the West, Japanese activity in North China. King George's silver jubilee, and the Montana earthquake.

The most gruesome story of all, because it was that of a continuous tragedy, was not given an important place by the editors. It was the appalling record of automobile deaths and injuries. That was not big "news" because it was known beforehand that it was bound to occur and was taken for granted.

Klemme Takes Second Place In Conference

SHAMROCKS WIN TWICE FROM KANAWHA HIGH

The Klemme High School Shamrocks eased into second place in the Seven Eagles Conference race Friday night when they fought their way to a 34 to 24 victory over the Kamawha Bulldogs on the local floor. Because of an epidemic of sickness in Kamawha the game was brought here. Klemme will play at Kanawha February 14th.

The Shamrocks counted first and were never headed during the game as quarter scores were 6-4; 17-10; 23-16; 34-24.

CRYSTAL LAKE CAGERS COME HERE THIS WEEK FOR GAMES

The Crystal Lake high school basketball teams will invade the Shamrock court this week Friday, when two games will be played. The reserve game starts at 7:30 o'clock.

The Klemme Shamrocks seem to be in a winning stride and should show the fast Crystal Lakers a good battle.

Bush Bakers Play Here Monday Eve, Jan. 10th

Next Monday night, Jan. 20, will see the Bush Bakers of Clear Lake in action against the Vagabonds on the local floor. This fast team is playing in the Mason City Y League this year and will offer the Vagabonds plenty of competition. This is the same team that played here several years ago under the banner of "Kenyon's Lazy Aces." Their lineup includes such stars as Garlock, Anderson, Paul and Winnie.

The Marshall-Swift Cleaners of Mason City have been booked to play on the local floor a week from Monday, on January 27th.

AN APOLOGY

The Klemme Vagabonds, local independent basketball team, wish to offer an apology to fans of this vicinity for the class of team which performed on the local floor Monday night. The team had thoroughly misrepresented themselves to the local boys, and they were certainly not up to the caliber of the teams the Vagabonds otherwise schedule. In the future such teams will be investigated more thoroughly before they are booked. The Vagabonds endeavor to book only such high class teams as will hold the interest of Klemme fans adn they sincerely regret the fact that the spectators were disappointed in their expectations Monday night.

According to a Mexican newspapers, all the revolutions fought in Latin-America during the last hundred years have cost only about 418 million dollors, or about as much as the Allies spent every four days during the World War. Backers of Latin-American revolutions seem to get more for their money than those who finance wars elsewhere.

GEORGE KLIPPING CANDIDATE FOR COUNTY SUPERVISOR

George E. Klipping, member of the Hancock County Board of Supervisors and chairman of that body announces in the press of this county that he will be a candidate to succeed himself for the term beginning January 1st, 1937.

Mr. Klipping, who owns and operates a farm in Madison township, is now serving his second term as supervisor. His work as supervisor has always been very satisfactory and apparently he has always handled the business of the county to the satisfaction of the taxpayers.

Mr. Klipping has always polled a large vote and many of his constituents feel that he should be given full support in the coming primary.

HAD BIRTHDAY PARTY ON TUESDAY EVENING

Miss Elaine Buntenbach celebrated her fifteenth birthday anniversary Tuesday night by entertaining a number of her friends at a bridge party The high score of the evening was won by Nora Wellemeyer, the travel prize by Lyle Thada, the two one-eyed jacks by Clair West and the low prize by Lavonne Sherwood.

Following the games a delicious two course lunch was served. Miss Buntenbach was presented with a number of gifts in remembrance of the occasion.

KLEMME REFORMED CHURCH

BUSINESS MEN TO PLAY VOLLEY BALL THURSDAY NIGHTS

The Klemme school gym will be open on Thursday nights for business men and farmers who wish to play volley ball. Several years ago the men had a lot of fun playing the game and all are invited to come out Thursday night for the games.

Because of the limited time and space, it is requested that those who have access to the gym for basketball, will refrain from playing volley ball.

VAGABONDS UNVEIL MASKED MARVELS 48 TO 27

The Klemme Vagabonds unmasked the so-called Masked Marvels on the local floor Monday night 48-27 However, there wasn't much unmasking to do as the Marvels failed to put in an appearance until 9:30 and then with a story of another car yet to come which was hauling four other players and their masks. The Vagabonds took a lead of 12 to 8 at the quarter and at the half were ahead 14 to 13. In the third period they applied the pressure and forged ahead 38 to 23, and then coasted to a 48 to 27 victory.

TUCK A SMART BOW BENEATH THE CHIN

PATTERN 9601

Surely no Junior Miss can resist the girlishness of this smart two-piece frock. Practical for school in a washable cotton tweed, or dressy enough for an evening date in one of the new metallic-shot woolens, with velveteen bow and belt. Isn't the cut of the shoulder line unusual? The blouse, with darts front and back, is separate, you know, so its pleated skirt may accompany many different blouses.

Pattern 9601 may be ordered only in sizes 10, 12, 14, 16 and 18. Size 12 requires 2¼ yards 54 inch fabric and ½ yard 5 inch ribbon. Complete diagrammed sew chart included.

SEND FIFTEEN CENTS in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for this pattern. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, STYLE NUMBER and SIZE.

Send your order to The Sewing Circle Pattern Dept., 232 W. Eighteenth St. New York, N. Y.

Week Varies From 3 to 8 Days Throughout the World

The length of a week varies in different parts of the world from three to eight days. The seven-day week is of course, the most widely employed.

But the five-day week is not unpopular as it is used today in both China and Russia, whose combined population of 640,000,000 represents nearly one third of all the people in the world.—Collier's.

Knitting Fad in Prehistoric Arctic Circle Settlement

Prehistoric knitting needles, five-teeth combs and spoons of mammoth bone have been found in an ancient settlement near Obdorsk, northern Siberia, by an expedition sent out by the Institute of Anthropology and Ethnography of the Academy of Science of the U. S. S. R. It has excavated 12,000 articles of pottery and bone, some of which are unique.

Besides knitting needles, combs and spoons, they include miniature hoes for tilling fields, pieces of melting pots for metal, and bones of animals and birds which no longer inhabit the Yamal peninsula on which Obdorsk stands. The numerous remains found shows that the peninsula, which is within the Arctic circle, was one densely populated.

Scientists Believe Ice Layer in Air Storm Cause

French scientists who have been conducting experiments in east Greenland say there is a layer of ice in the air over the polar regions. This ice ceiling (congealed atmosphere a million times finer than water) is situated approximately 60 miles above the earth.

The discovery was made when electrical impulses from an electric sounding machine were reflected back. Time of the impulses in transit was recorded and computations made which gave the height of the ice layer. This ice is believed to be the cause of the storms at sea.—Pathfinder Magazine.

Oldest Bible Fragment Found in British Library

May Have Been Written by Saint John Himself

LONDON.—Have scholars at last recovered some of the original Bible record about Christ written by Saint John himself, author of the New Testament Gospel of St. John?

Possibility that the extremely old Bible manuscript which has come to light in Rylands library, Manchester, may have this astonishing significance is seen by an archeologist here, who is keenly interested in the discovery.

That the small fragment of papyrus is the oldest New Testament manuscript ever discovered is agreed by British experts.

Dates From Second Century.

Suggesting additional importance for the ancient fragment, Sir Frederick Kenyon, former director of the British museum, and authority on Biblical research, stated in an exclusive interview:

"I have little doubt that the fragment dates from the Second century, possibly the early half. Allowing about a generation of time for making this copy in Egypt, one would suspect the Gospel written about the year 90 to 95 A. D. This does not exclude the possibility that St. John the apostle himself was the writer.

"Naturally, the only way to date the fragment is by an examination of the writing, but several experts on ancient manuscripts are satisfied that it is correctly described."

Written in Greek.

How the ancient fragment reached Manchester is not yet known, but it may have come from Oxyrhynchus, in upper Egypt, where sayings of Jesus were discovered in 1897. The section of the Book of John now discovered deals with Christ's appearance before Pilate. It consists of verses in Greek from the eighteenth chapter—part of verses 31 and 33 on one side and verses 37 and 38 on the other. It was written in book form, not in a rolled manuscript.

The fragment's estimated age sets it 200 years earlier than the famous Codex Sinaiticus, which is a Fourth century Greek Bible consisting of the entire New Testament and less than half of the Old Testament. It is also earlier than the Bible pages known as the Chester Beatty papyri, which have recently been coming to light in Egypt and acquired eagerly by British and American scholars. Leaves of this Bible manuscript are not generally believed to be earlier than 200 A. D.

Dead Hearts Brought Back to Life Aid Drug-Effects Study

ST. LOUIS.—Hearts from dead men, revived and brought to life, are giving new knowledge of how to use the drugs that aid heart afflictions. Experiments wherein fresh blood was pumped through dead human hearts until they started beating freely again have just been reported by Dr. William B. Kountz of Washington University School of Medicine here.

The drugs commonly used to treat heart disease may be helpful, or harmful, depending on the state of the heart, Doctor Kountz found.

In the type of heart disease Doctor Kountz investigated and reported to the Southern Medical association, the small arteries of the muscle itself are closed. Blood therefore cannot get through to nourish the muscle and keep the heart at work pumping blood into the rest of the body.

Physicians have lately been treating this heart ailment by giving drugs that would dilate the closed or dangerously narrowed arteries, on the theory that widening the arteries would help to keep the blood flowing through them. They learned which drugs to use by studying the drug's action on the heart arteries of experimental animals.

The use of the artery-expanding drugs in human cases of heart disease has, however, not been entirely satisfactory, Doctor Kountz observed. His research seems to show why. In human hearts, he found, the state of the heart or the tone of the heart muscle is the chief factor influencing the flow of blood through the heart's arteries.

Doctor Kountz tried the effect of various common heart medicines, such as the nitrites, liver extract, theobromin, digifolin and adrenalin, on the hearts he had revived. Their action on the heart was entirely different when the heart muscle was contracted than when it was relaxed. Nitrites, for example, which ordinarily increase the flow of blood through the heart's arteries, increased it still more when the heart muscle was contracted, but lost their effect entirely when the heart muscle was relaxed.

Jungle Tribe Has Strange Ways With Brides, Killers

Explorer Brings News of Venezuelan Life

PHILADELPHIA.—News of a tribe that has strange ways with murderers, and stranger ways with brides, is brought by Dr. Vincenzo Petrullo, anthropologist explorer of the university museum here just returned from leading an expedition into Venezuela.

Protection of a powerful chieftain made it possible for the expedition to spend three months in actual contact with this little-known people, the Guajiro Indians, Doctor Petrullo declared in an exclusive interview. The expedition was conducted jointly by the university museum of the University of Pennsylvania, Columbia university and the Latin-American institute.

A Guajiro Indian of high degree pays a great deal for his wife—whom he has never laid eyes on, Doctor Petrullo learned. Marriageable girls are kept locked up, seen only by their families. At the marriage ceremony, the bridegroom still does not behold his bride. Nine days later, he sees her for the first time by daylight, although he has spent the nine nights after the ceremony with his wife, entering and leaving the room in darkness.

Women "Going Modern."

But even Guajiro women are going modern, for Doctor Petrullo was told that this marriage custom is slowly being broken down by the women themselves.

Guajiro methods of handling crime were also found unusual. If a member of a Guajiro clan slays a member of another and friendly clan, it is the duty of the murderer's own clan to execute him. No disgrace is attached to such an execution, and the clans remain friendly. Failure to deal out justice in this way, however, is a signal for sharp reprisal. The group victimized by the murder sets out to kill the murderer's entire family, except the children, whom they take as slaves.

Originally, Guajiros lived by gathering wild plants, hunting, and perhaps some farming, Doctor Petrullo reports. But after Europeans brought horses, cattle, donkeys, sheep, and goats into South America, the culture of these Indians changed. They are now pastoral, farming a little when there are rains in their sandy, semi-desert country.

When They're Wealthy.

A Guajiro measures wealth by the size of a man's herd and flocks, said the anthropologist, and these are acquired chiefly for social display at funeral feasts. Thousands of animals may be killed to feed the multitude of guests at one of these occasions.

Guajiro Indians never travel alone. A chieftain goes about with half a dozen well armed retainers, and if the trip is a long one and the chief very important, this bodyguard may be increased. Important women likewise travel accompanied by large retinues of servants and slaves.

Columbia U. Takes New Step Toward 'Painless Dentistry'

NEW YORK.—A new step toward "painless dentistry" seems to have been taken by a Columbia university professor here. The latest development is the discovery of Dr. L. L. Hartman of a "desensitizer" that does away with the painful sensations during the necessary drilling before a cavity in a tooth can be filled.

The desensitizer which Doctor Hartman discovered after nearly twenty years of research is a colorless fluid. Unlike other anesthetics which must be injected into the nerves or plugs of the teeth, Doctor Hartman's fluid is applied to the dentin, the substance which forms the bulk of the hard part of the teeth. It takes a minute or a minute and a half to take effect and the pain-killing effect lasts from twenty minutes to an hour, giving plenty of time to prepare almost any cavity for filling, Doctor Hartman explained. There are no unpleasant after effects and the pulp of the tooth remains normal.

The chemical composition of the desensitizer has not been announced and the fluid is still nameless. Patent rights for it have been assigned by Doctor Hartman to Columbia university. It will be on the market soon, and the quality and price will be controlled by the university in order to make it available for general use.

Even Greeks of Old Drank at Sport Events

LOS ANGELES.—When university presidents worry about drinking at modern football games and other sport spectacles they are struggling with a problem that had ancient Greeks also losing sleep at night. The Greeks had a law about it, too, says Dr. Arthur P. McKinlay, Latin professor, University of California here.

A Fifth century (B. C.) inscription near the stadium of Delphi can still be read, forbidding the carrying of wine into the stadium or penalty of a small fine—about 85 cents.

FINDS SANITATION PARASITE CONTROL

Rigid Hygiene Urged Rather Than Medicine.

By H. C. Gauger, Extension Poultry Specialist, North Carolina State College.—WNU Service.

Seventy per cent of the fowls examined in the state college poultry disease laboratory are infested with one or more kinds of intestinal parasites.

Such parasites are liable to impair the health and efficiency of any poultry flock unless the poultryman takes active steps to control them. The solution of the parasite problem lies more in rigid hygiene and sanitation rather than in medicinal treatment of the birds.

Unless the premises are kept clean, the birds will become re-infested at frequent intervals and any medicinal treatment would have to be repeated again and again.

Eggs from the tape worms pass out in the droppings from the birds. When the chickens eat these insects, the young tape worms which have hatched out attack the intestinal linings of the birds and lay more eggs to develop into worms.

There are times, however, when deworming medicine should be given the birds. Capsules can be given. They are more effective than powder mixed with the feed.

Internal parasites harm the fowls in many ways. They absorb food needed by the birds. They injure the intestinal linings and prevent the normal assimilation of digested food by the birds. The poisonous products of the parasites are also harmful.

Year-Round Raising of Turkeys, Michigan Plan

Turkey raising would be placed on the same production basis as chicken growing under a research program being worked out by the Michigan Agricultural Experiment station.

Late summer-hatched poults now are in the rearing pens as part of the station's experiment to determine whether it is practicable and profitable to raise winter turkeys for spring marketing. If the project proves a success, it may pave the way for placing turkey production on a year-round production basis the same as chicken raising.

Previous experiments have shown that consumer demand for turkeys can be expanded and advanced into late summer and early fall. In the past farmers have depended almost entirely upon the Thanksgiving, Christmas and New Year's markets to absorb the turkey crop.

Good and Cheap Housing

There are several well recognized principles to be considered in the construction of poultry houses, regardless of size of flock, location or other factors, among them being adequate ventilation, dry quarters, light and airy interior, convenience of cleaning and general care and ease of disinfecting. Economy of construction is an important factor if profits are to be made, and this element should be given first consideration in all discussion of construction and maintenance. While sizes and plans will vary according to local requirements and conditions, a more or less standard unit type of construction has been found to serve under all conditions. As cleanliness and sanitation are cardinal principles in successful poultry raising, much thought and discussion should be given to the interior fittings and accessories.

Large and Small Eggs

According to the Missouri agricultural experiment station there is apparently a natural tendency for the domestic hen to lay large eggs during the regular breeding season, while smaller eggs are laid during the summer months. Dr. D. C. Warren of the Kansas State Agricultural college has shown that high temperatures cause the birds to produce smaller eggs. At the Missouri station it was shown that the first egg laid in a clutch is usually the largest egg in that particular clutch.

Milk-Fed Poultry

The term "milk-fed" as applied to dressed poultry for the market, according to a poultry authority in the Rural New-Yorker, denotes special fattening for two or three weeks upon a liquid or semi-liquid ration which should contain milk but which may not if meat scrap is substituted. Poultry to be so fattened is kept in confinement during the feeding. Such specially fattened poultry is superior in quality and should bring a correspondingly better price.

When Pullets Are Failure

When the new pullets are more or less of a failure owing to poor quality breeding stock, faulty management, or disease or parasites then the best procedure may be to sell the pullets and keep the hens which have proven satisfactory from the standpoint of livability and egg production. Such hens often prove as profitable during their second year as the first, whereas inferior pullets are a gamble. Generally the best procedure would be a compromise—keep the best hens.—Farm Journal.

DR. JAMES W. BARTON Talks About

Safe and Sure Reducing

"THE treatment of obesity (overweight) is far more simple than we are often led to believe. During the course of the treatment the patient's strength should improve and his cheerfulness be maintained. Obesity is due to too much food and too little exercise. Insufficient thyroid juice may occasionally account for a case, but in ninety-nine cases out of one hundred too much food and too little exercise causes obesity."

The above was written by Dr. Elliott P. Joslin of Boston twenty-five years ago in Modern Treatment, edited by Dr. Hobart A. Hare, professor of therapeutics and materia medica, Jefferson Medical college, Philadelphia.

"Excess of food. Eating is much of a habit. Thus the patient may be accustomed to eat before retiring, or to take fruit between meals, or to enjoy two portions of dessert, and in this way the secret of his overweight is explained. The habit of eating large quantities of food may have been contracted when the individual took more exercise. The duties of active or business life shortened or lessened the time for exercise, but not for meals."

Dr. Barton

"Lack of exercise. Lack of exercise is fully as common a cause of overweight as increasing the amount of food eaten. Two individuals may exercise and eat alike, yet one sleep an hour longer than the other. The one who sleeps the hour longer naturally chooses a reclining chair and the other selects an upright chair. One is quiet while the other makes frequent movements even in the simplest conversation—always on the move—thus using up the food eaten and preventing gain in weight. Gain in weight usually takes place at that time in life when one is most apt to decrease the amount of exercise."

Old Words Still Apply.

You can thus see that while these words from Doctor Joslin are now about twenty-five years old they apply exactly today as to the cause of nearly every case of overweight—too much food or too little exercise, or both.

In the treatment of overweight the same reason for trying to reduce the weight—pride in one's appearance—was the biggest factor twenty five years ago in getting these individuals to eat less food and take more exercise.

The recommendation as to diet was that all foods be reduced; that is, the total intake be reduced. Then of the foods eaten starches and fats should be cut down most and proteids (meat, eggs, fish) very little or not at all. Proteids are needed to maintain the strength and structure of the body and also because they increase the rate at which the body processes work thus further preventing the formation of fat.

Cutting down completely on table salt in the diet at once causes a lowering of the body weight.

Exercise Holds Protein.

Exercise helps to hold or maintain protein in the system because exercise develops or builds muscle, just as lack of exercise allows body proteins to be gradually lost. For this reason exercise should always be used to reduce weight. It is not generally recognized that muscular work uses up fat and sugar but not protein. In other words exercise favors the loss of the very tissues which it is most desirable to remove in the treatment of obesity.

Exercise should be prescribed along with the diet above mentioned (cutting down on starches and fats but not on proteids). The exercise should be progressive, regular, and suited to the needs or ability of the patient to take it.

Doctor Joslin speaks also of the use of thyroid extract which was in vogue at that time. Thyroid extract should not be used until after cutting down on the food and increasing the exercise has failed to reduce weight after several weeks' trial.

The pituitary extract which is used in those cases when the excess of fat is on shoulders, breasts, abdomen and hips, but not on the lower legs or the arms was not in use for reducing weight at that time.

A Patient's First Visit

"Every patient who consults a doctor is in a state of fear. He is therefore more easily influenced by 'suggestion' and the attitude of the doctor, whether encouraging or discouraging, can profoundly affect the nervous system through the emotions, and thereby practically every chemical action throughout his body may be affected. Herein is the scientific explanation of the fact that the best of tonic is hope.

"But an essential factor in hope is faith. The patient must believe in the doctor, in his knowledge, care, and skill.

"The doctor will have to give good grounds for his faith, and in order to inspire this faith no aspect of the case must be neglected."

I am quoting Dr. W. Langdon Brown in the British Lancet.

An individual connected with the street cleaning department walks up to a hydrant, dragging a length of hose behind him, and, fitting a wrench to the cap, proceeds to unscrew it.

"Don't—please don't!" cries the youth anchored to the lamp post.

"Don't do what?" asked the functionary, halting in astonishment.

"Don't wind up this street any tighter. She's spinnin' round too fast as it is!"—Bystander.

Belief Is Influence in Direction of One's Life

The forces that impel action reside in temperatment. The ideals and convictions that guide it are hidden in the mind and heart. A man moves slowly or swiftly, he does his work slowly or swiftly, according to the energy that is in him. But the direction of his life, this way or that way, follows the unseen influence of what he admires and loves and believes in. —Henry Van Dyke.

It always works

Just do what hospitals do, and the doctors insist on. Use a good liquid laxative, and aid Nature to restore clocklike regularity without strain or ill effect.

A liquid can always be taken in gradually reduced doses. Reduced dosage is the real secret of relief from constipation.

Ask a doctor about this. Ask your druggist how very popular Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin has become. It gives the right kind of help, and right amount of help. Taking a little less each time, gives the bowels a chance to act of their own accord, until they are moving regularly and thoroughly without any help at all.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin contains senna and cascara—both natural laxatives that form no habit. The action is gentle, but sure. It will relieve any sluggishness or bilious condition due to constipation without upset.

"Death in a Bottle"

By FLOYD GIBBONS
Famous Headline Hunter.

YOU know, it's the simplest things that make the most thrilling adventures. You, yourself, although you probably don't know it, have something around your house that you've been looking at and handling for years, which will one day form the fodder for your life's most thrilling experience. Watch that electric flat-iron, Mom. One of these days it's liable to give you a scare. And Pop, don't monkey with that garden hose, either. There'll come a time when it rears up on its haunches and bounces you right into a hair-raising situation.

You don't believe me? Well, ask Caroline Rebhan what she thinks of those simple little household items. Caroline never got scared of the bottles in her medicine cabinet, either. There wasn't any poison in any of them and she thought they were perfectly safe. But there came a time when those same medicine bottles furnished a terrifying five minutes for the whole Rebhan family.

It happened on a Sunday morning in July, 1912. Caroline was just a young bride then. She had only been married a couple months. She and her husband had moved into a new house. There were rugs to be laid and furniture to be moved and a million other things that had to be done all at once. Caroline was so confused that a lot of things slipped her mind. And among them were those bottles she had taken from the medicine cabinet in their last home.

That particular home they had moved into was a small flat, and one of the troubles with it was that there was no medicine cabinet. What to do with the medicine bottles? Well—there was an old coal-burning stove in the kitchen, and, since it was never used in the summertime, Caroline stowed those bottles away in the oven until such time as she could arrange a better place for them. Then, in the general mix-up, she forget all about them.

It Was All the Fault of Apprentice's Housekeeping.

All that happened in June. It was a month later, in the middle of July, when the adventure really took place. Then, one Sunday morning, Caroline's husband, with nothing else to do, decided that he ought to try that stove out and see if it was any good.

Bill—that's Caroline's husband—lit the fire. For an hour the old stove heated up, and then they heard a bang that seemed to come from somewhere inside it. Both Bill and Caroline laughed at that, and Bill said, "Gee, there must be dynamite in that coal." Then followed another bang—and another. "And still," says Caroline, "it didn't dawn on me that it might be the medicine. It wasn't until later, when Bill decided to shave, that I remembered those bottles."

When Bill started to shave he remembered an old razor strop that he hadn't seen since they moved from the old home, and asked Caroline if she knew what had happened to it. "When Bill asked me that," Caroline says, "my face went white. 'No,' I told him, 'but your razor strop is in that oven.' Then, in as few words as possible, I told him what I had done. He laughed at first, but"—

Deadly Explosives—in a Lighted Stove!

Yes, Bill laughed at first, but not after Caroline had told him the whole story. For among those medicine bottles was one containing alcohol and another—a large one—that was full of benzine. Either one of those bottles could produce an explosion that would have blown the old stove to pieces. And the wonder of it all was why they had not already exploded.

Bill's face was as white as Caroline's when he got the whole story. Any minute one of those bottles might go up, wreck the kitchen and set fire to the house. There was no time to call the fire department—not a second to spare at all. He ran outside, got a long-handled shovel and opened the oven door.

Caroline stood in the kitchen doorway while he did it—her hands over her face, expecting any moment to see flame streak out of that oven and engulf poor Bill.

Removing Potential Death by the Shovelful.

Bill pushed the shovel into the oven and picked up a bottle. Out it came, and then—BANG—it burst, scattering glass all over the kitchen. Bill thrust the shovel in again and picked up another bottle. That, too, exploded as soon as it hit the cold air outside the oven. Glass showered over Bill—even went down his collar and got under his clothes—but he held his ground. The worst was still to come. Way back in the rear of the oven were those deadly bottles of benzine and alcohol. If they burst coming out, as the others had done—well—neither Bill nor Caroline wanted to think of that.

One by one the bottles came out—and one by one they burst as soon as they left the oven. Then they came to the alcohol and the benzine.

Says Caroline: "We stood looking at each other for a second, and then Bill said, 'Stand over by the window and pray.' I did. He reached into the oven and out came the bottle of benzine. Nothing happened, and I gave a sob of relief. He set the benzine bottle in a pail and reached in after the alcohol, and this time the sweat was pouring down his face. It had to be done slowly—carefully, and his hand shook so that I was sure that he would drop it. But the second bottle came out like the first, and Bill put it in the pail with the bottle of benzine.

"And what I can't understand," says Caroline, "is how those two bottles stayed whole when all the others exploded."

Well, maybe, it was the prayer, Caroline.

4-H Club an Educational Movement for Boys, Girls

The 4-H club is a rural educational movement for boys and girls between the ages of ten and twenty years, inclusive, each project of which is designed to stimulate interest in more home activities, whether it be raising a garden, raising pets, keeping personal accounts, making a dress, or refurnishing a room.

The movement had its origin in certain of the farmers' institutions and the public schools of Ohio, Illinois and Iowa in 1899, relates a writer in the Cleveland Plain Dealer, and is now a part of the co-operative extension system of the United States Department of Agriculture and state agricultural colleges. Dr. S. A. Knapp of the federal Department of Agriculture gave it impetus at the time of the coming of the boll weevil by stressing the demonstration work of boys and girls in the South as a means of improving rural home conditions, and teaching diversified agriculture to meet the problem brought about by this pest.

In 1914 increased funds from federal, state and county sources stimulated the movement, which spread rapidly into all the states.

The club work of the boys and girls is promoted by county agricultural agents, home demonstration agents, county club agents, and the agricultural and home economics extension specialists of the federal and state co-operative agricultural extension system.

The club was named by O. H. Benson of Iowa, in 1904, who was at that time a county superintendent of schools.

FASCINATING TALES OF LOST MINES

THE WHITE CEMENT

AN OLD man, exhausted and ill, started a stampede that was once the talk of the Southwest.

It was in July of 1868 that the prospector, who was named White, staggered into Horse Head gulch camp, near Amarillo, Texas. He had some peculiar-looking stuff with him that resembled nothing so much as white clay or cement, and this strange "ore" was specked with flecks of gold. In fact, assay showed that the stuff would run a thousand ounces of gold to the ton.

White's gold find could not be kept secret. The news flashed from man to man, and everyone who heard it was eager to know where the location was, so that he could get some of this wealth for himself. White tried to keep quiet; he had no desire to tell, when he knew that every man who heard it would dash out and stake claims. But his wish for secrecy was not respected. When he refused to answer questions, the men of the camp gathered about him and threatened to kill him if he would not show them where he found his gold.

After such threats, White could do nothing but promise to lead them to the place right away. As many as could possibly get away followed him, and the strange, fierce cavalcade set out for northern New Mexico.

The journey was not a pleasant one. Many of White's party were suspicious of him, and when time went on and no gold appeared they threatened again to kill him if they found that he had been misleading them.

At last, one night the party reached a blind canyon and made camp. One more day, White announced, would see them at his find, which was thirty-five miles to the northwest. Tired out, their suspicions lulled by White's words, the men slept soundly—all but White himself. He said that he was nervous, since he was so close to the mine. He could not sleep for thinking of it. And since he was wakeful, he would stand guard while the others slept.

This was agreeable to the rest. They were soon fast asleep, resting for the long ride ahead of them.

Morning came, and with its first light the men awoke, eager to press on. But what was this? White was nowhere to be seen, and his horse also had disappeared! He had slipped away in the night, leaving them as ignorant of the location of the gold as they had been at first.

Three years after this clever ruse, White was seen in Salt Lake City, where he spent money liberally. He loaned a man in Provo $50,000 in gold dust, so apparently his "cement" mine was still producing. Then he disappeared. He never returned to claim his money. No one heard of him or saw him again.

THE ADAMS' DIGGIN'S

THE Gila river, which seems so much a part of Arizona, has its headwaters in New Mexico. There are three forks which meet before the state line is reached, and the country thereabouts is known only to forest rangers and cowboys, who ride the reaches of the Heart Bars, the Slashes, the Gos, and other lonely ranches.

It was in 1860 that a party of fifteen men set out from California to prospect in the mountains to the east. A prisoner of the Yuma Indians managed to catch their attention, and this man told them that he knew where there were wonderful gold fields, and could guide them to the place. As a consequence the party bought him from his captors, and set out after him across the state of Arizona and up into the headwaters of the Gila.

Three peaks rose from a valley, and between two of them a stream flowed eastward. At the base of the central mountain the placer gold sparkled, and here the party camped and went to work.

Presently their supplies ran low. Half of the party started out for Yuma, not realizing that there were towns across the mountains to the south, to get food and other supplies. A month went by, and no one returned. The provisions were alarmingly low by this time, so three more men started after the first party.

When they reached a mesa top which gave a view of the camp, the three looked back. To their horror, they saw their little settlement in flames, and even as they watched Indians killed the remaining men.

It would mean death to return; besides, their friends were beyond help. Frightened, the three men hurried on, missing their way, and in their wanderings one of them died. At last they reached a town, and here another man, exhausted by that long travel among the mountains, gave up the ghost.

The sole survivor of the party was a man named Adams. He told the story, and added that $1,000 a day could be washed out with a gold pan at the place where his comrades had died. In spite of the horror of his experiences he longed to return to where the golden phantom beckoned.

But it was not to be. Adams tried many times to make his way back to the three mountains, but somehow he could never find them again. Others, too, have hunted for the lost diggings in that fiercely beautiful country, but the secret remains unknown.

Wilson for Earlier War?
Prayer Plus Planes
New Disease Danger
Ethiopian Victory?

Prof. A. M. Arnett of North Carolina university says it was not Wilson that kept this country out of war for a while, but the country that kept Wilson out of war longer than he would have stayed out.

Arthur Brisbane

Professor Arnett says he will prove, in a book, that Wilson wanted war in 1916, and was kept out of it by three men—Champ Clark, Congressman Flood and Claude Kitchin, Democratic floor leader of the house.

How deep should we have sunk in our depression if Woodrow Wilson had carried out his alleged plan and started the war one year ahead of time, in 1916?

How many millions of Americans would have been killed (they were always honored with front row places)? How many tens of billions would have been added to the public debt and the repudiated debts of Europe?

The archbishop of Canterbury, head of the official Church of England, has invited all European Christian communicants to join in prayer for peace, with resolutions outlawing all war.

While the archbishop takes that desirable step the British government works rapidly on 8,000 airplanes of the fighting kind. Nothing like airplanes to back up eloquent prayer for peace.

Uncle Sam has on his hands the job of preventing the spread of disease throughout the country and its importation from abroad.

Doctor Curran, in charge of insects for the American Museum of Natural History, warns New York it may be invaded by malaria brought into northern New Jersey by a CCC camp worker from the South. The anopheles mosquito, always present, has been spreading the germs. He cannot do that unless he first bites a malaria carrier.

Haile Selassie's fighting Gen. Dejazmatch Hallu Kebede sends cheerful news to his royal master:

"We fought and beat the Italians from dawn to dusk; 200 Italian white soldiers, twenty Italian officers, killed. Cannon, bombs and innumerable batteries of machine guns made murderous concert against us, but God protected your humble Christian soldiers, and the Lion of Judah was victorious."

Ethiopians persist in their theory that they are the only Christians involved. They say the Italians are Catholics, therefore not Christians, which would amuse the Italians, if they had time for amusement.

Rome calls the General Dejazmatch dispatch "customary Ethiopian inaccuracy."

Former Governor Alfred E. Smith, booked for a big political talk in Washington, D. C., and invited by Mrs. Roosevelt to stop at the White House during his stay in Washington, declines the invitation, explaining that he will have too big a crowd with him.

Politicians do not think that the only reason. They expect Governor Smith to "cut loose" and say things about the administration that would not come gracefully from a White House guest.

Mr. and Mrs. Triplett of Jenkins, Ky., who have just received from heaven their third set of triplets, say: "We are just tickled to death, but imagine our surprise." Besides nine triplets, the happy couple have one set of twins, all eleven living and all fortunate. The baby born in a family that wants babies is the fortunate child.

For the woman or man who does not want children, the wise thing is not to have them—for the children's sake.

Hitler knows what he wants, tells the rest of the world, and thus far the world has let him help himself.

He wanted an end of the Versailles treaty and got it. He wanted the right to build a strong battle fleet and England consented.

Now he says he must have an air force as strong as that of France, and will proceed to build it. He demands also the return of all colonies taken from Germany, and intimates that he will fight for them if he can't get them peaceably.

Austria will pay Uncle Sam on account of debt thirty million schillings, payment in American paper dollars. At the current rate of exchange Uncle Sam will get $5,634,000. Our paper dollars are convenient for Europeans, for they know, although we do not, that our dollar is worth 59 cents.

Thomas W. Lamont, a J. Pierpont Morgan & company partner, gives five hundred thousand dollars to establish a "chair of political economy" at Harvard. The money will stay and the interest will be used. Well invested, it should pay the chosen professor a fair salary.

JAN. 10 WAS LAST DAY TO TRAP

Midnight January 10 was the last hour during which fur bearing animals could be lawfully trapped or pursued, according to the Iowa regulations.

Every person who traps, kills or takes an fur bearing animal must file an inventory within ten days following the close of the open season, with the State Director of Conservation, naming the animals and the number taken. Trappers desiring to hold skins longer than 10 days after the close of the season must obtain permit to do so from the Conservation Director. Fur dealers may have skins and hides in their possession at any time.

A fellow who listens to radio advertising ballyhoo tells this one: "I bought a carburetor guaranteed to save 50 percent on gas, a timer to save 30 percent and a spark plug to save another 30 percent. After going ten miles my gasoline tank overflowed."

"Now," said the hypnotist, "I shall make this man forget everything."

"Now hold on," yelled Sandy, "he owes me ten dollars!"

At a local grocery the other day the clerk gave a little boy a piece of candy. "What do you say?' beamed the lad's fond mama. "Charge it," replied the observing youngster.

"I want some beef chops," said the fair young customer.

"Beef chops!" echoed the clerk. "Never heard of them."

"What? Haven't you heard of a cow licking her chops?"

"Your chances are pretty good," said the doctor, "but if I were you I wouldn't start reading any continued stories."

"Come, Mary, I'll show you how to milk the cows," said the farm girl to her city cousin.

"Hadn't I better begin with a calf until I get some experience?"

Frank Knox Public Citizen

Services to Nation Make Him a Presidential Possibility.

Oftentimes the people of this country refer to the government of the United States as "the biggest business in the world." It is—increasingly so since the World war. Practically every issue of consequence affecting the welfare of the nation since 1920 has been either economic or financial in character. One has only to recall the legislation, mandates and dictum coming from Washington during the past two years to realize to what extent the government has entered into the daily lives and business of all people.

And yet—up to this time—the people of the United States have relied on office holders of reputation, politicians or military heroes to administer the office of President. They have never elected a business man to run the business of the United States.

In Frank Knox, the Chicago publisher, the Republicans of Illinois who have unanimously made him their "favorite son" candidate for the Republican nomination for President of the United States this year, have sought to fill this aching void. They know Knox is a budget balancer and a business builder, as his continuous success in business attests. They know he knows how to meet a payroll and has never had trouble with his employees, union or otherwise. They know he practices thrift and that his progress in life from a newsboy to the head of one of the largest metropolitan newspapers in the country has been achieved on savings, character and ability alone.

But Knox's scope is not merely that of making a success of his own business. As a newspaper editor he has, to use his own words, been "administering a public trust."

As a result, upon Frank Knox has been conferred the title of "public citizen." While never an office holder he has, nevertheless, been a student of and a contributor to government all his life. Backed by his newspaper he has helped elect good men to office and to defeat bad ones. He has been "backstage" on many public policies, national, state and local, for which the office holders got all the credit. Always on the progressive and liberal side of any issue, he has fought hard for fairness and equality for the farmer, for labor, for racial and religious groups suffering from discrimination, and for individuals who stood for good principles with clean hands. Upon all the issues now before the American people he is one of the best informed.

Knox was a child of depression. He came to manhood in depression. He learned in other depressions of lesser magnitude a few fundamentals of success; pay your debts; never spend more than you can earn; don't make promises you can't keep; and keep the promises you make. One executive who worked with him in a vast newspaper enterprise, said of his attitude toward these simple rules: "He never forgot an order; he never passed the buck." And that about sums it up.

He was born in Boston in 1874 when his country was doing a bad job recovering from the panic of 1878. His parents, sound Scotch-English folks, like their forebears when confronted with an insurmountable obstacle, moved to Grand Rapids, Mich., when Frank was six years of age. At 11 years of age Knox was delivering newspapers for $3.75 a week. This was not enough to help the family. At 15 years of age he quit school to go to work and soon became a traveling salesman at $15 a week. The depression of 1893 cost him his job. At the urging of friends, including his pastor, he went to Alma college, Alma, Mich., and worked his way through doing any job that came to hand. There he met his future wife, Annie Reid.

Two months before graduation the Spanish-American war broke out. Knox enlisted as a private and took twenty of his college mates into the army with him. While on leave attending the funeral of a relative, the Michigan regiment was filled up and Knox arrived in Tampa, Fla., in uniform but without definite assignment to any outfit. There he met Lieut. David M. Goodrich, former Harvard oarsman, who introduced him to Theodore Roosevelt. The colonel looked him over carefully, asked him if he would care to join the Rough Riders and personally administered the oath of a soldier to Knox. He served at Roosevelt's side throughout the campaign which ended at San Juan hill, finally to fall a victim to the heat and tropical ailments.

Trooper Knox returned to Grand Rapids to find himself face to face with the newspaper business. During his absence, many of his letters to the mother, setting forth the lighter side of the Cuban campaign, had been published in the local newspapers.

"You have a nose for news. I'll put you on at $10 a week," said one of the editors.

Thus Frank Knox found the profession which was to be his life work. On his meager salary, he married Annie Reid, "the girl he left behind him" when he marched off to war. In three years he became city editor and circulation manager of the paper. Then, with $500 as capital, another thousand of borrowed money, and a partner, John A. Muehling, with a like amount, he bought the Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., News.

In ten years on that job Knox "cleaned" up one of the toughest towns in the country, helped nominate and elect Chase Osborn, one of the first of the old progressive Republicans, as governor of Michigan, and himself became chairman of the Republican state committee. In 1912 Frank Knox supported his old commander, Col. Theodore Roosevelt, for President. At the conclusion of that campaign he sold his Michigan paper at a handsome profit and, prompted by the urging of Gov. Robert Bass, another progressive governor, with his old partner Muehling he bought the Manchester, N. H., Leader. This he combined with another local paper, and, together, they still own and operate the Union-Leader, two of the progressive newspapers of New England.

Always constructive, always looking for some way in which to make things better, Publisher Knox became aware of the difficulties in which agriculture and industry were finding themselves in the New England states. It was his idea that, to protect their interests, these states should act as a unit and to that end he took a leading part in forming the New England Council, one of the country's outstanding examples of co-operation by a large group. It has survived economic stress and successfully fought off dictatorship from Washington.

Over-age for the draft, able to command influence if he wanted an officer's commission or a softer berth, Frank Knox enlisted as a "buck private" in the New Hampshire militia in 1917 when the United States became involved in the World War. No militarist, but a profound patriot when his country needed men, Knox, qualified by his previous service in Cuba, quickly found himself in an officer's training camp over his protest. He served throughout the war with the artillery train of the 78th division, participating in the St. Mihiel and Argonne campaigns. He came home this time with his hearing slightly impaired, although it was believed for weeks that an unexpected discharge of artillery had deafened him for life. The first day home he reported for work in a long-tailed coat, all he had saved from his "civvies" before going to war a second time.

Knox's success in New Hampshire attracted the attention of Publisher William Randolph Hearst. When invited by Mr. Hearst to take charge of his Boston papers, Knox, who was in no sense a candidate for the job, fixed what he regarded as a prohibitive price on his services. To his astonishment, Mr. Hearst agreed and Knox ran the papers for a year with such success that he was tendered the general managership of the entire Hearst chain of papers. In that job Knox applied the same general rules of budget balancing and editorial integrity which he had followed all his life.

Once again, Knox found himself traveling the length and breadth of the land, acquiring and applying a knowledge of local affairs, sectional interests and meeting the leading business men, statesmen and politicians everywhere. When he retired from this post in 1928 he expected to settle down in Manchester with his wife in a new home especially adapted in design and site to a troublesome throat ailment from which Mrs. Knox had suffered for several years. But Knox found he was not the kind of a man who can retire until the last horn is blown.

In 1929 Walter A. Strong, publisher of The Chicago Daily News, suddenly died. The newspaper was an institution in the city of Chicago, devoted to the public service, independent, read and believed in by the citizens of that city. Under Victor F. Lawson and Strong the paper had set a standard for American journalism for more than fifty years.

Knox, without enough money of his own to buy such an expensive property, came into the picture with Theodore T. Ellis, a successful manufacturer of press accessories. Theirs was not the highest bid. It was sold to them after the executors and directors had canvassed the country for a man of character eligible to conduct a newspaper on the high standards it had acquired. The principal editors and publishers of the country individually assured all inquirers that in Knox the right man for the job had been found.

Knox has run The Chicago Daily News on the same principles that made him successful at the Soo and in Manchester. He has stood manfully behind the forces of law and order which has brought the underworld in Chicago to its knees—the same old fight he fought at Sault Ste. Marie in his earlier days. His campaign for a new political conscience, in which courage and common honesty stand out as its chief characteristics, is showing results. He has improved the financial position of his newspaper, retiring in the first four years, over $4,000,000 in bonds and preferred stock. This, too, is a throwback on his life-long ability to balance budgets, save money and, at the same time, give quality service.

He has continuously fought the "New Deal" as contrary to some of the things he found to be fundamental American principles: You pay your debts; you don't spend more than you earn; you make no promises you cannot keep; you keep the promises you make, and you tell the truth unsparingly about things as they are.

Illinois Republicans agree with Knox and believe in him. They think he is the type best suited to present day needs—a business man with a statesman's viewpoint and experience; a fresh, up-to-date "public citizen" fully qualified to apply the homely virtues and fundamentals to modern conditions.

AAA Is Killed by Decision of the Supreme Court

SIX justices of the United States Supreme court, including Chief Justice Hughes, joined in an opinion that killed the Agricultural Adjustment act. Three associate justices, Stone, Brandeis and Cardozo, dissented. The majority decision, read by Associate Justice Owen J. Roberts, held that the AAA was wholly unconstitutional because it invaded the rights of the states in seeking to control farm production. The whole system of processing taxes imposed to finance the program was swept into discard.

Chief Justice Hughes

Not only are the processing taxes illegal but the court apparently declared the farm benefit contracts void and put up bars against any attempt of the federal government to regulate farm production by whatever means.

Senators and representatives who immediately began planning legislation to continue benefit payments to farmers and to balance agricultural output did not seem to grasp the full significance of this part of the decision. The court said flatly that regulation of farm production is not within the scope of the federal government and of its powers to accomplish this, nor can it purchase adherence to a control scheme by federal payments.

The decision destroyed not only the original AAA but also the amended act of the last session of congress.

The dissenting opinion held that the AAA was a legitimate employment of the power to tax for the general welfare. It attacked the theory that the preservation of our institutions is the exclusive concern of the Supreme court and suggested that under the majority decision the unemployment work relief act is unconstitutional.

President Roosevelt, Secretary of Agriculture Wallace and other administration leaders had no immediate comment on the decision to make public, but the President called Attorney General Cummings and Mr. Wallace into conference. The administration and congress must do something to raise nearly half a billion dollars which the government has contracted to pay farmers and against which it now has no income, since the processing impost is outlawed. Disposition of about $200,000,000 accumulated under court orders that impounded processing tax collections must be determined.

AAA Administrator Chester Davis stopped all payments to farmers "until further notice," and the Treasury department ordered all collectors of internal revenue to desist from further efforts to collect processing taxes.

In his budget message President Roosevelt included revenue from processing taxes, so the Supreme court decision had the effect of throwing the 1937 budget still further out of balance by something like a billion dollars.

President's Message Is a Defiance of Opponents

SURROUNDED by klieg lights, microphones and movie cameras, President Roosevelt stood before the senate and house in night joint session and delivered what was nominally his annual message on the state of the nation. Actually it was not that at all, but a statement concerning the warfare and international disturbances on the other continents, followed by what the press generally considered an eloquent and militant political speech addressed to the people of the United States, who by the millions were listening in on their radios. Partisan opinion of his message is perhaps worthless. Of course his supporters praised it highly, and his opponents were equally emphatic in derogation.

President Roosevelt

Democrats and Republicans alike commended the President's opening paragraphs in which he boldly condemned the aggression of Italy and Japan, though without naming those nations; and there was little dissent from his assertion that the United States must maintain its neutrality while seeking to "discourage the use by belligerent nations of any and all American products calculated to facilitate the prosecution of a war in quantities over and above our normal exports to them in time of peace."

The remainder of the message, devoted to domestic affairs, was devoted chiefly to a belligerently worded defense of the New Deal measures of the administration, an attack on those who oppose them and a spirited passage in which Mr. Roosevelt defied and dared his critics to move for the repeal of those measures instead of "hiding their dissent in a cowardly cloak of generality." In only two paragraphs did the President dwell on "the state of the nation." In these he said that after nearly three years of the New Deal national income is increasing, agriculture and industry are "returning to full activity," and "we approach a balance of the national budget." That last statement was greeted with mocking laughter from the Republican side of the chamber, and though the Democrats cheered loudly, Mr. Roosevelt himself smiled at his words.

One passage in the message was interpreted by some as a threat to close the lower courts to suits attacking the constitutionality of federal laws. The President told congress that its enactments require "protection until final adjudication by the highest tribunal," and added that congress "has the right and can find the means to protect its own prerogatives."

Altogether, the spectacle in the house chamber was extraordinary and unparalled. All the senators and representatives were there, the latter being remarkably noisy. Eight members of the cabinet attended, and in the galleries sat Mrs. Roosevelt, the wives of cabinet members, diplomats and enough other privileged persons to fill the seats completely. Vice President Garner and Speaker Byrns jointly presided over the session.

The President's message was denounced by the American Liberty league as "the most dangerous speech that ever came from a President," and by Former President Herbert Hoover as a message of "'war on earth and ill will among men.'"

Senator Joseph T. Robinson, Democratic leader, struck back at the President's critics in a statement declaring that if the President had recited the Ten Commandments he would have been accused of having ulterior motives. He repeated the challenge of the President to his critics to repeal New Deal legislation.

Secretary of Labor Perkins Praises Year's Doings

SECRETARY of Labor Frances Perkins found in the developments of the last year much of benefit for the American workingman. In her annual report she cited these five great advancements for labor:

Secretary Perkins

1. Unemployment compensation, accomplished through the social security act.

2. Old-age security, brought about also by the social security act.

3. Establishment of boards for settling industrial disputes locally.

4. Greater co-operation between the states and the Labor department, through regional conferences.

5. Development of the United States employment service.

Even the large number of strikes during 1935 could be viewed with some satisfaction by her, for she said they were "due in part to the natural expectation of labor to share in the early fruits of business improvement."

For the future Miss Perkins envisioned a minimum wage law, a short work week of perhaps 40 hours, compensation insurance, and strict regulation of machinery to prevent industrial accidents.

Budget Message Shows Billion Dollar Deficit

IN HIS message to congress submitting his approved budget for the 1937 fiscal year, beginning July 1 next, President Roosevelt followed the double system of accounting his administration has always employed—one set of books for regular expenditures and income and another set for emergency spending and appropriations. He asserted that receipts from all sources in the next fiscal year will aggregate an estimated $5,654,000,000. Expenditures for all regular government departments are estimated at $5,049,000,000. So the "regular" budget will be in balance, with a surplus of $5,000,000.

But the message went on to say, after explaining that the regular government books will show fiscal affairs in the black, as to income and outgo, they will show red to the extent of $1,103,000,000 in works-relief spending, less the $5,000,000 "surplus," this leaving the new appropriation for further works-relief open for at least two months.

That figure of $1,103,000,000 represents the President's estimate of unexpended balances on July 1 from the $4,880,000,000 and previous emergency appropriations. It does not take into account probable new appropriations for similar purposes yet to be determined.

Guffey Coal Act Again Is Declared Invalid

ONCE more the Guffey coal act has been declared unconstitutional, this time by Federal Judge John P. Barnes of Chicago. He granted to a local coal company a temporary injunction to restrain federal officials from collecting a portion of the taxes imposed under the law.

The injunction is to remain in force pending a ruling by the United States Supreme court on similar suits brought by the Carter Coal company in Washington, D. C., and by the Tway Coal company in Louisville, Ky.

Lindberghs Are Quietly Living in Wales

CLOSELY guarded by police, Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh and their son, Jon, are now established at Llandaff, Wales, in the home of J. Llewellyn Morgan, kinsman by marriage of Mrs. Lindbergh. They had traveled by automobile from Liverpool, where they landed, and elaborate precautions were taken to protect them en route.

It was reported in Madrid that negotiations had been started on behalf of Colonel Lindbergh for the purchase of a small estate near Gerona, bordering on Spain's famous "Costa Brava" on the Mediterranean. It has also been rumored that the Lindberghs intend to return to the United States in a few months. The colonel himself is completely reticent about his plans.

What Ickes Thinks of Critics of New Deal

HAROLD L. ICKES, in his capacity of administrator of the PWA, went to Brooklyn to take part in the ceremony of breaking ground for the $12,783,000 Williamsburg slum clearance project, and took the opportunity to speak very harshly about those who oppose the New Deal, dubbing them "the coupon clipping gentry," "the Lord Plushbottoms of the club windows," and "reactionists" who "shout that enlightened progress is unconstitutional."

Harold L. Ickes

"The slum is but one vicious product of that old order whose passing, we hope, is at hand," Mr. Ickes said. "I refer to the old order of special privilege, the creator and upholder of a social system containing vicious contrasts of opulence and squalor that have shamed the democracy of our own times. Its day in America is facing the westerning sun, but the harsh cracklings of its senile prophets are still heard in opposition to every progressive proposal; predicting disaster for every humanitarian attempt to ameliorate the lot of the least fortunate of our people.

"There are those who take an almost sadistic delight in dashing the hopes of our underprivileged citizens by ill-advisedly proclaiming that the public housing program of PWA is a failure. The facts prove the contrary. Somewhere a housing program had to be started. The federal government took the initiative.

"We have 47 active projects on our demonstration program, all under construction. Eleven thousand persons are already enjoying the splendid modern accommodations of limited dividend housing projects financed by PWA, and the first federal developments will be occupied early in the spring."

Great Britain Sending More Men to Africa

JUST before Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden goes to Geneva to attend the January 20 meeting of the League of Nations council, the British government will decide on its proposals for extension of the sanctions against Italy to include oil, coal, iron and steel. But the cabinet is not waiting for this to prepare for eventualities. It has suddenly decided to strengthen greatly its armed forces in Africa and has taken over several liners for the Mediterranean troop transport service. The Scythia already has sailed with troops and guns, probably for Alexandria, Egypt, and others are to follow soon.

Haile Selassie Protests Use of Poison Gas

FROM his field headquarters in Dessye Emperor Haile Selassie sent to the League of Nations a vigorous protest against the war methods of the invading Italians. The emperor charged specifically that Italian flyers, in raining explosives on the southern army of his son-in-law, Ras Desta Demtu, near Dolo, used poison gas and destroyed a Swedish Red Cross ambulance laden with sick and wounded.

A special meeting of the Swedish Red Cross was held in Stockholm to take action in this matter.

The Italian government in Rome asserted the aerial bombardment was fully justified by the alleged beheading of two Italian aviators by the Ethiopians after the flyers had crashed at Daggah Bur in Ogaden. The communique also said it was well known that "Ethiopian chieftains take shelter under Red Cross signs when they see Italian airplanes."

New Tax Levies That Are Now in Effect

NEW tax levies of more than $350,000,000 a year went into effect on New Year's day, these being the result of delayed tax rates passed at the last session of congress. The heaviest is from the unemployment insurance and old age pensions act, which is expected to raise about $240,000,000 in taxes on industrial payrolls. Other new taxes include:

Raising of individual returns, $50,000,000.

Corporation tax boost, $40,000,000.

Gift tax increase, $25,000,000.

Intercorporate tax levy, $30,000,000.

Twelve Lost in Crash of British Air Liner

TWELVE persons, nine of them passengers, perished when the Imperial Airways liner City of Khartoum crashed in the Mediterranean off Alexandria, Egypt. The only survivor was Pilot Vernon G. Wilson, who was taken from the water in a critical condition. Among the victims was one American, James C. Luke of Philadelphia, an oil engineer.

National Topics Interpreted

By WILLIAM BRUCKART

NATIONAL PRESS BLDG WASHINGTON D C

Washington.—President Roosevelt has told congress that he wants it to finish its labors and adjourn in short order. He has figured that about three months ought to give the members sufficient time to mull over the problems that confront them and that they then should return to their several homes. But the President is doomed to disappointment if he sincerely believes that he can get congress out of the Capital by the end of March. The best guess right now is that the congress will be in session at least four months and, it is well within the range of possibilities that it will remain in session almost to the time of the national conventions.

Expect Long Session

There are a number of factors that make realization of the President's early adjournment wish impossible of realization. Probably the most influential of these is the fact that this is a campaign year. Every member of the house and one-third of the senate, along with Mr. Roosevelt himself, are affected by the election date and politics must have its turn. Every four years this same condition obtains and every four years politicians do about the same things in furtherance of their own political interests. The bulk of the legislation to be considered has its political tinge. Politics even creep into the annual appropriation bills—and usually the result is a swelling of the totals in order that some gears of individual political machines may be oiled just a bit for smooth running in the campaign.

While the appropriation bills are important from a political standpoint, their weight in this session of congress sinks rather below par because there are such things as the bonus for the World war veterans, the Townsend old age pension plan, various New Deal reform measures and such replacement legislation as may be necessary since the Supreme court kicked over New Deal propositions like the Agricultural Adjustment act with its processing taxes and sundry other schemes. However the Roosevelt leaders in congress may desire to act, the machinery of legislation can be run only so fast in an election year.

One of the chief reasons why a congressional session in an election year drags on longer than usual is because of the publicity value the sessions have for individual representatives and senators. Members of congress discovered a hundred years ago that the chambers of the house and senate constituted splendid sounding boards for the dissemination of political views. There has beeen increasing use of this potentiality as the years have gone by until now the older members of the house and senate have become very adept in capitalizing on this factor. It takes no stretch of the imagination to discover that a senator or representative, speaking from the floor of his respective chamber, gets much more publicity than his opponent back home who talks only as a private citizen. It is perfectly natural, therefore, that those members seeking re-election want to take full advantage of the publicity vehicle available to them in Washington.

Seek Publicity

The use of this publicity weapon is available to opponents of the New Deal as well as to its supporters. While the approaching election may be expected to knit the house Democrats more closely into a unified front for the November election, the same condition is not true in the senate. In that body, there are a number of old-line Democrats who do not like the New Deal and who are going to utilize every available opportunity to make their record as Democrats as complete as it is possible to do before they must speak to the home folks in person. It is obvious that such men as Senator Carter Glass, of Virginia, cannot desert the Democratic ticket and run for re-election independently. So it is to be expected that men of this type will establish for themselves a comprehensive outline of their political beliefs as Democrats while distinguishing their position from that known as the New Deal. They must look to the future when, according to all indications, they feel the party machinery will again be controlled by the Jeffersonian type of Democrat instead of by the reform type of Democrat headed by men and women with the New Deal outlook.

An additional factor operating in the senate is the presence of two Republican Presidential possibilities in the persons of Senator William E. Borah of Idaho and Arthur H. Vandenberg of Michigan. Senator Borah is actively seeking pledged delegates to the Republican national convention. Senator Vandenberg says he is not a candidate, but the well-known bee is buzzing around and there are many observers who think that Senator Vandenberg is hoping that, in case of a convention stalemate, the assembled delegates may riot and turn to him as the nominee.

Two More Factors

Such a condition means, as it has meant before, that these two men will desire to see all of the political issues aired in congressional debates. It is only natural and logical as well that the Republican minority in the house and senate will seek to foment as much debate as possible in order to obtain a record of what the majority party thinks or proposes to do if returned to power.

In all respects, the session will be the most political, therefore, since Mr. Roosevelt took office. His Presidential message on the state of the Union already is being kicked back and forth and picked to pieces in the preliminary campaign gunfire. There is simply no way by which this situation can be avoided. The opening of congress was the opening of the 1936 campaign.

In an earlier letter, I reported to you concerning the question of a neutrality policy and declared at that time that it was the most important item to come before the current session. It remains so. I believe the situation is even more delicate than in my earlier anaylsis of this problem and it may well be that congress will stall along in reaching a decision on this policy in order to give foreign developments an opportunity to manifest themselves further. The administration apparently is willing to let congress work out the legislation without much interference but the leaders realize that a decision will be difficult as long as foreign maneuvers continue to present an almost daily change in the scenery.

Congress May Stall

Reference is made to the neutrality question here because it is one of the things entering into the combination that will cause a longer session than the President wishes.

There seems to be no doubt that passage of a bill to pay the soldiers' bonus at an early date will be accomplished in this session. Likewise, there is hardly the shadow of a doubt that if congress passes such legislation and Mr. Roosevelt vetoes it, the bill will be passed over the veto. It is a campaign year and it is not a good time for politicians to antagonize an organization with the vast membership of the American Legion or the other groups of ex-service men. This legislation will not contribute much to the length of the session but in all such cases representatives and senators must make their speeches and be on record as to why they voted for or against a bill.

The Townsend plan cannot get anywhere in the current session. I do not mean that it will be dodged as a subject of discussion. This is impossible. There will be plenty of debate on it. In the end, however, it will be sidetracked.

Then, there was a flock of inflationary schemes due to horn in on the parade as the session moves forward. Farm mortgage refinancing is one of them. It is unfortunate that the inflationists—those who are willing to prostitute the currency in any manner—are leading in this fight.

In all probability, also, the current session of congress will be called upon to meet some problems resulting from adverse decisions by the Supreme Court of the United States. The court has before it any number of cases involving New Deal policies, including such as the AAA, the TVA with its Tennessee Valley power yardstick, the attempt to regulate wages and hours of labor under the Guffey coal bill known as the Little NRA, and a half dozen other policy propositions. It seems unlikely, although no one can guess, that all of these measures will be held constitutional. If any are held invalid, naturally the President will ask congress to draft new legislation.

Waiting Decisions

As a sample of the political aspect of the current session, one can sight the furor that was stirred up when President Roosevelt delivered his message on the state of the Union to a night session of congress. Except for one instance, Presidents always have delivered or sent their message to congress at noon of a day after the session has had two or three meetings. Mr. Roosevent chose to get his message to congress on the very first day of the current session but in order to do it and allow for consummation of the usual routine of the opening day, it was necessary to hold a joint session at night.

The White House announcement of this decision immediately precipitated a biting demand from Henry P. Fletcher, Republican national chairman. Mr. Fletcher charged that since the President's speech was being delivered "out of hours" and was being broadcast to potentially the greatest radio audience ever to listen to a Presidential message of this kind, the broadcasting companies must agree to allocate time for the Republicans to answer it. The Republican chairman asserted that the message was reduced to the "common level of a political speech" and so he demanded for the opposition the right to analyze it from the opposition standpoint through the same number of radio stations and to potentially the same radio audience.

Irish Wolfhound Big as Pony and Brave as Lion

Rarest of all Irish dogs is the Irish wolfhound, a dog big as a pony, brave as a lion, gentle as a lamb and ugly enough to frighten one out of his wits, asserts an authority in the Washington Star. He is the dog of the Irish kings and like them has been extinct for a good many years. However, unlike them he has been resurrected from degenerate descendants of the original seasoned with a little foreign blood. In spite of that he is still a noble animal.

Another Irish breed that is little known is the Irish water spaniel. This dog is a sort of brownish red, whereas the wolfhound is a red brindle. The Irish water spaniel is probably a mixture of standard poodle and spaniel. His smooth face and curly hair suggest the former; his retrieving and general sporting abilities suggest the former. He is an odd looking fellow with his funny topknot, his shrewd eyes and his rat tail but he is an able workman and a fine friend.

Completely characteristic of the Irish is the national terrier, a red-haired, impulsive, quick-moving dog that goes through life with a chip on his shoulder and dares the world to knock it off. His nickname is Dare-devil, and it is one he deserves, for he'll tackle anything and generally come out the victor. Though he is quick to pick a fight, he is full of affection and is one of the most loyal of friends.

Probably the best loved of all the Irish breeds, as he is undoubtedly the handsomest and best known, is the Irish setter.

Oyster Cultivator Must Provide Proper Surface

Science has even gone so far as to put a window in an oyster's shell in order to observe its life-processes and method of reproduction. The oyster is not static from infancy, but spends some time as a free-swimming organism. As its shell grows and becomes weighty, it sinks until it finds rest on something solid. If this be good clean rock all is well, but if it be mud or soft sand it cannot survive. Millions perish by having bad luck in their search for a suitable bed.

That is why the oyster cultivator does his best to provide a surface of a suitable nature, writes an authority in Tit-Bits Magazine. Old shells, slates, or tiles coated with lime and sand are usually chosen, and on these artificial rocks the oyster settles for the remainder of its life with no interests except sustenance and growth. It strains gallons of seawater through its natural filtering apparatus, thus extracting the minute organisms which provide its food.

The oyster has numberless enemies which are as fond of it as the human gourmet. Of these the starfish is the worst. The victim's only protection is its power by means of the adductor muscle of clamping the two halves of its shell tightly together.

VAGABONDS LOSE DOUBLE BILL TO BUSH PASTRY

A disastrous second quarter was the downfall of the Klemme Vagabonds Monday night on the local floor as the Bush Pastry five of Clear Lake won 44 to 35. The local team was trailing 22 to 6 when they left the floor at the half. During the next two periods they outscored the Lakers 29 to 22, but the margin was too great to overcome.

KLEMME PHONE INSTALLATIONS PASS PEAK OF 1929

Carl Anderson, manager of the Iowa Union Telephone Co. exchange here informs the writer that the number of telephone installations in Klemme now exceeds the peak in 1929 when there were 103 phones in use in the town of Klemme. Mr. Anderson reports that today there are 106 telephones in use in Klemme and that he expects to install a few more in early spring.

Hanson Not To Run?

We have been informed that Peck Hanson will not again enter the race for the nomination of sheriff of Hancock county. It is said that seven prospective candidates are now considering entering the field. Rumor has it that Ernest Bonar of Madison township may enter the contest.—Forest City Summit.

Peace-Zion Pastor Is Installed

REV. HUENEMAN INSTALLED AS PASTOR PEACE AND ZION

The Klemme and Garner Reformed congregations were invited to attend serices at Peace Reformed Church in Ell township Sunday when Rev. Wm. Hueneman was officially installed as pastor of the Peace Reformed Church in Ell township, and Zion Reformed Church at Garner.

The installing committee consisted of Rev. Calvin Grosshuesch of Klemme, Rev. E. M. DeBuhr of Waukon, and Elder W. H. Greiman. Services were conducted in English by Rev. DeBuhr, and Rev. Grosshuesch spoke in German.

Politics In Farmin'

The other morning about a week ago,
As I sat listening to the radio,
A message came in which seemed to say,
"Court knocks the props from the Triple A."

No more processing tax, no more checks,
No more wringing of little pig's necks,
No dotted lines to sign, by jing,
I can plant all the corn I want next spring.

Went outside and made the vow
I'd break the news to the old black sow;
Down by the straw stack back of the shed
The old fat porker had made her bed.

I took one look, and then I swore,
Wished I'd hustled a little bit more.
The old black brute, of all her sins,
Loyal to the democrats had farrowed twins.

Supreme Court Rules Bank Night Is Legal

AVERY THEATRE WILL AGAIN HAVE BANK NIGHT

Chas. Marks, manager of the Avery Theatre at Garner, called the Times Office by telephone and stated that he would again run Bank Night every week beginning Jan. 29th. Mr. Marks informed us that the Supreme Court ruled that Bank Night was legal, and theatres which featured bank night could again resume this special feature.

Worst Snow Storm of Season Hit Iowa Last Friday

One of the heaviest and worst snow storms of the season struck all parts of Iowa last Friday. The snow was accompanied by a wind that caused many roads to be blocked by drifting snow. Main highways were opened with plows early Saturday morning, but many side roads are still blocked making rural travel difficult.

Coldest Weather In Iowa Recorded On Monday Morning

The coldest weather recorded for the winter hit the low mark Monday morning when temperature amound Klemme registered 22 to 26 below zero. The weather bureau reported 40 degrees below zero at Marshalltown, the coldest temperature recorded in Iowa for 24 years.

Official readings at Mason City were 20 below in town and 23 below at the sugar beet plant.

Housh Joins Sales Company

GARNER:—Charles N. Housh of Manly has joined Ed Buntenbach of the Garner Sales Company. Livestock sales are held each Thursday in the sales pavillion on highway No. 18 at the west edge of town. Mr. Housh plans to bring his wife and four children and make their home here.

Crystal Lake Basket Ball Game Postponed by Blizzard

The basketball game which was to have been played with Crystal Lake high school on the Klemme floor Friday night was postponed indefinitely. A date which will be satisfactory to both schools will be set later.

Klemme Shamrocks Play Hayfield There This Week Friday

The Shamrocks journey to Hayfield Friday evening for a doubleheader conference game. The reserve game will begin at 7:30 o'clock.

Marshall-Swift Cleaners Play Here Tuesday Night

The Marshall-Swift Cleaners, of Mason City will perform against the Klemme Vagabonds on the local floor Tuesday night, Jan. 28th. The game has been set back a day due to the fact that the high school game with Goodell as been moved ahead. The Cleaners are leading the Mason City league at the present time and should give the Vagabonds a good game. Last year these two aggregations were forced into an overtime period before Klemme won by 3 points.

IN Business At Hayfield

Harold Leitzinger, former Klemme resident, but who for the past few years has lived with his family in Hayfield vicinity, has taken over the management of the garage at Hayfield. Ben Baker was the former operator. Mr. Leitzinger also handles products for the Farmer's Oil Company.

Corn Sealing Goes Merrily On

FARMERS WHO SIGNED AAA MAY STILL SEAL CORN

The sealing of corn in Iowa will go forward without reference to the illegality of the AAA act, since that money that is loaned on the corn is supplied by the RFC and not by AAA processing. It is said that 12,000,000 bushels of corn have been sealed to date and that January would see a very large increase. However the sealing of corn at 45 cents per bushel is permitted only by those farmers who signed the 1935 contracts.

A total of 11 million bushels were sealed in the state under the 1936 corn loan program up to the first of the year. Of this amount Hancock county sealed 175,671 bushels, Winnebago 81,291, Worth 72,031, Kossuth 334,718 bushels.

DATE OF CONTEST ADVANCED MONDAY, JAN. 27TH

Local High School Will Enter Invitational Tournament

The game with the Goodell high school basketball team, originally scheduled for Friday, Jan. 31, has been advanced to this Monday evening, January 27th, due to the fact that both teams have entered the invitational tournament to be held at Mason City next week end.

The Klemme team lost to Goodell on the latter's floor earlier in the season 35 to 25, the Klemme defense weakening in the final quarter to allow Goodell to slip through for the ten point margin. This is the only game the Klemme team has lost in conference competition this year, and as Goodell is at the top of the heap with no defeats, the boys are anxious to get revenge.

The Little Shamrocks will meet the Goodell reserves in a preliminary game at 7:30. The Klemme boys defeated the Goodell team at Goodell in a thrilling 15 to 14 battle.

COUNTY AUXILIARY MEETING HELD AT CRYSTAL LAKE

Mrs. Martha Whisler of Coon Rapids, the eighth district committee woman of the American Legion auxiliary, spoke at the Hancock county meeting of the auxiliary which was held last Tuesday afternoon at Crystal Lake in the Methodist Church basement Repots were given by members of the Britt, Corwith, Kanawha and Crystal Lake units. Klemme and Garner were not represented.

The next county meeting will be a joint meeting with the Legion and will be held at Corwith in February. The auxiliary will put on a dance after the meeting.

Progress Made in Berlin Preparatory to Olympics

The Olympic games will take place in the 300-acre Reichssportfield situated in the west end of Berlin. The huge stadium, which is 85 per cent completed, has seats for 100,000 spectators. The stadium arena contains a running track 400 meters long. The swimming stadium contains a 65-165-foot pool, a large restaurant overlooking the pool.

The Dietrich-Eckert open-air theater in the form of a Greek bowl will be used for dramatic productions and assemblies. The Olympic bell which will peal to open the games is of steel and weighs 16 tons. It was removed from its casting last August. The altar on the stadium tower will be lighted on August 1, of this year, by the Olympic fire, the flame of which will be brought from the site of the original Olympic games by 3,000 runners who will travel in relays.—Washington Star.

Initiative

It is true that some people lack initiative, leadership, and executive ability sufficient to enable them to go into business for themselves wherein they must employ others; but there are a great many things which even these people can do which will not require the employment of others, which would give them the ineffable boon of independence.—O. ## Farm Leaders Insist on Crop Control Legislation

FARM leaders summoned to Washington to help in devising a new farm program decided to remain there and "picket" the halls of congress until legislation is passed to take the place of the AAA destroyed by the Supreme court ruling. The proposal that was the first plank in the policy platform they drew up and that is pushed by administration men centers on production control through subsidized soil conservation. Farmers would get cash grants, provided they had permitted the transfer of certain acreage from commercial production to soil conserving crops, or had "adjusted" the commodities on certain land.

Howard R. Tolley

Administration leaders were considering a plan to raise the half million dollars a year necessary for this scheme by enacting most of the old processing taxes as excise levies. The farm leaders favored this, and also recommended:

"Retention and strengthening of all positions of the AAA act not declared unconstitutional.

"Creation of farm commodity cooperatives, authorized under the Capper-Volstead act, for marketing or distributing farm products."

Foremost among the agricultural experts who took part in the conferences was Howard R. Tolley, director of the Giannini foundation in California. He has been described by administration officials as the leading agricultural economist in the United States, and was hurriedly called from the West coast to Washington.

Lawyers acting for a Philadelphia real estate dealer filed a suit in the Federal District court there to restrain government executives from interfering with the operation of the AAA until its constitutional status has been determined by referendum.

Process Tax Refund Ordered by Supreme Court

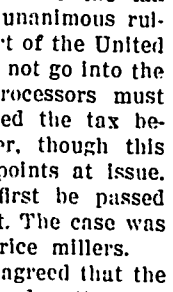
PROCESSING taxes amounting to $200,000,000, impounded by the courts, must be refunded to the tax payers, according to a unanimous ruling of the Supreme court of the United States. The decision did not go into the question of whether processors must prove they had absorbed the tax before they could recover, though this was one of the main points at issue. Presumably this will first be passed upon by a district court. The case was brought by Louisiana rice millers.

The nine justices all agreed that the review of the Bankhead cotton act case, which had been allowed on a 6 to 3 vote, had been "improvidently granted" and so they refused to pass on the validity of the act at this time. Another case involving this law, filed by Gov. Eugene Talmadge of Georgia, a Roosevelt administration foe, will give the court another opportunity to rule on it.

The expected ruling on the validity of the Tennessee Valley Authority act was not forthcoming.

Protects WPA Workers From "Chiseling" Employers

HARRY L. HOPKINS, WPA administrator, has sent to state administrators a set of regulations intended to protect WPA workers from "Chiseling" employers and to keep up wage standards. In his letter to the state officials Mr. Hopkins said:



Harry L. Hopkins

"I want to make perfectly clear the policy of the works progress administration relative to private employment or employment on contract jobs under the direction of other federal departments which may be offered the WPA workers.

"It is expected that WPA workers will accept available jobs in private employment, whether of a permanent or temporary nature, provided:

"(1) That the temporary or permanent work shall be a full-time job.

"(2) That such work shall be at a standard or going rate of wages.

"(3) That such work shall not be in conflict with established union relationships.

"(4) That workers shall be offered an opportunity to return to the WPA upon completion of temporary jobs."

Raskob Is Angered by Government Tax Suits

JOHN J. RASKOB is angry, and so probably is Pierre S. duPont, for the government has filed with the board of tax appeals a brief charging that these two gentlemen agreed to create fictitious losses through security sales to each other in 1929 and thus improperly reduced their net taxable incomes. "Tyranny and cheap politics" was the way Raskob characterized the action, and he intimated that the brief was timed to appear before the American Liberty league dinner January 25 at which Alfred E. Smith will be chief speaker. Both Raskob, a conservative Democrat, and duPont are liberal backers of the Liberty league, which has been saying many severe things about the New Deal.

In its latest output the Liberty league attacks President Roosevelt's interpretations of the fiscal situation as "misleading and deceitful," and urges that congress investigate "the entire governmental structure."

Puerto Rican Sugar Estates Will Be Broken Up

SECRETARY OF THE INTERIOR ICKES, making a brief visit to our Caribbean possessions, told representatives of the sugar interests in Puerto Rico that the great sugar estates of that island would be broken up, because they are in violation of a law forbidding the corporate ownership of more than 500 acres of land. He explained the lands will be homesteaded to get thousands of landless persons back to the soil. It is not known whether Mr. Ickes did anything about the general dissatisfaction in Puerto Rico with the policies of certain of the government's representatives there.

Democratic Convention Goes to Philadelphia

AUCTIONED off to the highest bidder, the Democratic national convention of 1936 was sold to Philadelphia by the party's national committee. The price was $200,000, plus some prizes and concessions. Chicago and San Francisco also bid for the convention. The former offered a certified check for $150,000. The California city made the same bid and later raised it to $202,500.

During a brief recess Chairman Farley telephoned, presumably to the White House, and Vice President Garner moved among the members of the committee urging the selection of Philadelphia. Therefore the City of Brotherly Love won the prize. The opening of the convention was set for June 23.

Hauptmann Still Fights Against Execution

BRUNO HAUPTMANN, due to die in the electric chair January 17 for the kidnaping and murder of the Lindbergh baby, continued, through his legal counsel, his fight to save his life. If the attitude of Governor Hoffman of New Jersey was rightly reported, there was a possibility that the condemned man would at least obtain a reprieve; but the state court of pardons, of which the governor is a member, had unanimously refused to commute the sentence to one of life imprisonment after examining the alleged new evidence in Bruno's favor. Defense counsel were said to be preparing to try to persuade the United States Supreme court to take some action in the case.

Bruno Hauptmann

When Hauptmann was told by C. Lloyd Fisher, one of his lawyers, that the court of pardons had rejected his plea he displayed no emotion.

"Your only chance now is to directly involve some one else in the kidnaping," Fisher told Hauptmann.

"I can't change my story," Hauptmann replied, according to the prison warden. "I have told the truth all along. There's nothing more to tell than I have told. I haven't the least idea where Fisch got that money from."

Hauptmann referred to Isador Fisch, German furrier, who died in Bavaria about a year after the kidnaping. The prisoner has steadfastly insisted that the ransom money found in his possession when he was arrested had been left with him by Fisch.

Bonus Measure Is Pushed Through the House

NO TIME was lost in putting through the house the bonus measure that had been agreed upon by veterans' organizations and approved by the ways and means committee. It carries the name of the Vinson-Patman-McCormack bill and is a compromise that authorizes immediate payment of the bonus but offers no definite plan for raising the money. It would provide 3 per cent interest until 1945 for veterans refraining from cashing their adjusted service certificates at once, and cancel all interest still due on loans on the certificates.

In the senate Pat Harrison introduced a compromise bonus bill providing for payment in $50 bonds that may be cashed upon demand.

Miguel Gomez Elected President of Cuba

IN AN astonishingly tranquil election, Miguel Mariano Gomez, coalition candidate, was chosen president of Cuba, defeating Gen. Mario G. Menocal, former president, by a rather slender margin. Gomez, who is forty-five years old, was formerly mayor of Havana. He was supported by the army. The lack of disorder at the polls was due in part to the fact that the women of the island republic for the first time took part in an election.

WASHINGTON DIGEST

BY WILLIAM BRUCKART

NATIONAL PRESS BLDG. WASHINGTON, D.C.

Washington.—The dictionary says the word confusion means mixed indiscriminately; disordered, deranged; perplexed; bewildered, or disconcerted.

Confusion Is the Word

There probably is no better word to describe the situation in Washington over the past three weeks than the word confusion. If one keeps an eye half open, one cannot help seeing all of the things mentioned in the dictionary definition of the word. There might be an addition. If I were to expand the definition and make it just a little more applicable to the circumstances in the national Capital, I would add "running around in circles."

The reconvening of congress always is a signal for commotion, and confusion and taut nerves. The opening sessions, nevertheless, usually have been mild for a few days. The climax was reached by a gradual building up of excitement to the moment of the annual message of the President on the state of the Union. This time, however, the climax came quickly and instead of a subsidence, as we usually have seen, the crest of the wave of excitement continued. If this is a barometric prediction of what we may see in the forthcoming political campaign, there will be, indeed, a battle.

That the picture of Washington confusion may be pieced together, let us review in briefest form some of the things that happened:

Congress reconvenes at noon on a Friday—orders go from the White House to the Capitol that the President desires to deliver his annual speech on the state of the Union immediately—arrangements are made promptly for a night session (the second of its kind in history)—President Roosevelt delivers a masterful discourse on international affairs, virtually naming names of autocratic rulers throughout the world and demanding that they cease arbitrary programs leading to war, and follows that with a plain political speech regarding domestic affairs, challenging New Deal opponents to undo what the New Deal administration had done—Republican National Chairman Fletcher bitingly attacks the political phases of the Roosevelt speech on the state of the Union and demands that radio broadcasting companies give New Deal opponents the same time and the same stations for broadcasting a political answer—broadcasting company replies show a desire to be fair with radio time and toss back to Mr. Fletcher the difficult task of selecting individuals to answer Mr. Roosevelt.

The Supreme court in a momentous decision invalidates the Agricultural Adjustment act, key measure of New Deal reform—Mr. Roosevelt declines comment on this decision but New Deal spokesmen otherwise settle down around the ears of the nine justices with vitriolic comment—New Deal critics of the court and the institution move swiftly to revise the Constitution to fit New Deal theories and to curb the power of the judiciary, preventing it from interfering in their determination to remake America—Agriculture Secretary Wallace and Agricultural Administrator Davis call farm leaders to consider ways and means for reviving or superseding the "gentle rain of checks" that was AAA—the annual budget of estimates for expenditures from July 1, 1936, to June 30, 1937, carrying $6,752,606,000, is sent to congress—relief appropriations are omitted; result, no one can tell yet how large the next year's expenditures will be—house and senate agriculture leaders scurry hither and yon, hold conferences, discuss political repercussions from the invalidation of AAA and get nowhere very rapidly.

Rail at Supreme Court

Wheelhorses of the Democratic party rush through plans for and hold the annual Jackson day dinner on the anniversary of the battle of New Orleans. Word leaks out that Postmaster General Farley, who is also chairman of the Democratic National committee and chairman of the New York State Democratic committee, has fixed a price of fifty dollars per plate to those joining in the No. 1 Jackson day dinner at which the President spoke—the American Liberty league charges Mr. Farley with violating the corrupt practices act which says in effect that no government official may solicit or cause to be solicited funds from government jobholders—the answer of the Democratic National committee is that Mr. Farley has no part in ticket sales—Liberty league officials cite the committee's own press statement quoting Mr. Farley's conversation with 48 state presidents of Young Democrat clubs that they should charge enough per plate to help defray the deficit of the Democratic National committee besides the cost of their dinners in the various sections of the country—Democratic National committee meets and selects Philadelphia as the site of the Democratic National convention, fixing June 23 as the date after Philadelphia, with a certified check of $200,000, outbids all others to be host—Republican Chairman Fletcher issues denial that the Republican National committee had anything to do with the use of stamp stickers ridiculing the New Deal.

At $50 Per Plate

Lobbyists for the ex-service men reach an agreement on the type of legislation for immediate cash payment of the bonus and the legislation passes the house—Senator Nye and his publicity seeking Senate Munitions Investigating committee take the partners of the house of Morgan over the grill in an attempt to show that this great financial institution led the United States into the World war—Morgan's answer links officials of President Wilson's administration with the development of sentiment favorable to American participation on the side of the Allies—Senator Nye gains much publicity for himself and the neutrality bill which he sponsors in the senate—many new representatives of business arrive in Washington, open offices, prepare to fight against further New Deal encroachment upon private business, and everyone runs around in circles.

At the outset of this discussion, I suggested that if events of the last several weeks form a proper criterion, the political campaign that is now under way is going to be rough. I base that prediction upon the view taken of it by Postmaster General Farley, the king-pin Democratic politician and the reactions that have come editorially and in news columns to the President's Jackson day dinner speech and the political phases of his message on the state of the Union. Mr. Farley made no bones about the prospect. He foresees all kinds of mud slinging, misrepresentation and personal attacks.

Looks Like Rough Battle

Aside from his statesmanlike discussion of international problems, Mr. Roosevelt's message to congress descended to the point where he was definitely cataloging all opposition to the New Deal as "greedy and selfish" men and women. Every one of them, in the President's opinion, has a personal ax of avarice to grind. He intends, apparently, to make that his theme song.

Whether his conclusions are right or wrong is not in question here. The point is that since Mr. Roosevelt has opened the fire in that manner, he can naturally expect the same type of fire to be returned. In the language of the twelve-year-old ruffian: "He asked for it." There was another striking thing about the Roosevelt speeches to congress and to the Jackson day diners. For the first time since he has occupied the White House, he gave every evidence of being nettled and nervous. He spoke in a voice that appeared to be tired; there was lacking that buoyancy, that smile, when he spoke that used to characterize his expressions. You will recall undoubtedly that for a long time in the early part of his administration he was wholly unmindful of his enemies, ignored them completely, and plowed straight ahead with a determination that won him many friends. Lately, however, there has been unmistakable evidence of a martyr complex in his manner.

Referring again to the two speeches, I have heard any number of observers comment, first, on his almost tearful appeal at the conclusion of his speech to congress, and secondly, to his thinly veiled comparison between himself and President Jackson when he spoke to the Jackson day diners.

Laying His Lines

I am not making any predictions as to where this trend will lead. It is important to note, however, that it is an old political trick to impugn the motives of the opposition. Such was the mood into which former President Herbert Hoover fell when in 1931 it became apparent his political life was on the skids and slipping fast. When he was "on his way out" Mr. Hoover became so picayunish that even his own associates found it difficult to do the things he wanted done in the way he desired. This condition continued to develop until he began to complain personally about the "hair shirts" that he had to wear. The "hair shirts" incident probably was the best tip-off to the sinking feeling that had begun to permeate Mr. Hoover's outlook at that time. The rest is history.

As to the course which Mr. Roosevelt is following in impugning the motives of his opposition, one can hardly take objection because it has been done so often and for the further reason that neither Mr. Roosevelt nor Mr. Farley is a political novice. I believe that Washington observers generally give each of these men credit for being thoroughly versed in politics and since Mr. Roosevelt is "dimly conscious that a campaign is under way and an election is scheduled," he naturally is laying his lines. They will be pulled from time to time with a resultant display for public view intended to convince the person of small means or no means at all that he is their savior; that he intends and seeks at all times to protect them from those selfish and greedy groups who seek to grind down the population for the sake of profit.

Why do people come home from the hospital with bowels working like a well-regulated watch?

The answer is simple, and the answer to all your bowel woes, you will only realize it: many doctors and hospitals use liquid laxatives.

If you knew what a doctor uses, you would use only the liquid. A liquid can always be taken in gradually reduced doses. Proper dosage is the secret of any relief from constipation.

Ask a doctor about this. Ask your druggist how very popular liquid laxatives have become. They give the right kind of help, and right amount of help. The liquid laxative generally used is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. It contains senna and cascara, two natural laxatives that can form no habit, even in children. So, to relieve Pepsin. You just take fewer and fewer doses till Nature restores regularity.

Why Physicians Recommend Milnesia Wafers

These mint-flavored, candy-like wafers are pure milk of magnesia in solid form, the most pleasant way to take it. Each wafer is approximately equal to a teaspoonful dose of liquid milk of magnesia. Chew one thoroughly, then swallowed, they relieve acidity in the mouth and throughout the digestive system and insure complete elimination of the waste matter that causes gas, headaches, bloated feeling and a dozen other discomforts.

Milnesia Wafers come in bottles of 24, 48, at 35c and 60c respectively, also in convenient tins for your handbag containing 12 at 20c. Each wafer is approximately one adult dose of milk of magnesia. At good drug stores sell and recommend.

Start using these delicious, mint-flavored, anti-acid, gently laxative wafers today.

Professional samples sent free to physicians or dentists if requested on professional letterhead. Solvay Sales, Inc., 4402 23rd St., Long Island City, N.Y.

KLEMME SHAMROCKS WIN TWO FROM SWALEDALE SQUAD

The Klemme high school managed to nose out the Swaledale high school basketball squad in a double header on the local floor Tuesday evening 33 to 14 and 20 to 17.

The Shamrocks played far below their usual fine form and it was their good fortune to be playing a decidely weaker team. The local boys seemed to be suffering from an attack of "dribbl-itis," which hampered their playing considerably.

BIRDS VALUABLE TO FARMER

"Nothing lives or dies by itself," states Dr. W. L. Strunk, professor at Luther College, Decorah, Iowa. "Nature is a vast system of interrelations and linkages. At every turn the naturalist finds undeniable proof of that scientific fact. The arc of life of a certain animal or plant may not directly enter the human field, but by entering the scheme of life of other living things, which are closely related with man it may at any point become of great importance to man.

"Charles Darwin, the great naturalist proved conclusively that cats influence the next year's clover crop, for cats prey upon field mice, which in turn prey on the nests of bumblebees and these latter are concerned with fertilizing the clover making for a richer crop. So the less mice; the more bumblebees, and the more bumblebees, the better will be the clover crop.

"This fact of the web of life is directly applicable to the game management program, a program concerning itself with the conservation of our wild life forms.

"The great usefulness of birds in keeping down insects and small rodents is well known to all observers. Any reduction in the number of birds brings disharmony in the order of things. In the absence of birds, the earth would, in the span of a few years, become quite uninhabitable. The vegetation of the earth is to a great extent dependent on birds. The grass of the meadows could not long remain if birds did not, in winter and spring, thin out the grubs. Trees would disappear if birds did not take care of some of the injurious insects.

"Note the great activity of birds on your farm Robins, thrashers, flickers, woodpeckers, chickadees, bluebirds, warblers, and many others, are busily engaged in keeping down the second great enemy, enemy of man, the insect. Orchards gardens, pastures and sown fields all greatly profit from the activities of these, the feathered friends of the farmer.

"All of the upland game birds, as quail, pheasant, grouse, prairie chicken, partridge, doves, which because of their game value must be especially protected, are of benefit in keeping down the insect horde They annually make great inroads in the populations of these pests which are most injurious to crops, as grasshoppers, crickets, chinch bugs, cut-worms, beetles, etc. It is true, that occasionally some of these birds are seen helping themselves to cultivatel food, but for every destructive action a dozen constructive activities could be listed in favor of them. The balance of value to the farmer clearly swings in their favor, and if given the opportunity these birds will clearly demonstrate that they are a distinct asset to any farm.

"The predatory birds found on most farms are the hawks, owls, and crows. In parts of the state the eagle must be added to this list. All of these birds have come in for considerable abuse, because they sometimes prey on domesticated birds and song birds. As is true in so many cases, snap judgment has caused a biased outlook regarding many of these birds. Scientific investigations of the habits of this group of birds have shown that most of the species have been falsely accused.

"Only a few of the hawks, such as the Coopers, duck, goshawk, and sharp-shinned, are especially destructive. Of this list, the Cooper and sharpshinned are of the greatest importance for the maintenance of bird numbers on a farm.

"Taking then the birds of Iowa as a whole, we find that the balance of beneficience in favor of all but a few is overwhelmingly great."

Knox a Soldier in Two Wars

Volunteer Rough Rider and Artilleryman But No Militarist.

Soldiers, particularly in the heat of battle, develop a philosophy which is peculiarly their own. To those who have never had their experience, the observations of these veterans sometimes sound cynical or fatalistic. As a matter of fact, they are neither. There never was a good soldier who has not admitted that there were many times when he was thoroughly scared. Consequently, one of the conversational pastimes of the veterans of the World war has sometimes been to tell each other "when they died," meaning that they had been confronted some time or other by situations from which there appeared to be no escape whatever.

Captain "Eddie" Rickenbacker, premier aviation ace of the American army, and Frank Knox, now Illinois' "favorite son" for the Republican nomination for President, once swapped such yarns at a meeting of American Legionnaires, both being among the founders of that organization. Rickenbacker's story was that he thought his time was up when, caught in a "dog-fight" between American and German planes several thousands of feet in the air, the Germans nearly shot off one of the wings of his plane, which began to fall rapidly out of control.

Rickenbacker quickly disengaged himself from the cockpit, crawled out on the sound wing and managed so to balance the plane that it partially righted itself. A few hundred feet from the ground he grabbed the control "stick" and landed between the American and German lines in a complete smashup, but without injury to himself.

Knox served with the artillery brigade of the 78th Division. He enlisted as a private in the New Hampshire militia, was transferred to an officer's training camp, having seen service in Cuba, and finally became captain and then major of artillery. When the war ended he was promoted to Lieutenant-Colonel and is known to his old buddies as "Col. Knox." His division served in the St. Mihiel sector early in September, 1918. Two weeks later found it in the battle of the Meuse-Argonne with Sedan as the objective.

When it came Knox's turn to tell his story, he recalled that any soldier quickly learns to know by the whirr of a shell or the sing of a bullet whether "it has his name on it," as the soldiers say. In his tent at Apremont late one night Knox heard a "big Bertha" with "his name on it." Almost instantly his little tent was deluged with rocks, dirt and debris which nearly tore it from its fastenings—but nothing else happened. The next morning Major Knox was invited by his orderly to look outside his tent. A few feet in front of the entrance was the big shell nearly buried in the ground. It had failed to explode.

Knox's narrowest escape, however, was in the Spanish-American war. Volunteering in Michigan at the age of 24, he reached Tampa without being sworn in or assigned to duty with any organization. At Tampa he was introduced to Theodore Roosevelt who promptly swore him in personally as a member of the Rough Riders. Knox participated in all the engagements of that famous regiment up to and including the battle of San Juan hill. In that engagement, the Rough Riders were bombarded out of their first position by the Spanish artillery, waded into the San Juan river and took refuge in water up to their waists beneath a protecting bank, and later stormed and took several hills, including San Juan hill itself, where the Spanish finally ran up the white flag.

In this battle the Rough Riders would charge and lie down and then charge again. The intervals between two of these charges was a little too long for the impetuous Knox, who was tired of lying out in the hot sun. He raised up to sight the enemy and promptly got a bullet through his campaign hat which took a lock of his Scotch gold-red hair along with it. At the end of the battle Knox was detailed to carry dispatches of the victory to the rear. Enroute he was overcome by the heat, developed some tropical ailments and was invalided home just before the final surrender of all Cuba. Mrs. Knox retains the campaign hat among her prized possessions.

In the last war Col. Knox had another surprise which nearly cost him his hearing. Leading up an ammunition train to the support of the guns, he emerged into a field of barbed wire. Just as he rose in his stirrups to locate the guns, a camouflaged and well-concealed battery gave the Germans a blast from a brush-heap only a few yards away. Knox was partially stunned, his horse made frantic and for several minutes he had his hands full keeping the horse and himself out of the barbed wire. When he did dismount, he was stone deaf and remained so for several weeks. In time, however, he regained his hearing almost entirely. After the armistice Knox came home and was chairman of the committee on resolutions at the meeting at St. Louis which resulted in the organization of the American Legion.

Knox is neither a jingo nor a militarist. He believes his country should be in shape to defend itself against all comers at anytime. He has volunteered in every war of his country in his lifetime, but he rarely ever talks about them.

Political Life of Frank Knox

Active Party Worker and Campaigner Since Spanish War.

In his busy and colorful career as a newspaper editor, soldier and party worker, Frank Knox, candidate of the Illinois Republicans for the nomination for president, has been one of the most widely traveled public men in the country. Not only has be been in every state in the Union, some of them many times, but his interviews with the heads of governments in Europe last year resulted in a series of editorials in his newspapers on the trends of governments at home and abroad which attracted both national and world-wide attention.

He has been a sectional or national figure in every national political campaign for a quarter of a century and in tbe past two years, in an effort to rouse Americans generally to the dangers he felt were fundamental in the "new deal" policies, Knox has made speeches in more than half the states of the Union. As a result of this task undertaken, for the most part, in answer to specific invitations for his services, he finds himself today projected into the political limelight in an honorable, although personally unsought, manner.

Starting as a precinct party worker in Michigan in 1898, Frank Knox helped nominate and elect Chase Osborn as governor of that state and was state chairman of the state committee in 1910. That fight was made by progressive and liberal Republicans, with Osborn and Knox in the lead, against monopolies that were dominating the state. In 1912, feeling that President Taft had lost his popularity in the state, Knox declined to become Taft's state manager and frankly told Mr. Taft he favored Theodore Roosevelt. He directed the Roosevelt pre-convention headquarters at Chicago and in that capacity came into intimate contact with party leaders from Ohio to the Pacific coast.

When Theodore Roosevelt became the candidate of the Progressive Party for president, Knox followed him, but at the same time got from Mr. Roosevelt a promise that the Progressive Republican state officers of Michigan should be renominated and only a Progressive electoral ticket placed in the field by the new party in that state. As chairman of the state committee Knox called the state convention to order and was elected its chairman. Thereupon Senator Joseph M. Dixon of Montana, national chairman of the Roosevelt campaign, to the utter astonishment of Knox, made a speech demanding the nomination of an entire Progressive Party ticket from Governor down to constable. This was wholly contrary to Knox's understanding with Roosevelt, but in a hasty conversation, Dixon insisted he was carrying out orders from Roosevelt given him in Oyster Bay only a few days before.

With characteristic honesty, Knox promptly advanced to the rostrum and resigned both as chairman of the convention and as chairman of the state committee. He was followed to his room by party leaders who begged him to accept the nomination for Governor, but he refused. A year and a half later, when Theodore Roosevelt heard the facts he admitted he gave Dixon the orders but added: "Frank, I forgot to except Michigan." When Roosevelt died a letter was en route to him from Knox in France thanking him for his generous praise of Knox's record in the World War.

In 1916 Knox campaigned in New England for the election of Charles E. Hughes for president. He had, in the meantime, acquired a newspaper at Manchester, N. H., which he still owns. He did a like party service for Harding and for Coolidge, besides assisting in the nomination and election of numerous governors, senators, members of Congress, state and local officers. In 1912 President Taft made Knox a member of the Board of Indian Commissioners.

As general manager of the Hearst chain of papers in 1928, Knox did not participate in the party politics of that year but his business interests took him into every section of the country. It is noteworthy that Mr. Hearst that year brought his newspapers to the support of the Republican ticket.

In 1931 Frank Knox, in partnership with Theodore T. Ellis of Worcester, Mass., bought The Chicago Daily News. When the panic of 1932 began Knox was national chairman of the drive against the hoarding of gold and, as such, visited many sections of the country. He was strongly urged to accept the chairmanship of the Republican National Committee and so peremptory was the demand that, when in Europe in 1934, he had to decline the honor categorically. The same year he assisted both the Republican Senatorial and Congressional committees in an advisory capacity and spoke for Republican candidates in Maine, Wisconsin, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Michigan and Illinois.

In this way Frank Knox has not only a wider personal acquaintance than most public men of the day but, through his wide travels and his newspapers, he is also intimately informed of public opinion in all sections of the country daily. This information is reenforced by a monumental personal correspondence and numerous caller from all walks of life.

CONSFICATION OF GUNS

A false impression has crept into the minds of many individuals relative to the confiscation of property, particularly guns, in illegal possession or use by a violator. Illegal devices are not confiscated by the Conservation Officer as many think. The Officer cannot confiscate property under his authority. He may seize illegal devices to use as evidence at the trial but must turn all guns or illegal devices over to the Magistrate of the Court. The Magistrate is the only one empowered to order confiscated any illegal device used to violate the fish and game laws.

Whether the "Pain" Remedy You Use is SAFE?

Don't Entrust Your Own or Your Family's Well-Being to Unknown Preparations

THE person to ask whether the preparation you or your family are taking for the relief of headaches is SAFE to use regularly is your family doctor. Ask him particularly about Genuine BAYER ASPIRIN.

He will tell you that before the discovery of Bayer Aspirin most "pain" remedies were advised against by physicians as bad for the stomach and, often, for the heart. Which is food for thought if you seek quick, safe relief.

Scientists rate Bayer Aspirin among the fastest methods yet discovered for the relief of headaches and the pains of rheumatism, neuritis and neuralgia. And the experience of millions of users has proved it safe for the average person to use regularly. In your own interest remember this.

You can get Genuine Bayer Aspirin at any drug store—simply by asking for it by its full name, BAYER ASPIRIN. Make it a point to do this—and see that you get what you want.

THE STORY OF HATTIE

1—Hattie came of a long line of traveling folks.

2—Many of her ancestors were globe trotters.

3—They liked to think there was gypsy blood in their veins.

4—Hattie's great-grandfather had been with Stanley in Africa and she had two grandfathers who perished on Arctic expeditions.

5—Her father, Phineas, had flown over the South Pole in a blimp and attempted a voyage to the North Pole by submarine.

6—Ma was quite a tourist, too. She always said she was as much at home in Paris, Omsk, Vienna or Peiping as she was in Wappingers Falls.

7—Naturally they raised their girl to be a globe trotter. They wanted her to carry on the family tradition.

8—Hattie was raised on a Baedeker and as a little child she knew all the Cook tours by heart.

9—"Mother wants you to grow up and be a cosmopolite," Hattie's ma used to say. "You must see the world, penetrating the far places and exploring the far-away spots."

10—But one day when Hattie was about seventeen she ran away and married a home-town feller.

11—It broke her parents' hearts.

12—He was one of those men who own a motorcycle with side-car attached!

MORAL—It all depends on what you mean by travel.

WHAT'S WRONG WITH THESE SENTENCES?

1—"It is impossible to get a booking on the boat," said the transatlantic steamship agent. "We're all filled up for the rest of the summer."

2—When company came the family with the smart bulldog made no attempt to get it to do any tricks.

3—"I think his speeches were fine," said Al Smith, referring to President Roosevelt before the convention. "He's a great statesman!"

4—The United States senate and house lost no time in balancing the budget.

5—"I never could go on the bathing beach like this," said the girl. "Let me borrow a fur coat or something."

What is this?

This is a ladies' bathing suit.

Is it for a midget?

No, it is for a full gown normal adult.

Will a lady wear it?

Yes, strange as it may seem, a lady will wear it.

Right out in public where she can be seen?

Absolutely.

Will the lady wear it to settle an election bet?

No. She will not wear it to settle an election bet.

Then what will be her excuse?

She will have no excuse. She will wear it because it is the style.

When the lady appears on the beach in the suit, what will the police do?

Nothing except lose their eyesight.

Can a lady appear in a suit like that and escape arrest?

Yes.

If the gals are wearing suits like that this summer, what will they wear a year from now?

Shush! The children might hear us!

ON HOME GARDENS

Each little boy, each little girl
A gardener should be,
For vegetables raised at home
Should aid economy.

A spade, a little land, a hoe—
These are the things you'll need
To see what miracles are worked
By planting of a seed.

Potatoes, peas and cabbages,
String beans and spinach, too,
Taste better when you realize
That 'twas for you they grew.

'Tis pleasant, yes, to plant a seed
And know that rain and heat
Will some day turn it into a
Tomato or a beet.

So raise a garden, boys and girls,
Upon some little plot;
It MAY come up and give you food
And also it may NOT!

Hello, Everybody!

"Terror of the Tomb"

By FLOYD GIBBONS

Famous Headline Hunter.

HERE'S the story of a man who dug his own grave—from bottom up. He is Bernard F. Engelberger and the only man knows how it feels to be old King Cheops' mummy. After seeing himself what sort of a life old Cheops led, moreover, he's satisfied to be just plain Bernard Engelberger. Being shut up in a tomb didn't strike Bernie as being much fun—even for an Egyptian.

It was all Bernie's fault and he'll be the first to admit it. It happened this way. Back in the winter of 1905 Bernie got a job with a construction company which was then laying the foundations for the Altman building on Fifth avenue, New York city. They put Bernie on as gang boss and since he had a good technical training and was able to read blueprints, they gave him an extra job setting foundation blocks with a leveling instrument.

Bernie had to work by fits and starts at that leveling job. Just around the spot where he was setting the blocks, the dynamite crew were blasting big hunks out of ridges of blue granite rock that cover most of Manhattan island, and every few minutes he had to drop what he was doing and run for cover while another charge went off. It got to be pretty tiresome after a while—especially since Bernie liked the work he was doing and wanted a chance to stick at it for a while without interruption.

Finally there came a time when Bernie decided he wasn't going to get those blasts any more. The foundation block he was working on was a deep hole and he figured that by lying down against the near side of it he would be safe from flying debris resulting from an explosion. So on time the signal came to run for cover Bernie stayed right where he was.

Accident Seals Bernie in Living Tomb.

It was Saturday—just before quitting time. The blast that would be the last one until Monday morning. Bernie, crouched down in the pit, heard the boom of the dynamite and then, to his consternation, saw slab of granite turn up on one end like a trap door on its hinges, and come down over the top of the hole in which he was lying.

It was as neat a trap as Bernie was ever in in his life. "I was lying on my stomach," he says, "and the legs of the leveling instrument, which was buried with me, prevented me from moving an inch. I yelled a couple of times, but no one answered and then I remembered something that just about scared me stiff. It was Saturday—pay-off day. They wouldn't find me until Monday at the earliest, and I could suffocate in that hole in much less time than that."

Bernie twisted his body about and looked around him. As the dirt sided he could see, to his relief, a few cracks through which the air was coming. At least he wouldn't suffocate. But he had no sooner decided that when a new worry arose to plague him. It started to rain and water was running down into the pit where he lay. If he didn't get out of there, he would be drowned like a rat in a trap!

Water Shows Him Weak Spot in His Prison.

For a minute he lay there in a stupor, wondering if this was to be the end of him. Then, a trickle of water, falling on his neck aroused him and, looking up, he saw something that caused new hope to spring into his breast. The water might be threatening his life, but it was also doing him a favor. For that little stream had shown him the weak point in his prison—the place where the cover was the thinnest.

Bernie reached into his breast pocket and found a little iron spike he used for adjusting his leveling instrument and began digging at the spot the water was trickling in.

"It was hard work," Bernie says, "and after hours of digging, I lost track of the time. Every bone in my body ached and all I could think of was Monday morning, when my co-workers would come down and get me out."

Courage and Patience Save Bernie's Life.

"I fell asleep once from sheer exhaustion and woke up hours later and back to work again with my spike. After what seemed to be days of digging I finally struck a little hollow space and the rain must have loosened the dirt around my legs, for all of a sudden a rock fell on my back, and I was able to move a bit.

"I must have fallen asleep again, then, for I woke up to find the hole half full of water. I went back at my digging then and had only worked a few minutes when a stream of water came shooting in that filled the hole up to my neck. Then I started to work in real earnest, trying to get out before I was drowned.

"By this time I was frantic. The hole I had dug was big enough to get out of, but I was pinned down so that I couldn't move. Finally I got both hands on upper part of the leveling instrument and using it as a lever, was able to get my legs free. Then, leaving one shoe behind me, I crawled out of the hole. It was 4 a. m. Sunday morning when I got loose again. It had taken me 11 hours to get out of the pit. But maybe I was lucky to get out of it at all.

Colonial Furniture Work of the Earliest Settlers

The term colonial, as applied to early American furniture, is properly employed to indicate furniture used in the colonies before they became states. When it is remembered that the Dutch settled in New York, the English in New England and Virginia, and the French in Louisiana, it is obvious that the best colonial furniture was of three different styles, declares a writer in the Indianapolis News. There were many good cabinetmakers in the colonies, and their products were based on the current modes of their mother countries. The colonial style, as such, resulted chiefly from simplification, omission of ornament, and adaptation of the best European practice.

That a blending of styles occurred is evident in some of the chairs of early New York, in which may be found a typical Dutch fiddle-back, Jacobean legs, and Spanish feet. The Windsor chair was of English origin, but was greatly improved upon in America. The rocking-chair was an American product, but the date of its introduction is unknown.

Most important of the early cabinet work was that of Duncan Phyfe, a Scot who came to America about 1792 and, after establishing himself in the trade in New York, produced, between the years 1795 and 1830, work of fine quality to that of the best English designers. Phyfe's lyre-back chair was a characteristic piece. From 1830-47 his work was not of such a standard. He classified as "over-decorated mahogany as 'butter furniture.'"

Action of Oil Glands

The oil glands in the skin of women normally remain active much longer than those of the human male. Undoubtedly this is due to the fact that layers of fatty tissue on the body. Hands become leaner with the years and this reduces the fat and the natural oil which tends to keep them supple.

The "Concord Hymn"

The "Concord Hymn" is by Ralph Waldo Emerson, sung at the completion of the Bunker Hill monument in 1836. It contains the well-quoted lines: "Here once the embattled farmers stood, and fired the shot heard round the world."

"SHADOW" OF RADIO UNMASKED BY NAVY

Vacuum Tubes Used by Doctors Cause Trouble.

Washington.—The navy, the motto of which is constant vigilance, has run down the "shadow" which has for many weeks been interfering with radio reception.

The mysterious signals, reported from all parts of the United States, Honolulu, Nova Scotia, Puerto Rico and the Canal Zone, have been traced to high-frequency-vacuum tubes used in medical treatments, an official announcement stated. The findings are being turned over to the communications commission.

Set Up on Short Waves.

The interfering signals are mostly heard on frequencies of 11,000 to 20,000 kilocycles. They have a low-pitched sixty-cycle tone which changes frequency at irregular times. They are usually heard between 8 a. m. and 4 p. m.

W. A. Winterbottom, vice president of RCA communications, called attention to the "mystery" signals a few days ago, saying that the source of the sound "is anybody's guess." He predicted it would be discovered that they will turn out to have been set up by industries or hospitals using high-frequencies (short waves).

"If that is the result of the hunt," he added, "it will be comparatively simple to eliminate the interference by shielding the rooms in which the high-frequencies are used."

This interference has become increasingly active in the past six months. It was first heard several years ago. Instruments such as radio direction-finders, oscilloscopes that picture the type of interfering wave and recording that "fingerprint" the trouble have enabled engineers to study and compare the waves with other forms of interference, Mr. Winterbottom said. The trouble was felt most on the radio telephone circuits. Observations were made on both the Atlantic and Pacific coasts.

Various Offenders.

Physicians and other types of practioners have for several years been using electric-wave treatments for rheumatism, arthritis and kindred ailments. Sometimes patients are permitted to take home the equipment and apply the treatments. Unless precautions are taken in the manufacture of such equipment to eliminate the possibility of interference, noise may result in radio sets.

Obsolete X-ray and other treatment machines have been found to be offenders. Engineers declare, however, that such apparatus can be prevented from radiating the waves that set up interference. Most of the later types of such equipment are made so that this trouble will be avoided.

Discover Furry Animal Not Listed by Science

Sydney, N. S. W.—Three specimens of a strange animal which has not yet been introduced to scientists are in the possession of Prof. Wood Jones of Melbourne university.

Two of the specimens are dead, but the third is a lively little ball of fur which has been living delicately for weeks on bananas, biscuits, milk, and honey, with an occasional tropical-pawpaw or a nibble of carrot or apple.

The specimens are the only three in the world outside their native place, an island northeast of New Guinea, where an attempt is being made to capture a mate for the little creature.

The animal is a cuscus, a marsupial similar in some respects to a rare species in tropical Australia, but, instead of being gray with whitish patches, it is a creamy white with beautiful fur and a disarming countenance.

Professor Jones is preparing a scientific description of the animal and is trying to find a name for it.

College Offers Unique Concert of "Lost" Music

Wellesley, Mass.—The Wellesley College orchestra gave a musical performance which has not been played or heard for centuries and may not be heard again.

Malcolm Holmes, director of the orchestra, searched libraries and museums here and abroad. He discovered lost music of the Fifteenth, Sixteenth and Seventeenth centuries.

Many signatures, dynamics and expression marks, even bar lines, were usually omitted by the ancient composers. Rest marks were a miscellany, instead of the staffs and black and white ovals, now the universal method of showing the value of notes, composers gave their notes different shapes as pleased their fancy. Round, square or rectangle notes were used to distinguished whole, half and quarter notes.

Maharajah Retains Pomp in His Travels by Air

Bombay, India.—Merely because he is traveling by air the maharaja of Jammu and Kashmir believes in losing none of the pomp and splendor to which he is accustomed while on the ground.

Among there will be included among his vast possessions a silver-colored plane, interiorly and exteriorly embellished by the leading decorators of Bond street, London, with every luxury and comfort.

Even carrying a full load—the pilot and four passengers—the sumptuous sky-liner will be able to attain a speed of 200 miles an hour.

Lights of New York

by L. L. STEVENSON

Just heard about the New Yorker who started a restaurant in Rome—a reversal of the usual process. After he had become established, he went to the "questura"—police headquarters to you—and asked that a cop or two be assigned to accompany him home after he closed for the night. The reason he gave was that most of his receipts came after banking hours, so he would have them on his person and he feared hold-ups. The chief smiled and reminded the New Yorker that he was not in his home town but in Rome, and that he was as safe on the streets of the Eternal City at one o'clock in the morning as at noon; Rome had no crime. Therefore, a police escort was absolutely unnecessary. The New Yorker, not quite convinced, then asked for a pistol permit. The chief smiled. A pistol was as unnecessary as a guard, he declared, and besides, if the American were allowed to possess a deadly weapon, he might hurt himself!

Then there was that yarn about a series of stories, known among newspaper men as the "Smith articles," that traveled to America and other countries via press wires. One night the Rome office of the press association that handled the articles was deluged with telephone calls from New York, Paris and elsewhere, the inquiries all being, "Where is the rest of tonight's Smith story?" A check-up disclosed the fact that Mussolini's censor had killed the last paragraph on the ground that it was subversive, etc. And the author of those articles, according to my informant, was none other than Il Duce himself!

By doing a quick hop back to New York—one of those mental voyages, of course—I reach an Italian restaurant over on Second avenue. It's the haunt of artists and writers, many of whose names are well known. The result is that the pictures that adorn the walls are those of comic strip characters all done by their creators. In order that there may be no delay when an inspiration seizes an artist, the proprietor has provided not only paints but a ladder. The writers, it seems, spend their time eating and drinking—and purchasing papers and punch-board chances from the constant stream of ragged newsboys.

Proceeding on uptown and over to First avenue, another Italian district is encountered. One side of the street is lined solidly with push-carts and thus is one of the largest outdoor markets in town. Everything from a dried fish to a house dress, and from a pair of shoes to heavy hardware, may be purchased. Prices are low and trade is brisk. So, a touch of the picturesque is added to the whole neighborhood.

A petty officer on a British ship in port here asked a customs guard to refer him to a reliable place where he could get a clock fixed. The customs man gave him an address and, accompanied by another petty officer, the Britisher set out with an old alarm clock wrapped in newspaper. When they finally reached the establishment, the size and glitter awed them no little. But they went inside and met a salesman who, as they admitted later, looked like at least a duke, and so embarrassed was the clock owner that he got out without explaining his mission. He had been referred to Tiffany's.

That reminds me of the time when, attracted by a pair of shoes in the window, I went into what looked like a modest establishment in the Forties. The clerk, with a gardenia in his buttonhole, instead of asking me the size I wore, took elaborate measurements. Having finished, he informed me that I would get my shoes in ten days and that the price would be $30. Dazed, I muttered something about having made a mistake and staggered out.

Manhattan wild life note: Fred T. Ferrier and his bride, on a honeymoon-'round-the-world trip, heard a noise in their tower apartment at the Waldorf-Astoria. Investigation disclosed the fact that a starling had flown in through an open window. A few minutes after Mrs. Ferrier had released the bird, a bullfinch flew in. It was captured and petted by the Ferriers but made its escape just after its picture had been taken by the house photographer.

Culture From Daily Task

If a man or woman gets no culture out of his daily work there is precious little he can get out of anything else.

Postures Termed Language of Soul

Boston.—The woman who has learned to pose gracefully has the world at her feet, according to Dr. Frederick Rand Rogers, professor of physical education at Boston univerity.

"Posture is a more important subject for women than for men, because men are naturally more active, mobile, brutal, animal-like, while women are more passive and plant-like," Doctor Rogers said. "Postures are to the emotions of the soul what words are to the ideas of the mind—posture is the language of the emotions."

Doctor Rogers also believes that beauty itself is composed of color and form, and form is made up of shape and posture.

BRISBANE THIS WEEK

AAA Is No More
Who Will Pay Now?
Only 11 Can Run Fast
The State of the Union

The Supreme court decision rejecting AAA, the "agricultural adjustment act," affects every American directly. Issued just as the President announced his program to balance the national budget within one thousand million dollars, the decision upsets that administration program.

Arthur Brisbane

Men with large incomes, of whom few survive, may worry, for the decision takes from the government seven hundred million a year of processing taxes that will have to be made good elsewhere. The manufacturers', or processing, tax, handed along to the little people, was, in reality, a sales tax on life's necessities—cotton cloth, flour, meat.

The question is, Who will provide cash promised the farmers, since the Supreme court will not sanction the sales tax, disguised as a "pross" tax?

Whence will come the hundreds of millions the government owes to farmers under its AAA promises and has not yet paid? The farmers did their part, the government could hardly fail to do its part by paying.

International News Service sports department shows that out of about 1,800,000,000 human beings on earth only 11 are known that can run a mile at really high speed. Of these not more than four would have any chance of beating an individual named Glenn Cunningham of Kansas.

You would think that the billion unknown uncounted among the so-called "backward races," many with native energy, free of civilization's handicaps, could easily be trained to beat the 11 fast ones, but it is not probable.

The President's address "on the state of the Union" was, like nearly all Presidential speeches, an address on the state of the administration.

Discussing danger of war, if it is true that "85 or 90 per cent of all the people in the world are content with the territorial limits of their respective nations," that would leave only 10 or 15 per cent of the aggressive type.

Lloyd George, playing a little politics with his friend Prime Minister Baldwin, exults in the noble moral uprising of the British, rejecting the terrible, immoral plan to divide Ethiopia and placate Italy. Something "without precedent," Lloyd George calls it.

Where England is concerned, "dividing up" is, indeed, almost without precedent. England's custom as a rule is to swallow things whole, as she did with the Transvaal, India, and other territories that have kept her old fighting flag always in the sunshine.

The Methodist Episcopal church is proud to announce in Nashville, Tenn., that it begins 1936 with 2,783,269 regularly enrolled members, an increase over the preceding year of 31,298, with 21,361 baptized infants not included. This is the reply of the Methodist Episcopalians to the "high church" Episcopalians of the English church that suggests giving up Protestantism altogether as a failure.

Children will learn with pleasure that it is not necessary to eat spinach unless you like it. Other vegetables take the place of spinach with a menacing person called "Pop-Eye."

The government, through WPA, will print a book on what to eat and how to eat it. One well known New York physician ventures the opinion that spinach contains an objectionable amount of "vegetable uric acid."

The English, horrified by Italian bombing in Ethiopia, would be interested, if they have forgotten about it, to see photographs of one big Egyptian city after British warships had finished its bombardment. It was an exceptionally complete job, nothing left standing.

A twenty-year-old Poughkeepsie girl, "from the other side of the tracks," working for $6 a week, was invited by a young man to get into his automobile. "Want to go somewhere for a drink, baby?" was the invitation formula. In the morning the unfortunate girl was found in the man's car in a garage, dead, horribly mistreated and beaten to death. The excuse for mentioning so dreadful a crime is that it ought to warn all girls foolish enough to accept invitations from unknown men.

New Jersey says the execution of Hauptmann, close at hand, will be no theatrical show. No woman reporter will be allowed to witness Hauptmann's death, an excellent idea, although some young ladies will not think so. Female reporters, let us hope, will have babies later on. Watching a miserable creature writhing in the electric chair would not be good for the babies, although science no longer believes in prenatal influences, as Voltaire did.

Wrap-Around Makes Good Utility Frock

Does household routine demand that you be the first downstairs in the morning? Then here's a frock that makes it possible. A jiffy wrap-around, with smart shirtwaist air, is grand for general utility wear from early morning until you've time to change. Easy to make, it slips on as smoothly as a coat, opens out flat for ironing, and no petticoat is necessary with it due to the generous over-lap in front. Unequaled for comfort and slenderizing effect.

Pattern 2539 is available in sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46 and 48. Size 16 takes 3⅝ yards 36-inch fabric. Illustrated step-by-step sewing instructions included.

SEND FIFTEEN CENTS (15c) in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for this pattern. Write plainly name, address and style number. BE SURE TO STATE SIZE.

Address orders to the Sewing Circle Pattern Dept., 243 W. Seventeenth St., New York City.

All Around the House

Sprinkle a cake with cornstarch before icing to prevent icing running off.

Ferns grown in the house will have a rich green color if a teaspoon of household ammonia is added in a quart of water and poured over the ferns once or twice a month.

Keep the temperature of the room in which house plants are grown at 60 or 65 degrees. They do not thrive in a room that is too warm.

Indestructible garden labels may be made during leisure hours in the winter. Use tin or copper scraps cut the size of a small paper tag and mark with india ink.

To clean a white fur carriage robe heat sawdust in the oven and when very hot rub well into the fur. Several applications may be necessary before it is clean. Brush in the open air until all the sawdust is removed.

Slip several slices of bread under the rack on the bottom of broiler pan when broiling steak. The juices drip down and when meat is done the bread is toasted a delicate brown. Serve with the broiled steak.

Hezikiah Puts the Bankers Right Up a Creek, Yassah!

Hezikiah Brown, colored, lost a foreclosure action to a Topeka bank. The judgment gave the bank title to 19 of the 20 acres in Hezikiah's plat adjoining Shunganunga creek. Kansas law permits a defendant to retain one acre of his own choosing as his homestead, the only string being it must all be in one piece.

Hezikiah chose a 15-foot strip starting at the creek bank and running around the outer edge of the property back to the creek. To reach their land, the bankers must row a boat across or wade up the Shunganunga.

CONSTIPATED 30 YEARS

"For thirty years I had chronic constipation. Sometimes I did not go for four or five days. I also had awful gas bloating, headaches and pain in the back. Adlerika helped right away. Now I eat sausage, bananas, pie, anything I want and never felt better. I sleep soundly all night and enjoy life." —Mrs. Mabel Schott.

If you are suffering from constipation, sleeplessness, sour stomach, and gas bloating, there is quick relief for you in Adlerika. Many report action in 30 minutes after taking just one dose. Adlerika gives complete action, cleaning your bowel tract where ordinary laxatives do not even reach.

Dr. H. L. Shoub, New York, reports: "In addition to intestinal cleansing, Adlerika checks the growth of intestinal bacteria and colon bacilli."

Give your stomach and bowels a real cleansing with Adlerika and see how good you feel. Just one spoonful relieves GAS and chronic constipation. Sold by all druggists and drug departments.

TAKE A TIP FROM ME... IF YOU'VE GOT COFFEE-NERVES... SWITCH TO POSTUM!

CHILDREN should never drink coffee, and... the caffein in coffee disagrees with many grown-ups, too. If you are bothered by headaches or indigestion, or can't sleep soundly... try Postum for 30 days! It contains no caffein. It is simply whole wheat and bran, roasted and slightly sweetened. Easy to make, costs less than one-half cent a cup. It's delicious, too... and may prove a real help. A product of General Foods.

ver One Hundred Miles Road Improved Past Year

nty Engineer Merten Gives His port of Work Done During Year

he expenditures for road work all published during the year the proceedings of the Board of ervisors but while these these ceedings show to whom the ey was paid, they do not state what was accomplished on the ds or what each particular part he work cost. Many of these de- s are given in the annual report he County Engineer, which con- s of eleven pages and may be at the office of the County itor or County Engineer.

uring the year of 1935 we ded 47 miles of roads at a cost $29,554.93 an average cost of 8.83 per mile. This cost in- es payment to contractors, dy- ite, teams for end haul work, ugated pipe and labor. We grav- 55 miles of roads at a cost of 583.53 or an average of $428.79 mile. One concrete culvert cost 5.00 and 4 wooden bridges cost 87.87. We are building our den bridges of creosoted lum- which costs nearly twice as as plain lumber but which ld last three times as long. r construction costs are right ay $851.25, gravel pits $6972.- and engineering $2126.75. The amount spent for construction was $65,409.39.

it costs of road work are some higher than has been the case g the past few years due in to the fact that we are using rge amount of relief labor h is paid for entirely from road s. All gravel hauled by county s was shoveled by hand.

e present condition of the sec- ry road system of Hancock Co. follows:

unk roads: paved 1 mile, grav- 119 miles. Local roads: gravel 92 miles, Earth 368 miles. To- miles in secondary system980.

st of the progress in graveling roads has been made since were taken over by the county anuary 1930. At that time were only about 100 miles of graveled roads in Hancock ty.

e cost of maintaining second- roads in Hancock County for ear of 1935 was as follows:

|---|---|
| ce and roadbed | |
| intenance | $39,529.35 |
| e maintenance | 5,004.95 |
| removal | 4,681.88 |

| of way | 15.00 |
| l pits | 2,805.17 |
| neering | 2,194.66 |
| maintenance cost | $78,549.29 |
| rage cost one mile | $80.79 |

w removal has not been ex- e during the past few years osts will probably be greater the present year than has the case for some time. The "equipment and tools" includ- oney spent for snow removal ment. Very little snow remov- rk was done on local roads they were taken over by the in 1930.

ncock County's share of the cent state gasoline tax is all on road construction and is sed for maintenance work. aintenance fund is made up from the tax levy on Han- county property.

GROUND HOG TO COME FORTH SUNDAY TO PREDICT WEATHER

Can't Do A Worse Job Of It Than Official Predictors Are Doing

Sunday, February 2nd is "Ground Hog Day" and many people are anxiously waiting to learn what kind of weather is in store after his appearance.

If the sun shines, and he sees his shadow, then we can expect six more weeks of cold weather. If it happens to be cloudy Mr. Ground Hog will not be scared of his shadow and so will come out of hiding and scamper about in nice weather.

And at that it can't be any wors than what the official weathermen have been handing out lately.

$39,454 PAID FOR POOR RELIEF IN HANCOCK DURING 1935

A total of $39,454.86 was paid for the poor in Hancock county during 1935, the amount included $2,-793.76 state funds. During 1934, $33,736.17, including $1,531 state funds was paid, according to Auditor Fred C. Missal .The least paid from the poor fund since 1923, was for 1928, which totaled $5,799.75 The expense listed does not include soldier's relief or the county ho ne.

HUSBANDS OF BRIDGE CLUB MEMBERS WERE PARTY GUESTS

The members of the U-Delt-Em bridge club entertained their husbands at a bridge party and lunch at the bank basement last Wednesday evening. High scores were won by Mrs. Jorgenson and Mr. Kingery; low scores by Mrs. Reed and Mr Kudje; travel prizes by Mrs. Jacobs and Mr. Reed, and door prize by Mr. Wilson. The mesdames Lawhorn Raney, Kudje, Thada and Arnold were hostesses.

Brother Of Klemme Lady Married

John W. Whitsell, of Amstrong, and Miss Mary Caroline Mason of Iowa Falls were married Sunday at Iowa Falls. They will make their home on a farm near Armstrong. Mr. Whitsell is a brother of Mrs. A. L. Kingery of Klemme.

Ell Home Project Workers Met

There were seventeen leaders of the Home Project Workers that met Tuesday at the home of Mrs. Ben V. Greiman, with Miss Chollett for an all day meeting. The subject of the lesson was Selection and Care of Interior Paints in the Home. They enjoyed a covered dish luncheon at noon.

Inmate Cost $2 A Week

Records in the auditors office show expense of the county home the past year was $8,616.14. Records show a yield in cream, cattle and other things was $5,039.07, cutting the actual expense to $3,577.07 and the cost of each inmate to a trifle over $2 a week.

IT MAY BE TOO LATE

Yes, it may be too late for many birds to start feeding them now for it takes them many days to come back to health and become strong enough to withstand freezing weather. But let it not be said that you did not try to save your share of the birds by feeding. They have suffered greatly and only the best of foods, fed regularly, will bring them back. Corn is the best heat producing food—and do not forget the grit.

Firelight

By Craig Scots Romaine

I shall remember firelight's copper glow
Upon a rug, and falling through a grate,
While trees outside were mantled white in snow,
For spring was late.

I shall remember how a silver throat
Enhanced the quietude of sleeping night—
How frozen silence leaned to catch the note
Of birds in flight.

Oh, often I shall see—in dreamy mood—
A glowing hearth that comes with memories
And winter gently covering her brood.
Of quiet trees.

Klemme Couple Were Married Friday Eve

IRENE LEMKE AND LEONARD SWANSON TAKE VOWS

Friday evening, January 24th, at 9 o'clock at the Klemme Methodist parsonage occurred the marriage of Miss Irene M. Lemke to Mr. Leonard Swanson. The Rev. Wm. Zabilka performed the ceremony, which was witnessed by Miss Ethel and Roy Swanson, sister and brother of the groom.

The bride was attired in a light green gown and the bridesmaid wore a dark green dress. The groom and best man were dressed in oxford gray suits.

The bride, who is the youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rhine R. Lemke, who reside northwest of Klemme, graduated from the Garner High School with the class of 1935. Mr. Swanson is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Swanson, living east of Klemme, and is employed at the Albert Swanson farm, where the young couple will make their home for the present.

The newlyweds have spent practically all of their life in this vicinity and have a large number of friends with whom the Times joins in extending congratulations and best wishes.

BIRTHDAY SOCIAL

The first monthly Birthday Social of the Klemme M. E. Church will be held next Monday evening. Everybody is asked to bring a covered dish and sandwiches. Those having birthdays in February will sit together at one table with their birthday cake. Those having birthdays in January will furnish the program, and those having birthdays last December will have charge of the kitchen, dining room furnish the coffee, cream and sugar and wash the dishes.

Supper will be served at 6:30 or as soon thereafter as we will be able to gather. We invite all our friends of the Church to join with us in this evening of fellowship.

FEBRUARY CLOSES ALL GAME SEASONS

February 1st is the last day on which rabbits, classified as game under the regulations, may be lawfully taken. After that date, all seasons on any and all species of game, classified as such in the regulations, will be closed. Fox may be taken at any time of the year and in any part of the state.

Shamrocks In Tourney; Meet Hanlontown First

Goodell, Kanawha, Crystal Lake, Woden Also Enter Tournament

The Klemme Shamrocks are entered in the invitational tournament at Mason City and will meet Hanlontown at the Y. M. gym at 2:00 o'clock this Thursday afternoon. The Shamrocks should take this game and will meet either Thompson or Rock Falls Friday afternoon at 2:10 at the high school gym. The winner then plays at 7:10 Friday evening and at 2:00 p. m. Saturday. The contending teams in the upper bracket, as we see it are Klemme, Fertile, Kanawha, and Renwick.

In the lower bracket of games Goodell will meet Nora Springs on Thursday evening at 8:20 at the high school gym. The semi-finals in this bracket are at 3:10 Saturday afternoon. If Goodell can wade through Nora Springs, which we think Goodell can do, then they should have no further trouble in their bracket and we look for them to win consistently.

The finals are very apt to see Klemme or Fertile and Goodell contending for tournament honors.

COLD WEATHER MAY HAVE ALTERED TEST OF CORN

Necessity for testing seed corn for planting next spring is indicated in the summary of reports from county agents received by the Iowa State College Extension Service.

Germination tests made by individuals in counties, the seed laboratory at Iowa State College and testing stations which have been set up in some counties range from 10 per cent to as high as 96 percent.

R. H. Porter, extension plant pathologist, suggests that farmers search for fodder corn which may be suitable and have tests made. He also says that good quality seed may be found in cribs of 1933, 1934 and 1935 corn, but a germination test must be made to make sure of its quality.

If a crib was tested in early December before the cold weather, Porter suggests that it be tested again. In some instances, the moisture content of the corn was high at that time, and the cold weather may have cut the germination.

Reformed Ladies Aid Today

Mrs. A. H. Dulmes and Mrs. Walter Rosendahl are hostesses today Wednesday, at the Reformed Ladies Aid Society.

SHAMROCKS PLAY TWO GAMES AWAY NEXT WEEK

Tuesday night, Febr. 4, Klemme goes to Hayfield to play a postponed game, and Thursday night will play Woden at Woden.

U-DELT-EM BRIDGE CLUB MET AT REED HOME THURSDAY

Mrs. Jim Reed was hostess to the U-Delt-Em bridge club at her home Thursday afternoon. Mrs. Reed served lunch following bridge. High score was won by Mrs. R. A. Jorgenson, low by Mrs. C. G. Waterman and travel prize by Mrs. Ed Jacobs. Mrs. Alfred Merkel was a guest.

Quilting Bee

Mrs. C. F. Keraus entertained a number of ladies at her home last Tuesday afternoon at a quilting bee. Lunch was served. For supper Mrs. Keraus had the R. A. Jorgenson and C. G. Wateman families and Mrs. Dulmes as guests.

SHAMROCK HOPE OF TYING FOR CONFERENCE IS SHATTERED

Sensational BasketBall Game Won By One Point In Last Seconds

The Goodell high school took two games from the Shamrocks here Monday evening, winning the reserve game by two points, and winning their varsity game in a sensational wind-up by one point and clinching their claims for the Seven Eagles Conference championship.

The preliminary game was a hectic, closely fought battle in which the Goodell reserves beat the Little Shamrocks 13 to 11.

The varsity game was one of those kind you read about but seldom have the opportunity to witness. Nearly half the first quarter was over before either team scored. "Toky" Ahrenkeil opened the fireworks with a field goal, closely followed by his teammate, Clark. The quarter was a fine exhibition of defensive play on the part of both teams and the quarter ended 9 to 11 in Goodell's favor. Kaduce, Shamrock center and Jorgenson, sophomore forward, were the mainstays of Shamrock scoring in the first half. Kaduce looped three field goals, and Jorgenson two goals and a free throw, while Ahrenkeil slipped through his guard for five field goals for the visitors. The half ended with Goodell leading 16 to 12.

The second half started with the scoring going back and forth and the third quarter was played on even terms with each team scoring ten points.

The Shamrocks out-scored and out-played the visitors the last quarter, caught up and passed them with a slim one point lead with but a few seconds left to play. With the game tied Klotzbach made good a free throw to put the Shamrocks in the lead by a precious one point. The Shamrocks were playing a stall game when a bad pass was intercepted by M. Ahrenkeil, Goodell guard, who raced for the basket and sank the ball through the net just as the gun barked, giving Goodell the victory by one point. In the last half the Shamrocks effectively bottled Toky Ahrenkeil and held him to two field goals and one free throw Kilgore got on a scoring spree and rang up four field goals and Brinkman came though with three.

Klotzbach, Klemme guard played a splendid game, such as he has played all season. His stellar defensive work Monday night clinched beyond any doubt, a guard position on the 1935-36 All-Conference Team.

A study of the running score and the box score will show that it was an evenly fought battle. Klemme sank 13 field goals and Goodell had 12, of which Toky Ahrenkeil made seven. The Shamrocks made 3 free throws out of 11 tries, while Goodell made a fine record of 6 gift shots out of 9 attempts.

King George Is Dead; Edward Takes Throne

GEORGE V, king of Great Britain and emperor of India, died in Sandringham house, peacfully and painlessly, in his seventy-first year. Immediately on his passing, his eldest son, Edward Albert, who had been prince of Wales, succeeded to the throne, which by British law, is never vacant. Next morning the state council, consisting of the queen and her four sons, which had been created by a decree which George signed a few hours before his death, proclaimed the accession of the new ruler as Edward VIII. His first official act was to notify the lord mayor of London of his father's demise.

King Edward VIII

King George, who had been on the throne almost twenty-five years, was the best loved and most democratic of the world's monarchs, always just, solicitous for the welfare of his subjects, and living a simple and almost faultless domestic and official life. The new king, a confirmed bachelor, knows his vast empire intimately, having visited practically every part of it, some regions many times. Decidedly different from his father in his tastes and ways of life, he still, as the prince of Wales, has been a great favorite of the people, and in recent years, realizing that he would soon have to mount the throne, he steadied down and took an increasing interest in the affairs of the empire. He is especially liked by the laboring classes, in whose welfare he often has shown deep sympathy. That he never married has been a disappointment to the British people. Now for the first time since the reign of William IV there is no prince of Wales. Next in the line of succession is the king's brother, the duke of York, and second comes the duke's little daughter, Princess Elizabeth. There will be six months or more of official mourning for George's death, and Edward VIII will not be crowned for about one year.

The body of the dead ruler was removed from Sandringham house to the little church of St. Mary Magdalene in Sandringham. Thence it was to be taken to Westminster abbey, there to lie in state. Interment is to be in the Albert Memorial chapel at Windsor, beside the tombs of George's father and mother. It was believed the state funeral would not take place for two weeks.

Death of Rudyard Kipling, Famed British Poet

RUDYARD KIPLING, poet and story writer who best embodied in his literary work the ideas of British imperialists, died in London following an operation for perforated ulcer of the stomach. He was seventy years of age and in recent years had written very little except as a propagandist. He was a vigorous and bold writer and a master stylist. His best work was done long ago when he wrote numerous poems and stories about India, its natives and the British soldiers there.

Senate Passes Bonus Bill, 74 to 16

BY A vote of 74 to 16 the senate passed Senator Harrison's compromise bonus measure which provides for the payment of $2,237,000,000 to veterans in baby bonds and cash. The action was taken despite warnings from the treasury that the national debt would be swollen to $35,500,000,000 in eighteen months. The senate rejected an amendment for discretionary currency inflation.

Sen. Harrison

It was considered certain the house would accept the senate bill, for it was backed by the veterans' organizations. Belief was general that President Roosevelt would veto the measure, but its proponents felt sure the veto would be overridden in both house and senate.

Two Treasury Officials Resign Their Posts

UNDERSECRETARY of the Treasury Thomas Jefferson Coolidge resigned his position suddenly and unexpectedly, because he did not agree with all the policies of the administration. At the same time Assistant Secretary Lawrence W. Robert resigned President Roosevelt accepted both resignations. It was understood there was no connection between the two withdrawals. Mr. Robert had been expected for some time to quit his post.

In his treasury position Mr Coolidge, long a New England banker, has been in charge of such government financial affairs as the huge borrowings of money to meet heavy government expenditures. He was understood to be in accord with most Roosevelt policies but felt he was unable to give his full support to the general New Deal program.

Supreme Court Orders Process Tax Return

SUMMARILY overruling the government's petition for a rehearing of the Louisiana rice millers' cases, involving the refund of some 200 million dollars in processing taxes held in escrow, the United States Supreme court issued its mandate ordering the return of the funds to the taxpayers.

The court also issued its mandate in the Hoosac mills cases, in which the Agricultural Adjustment act was held unconstitutional and thereby closed the door to petitions for a rehearing in that case. In a third action the court ordered arguments on February 4 on the New Deal's motion to dismiss a suit brought by the state of Georgia to test the constitutionality of the Bankhead compulsory cotton control act.

Ellsworth and His Pilot Rescued in Antarctica

ALL the world rejoiced over the news that Lincoln Ellsworth, noted explorer, and his pilot, Herbert Hollick-Kenyon, had been found safe and well in Little America and were on board the rescue ship Discovery II which was sent jointly by the British and Australian governments. The two men had been missing since November 23 when they started on a bold airplane flight across the Antarctic continent. In this they succeeded, but they ran out of fuel and were forced to land at the bay of Whales.

Nye Arouses the Wrath of Fellow Senators

GERALD P. NYE, the radical senator from North Dakota, apparently upset his own apple cart when he accused the late President Woodrow Wilson of having "falsified" with respect to his knowledge of secret European treaties at the time the United States entered the World war. One after another Democratic senators arose to denounce this charge and to promise no more money would be appropriated for the investigations which Nye's munitions committee has been carrying on.

Senator Nye

Carter Glass, the fiery old Virginian who was Wilson's secretary of the treasury, was especially bitter in his attack on the North Dakotan and by skillful indirection managed to express his opinion of his fellow senator without violating the senate rules. Said he:

"If it were permissible in the senate to say that any man who would asperse the integrity and veracity of Woodrow Wilson is a coward; if it were premissible to say that his charge is not only malicious but positively mendacious, that I would be glad to say here and elsewhere to any man, whether he be a United States senator or not, because the charge would be not only destitute of decency but it would be such a shocking exhibition as never has happened in the 35 years I have served in the congress of the United States."

The attacks on Senator Nye were not confined to his charge that President Wilson was a falsifier. He was accused of exploiting his position as chairman of the munitions committee for his political enhancement, for the sake of newspaper headlines, and for his personal profit.

Thirty-Hour-Week Bill Prepared by Committee

CONGRESSMAN CONNERY of Massachusetts, chairman of the house labor committee, says that body has approved a bill designed to impose the 30-hour week on industry operating in interstate commerce, and that he hopes it will have the support of the President. The measure would license all interstate business and withhold licenses from firms which work employees more than 30 hours a week, fail to provide a wage sufficient to maintain a decent and comfortable standard of living, deny workers the right to join unions or bargain collectively, or employ persons under sixteen years of age.

Bill to Enlarge Trade Commission's Powers

INTRODUCED in the house by Chairman Rayburn of the interstate commerce committee is a bill for the purpose of increasing the powers of the federal trade commission to prevent unfair and deceptive trade practices. It proposed these four major changes in the present law:

1. Declares "deceptive acts and practices" unlawful in addition to the "unfair methods of competition" now specified.

2. Includes "trusts" in the scope of the law along with corporations.

3. Gives the Circuit Court of Appeals power to restrain practices involved in a commission proceeding pending final court decision.

4. Limits to 60 days from the date of a commission order the time in which application may be made to the Circuit court for review of the order.

Farm Program Based on Soil Conservation Act

THERE will be no new legislation to continue the aims of the AAA, if the plans of the administration are adopted, for it has been found by officials that the soil conservation act of 1935 will permit the undertaking of about everything in the bill that the house and senate agricultural committees were drawing up.

Sen. Robinson

In a White House conference the new program was agreed upon by President Roosevelt, Senator J. T. Robinson, majority leader; Secretary of Agriculture Wallace, Attorney General Cummings, Chairman Ellison D. Smith of the senate agriculture committee, Chairman Marvin Jones of the house agriculture committee, Speaker Joseph W. Byrns, Senator John H. Bankhead (Dem., Ala.), AAA administrator Davis, and M. G. White of the AAA.

The administration will work out a system of granting farm subsidies to farmers restricting acreage under authority of the soil conservation act of 1935. In connection with the program the administration will make provision for obligations incurred under the AAA.

Final Returns in the Literary Digest Poll

LITERARY DIGEST'S Presidential straw vote has been concluded, and the final returns indicate a growing opposition to the New Deal. A total of 1,907,681 ballots was received, and of these 62.66 per cent were cast against the President's policies and acts, and 37.34 per cent were for the administration.

Thirty-six states gave majorities against to eleven still in favor of the President and his policies. Among the pro-Roosevelt states was Utah. The other were classified in the release as "southern and border" states.

Of the different sections of the country, New England cast the heaviest "No" vote, going 77.98 per cent against the administration. The Middle Atlantic states from New York to West showed 68.89 per cent of the voters against Mr. Roosevelt and his recovery schemes, while the Middle Western states in the farm belt and the Rocky Mountain states indicated a ratio approximately the same as the nation at large—3 to 2 against. The three Pacific coast states totaled 58.04 against the New Deal.

Seventeen Persons Die in Airplane Crash

SEVENTEEN persons met a tragic fate in the worst airplane accident that the United States has had. A big transport plane of the American Airlines, en route from New York to Los Angeles, crashed in a swamp near the village of Goodwin, Ark., and its 14 passengers, two pilots and stewardess were killed. With great difficulty the bodies of the victims were brought out of the marsh where their bodies were found scattered among fragments of the shattered plane. Officials of the government and of the airline company immediately started an investigation, but the cause of the disaster could not easily be determined.

Hauptmann Is Reprieved by Gov. Hoffman

LESS than thirty hours from the time when he was to die in the electric chair, Bruno Richard Hauptmann, convicted kidnaper and slayer of the Lindbergh baby was given a thirty-day reprieve by Governor Hoffman of New Jersey. This means he will have at least sixty more days to live, because he will have to be re-sentenced. The governor did not give specific reasons for his action. He did say: "A reprieve is an act of executive clemency rather than judicial clemency. I am not required to give a reason, but I might say that there are grave doubts in this case, not only in my mind, but in the minds also of our citizens."

Bruno Hauptmann

There will be only the one reprieve, "unless the evidence should warrant" another, the governor said. If Hauptmann is to be finally saved it must be through the presentation of sufficient new evidence to warrant Justice Trenchard granting a request for a new trial, or for a new plea for clemency to the state pardons court.

Italo-Ethiopia War Again Before League Council

MEMBERS of the League of Nations council assembled in Geneva and opened their ninetieth session, to resume their efforts to settle the Italo-Ethiopian conflicts. Diplomats present believed further sanctions against Italy might be imposed, but it was generally believed the plan to declare an embargo on oil was dead, at least for the present. This was due to uncertainty as to the course the United States would follow in that regard.

Italians in Geneva asserted flatly the embroglio with Ethiopia could be settled only along Italian lines, but added they had no peace proposals themselves and knew of none to come from others.

Intensified Nazi activities in the free city of Danzig were reported officially to the League of Nations by Sean Lester, high commissioner of Danzig, at a private meeting of members of the council.

SEEN and HEARD around the NATIONAL CAPITAL

By Carter Field

Washington.—Brazil's cotton acreage this year will exceed by 35 per cent that of last year. Her spectacular increase of cotton production will continue, despite confidence at the Department of Commerce and the White House that last year's crop failure "down under" proves Brazil is not a menace to the South on cotton production.

Expert cotton men just back from Brazil insist that last year's rains in that country, which resulted in only about 1,400,000-acre crop being harvested, were just as abnormal for Brazil as the drouth in this country. Conditions last year in Brazil were more abnormal, if anything, they say, because the conditions in what President Roosevelt calls the "buffalo grass" country are still a menace through dust storms, whereas there is nothing comparable to that in Brazil.

All of which is terribly important in view of the present threshing about in administration and farm circles over a substitute for the AAA program. There is no doubt in the minds of experts who have studied the situation cold-bloodedly that the AAA system of holding up the price of cotton by curtailing American production was simply holding an umbrella over Brazil while she developed into a great cotton producing country.

Brazil can produce very good cotton and sell it for 6 cents a pound, with an excellent return to the farmers and every one handling it. But her increase in production might have been very slow had it not been for the stimulus—amounting to a bonus and prizes—extended by the United States not only forcing up the price, but removing a huge fraction of the export crop.

Secretary of Commerce Roper and other administration officials poohpoohed successfully this idea of a Brazilian menace until the Saturday Evening Post sent a cotton expert to Brazil last year. His articles occasioned some alarm, but just as they were beginning to stir up some of the cotton people came the news that there had been a crop failure in Brazil. This "failure" was occasioned by the rains.

Brazilians Make Money

But the experts just back, in talking with this writer, say that every one in Brazil who had any cotton to sell at all made money, and that there is no sign whatever that any farmer who has tried cotton intends to give it up. On the contrary, the Brazilians are so generally extending their cotton acreage that the estimate of increase over last year's is now 35 per cent.

One of the most serious effects on New England and Southern textile industries is the tendency of American mill owners to establish plants in Brazil, especially for their export trade. Johnson and Johnson is one outfit that has done so.

The growth of the Southern textile industry has played havoc with New England mills for years, largely because labor was a little cheaper in the South. Now along comes the threat of mills in Brazil to menace both New England and the South, with labor cheaper than either can obtain, and with what seems to be an assured supply of cotton at very low prices.

So far no one inside the administration has seemed to realize what this Brazilian menace means. Officials ignored for several years reports of American consuls telling of the spread of the cotton industry in Brazil. Last year officials also ignored reports from consuls in England that mills there were changing their looms, with a view to using Brazilian instead of American cotton.

So there is no indication that any attention will be paid the present problem in working out the substitute for AAA.

New Farm Program

No doubt seems to exist that President Roosevelt will get squarely back to the soil conservation subterfuge for paying the farmers of the country the rough equivalent of what they were getting under the now outlawed AAA farm benefit plan. Nor that he will back the levying of excise taxes, which will be very similar to those just ruled out. In fact, there seems little doubt that the new farm program will go through whooping.

There is a great deal of doubt as to its constitutionality. Most lawyers here believe it is just as far in excess of the real powers of the federal government, as granted to the central government by the states through the Constitution, as the AAA plan, with one exception. That is with respect to the taxes. If congress levies the new taxes as straight-out excise levies, no one doubts they will stand. Everybody will know that the object is to raise enough money to pay the farmers the equivalent of the old farm benefits, but the law imposing the taxes will not say so. Nor will it grant anyone discretion to change them. There is no question of delegating power, as congress did to the Triple A in that act.

But when it comes to paying a farmer so much a year to let such and such a proportion of his acres lie fallow, or grow up in pasture, on the theory that this is preserving soil fertility, when as a matter of fact everybody, including the justices of the Supreme court, will know that the real objective is to curtail a very definite percentage of crop production, that is something else again. In the opinion of many lawyers, that goes a long way out on the limb of the general welfare clause of the Constitution—so far that the limb may break.

Just Another Phase

Roosevelt's idea of removing all the "buffalo grass" country from cultivation is another phase of the problem. This is the territory from the panhandle of Texas up to Montana, including the western portions of the Dakotas, Nebraska, Kansas and Oklahoma. It is land which most agricultural experts agree should never have been plowed. Its cultivation, plus the drouth, produced the dust storms. Yet with modern machinery, cheap land, and huge farms it lends itself to cheap mass production of crops.

But this part of the program is not the politically important part. It would not put money in the hands of farmers in other sections, nor in the populous parts of the states involved. Small checks to many farmers, rather than large checks to a few farmers, is the important thing politically.

Then there is another question. It is highly improbable that the new plan can be passed on by the Supreme court before the election day. Nor is there any certainty that it could be gotten before the Supreme court at all. In the AAA case, the court indicated that no taxpayer could bring the suit unless he could demonstrate that he was being badly hurt by the tax. This time, owing to the fact that the taxes will be of the straight-out excise variety, with no authority delegated to change them and with no tie-up between the amount of the tax and the object desired (crop reduction in the AAA plan; crop reduction via soil conservation in the new plan) lawyers here do not believe it would be as simple for some badly hurt industry to get its case before the courts.

Naturally, such an organization as the Liberty league might be tremendously interested, not to mention the Republican party. The latter, however, would be deterred because it would not want to throw a boomerang.

All of which leaves doubt clouding the whole picture.

Causes Irritation

There is considerable irritation at the White House over the way senators and representatives are pawing over the proposed neutrality law. "Storm cellar boys" is the popular phrase around the executive offices and in the State department for the school following Senator Gerald P. Nye, which would remove all discretion whatever from the President the moment war broke out anywhere in the world, and clamp airtight embargoes on a Mede and Persian list of commodities which might not be shipped.

There is almost as much resentment against the Borah school, which holds that the "freedom of the seas," for which doctrine our country fought one well-remembered and one mostly forgotten war, must never be surrendered.

There is no proposal to surrender the freedom of the seas, State department officials insist. The rule, they say, would merely be suspended in time of war. It is on all fours, they point out, with the inalienable right of a pedestrian to cross a public highway. That right is not surrendered when the pedestrian waits for a speeding automobile to go by. The pedestrian retains his rights, and also his life. They even recalled the old safety-first refrain:

"He was right, dead right," as he rushed along,
But he's just as dead as though he'd been wrong."

To which the Borah followers retort that freedom of the seas either means something or it does not. In peace time it means absolutely nothing. Nobody questions it. It is only in war time that it becomes important.

It is against the strait-jacket advocates, however, that the White House is most bitter. It is not much worried by Senator Borah's arguments. Effective as the Idaho lion may be in debate, the administration thinks he is on the unpopular side of the neutrality question. It thinks the country is set on going just as far as possible, regardless of rights involved, to keep out of war.

Neutrality Law

In fact, it is this very sentiment which handicaps President Roosevelt and Secretary of State Hull in getting the neutrality law framed as they would like it—investing most of the power and discretion in the President. There is strong support out in the country, as manifested not only by letters to Capitol Hill, but communications to the White House, in favor of shutting off exports of every sort, which would be useful in prosecuting war, to all belligerents the moment war starts. The argument appears again and again in letters that every ounce of discretion written into the bill contributes just that much to the nation that thinks it suffers from the exercise of that discretion regarding the United States as an enemy.

Meanwhile the actions of Senators Nye and Clark in attempting to throw mud on the memory of Woodrow Wilson is little short of flabbergasting to their colleagues. The objects of each are obvious. Bennett Clark's animus against the war President goes back to the Baltimore convention, when although his father, Champ Clark, had won most of the Presidential primaries and had the most delegates, Wilson, with the assistance of William Jennings Bryan, was nominated.

CHEAP OATS IS A DESIRABLE FEED FOR BROOD SOWS

Cheap oats this winter make it desirable to include this grain in the ration of the brood sow, believes C. C. Culbertson of the Animal Husbandry Section at Iowa State College. Feeding 2 pounds of oats per day per sow along with enough corn to keep the sows in good condition will help farmers to utilize efficiently the feed they have on hand.

The amount of corn necessary for best condition varies upward from about 2½ pounds per sow daily, depending on her weight and present condition. A legume hay, such as alfalfa or leafy soybean hay, should be accessable to the pregnant sows at all times. This is best provided in racks but can be distributed on the ground if racks aren't available.

Some good protein supplement is necessary for the best development of the pigs. One-fourth to one-half gallon of skimmilk per day is probably the best protein for brood sows, but this product is not usually available in large enough amounts. Tankage fed at the rate of about .4 pound per sow per day or soybeans fed at the rate of approximately .8 pound per day per sow makes a good protein feed. Around .6 pound per day per sow of soybean oilmeal is another protein supplement that is suitable for pregnant sows.

With a well balanced ration, including a mineral mixture, and adequate exercise brood sows should stay in top condition and produce strong pigs.

WAS PIONEER RESIDENT OF HANCOCK COUNTY

At One Time Was Proprietor Of The Klemme Hotel

Thomas Elder was born Aug. 31, 1854 in Pennsylvania. He was the third of a family of four children born to his parents, George W. Elder and Emily H. Bomsoll.

At the age if 19 he migrated with his parents to Hancock County. This was just after the Civil War and they were among the first settlers in this county and they selected a farm near the river where they would be sure to have water to drink and timber for fuel and to build the log house. This was the farm in Avery twp. now occupied by Harry Trumbell and family.

Here Thomas Elder grew to manhood. He attended such schools as the community provided and at the age of 21 he himself became a teacher and taught in the rural schools of Hancock County for four winters (1875 to 1878).

In April 1874 Thomas Elder and Charlotte Hewitt, a daughter of Joseph Hewitt, one of the two first settlers in the Clear Lake territory were married. To this union were born four daughters: Ethel, Mrs. A. R. White, Goodell, Iowa; Nora, Mrs. James Fry, and Agnes, Mrs. Frank Ward, of Bennett, Colorado; Evelyn, Mrs. H. H. Johnson, Panama Canal Zone.

In 1879 Mr. Elder purchased the general merchandise store in the village of Amstedam, at the time known as "Upper Grove." His store was located just east of the river bridge. He was also postmaster and his store was a busy place until the B. C. R. & N. railroad came thru and missed his town. He then moved to Belmond where he owned and operated a Creamery for several years.

In the spring of 1909 Thomas Elder and his family purchased the Klemme Hotel which they operated for five years. Mr. Elder then traded the Hotel for a ranch near Bennett, Colorado. Here he bought and sold real estate for the last twenty pears.

Thomas Elder died of heart failure Monday afternoon, Jan. 27th, 1936 having reached the age of 81 years, 4 months, and 27 days. He leaves to mourn his passing: his wife and his four daughters.

Funeral services will be held either Friday of Saturday depending upon the arrival of the remains from Colorado. Services at the home of his daughter, Mrs. A. R. White at Goodell. Those who desire to attend the funeral services may call Arthur Wellemeyer, funeral director, for information as to the time set. Interment will be made in Amsterdam cemetery.

Tugwell's Middle Name Is Haste

In Less Than Five Months He Organized Staff of 12,089.

WASHINGTON. — To Prof. Rexford Guy Tugwell goes the palm for speed in organizing a new governmental unit.

It is common knowledge that government bureaus and agencies can spring up like jack-in-the-box. No private business organization ever has been put together with the speed—and waste—that characterizes creation of a government agency once its birthright is established by congress or by executive order of the President.

Tugwell's 12,089 Employees.

Professor Tugwell, who is paid $10,000 a year as under-secretary of agriculture, is the rural resettlement administrator. When he was relieved of Agricultural department duties by President Roosevelt and told to carry out the resettlement plan, he developed an organization in a manner that left other officials gasping. Starting with only himself and his secretary, he built a staff embracing 12,089 in slightly less than five months, all on the government pay roll.

As resettlement administrator, it is Professor Tugwell's job to transfer farm families from rundown land to other parts of the country where they can make a living. Destitute and unemployed families in cities who are willing to become farmers also will be moved by Professor Tugwell. He will build farm homes, barns and outbuildings and equip them.

Distribution of Funds.

President Roosevelt gave Professor Tugwell $240,000,000 to use in this way, the conviction being that a vast amount of employment would be created in the building and equipping of these new farms.

To date, according to the latest figures made public by the President, the resettlement administration has been able to give work to its own staff of 12,089 and 5,012 unemployed who are working directly on the relief project. So, Professor Tugwell has a staff for management that is more than twice the number of unemployed who have been given jobs. His staff draws a total of $1,750,000 a month in salaries while the relief workers on the resettlement projects are being paid a total of $300,000 a month.

Potato Act to Cost More than Dry Laws

Washington, D. C.—Operation of the New Deal's potato control act will be more costly than the enforcement of prohibition, a letter written by Rexford Guy Tugwell as acting secretary of agriculture and the reports of the bureau of industrial control, United States Treasury department, reveal.

"It appears that the first year's operation of the Potato Act will entail a cost of not less than $12,000,000," says Mr Tugwell's letter, addressed to the house committee on agriculture. "This minimum estimate for effective operation covers merely the expenses of the Agricultural Adjustment administration during the first year of the act The cost of printing and distributing stamps, as well as the enforcement and other activities of the Bureau of Internal Revenue, have not been included in the $12,000,000."

Twelve million dollars, according to the bureau of industrial control, is more than the cost of enforcing prohibition in any year before 1930. Enforcement costs increased each year during prohibition.

New Deal Puts U. S. in "Hard Likker" Business

Washington.—The United States government, which for fourteen years imposed fines and prison sentences upon persons who manufactured liquor, has now gone into the business of manufacturing alcoholic liquor for sale to American citizens, under the sponsorship of the New Deal, according to Harold L. Ickes, secretary of the interior.

Ickes characterized the government-owned Virgin Islands rum plant as "one of the most successful ventures we've gone into" in the $3,300,000,000 PWA program. He said the government would be able to offer Americans Virgin Islands rum about the first of March.

"We now have some experts working out a recipe for a special Virgin Islands cocktail," he added.

Public Debt Soars

Washington.—Treasury figures, released as the second session of the Seventy-fourth congress opened, revealed that mounting expenditures added $1,857,000,000 to the gross federal debt during the first half of the current fiscal year. Between June 30, 1935, and December 31, the federal government spent $3,781,660,702, while revenues during the same period were only $1,902,009,509, leaving a deficit of $1,879,651,192, which compared with a deficit of $1,699,935,397 a year ago.

MR. AND MRS. FRANK KNOX
Chicago Publisher Mentioned for Republican Nomination for President, and His Wife, Taken on Holiday Vacation in Washington.

Knox Versatile Out-of-Door Man

Business Man, Editor, Party Worker Keeps Fit as He Works Hard.

In Frank Knox, the Chicago publisher, Illinois Republicans, who have unanimously endorsed him for the Republican nomination for President, have offered to the country the most versatile man in public life since Theodore Roosevelt. Unlike Roosevelt, however, Frank Knox has had an outstanding business and professional career and has never held public office. He is recognized as one of the best business men in the newspaper business. As an editor, his editorials have revealed an intelligent, alert and vigorous personality which have made him a public figure. In the metropolitan press of today such a combination of business acumen and editorial ability in one man is uncommon.

While engaged in making a success of his newspapers, Knox has achieved distinction in many other directions. He made an enviable record as a volunteer soldier in two wars. He has been in politics for thirty years, serving as precinct worker, state chairman, national convention floor leader for a Presidential candidate and has stumped two-thirds of the Union for national, congressional and state candidates.

On business, financial, economic, social welfare and political issues, Knox has always been on the liberal and progressive side of the argument. His public record of battles against monopoly, for social justice, for the betterment of farm and labor conditions and against un-American, coercive policies, fully attest this fact. In all his endeavors he has manifested vision and vigor as well as a keen sense of moral and spiritual values.

Knox plays as he works and it is in his out-of-door life that he has shown a versatility even greater than that of Theodore Roosevelt. Knox has not only been a hunter and a fisherman, but has paddled his own canoe through most of the rapids of the upper Great Lakes. He has driven his own pack train over the plains and mountains of half a dozen western states, ridden horseback over the mountains of New England and has followed a "chuck-wagon" and helped the Apaches in their fall round-up. He has visited every Indian reservation in the country. Knox can sail a boat, run a launch or automobile. He was an early devotee of the ski, the skate and the toboggan and is an expert swimmer. Nowadays he packs a heavy bag of golf clubs and has used them on links in all parts of the country.

Early in his married life Mr. and Mrs. Knox explored the Great Lakes and Hudson Bay country. Moose and deer, trout and the "musky" fell before their prowess with rifle and rod, Mrs. Knox proving an expert fly-fisherman. From his log cabin home on the St. Mary's river, Knox went to work or to cruise in his launch, sailboat or canoe. There he learned the ice and snow sports. In New England he added horseback riding to his accomplishments. As a member of the Board of Indian Commissioners he made his vacations riding expeditions to the out-of-the-way Indian reservations with Mrs. Knox. They studied the Indians and took steps in Washington to remedy their living conditions, an interest they still continue.

While engaged in this work, Knox cleared the Montana range of 30,000 useless wild horses which were canned and sent to Japan. In their place he had the army remount service send blooded stallions to be bred with the rugged cow and Indian ponies of the Northwest. The result has been better mounts for the army and better horses for the Indians.

Although Knox has never held public office, with this record in front of them, Illinois Republicans do not hesitate to proclaim the qualifications of their candidate as an all-around, up-to-date, constructive man and statesman.

Frank Knox Is Fighting Editor

With Pen and Fists He Upholds Editorial Independence.

Not many years ago it was customary, and sometimes a necessity, for every newspaper office to have one member of its staff who bore the title of "fighting editor." Most of the leaders of American journalism grew up in that school, including Frank Knox, the Chicago publisher, who is the "favorite son" of Illinois Republicans for the presidential nomination this year.

Knox got into the newspaper business by accident. As a trooper in the Rough Riders in the Spanish war he wrote letters home to his anguished mother and proud father. The latter had them printed in the "home town" newspapers. When Knox returned from the war, both papers in Grand Rapids, Mich., offered him a job. He joined the staff of the Grand Rapids Herald and quickly discovered that not all the fighting was done in a war.

One day an irate citizen who objected to a crusade the paper was carrying on rushed into the shop to "clean up the editor." Knox launched himself into the fray and, with the aid of another reporter, succeeded in propelling the intruder down the stairs. Thereupon, the "fighting editor," who had armed himself with a fifteen-pound copy of Webster's dictionary, heaved it after him. It happened to strike the angry citizen squarely on the head and knocked him out completely.

A few years later Knox, with John A. Muehling, bought the Sault Ste Marie, Mich., News. At that time the "Soo" section was one of the toughest in the country. It was a dull day when there was not an affray of some kind. Knox began a "cleanup" crusade, fearlessly investigating, printing the facts and naming names. Finally he forced withdrawal of the license of the "big shot" of the town.

The "big shot" himself broke the news by announcing his intention to "finish that red-headed editor." Knox got his first intimation of trouble in the composing room when a reporter "tubed" a warning to him that the racketeer was on his way upstairs in spite of all they could do. Recalling that a surprise attack is often the best means of defense, Knox raced to the head of the stairs, met his adversary just as he reached the top, and anticipated his assault with an uppercut to the chin which toppled him down stairs again. A passing policeman took the man to the hospital.

There was nothing funny whatever about Knox's next conflict with the underworld of the "Soo." Somebody stood on the sidewalk across the street from his office and plunked a bullet through the window near his desk. The bullet hole was still there when Knox sold the paper in 1912 and moved to New Hampshire.

On another occasion a drunk, armed with a carving knife, called to "carve up the editor." Knox was in a nearby cubby-hole office, cut off from all means of escape. He advanced on the man with a demand that he "drop that knife and get out." At the same time Knox was ready to leap the counter, sprint or fight, if necessary to uphold his personal objection to being carved up by anybody. To his astonishment, however, the man pocketed his knife and walked out without another word.

Present day editors rarely ever have such experiences. There has been a change, not only on the part of the reading public but in the newspapers themselves. Without fear or favor, editors of the fighting type of Knox now carry on their crusades through the publication of facts and fair interpretations, knowing that those who disagree with them nevertheless recognize their sincerity of purpose in the service of the public. His battle to preserve a free press under NRA is well known to his newspaper colleagues.

Leap Year Is With Us Again, and Here's What Causes It

Keeps Seasons in Order, Gives Fair Maidens Their Chance.

This is leap year and February 29 is the cause of it. But the cause of February 29 dates back to 46 B C. when the astronomers of Julius Caesar figured out that the solar year (the time it takes the earth to complete its orbit around the sun) was 365 days and six hours.

The six hours stumped them until they decided to add an extra day to every fourth year and make that 366th day February 29. This is "leap" year because the extra day causes the calendar to leap over a day of the week after February 29. Ordinarily the calendar rotates just one day because 365 is one over 52 seven day weeks. Thus, March 1 fell on Friday last year, but will fall on Sunday instead of Saturday this year.

Pope Suppresses Ten Days.

The Julian astronomers didn't have the thing down pat, however, for the solar year is actually 365 days, 5 hours, 48 minutes and 45.51 seconds. By the time Pope Gregory XIII decided to act in 1582 A. D. the dates of the year had shifted 10 days out of season. To correct this Pope Gregory ordered that October 5, 1582, be made October 15, 1582. To take care of the discrepancy occurring thereafter Pope Gregory's astronomers decided that leap year should be omitted on every century year not divisible by 400. Leap year won't be surprossed again until 2100 A. D.

Anyway, leap year has a more romantic aspect. By tradition, if not by practice, it is the time a woman can propose marriage to a man. The origin of this counter attack in the love suit is less satisfactorily explained than the Julian and Gregorian calendars.

But apparently Margaret of Norway, who became queen of Scotland, started the thing in 1288 A. D. by saying there ought to be a law. She decreed that during the leap years of her reign every "mayden ladye of bothe highe and lowe estait shall hae liberte to bespeake ye man she likes." And if a bachelor didn't like taking the proponent to be his lawful "wyfe" he could be "mulcted" (fined) one pound or less. His only "out" was to be already engaged.

Calendar Accepted Rapidly.

The Gregorian calendar was accepted in Italy, Spain, and Portugal on the same day it was ordered in Rome. In France it was accepted before the year was ended and in 1583 by the Catholic states of Germany. The German Protestant states retained the Julian calendar until 1700 when Sweden and Denmark also changed to the Gregorian or "new style" calendar. Russia held to the Julian calendar until the soviet union was formed.

In Great Britain the Julian calendar was abolished by the act of 1750. That same year saw the change in the British colonies in America. The birthday of George Washington, which was February 11 under the Julian calendar, became February 22 when the change occurred.—Chicago Tribune.

All-Occasion Frock That Is Flattering

PATTERN 2388

Here's an all-occasion frock of great charm and versatility which you can make with very little effort, and at a surprising saving. There's flattery—there's loveliness, in every line, whether you've a naturally youthful silhouette, or one more generously proportioned. Don't you love the smooth simplicity of a V-shaped yoke, and the dainty bit of rich lace at the throat? It's grand and warm in sheer wool—dressy in novelty crepe, lustrous or dull satin.

Pattern 2388 is available in sizes 16, 18, 20, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44. Size 36 takes 3⅞ yards 39 inch fabric, and ⅛ yard 4 inch lace. Illustrated step-by-step sewing instructions included.

SEND FIFTEEN CENTS (15c) in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for this pattern. Write plainly name, address and style number. BE SURE TO STATE SIZE.

Address orders to the Sewing Circle Pattern Dept., 243 W. Seventeenth St., New York City.

FLOYD GIBBONS Adventurers' Club

Hello, Everybody!

"Under Fire of 12-Inch Guns"

By FLOYD GIBBONS

Famous Headline Hunter.

"JOIN the Navy and See the World!" Yes sir, and run into a lot of high adventure, too! You don't need a war to get adventure in Uncle Sam's High Seas Flotilla. No sir-ree. There's just about as much action in peace times there as there is when the big shells are flying.

Ex-Gob Charlie Sramek will bear me out in that. Won't you, Charlie? Charlie, once many years ago, swung his hammock between decks of the old U. S. Battleship Rhode Island when that, now obsolete mass of steel, was a first class fightin' ship. And Charlie's biggest thrill came in peace time, too.

It happened when the whole Atlantic battleship fleet was off Chesapeake bay for the purpose of testing out new equipment. All the big shots, Charlie says, were aboard ship to see the tests. Among the new ideas they were testing out were the skeleton masts—afterwards adopted and now discarded—new shrapnel shells and a new type of armor-plated turret.

The old discarded battleship Texas was fitted up with these masts and gun turrets with the idea of using the old ship as a test case. In the turrets of the Texas were placed live animals, to take the place of sailors during the tests, to see how they survived direct hits in the new shelter. The whole fleet would then tear loose with their twelve-inch guns and see what happened. The battleships lay about eight miles away from the target ship Texas, while large sea-going naval tugs carried officials and judges from Washington to inspect the results of the fire.

Going Out to See What Happened to Target.

After the first salvo of heavy guns Charlie was instructed to man a 40-foot steam launch, of which he was coxswain, and take a group of officers to the target. The sea was high but the waves were running toward the Texas and the launch had no trouble to make the ship. The naval tugs were already there when it scraped against the lee side of the Texas and the officers went aboard.

Well, sir, the tugs left and were well away before the launch started. By now the sea was plenty high and Charlie's boat had a tough time getting away from the target ship. The waves and wind kept blowing the light launch back to the Texas as fast as her engine pulled her away.

"I didn't worry much at that," Charlie writes, "until we heard a screeching sound that made our little crew go green. The screech was caused by a shell and was followed by an explosion that lifted our craft right out of the water and sent a geyser that seemed miles high straight up in the air not fifty feet from us!

Death Drops Like Rain From Heaven.

"It was a 12-inch shell! The battleships had opened fire! They were so far away that they couldn't see us and they all started throwing 12-inch shells, like buck shot, all around us! The detonations were terrific as we bounced about in the rough water, made rougher still by the tons of explosives dropping on all sides!"

"An Inferno of Shells Fell All Around Us."

Talk about a war! Why no fleet in the world ever threw so many shells at so small a target. Charlie says it seemed as though they were shooting at him instead of the Texas. The launch rolled and bucked in the churning water like a bucking bronco. The engineer and fireman gave the engine all she had and sweated blood under their pale skins, but still they couldn't get out of that range!

Each shell Charlie knew weighed more than his entire boat and crew and they could all imagine what would happen if one shell landed just a little nearer!

The Shells Get Closer and Closer.

Wham! A geyser shot into the air as high as Old Faithful and when it came down it landed right on the boat! The men were drenched and the boat nearly swamped. The engine stopped with a hiss as a ton of water poured down the smoke stack and drowned the fires. The engineer, Charlie says, just averted the explosion of the boiler in time by opening the safety valve!

And then, as though their troubles had not been enough, they drifted helplessly back to the side of the Texas! It seemed funny to be in a small boat that might sink any minute, bobbing dangerously against a big battleship and still not able to climb aboard. They could have, of course, but all knew sudden death was a stowaway on that ship. The shells were bound to hit her soon. Charlie had a better chance—slim as it was—on his own boat. He stripped to shorts and waited for the shot that would throw him in the water. Charlie writes:

"And all the time an inferno of shells fell all around us. It was the most helpless feeling in the world. The sort of feeling you get when an enemy air fleet is dropping bombs on you or when an earthquake hits you.

Heading for Mid-Ocean and Nothing to Save Them.

"After what seemed hours under fire, but what was no doubt only half an hour or so, our boat slipped around the Texas and the heavy wind and waves drove us out of range. Boy! What an escape! But it wasn't an escape after all. There we were in a half swamped boat heading for the middle of the Atlantic ocean!

"And we couldn't do a thing about it. We figured the ships had given us up for lost by this time and believe me we were a sad lot on that drifting launch. All we did was bail and hope and hope and bail!"

Soon the bulk of the old Texas was swallowed up in the mist and that's when Charlie did think it was Davy Jones' Locker for all of them. He started figuring how big the ocean was and how small he was and Lloyd's would have given a hundred to one on the ocean. The shooting finally stopped in the distance and except for the swishing of the waves against the boat and around the feet of the occupants all was silent—the silence of the grave!

Well, sir, Charlie goes on to tell how, just as they had about given up hope of ever being found, a sharp prowed destroyer suddenly knifed the waves within a few feet of their launch. A yell went up from every voice on that launch. They were sighted, a rope thrown to them and soon the destroyer landed them safe and sound on the old Rhode Island!

And if that, boys and girls, is the sort of thing that can happen in peace times let's hope we won't be dragged into the next war.

Found Plow That Turned Soil With Singing Sound

Of the many steps by which plows have progressed from the crooked, stick powered by the muscles of man to modern methods of turning the soil, none were more important than improvements undertaken by James Oliver beginning in 1853. Oliver wanted a plow that would "turn the soil with a singing sound," says a record of the bureau of agricultural engineering.

Cast-iron plows made about that time were superior to wooden plows but they wore too rapidly and would not scour properly in the rich, sticky soils of the Mississippi and Ohio valleys. They "rooted, but would not invert, the soil."

Oliver's experiments led him to obtain several patents for the process of hardening or "chilling the nose and cutting edge of the share." Thus he realized his ambition for a plow that "sang" as it cut its way through rich prairie sod or heavy soil.

A Barcarolle

A barcarolle (Italian and French, little boat) is a boat song made popular by Venetian gondoliers, also any musical composition which suggests the characteristic manner and rhythm of the Venetian boat song, such as the "Barcarolle," from "Tales of Hoffman," by Jacques Offenbach.

BRISBANE THIS WEEK

Not Spoiled by Money
Freedom of the Air
500 Air Miles for $6
Jones Still Will Lend

Another airplane record. Howard Hughes, flying 18,000 feet up much of the way, came from Los Angeles to Newark in 9 hours 27 minutes 10 seconds. High up, where air resistance is less, using a super-charging engine and helping his own lungs with oxygen from a tank, Mr. Hughes beat the existing record held by Col. Roscoe Turner of 10 hours 2 minutes 51 seconds.

Arthur Brisbane

Mr. Hughes proves that being rich does not always spoil young Americans. He flew from ocean to ocean without a stop, 2,450 miles, at an average speed of 260 miles an hour.

Big broadcasting companies refuse to allow the Republican party to broadcast "laughable skits" on the "New Deal."

Now, or after some worth-while upheaval, "freedom of the air" will have to be dealt with as was "freedom of the press" when the Constitution was written.

For radio companies to say to the party in power, "Because we fear you we shall take you to every home in the country and let you say what you please, and shall refuse to give the same publicity to your opponents," might not suit the American idea.

It is good news that Henry Ford has gone back to airplane building. His last trimotor plane was produced in 1931.

His new two-passenger plane, with V-8 engine turning the propeller 4,000 times a minute, carries 30 gallons of gasoline, with a flying range above 500 miles. Five hundred miles of air travel for $6 worth of gasoline for two passengers would be cheap transportation.

Henry Ford will begin manufacturing planes seriously, "if and when conditions demand volume production worth while."

Jess Jones, chairman of Reconstruction Finance corporation, tells the banks that he will go on lending government money until they make credit and loans easier.

Mr. Jones says: "The big fellow, with unquestionable credit, borrows on his own terms, at low rates. Credit for the average business is too sparingly given, at much higher rates."

There is rioting in Porto Rico, numbers killed and wounded in various places. It is said a Porto Rico "Young Men's party" has decided to separate Porto Rico from the United States, inspired perhaps by the departure of the Philippines.

It is supposed that this government will tell the "Young Porto Rico" gentlemen that they will not be allowed to separate, and might as well forget about it.

This country, in the way of protection, resources, education and civilization, is necessary to Porto Rico, and strategically Porto Rico is useful to the United States.

What would England say if Jamaica should announce "We wish to leave the British Empire?"

The beginning of the new year in Germany sees the death of 1,000 newspapers, "suspended" by official order because they opposed Nazi rule. Chancellor Hitler perhaps remembers Napoleon's statement: "If I granted liberty of the press, my government could not last three weeks."

He might also remember that some governments that refused liberty of the press have also failed to last. The government of the czars was of that kind. Sitting on the safety valve is one way, but not the safest.

Mr. S. L. Rothafel, known to theatergoers as "Roxy," is dead at fifty-three. While he slept his heart stopped, like a watch not wound. Men die too young in America, and weakened hearts kill many. Life spent without exercise or an adequate supply of oxygen explains the deaths. Man is physically a machine; his heart is the engine, and heart disease kills more useful men than any other disease in modern times.

Signs of recovery, most important, are increased sales of automobiles, increased use of telephones. Mr. Gifford of the big telephone company shows that in December, 1935, the number of telephones increased 47,848, against a 21,146 increase in December, 1934.

"Little rains," which we should call hard rains in this country, interfere with Mussolini's operations in Ethiopia. Soon will come the "big rains," torrential downpours, making roads impassable, except concrete roads. The Italians have built some highways. There are, however, other roads, unknown to ancient Ethiopia—the roads of the air.

Mussolini's men may continue on those roads, with disastrous results for Ethiopia, in spite of rains, "little" and "big."

Fabric "Firsts" Arrive for Spring

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

FABRIC "firsts" for midseason and spring are even at this early date staging a great show in big stores as well as stores not so big. If nerves are tired and winter gloom begins to pall why not slip away for a few hours from dull care and go meandering down aisle after aisle of the new materials? It will act like a tonic. Try it.

There are quite a few things to learn about the new fabrics. Generally speaking both the linens and the cottons are taking on a soft crepey finish which is "different." Then, too, there is a tendency toward rough spongy finishes and novel nubbed weaves. Patternings show decided originality and in instances are almost amusing The modernized prints depict bars and music notes, or perhaps shell or fish motifs and the newest thing is vegetable designs, and they are wonderfully good-looking. Very new, too, is the Tyrolean button motif which takes its cue from the bright painted wooden buttons that adorn peasant frocks and smocks and jackets.

It is well to keep in mind that cottons are scheduled to play a tremendously important role in the scheme of things. You will thrill at the sight of them. The newer types are positively baffling in that they so often give the impression of being handsome wool suitings or spongy soft uncrushable linens. They are that good looking they may be smartly worn about town, the new nubbed cotton tweeds making up most satisfactorily into tailored jacket suits.

For the do-your-own-sewing group the new materials are nothing less than inspirational. One of the newcomers in the realm of smart cottons of which you will be wanting to order a dress length at first glimpse is twin-twine print, which looks more like a soft spongy loose woven linen canvas than anything else. You'll love this rough-surfaced cotton. It is cool and casual, doesn't crush, has practically no wear-out to it and is every inch smart and attractive in appearance. It has a hand-loomed effect with brilliant print on either white or natural grounds. The patterning is interesting, including square dot motifs in bright peasant blues and reds on natural, also florals in orange, green and brown. An allover scroll patterning in deep red on natural is, perhaps, handsomest of all.

The smart tailored coat frock pictured to the right is fashioned of dark-red-on-natural scroll-patterned twin-twine. Black grosgrain binds the collar and front closing. Black bar buttons and patent leather belt are used as trim accent.

The other gown pictured is a spectator sports mode done in a soft jersey type fabric of bemberg with narrow white stripes on deep toned grounds. The convertible neckline, ascot scarf and graceful cape sleeves are each fashion-right. This handsome fabric wears beautifully, resists wrinkling and is cool, sleek and slim under your topcoat. It is shown also in white grounds with bright colored stripes for wear when the warmer days come. It tubs or dry cleans nicely and easily presses slick and suave as new. Jersey type fabrics are fashion news this year and are sponsored by leading designers of Paris, London and American style centers.

STYLE ACCENTS

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

With smart Parisiennes black with beige or tan or mustard or related tones is proving a very important color theme for midseason with promise of its increasing popularity for spring. For style-alert American women the new and exceedingly attractive accessory pigskin sets, as illustrated, offer an excellent opportunity to carry out the voguish black and beige alliance. For sophisticated town wear one could scarcely conceive of anything smarter in the way of style accent than the tailored natural color pigskin trio of bag, belt and hat as complement to a chic black coat after the manner pictured. The vogue for leather trimmings and trappings promises to be as insistent for spring as it has been the winter through.

WARM FABRICS ARE FAVORED BY WOMEN

Fabrics are of exceptional interest in their variety. The most important group is definitely irregular in nubbed weaves with a marked hint of informality entirely consistent with a more colorful season.

The really formal coat tends toward smoother, softly napped materials. Forstmann, the creator of these woolens, well realizes that winters in the United States bring frigid winds and low temperatures.

The slender silhouette, clinging lines and the response of the fabric to drape and tailoring are important factors, but women, young and old, want comfort in cold weather. They want physical comfort as well as the psychological comfort that comes from rich textures and deep colors.

Infinite Variety Is Shown in Apparel and Fabrics

Fashion this season has given a great deal for which to be thankful. She certainly has provided infinite variety in apparel for all occasions. Skirts of all widths and lengths, with necklines high and low, hats tilted fore and aft, crown low and high, sleeves as you like 'em. And such color and fabric distinction! In a season agog over novelty fabrics, most of them on the roughish side, slipper satin comes into position in the foremost ranks.

To the gorgeousness of metal cloths and velvets is added the charm of taffeta and the grace of chiffon. One may or may not use trimming, or choose between pleats and tucks.

Newest Color Fashion

The color of the moment is "golden wedding," a rich, warm shade of gold which lends itself well to formal evening clothes and to cruise and southern resort clothes. In silk, wool and cotton, this new tone is sure to be especially flattering to sun-tanned complexions.

Keeping Up With Science

Rubber Barrels, Glass Mattresses Will Soon Appear

Novelties Are Shown at Chemical Exposition

NEW YORK.—New developments of the chemical industry from rubber acid-resistant barrels to mattresses made of glass were exhibited at Grand Central Palace here in the Exposition of Chemical Industries.

The rubber barrels are the latest safety device for shipping and handling such dangerous chemicals as hydrofluoric acid which will quickly eat its way through ordinary glass containers. The barrels, half as big as beer kegs, will stand 40 pounds to the square inch internal pressure and exterior forces of from 1,000 to 2,000 pounds without injury.

Mattresses of Glass "Wool."

The glass mattresses consist of glass "wool," the finely spun fibers of glass which are packed into a mattress in place of hair or cotton commonly used. Shown by the same exhibitor were glass ropes and twine for use where the material will come in contact with chemicals or heat which would destroy ordinary twine.

Liquid heat, a special high melting point chemical, was also shown. The material is used in heat treating steel by dipping it into a bath of the liquid. The melting point of the substance is 1,100 degrees Fahrenheit.

Gold, Silver, Find Use.

Gold and silver coated tubing or sheet metal, for use in chemical industries where stainless steel and other ordinarily non-corrosive alloys are worthless, attracted attention.

Gold-coated tubing can be manufactured for from 1/100 to 1/10 the cost of a solid gold pipe. In fabrication a layer of the pipe metal of a thickness of one half inch is soldered to a layer of gold in whatever proportion the final thickness of the coating is desired. This heavy thick twin metallic "sandwich" is then cold-rolled into a thin sheet and the two materials—costly and inexpensive—retain their original proportions.

Urges Planting of Weeds to Cover Dust Storm Area of West

PLANT weeds! This seemingly heretical suggestion is offered by Prof. Paul B. Sears, botanist of the University of Oklahoma, as possible answer to the challenge of plow-ripped, drouth-scourged, wind-drifted lands in the West.

Plant weeds, says Professor Sears, and he points out why:

"It is vital that some cover, no matter what, be developed here without delay. Nature has furnished a hint. Throughout this region after the drouth was well begun the despised Russian thistle did so well that it was often the only plant available for stock feed.

"Instead of seeding the area with costly grass seed, whose success is a gamble, it might be sensible to mix in a good proportion of weed seeds. If the land is abandoned, weeds will be the first cover anyhow, and as we have seen, they are a transient affair at best, preparing the way for the better kinds of plants."

Lest we should think Professor Sears' proposal too daring, he hastens to offer a precedent—always a consoling thought to the conservatism ingrained even in pioneers and experimenters:

"Actually the method is not new. There is a brilliant example of its use on the bare clay slopes of the huge Ohio conservancy dams north of Dayton, which today are held in perfect condition by a dense, well developed sod."

"The success of this plant cover was insured from the start by the deliberate use of the cheapest, weediest mixtures of grass and clover seed that could be obtained. The weeds took hold at once, but their more genteel companions are now in full possession, just as the coonskin cap and leather jacket have been replaced by the fedora and business suit in the one-time wilderness beyond the Alleghenies."

Battle-Scarred Ethiopia Has Vulture Butterflies

LONDON.—Vultures and jackals, at their grim repulsive feasts after battle among the Ethiopian hills, may be joined by a third group of guests—dainty-looking butterflies!

One species among Ethiopian butterflies, known to scientists as Charaxes lactetinctus, is stated to prefer feeding on ill-smelling substances. Possibly these butterflies are the only creatures to which the present war is an unmixed boon.

"Fingerprinted" Beam Will Probe Mysteries on High

New Scientific Marvel to Transcend "Strato"

WASHINGTON. — A new method of discovering what exists in the unexplored upper air beyond the reach of balloons, some 20 to 50 miles above the earth, has been developed by three Washington physicists connected with the Carnegie Institution's department of terrestrial magnetism and the United States Department of Agriculture's bureau of chemistry and soils.

Searchlights will be used to shoot light into the night sky, light that is "fingerprinted" by being interrupted at a given frequency using a "light-chopper" so that when it is scattered by the upper air and picked up by large mirrors it can be recognized by tuning the observing instruments.

From what happens to the light in the upper air's greatest unknown region will come the answer to some questions that science is eagerly asking.

Will Probe Unfamiliar Strata.

How the thinning air's density varies with height some 30 miles above the stratosphere, in the regions known as the "ozonosphere" and the "alto-troposphere," will become known. This is important basic information now lacking.

The research team that has taken the first steps toward conquest of the region between where the stratosphere leaves off and the aurora begins to be born, consists of Dr. M. A. Tuve and Dr. E. A. Johnson of the Carnegie Institution of Washington and Dr. Oliver R. Wulf of the United States Department of Agriculture.

So far tests have been confined to an artificial light in the laboratory but field tests are being organized, probably with the aid of large army-type searchlights of great brilliance. Just one large searchlight is expected to furnish enough light for the experiment, thanks to the device of using "chopped" light.

Expect Other Solutions.

Once the delicate instruments are put into use analyzing the scattered "fingerprinted" light gathered by the mirror, the scientists expect to solve other numerous problems, connected with water vapor, turbulence, winds and dust, as well as the chemical state of the rarefied atmosphere that allows it to shine with fluorescent light at times.

In no other way can science adequately probe the region 20 to 50 miles above the earth. Man-carrying balloons' "highest up" is the 14 miles of the recent stratosphere flight. At about 60 miles above the earth there is found the base of the auroral displays and the first of the ionized or electrified layers that reflect radio waves. The region between stratosphere and the altostratosphere, which begins at about 60 miles, can be probed with no means so far suggested except the modulated Tuve-Johnson-Wulf light.

Using light as a probe was originally suggested about five years ago by an English scientist, Dr. E. H. Synge, who wanted the army and navy to assemble several hundred searchlights and shine them on one place in the upper air.

Low Temperature, Long Time Roasting Urged in British Cooking Tests

LONDON.—What the author calls a "new technique in cookery" with a potential saving of $350,000,000 a year to British housewives is described here.

The discovery, according to A. F. Dufton, is the use of low temperatures over long periods of time for the cooking of large cheap cuts of meats such as beef or mutton.

Whereas the recommended temperature for roasting meat is from 300 to 500 degrees Fahrenheit, says Mr. Dufton, the discovery is to cook the meat for some 15 hours at a temperature of but 212 degrees.

Using a mutton roast as a starter over the protestations of his wife, Mr. Dufton obtained a roast "delicious beyond all expectation."

A cheap boiling fowl, he reports, after 15 hours of the same treatment "was found to be as tender as chicken and as full-flavored as turkey."

The method, says the author of the report, results in a minimum saving of a penny a day per person in his family.

Germans Drinking More Unfermented Beverages

BERLIN.—Germany, home of the famous wines of the Rhine and the Moselle, is producing and using ever-increasing amounts of unfermented fruit beverages. Total production of these products in 1929 was only 8,000,000 liters; in 1935 the production had risen to 70,000,000 liters. (A liter is a little over a quart.) In nine years the German use of unfermented fruit beverages has multiplied over 30 times.

Eighty per cent of the total production is sweet cider, 12 per cent grape-juice, and the remaining 8 per cent is made up of miscellaneous berry and other fruit juices.

Studio Has 10,500 Props; Range From Armor to Gems

Each movie studio has a property department in which it stores a miscellaneous collection of nearly everything under the sun, says Popular Mechanics. In one collection there are 3,000 heavy pieces ranging from suits of armor to rugs and period bedsteads. Aside from these the studio has 7,500 "hand props" like jewelry and dishes. One room is piled high with different kinds of saddles, a third with paintings. Stands hold various types of umbrellas and walking canes. Wrist watches, necklaces and silverware are laid in cases. On the lot are different kinds of automobile bodies, replicas of ancient carts, and even a collection of small boats

If a studio needs something that it doesn't own, the chances are the item can be rented from one of the property houses, huge warehouses stacked with equipment.

Let's Be Builders of Good Works for Our Descendants

When we build, let us think that we build forever. Let it be not for present delight, nor for present use alone; let it be such work as our descendants will thank us for, and let us think, as we lay stone on stone that a time is to come when those stones will be held sacred because our hands have touched them, and that men will say as they look upon the labor and wrought substance of them, "See! this our fathers did for us."

Mothers read this:

A CONSTIPATED child is so easily straightened out, it's a pity more mothers don't know the remedy.

A liquid laxative is the answer, mothers. The answer to all your worries over constipation. A liquid can be measured. The dose can be exactly suited to any age or need. Just reduce the dose each time, until the bowels are moving of their own accord and need no help.

This treatment will succeed with any child and with any adult.

Doctors use liquid laxatives. Hospitals use the liquid form. If it is best for their use, it is best for home use. And today, there are fully a million families that will have no other kind in the house.

The liquid laxative generally used is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. It is a doctor's prescription, now so widely known that you can get it all ready for use at any drugstore.

BEFORE BABY COMES

Elimination of Body Waste Is Doubly Important

In the crucial months before baby arrives it is vitally important that the body be rid of waste matter. Your intestines must function—regularly, completely without griping.

Why Physicians Recommend Milnesia Wafers

These mint-flavored, candy-like wafers are pure milk of magnesia in solid form—much pleasanter to take than liquid. Each wafer is approximately equal to a full adult dose of liquid milk of magnesia. Chewed thoroughly, then swallowed, they correct acidity in the mouth and throughout the digestive system, and insure regular, complete elimination without pain or effort.

Milnesia Wafers come in bottles of 20 and 48, at 35c and 60c respectively, and in convenient tins for your handbag containing 12 at 20c. Each wafer is approximately one adult dose of milk of magnesia. All good drug stores sell and recommend them.

FARM & HOME WEEK PROGRAM IS NOW COMPLETE

Leading Public Officials, Prominent Farmers, State Leaders Will Speak

More than 50 leading public officials, prominent Iowa farmers and leaders of various state agricultural associations in addition to more than 150 Iowa State College faculty members are on the thirty-sixth annual Farm and Home Week program, which begins Monday, Feb. 3, at the college in Ames.

Monday's program includs a mass meeting address by Karl S. Bolander, artist, Columbus, Ohio; the annual meeting of the Iowa Agricultural Experiment Association; a colt breaking demonstration by Harry D. Linn, field representative of the Iowa Horse and Mule Breeders' association; livestock judging, and a rural religious workers' conference led by the Rev. W. A. Winterstein, Iowa Falls, of the Iowa Rural Religious Work Council.

Mass meeting speaker on Tuesday's program which is devoted to corn and hogs will be Chester A. Davis, former AAA administrator. Conferences will be held an agronomy, poultry, swine, landscape architecture, seed corn, farm machinery and power, farm management, and orcharding and small fruits.

On Wednesday Gov. W. I. Myers of the Farm Credit Administration will speak at the mass meeting. Agronomy, dairy cattle, horse, sheep poultry, seed corn, farm buildings, cooperative farm credit, landscape, garden flowers and Iowa game breeders' programs have also been arranged for that day.

Prof. O. B. Jesness, chief of the division of Agricultural Economics University of Minnesota, St. Paul, will speak at Thursday's mass meeting on what the recent trade agreement with Canada means to the Corn Belt. Iowa dairy breed associations, the Iowa state Dairy Association and the Iowa Beef Producers' Association will conduct meetings Thursday. Farm marketing and rural electrification conferences are also scheduled.

Dr. C. E. Friley, vice president of Iowa State, will deliver the main address at the annual Farm and Home dinner Thursday evening.

Dr. T. W. Schultz, head of the Agricultural Economics Department at Iowa State, will discuss the possibilities and limitation of land use planning in Iowa at the mass meeting on Friday. Beef, pork and lamb butchering, curing and cooking will be demonstrated on that day.

The Iowa Rural Young Peoples Assembly and the Parent Education Conference are also scheduled for Friday.

Due to the snow blocked roads and cold weather, the Birthday social planned Monday night at the M. E. Church was postponed and will be held the first Monday in March.

Six More Weeks Of Winter Ahead

AND THE GROUND HOG SAW HIS SHADOW SUNDAY

Unless Mr. Ground Hog was blind or wore smoked glasses he saw his own shadow Sunday, Feb. 2, for that day the sun was shining brightly.

According to tradition, or superstition, or what have you, we can expect six more weeks of cold weather. But, we are getting used to it now, and what is six weeks of cold weather?

MASON CITY COACH NAMED TO OLYMPIC FINANCE COMMITTEE

Ames, Iowa:—The appointment of Judge Grimsley, Mason City high school and Junior College coach, as district chairman of the state Olympic finance committee has been announced by H. J. Schmidt, director of intramural athletics at Iowa State College and state chairman of the committee.

Grimsley will be in charge of soliciting funds to send the United States athletes to the Olympic games in Berlin, Germany this summer. His jurisdiction will be over the ninth district, which includes Winnebago, Worth, Mitchell, Howard, Winneshiek, Allamakee Hancock, Cerro Gordo, Floyd, Hamilton, Wright, Franklin, Hardin and Chickasaw counties.

Things may not be as bad as they seem, but they seem to be.

SHIPS

By Minnie Case Hopkins

ACROSS the sea-blue of the sky
The soft white clouds go drifting by,
Looking for all the world to me
Like white ships sailing out to sea—

LIKE those white ships with silver beams
That go afar in search of dreams;
O sea, be calm! Be kind, O sun,
And bring them safely home, each one.

FOR I remember, here today,
A fair white ship that sailed away
Long ago on a sky-blue sea,
And brought a love-dream back to me.

Declamatory Contest Tuesday Next Week

TWELVE SPEAKERS ON SCHOOL PROGRAM FOR TUESDAY EVE

Twelve high school boys and girls appear on the annual declamatory program for Tuesday night. The oratorical division is represented by six speakers, the dramatic by three and the humorous by four speakers. Most of the contestants are "veterans", having appeared in former contests.

By turning to the program you will note that one high school lad Franklin Kluckhohn, appears in both Oratorical and Humorous. "Tiny" went a long way last year as a humorous speaker.

Special music will be given by the orchestra under the direction of Miss Ford.

MORE SNOW, MORE WIND, MORE BLOCKED ROADS

Another heavy snow and a stiff wind Monday piled snow drifts higher than ever and roads that have been passable are blocked up tight. Many side roads are in such a condition it is impossible to open them up. State highways were kept open and some of the main roads, but the Monday storm has fixed most roads for good.

Deputy Gunning For Sheriff Job

"DUTCH" BROWER CANDIDATE FOR COUNTY SHERIFF

L. M. "Dutch" Brower this week places his announcement in The Klemme Times as a candidate for Sheriff on the Republican ticket.

"Dutch" is twenty-nine years old and has been deputy Sheriff since 1933 and is well acquainted with the duties of the office. Mr. Brower has lived all his life in Hancock County and attended the Kanawha high school. For some time "Dutch" was employed by the town of Kanawha as night marshall.

As far as his duties as deputy sheriff are concerned, the writer has found no criticism there, and what we know of "Dutch" we can state that he is a clean-cut youn, man and should be able to handle the affairs of the office he seeks.

The writer has known "Dutch for several years and we have ever confidence in his ability.

Klemme Couple Were Married At Clarion

TANNER-CAROLUS

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Tanner of near Klemme announce the marriage of their eldest daughter, Anna to Mr. Richard Carolus, son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Carolus of Belmond on Tuesday, Jan. 21 at the Methodist parsonage in Clarion.

The bride wore a dark blue crepe dress and the groom wore a dark blue suit. They were attended by Mr. and Mrs. Jakee TerHart, of Clarion.

Mrs. Carolus graduated from the Klemme High School with the class of 1935. The newly-weds will make their home near Galt where they will work for John Poolman.

LITTLE GERMAN BAND PLACED SIXTH IN FT. DODGE CONTEST

The Little German Band, sponsored by the Klemme Auxiliary and which won the county contest, represented Hancock County at Fort Dodge Saturday in the district contest in which fourteen counties competed. The Little German Band, directed by Franklin Kluckhohn, won sixth place in the contest.

At Last War Vets Get A "Break"

HANCOCK CO. VETERANS WILL RECEIVE QUARTER MILLION

World war veterans in Hancock county will cut a slice of bonus mony totaling $251,115.93 as a result of the passage of the Vinson-Patman-McCormack bill, the soldier adjusted compensation compromise.

The figures released at Washington, D. C., show that 79,914 former soldiers in Iowa will receive $14,019,480.37.

The more than a quarter million dollars which may come into Hancock county, would go into many channels. Other counties in Iowa would share according to the number of veterans in each. Polk county leads the list with nearly three million.

Amounts figured by the veterans administration for other counties in this section of the state: Winnebago $222,971.00; Worth $189,387.26; Cerro Gordo $682,745.34; Kossuth $431,793.18.

Tournament Side-Lights

Green Suits Popular

Green and white basketball suits were popular at the tournament at Mason City last week end. Schools which sent teams to the meet in the Kelly color were Plymouth, Hanlontown, Otranto, Thompson, and the Klemme Shamrocks.

Hand Towels

One side-line critic wondered why one of the Klemme lads wore three knee guards.....one on his right knee and one around each shoe top. We discovered that he uses them as towels to keep his hands dry.

Needed More "2's"

Woden and Otranto made it tough going for the score-keepers when they tied the game at 22-22. There were only three 2's for the board.

Drowning Their Sorrow?

The Klemme team said they were going swimming in the Y pool if they lost to Rock Falls. We wonder if their losing had any connection with the fact that some of the Shamrocks went swimming twice?

Klotzbach On All-Team

If we were to pick out a tournament team from the schools represented we would name the following: Toky Ahrenkeil, Goodell, and Usher, Rock Falls, as forwards; Sheimo, of Fertile, center; Klotzbach, of Klemme, and Ouverson, of Fertile, guards. Jones, of Rock Falls, would be our next choice guard and Furness, of Fertile, as another forward.

Only a News-Hound

The important acting gentleman showing off his gold colored jacket was not running the tournament..... he was only a Globe-Gazette reporter.

CORN SHOW POSTPONED

The Farmers Institute or Corn Show dates have been postponed again. They have been changed to February 27 and 28th. Due to bad weather and roads it has been impossible for the play cast to get their rehearsals started. They hope for a change to good weather by the last of February.

KLEMME ISOLATED BECAUSE OF DRIFTING ROADS

Klemme was isolated from the rest of the world Tuesday as far as traffic was concerned as the Ludeke hill on the detour was blocked tight with snow, and those who tried to get through got their cars and trucks stuck. The early morning mail did not get into Klemme until nearly noon, when the carrier walked in with letters and newspapers only.

One of the bread truck drivers believed in giving service at any cost. He parked his truck on the highway and walked to town, bringing an armful of bread.

Most of the country boys and girls who are attending high school in Klemme secured room and lodging when the storm struck here Monday.

All of the country schools are again closed, as far as we can learn.

Cream haulers are having a tough time of it and are unable to make their routes. Likewise the mail carriers are up against it these days also, with most roads blocked.

HOG PRICES MAY VARY WIDELY BEFORE JULY FIRST

Day-to-day fluctuation in hog prices is probable from now until July 1 while hog supplies are at a low level, says a current issue of Agricultural Economic Facts, publication of the Iowa State College Extension Service.

Fluctuations in early January which were brought on by the lifting of the processing tax are a fair sample of what may happen later. No pronounced trend either up or down from present levels is expected in the next two months but short time ups and downs may be severe

Corn-Hog Ratio Favorable

Though the lifting of the hog processing tax caused considerable unsettlement in the hog market for a short time, the long-time effect of the decision on hog prices will be to raise the level and not to change the trend.

The adjustment of the hog market to the removal of the tax has been completed by this time, and there have been no outstanding developments in the hog situation in the last month that would change the course of prices.

Hog slaughter increased in December by about the usual percentage over November. During the first two weeks of the new year marketings were considerably heavier than a year earlier. The AAA decision resulted in a quick rise in hog prices and this attracted an increased volume.

Prices Adjusted Since Tax Removed

The favorable corn-hog feeding ratio resulted in longer and heavier feeding of hogs. The Iowa ratio was around 19 in mid-January, as compared with a long-time average of between 13 and 14. Already this has resulted in a larger proportion of heavy hogs in market receipts.

Strong consumer demand, however, is expected to offset these slightly larger supplies.

When LINCOLN "Coached" GRANT

BEHIND one of the most dramatic and important moments in the annals of the American people, in which Abraham Lincoln and General Grant were the chief actors, there is an appealing human story that to this day remains virtually unknown. It is revealed in obscure and priceless original documents, says a writer in the Washington Post.

The event to which the yellowing manuscripts relate is the appointment of Grant as lieutenant general in command of all the Union forces in the Civil war, an epochal step taken by President Lincoln more than 70 years ago.

Lincoln had watched with increasing satisfaction the military record of the stocky and taciturn Grant. With the victories at Vicksburg and Chattanooga, the President reached the decision to place him in command of all the Union armies. To this resolve Lincoln held despite extreme pressure from numerous disaffected elements.

Grant was called to the White House and told of the President's intention. Lincoln called Grant aside and told him he understood the general's "dread of public speaking," and in order to make things a bit easier on that score, he, the President, had written out "the few lines" he intended to say to Grant on the occasion of the formal delivery of the appointment.

With characteristic breadth of vision, Lincoln urged Grant to say something in reply which not only "would be an encouragement to the North," but which also "would soothe the feelings of jealousy among other officers of the army."

Thereupon, Lincoln handed over to Grant the firmly inscribed manuscript of the remarks he had prepared.

In the following words, President Lincoln turned the course of history:

Gen. Grant:

The Nation's appreciation of what you have done, and its reliance upon you for what remains to do in the existing great struggle, are now presented with this commission constituting you lieutenant general in the Army of the United States.

With this high honor devolves upon you also a corresponding responsibility. As the country herein trusts you, so, under God, it will sustain you. I scarcely need to add that with what I here speak for the Nation goes my own hearty concurrence.

Prepared as he had been by an "advance" of President Lincoln's remarks, General Grant replied:

Mr. President:

I accept this commission with gratitude for the high honor conferred. With the aid of the noble armies that have fought on so many fields for our common country, it will be my earnest endeavor not to disappoint your expectations. I feel the full weight of the responsibilities now devolving upon me, and I know that if they are met it will be due to those armies, and above all to the favor of that Providence which leads both nations and man.

The manuscript of Lincoln's words is clear and the ink as strong and black as though written yesterday; that of the Grant acceptance is quite faded, barely legible.

This, incidentally, is among the relatively few pieces of Grantiana and Lincolniana still kept in the Grant family here

It is not unlikely that eventually these priceless relics of a great event also will find their way into the archives of the federal government which was held intact by the statesmanship of Lincoln and the military genius of Grant.

Lincoln had to bear the brunt of heavy criticism in his appointment of Grant to succeed George Washington and Winfield Scott as the only lieutenant generals of the United States army up to that time. Criticism came not only from officers of the army, as Lincoln noted, when he reminded Grant to say something to "soothe the feelings of jealousy" It came from many quarters. It came from men who pointed to Grant's lack of outstanding success at West Point, to his resignation from the army and return to private life in 1854, to his financial difficulties as farmer, storekeeper, and real estate salesman And it came from others who struck holier-than-thou attitudes.

But Lincoln was not interested in Grant's past nor in his personal habits. As the Chief Executive, Lincoln was interested in just one thing—the winning of the war to preserve the federal union. Lincoln had tried many leaders to gain that end—beginning with McClellan and running the gamut of the Burnsides and the Hookers and others almost too numerous to mention.

Grant gave the dispirited North its first thrill when he captured Fort Donelson, and when his answer to the Confederate General Buckner became public, he was known to every urchin as "Unconditional Surrender" Grant. He wrote to Buckner:

"No terms except unconditional and immediate surrender can be accepted. I propose to move immediately upon your works."

Grant's successes in the West were in striking contrast to the decidedly poor showing made by the commanders in the East. Lincoln watched Grant all through the years of 1862 and 1863. Knowing full well the criticism which would be leveled at him, within the army and out, despite the remarkable record achieved by Grant, Lincoln nevertheless made his decision and went through with it.

So it was that the man who had acknowledged himself to be a failure before 1861, received the highest military command within the power of the nation to bestow. He received it at the hands of an unerring judge of human kind who felt he finally had found the leader he had been seeking for three long and bitter years.

And Grant had answered "It will be my earnest endeavor not to disappoint your expectations."

Urged Freeing of Slaves

As early as March 6, 1862, Lincoln urged congress in a special message to co-operate with any state for the gradual emancipation of its slaves, with compensation from the government.

LINCOLN MEMORIAL in WASHINGTON

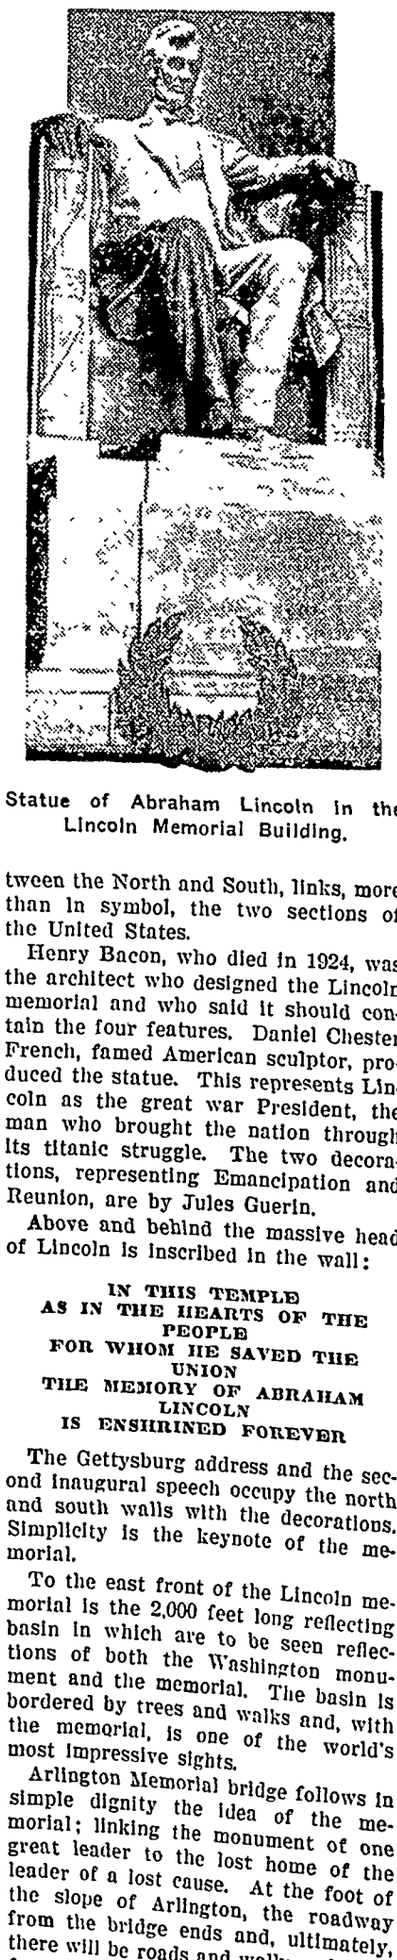
THE memorial to Abraham Lincoln in the National Capital is composed of four features—a statue of the man, a memorial of his Gettysburg address, a memorial of his second inaugural address and a symbol of the Union of the United States—the four things which the martyred President held were his paramount objects.

From the memorial to the west reaches a bridge, linking the nation's tribute to its Civil war President with the home of Gen. Robert E. Lee, military leader of the Confederacy. General Lee's home, Arlington, now is Arlington National cemetery, where rest the dead of the Revolutionary war, the Mexican war, the bodies of men who fought with the armies of the blue and gray, the Spanish-American war and the World war.

The bridge, spanning the Potomac river, natural and historic barrier between the North and South, links, more than in symbol, the two sections of the United States.



Statue of Abraham Lincoln in the Lincoln Memorial Building.

Henry Bacon, who died in 1924, was the architect who designed the Lincoln memorial and who said it should contain the four features. Daniel Chester French, famed American sculptor, produced the statue. This represents Lincoln as the great war President, the man who brought the nation through its titanic struggle. The two decorations, representing Emancipation and Reunion, are by Jules Guerin.

IN THIS TEMPLE
AS IN THE HEARTS OF THE PEOPLE
FOR WHOM HE SAVED THE UNION
THE MEMORY OF ABRAHAM LINCOLN
IS ENSHRINED FOREVER

The Gettysburg address and the second inaugural speech occupy the north and south walls with the decorations. Simplicity is the keynote of the memorial.

To the east front of the Lincoln memorial is the 2,000 feet long reflecting basin in which are to be seen reflections of both the Washington monument and the memorial. The basin is bordered by trees and walks and, with the memorial, is one of the world's most impressive sights.

Arlington Memorial bridge follows in simple dignity the idea of the memorial; linking the monument of one great leader to the lost home of the leader of a lost cause. At the foot of the slope of Arlington, the roadway from the bridge ends and, ultimately, there will be roads and walks radiating from the classic road ending to the Arlington Manor house, to the Tomb of the Unknown and to other points in the cemetery.

Long Live the King! Edward Makes Promises Real Spending Ahead Tribute to T. R.

King Edward the Eighth, now solemnly proclaimed king, will be remembered as the first king of England that ever flew through the air toward the throne.

Arthur Brisbane

He took a separate oath "to respect the Church of Scotland." There is hard fighting back of that.

Edward the Eighth will mount the throne for the first time at a joint session of the lords and commons, and solemnly promise to "maintain the true intent of your enactments to the best of my powers."

After his coronation, the king must formally declare his adherence to the Protestant church, and his obligation "never to marry a Roman Catholic." That dates back to the Stuarts.

King Edward, who is not supposed to contemplate marriage, is the official head of the churches of England and Scotland, and "defender of the faith."

From all the world, "subjects" of the new king and emperor send greetings. Representatives of divine power, churches of every religion, Mohammedan, Hindu, Buddhist, Chinese, Christian and Jewish, speed the dead king on his journey and welcome the new ruler.

If the soldiers get their bonus money there will be some quick spending, enough to quicken the pulse of business while it lasts.

Merchants will get more than $900,000,000 owing on past accounts, and the observer will notice many new overcoats, dresses and automobiles.

At the opening of New York's $3,500,000 memorial erected to honor the late Theodore Roosevelt, one speaker praised President Theodore Roosevelt as one who "saw the necessity for keeping both the legislatures and the courts in their proper places."

That perception showed a high spirit, but if some future Theodore Roosevelt should go too far in that direction it might become necessary for the legislatures and the courts to keep that President in his proper place.

Gen. Robert Lee Bullard says this country expects to escape the next war, but Europe plans to drag us in. Besides air bombing and poison gas, General Bullard expects in the next war attacks with disease germs to spread deadly epidemics in the enemy's country. Bubonic plague, scattered from airplanes, infected rats scattered plentifully, might be helpful.

Sometimes literature pays. Kipling left several millions. In America alone his official publishers have sold 3,500,000 copies of his books. At the time of his death "The Jungle Books" alone paid him ten thousand pounds a year.

When you hear foolish talk about "revolution" and getting rid of the Constitution, a remark made by Washington as he signed the Constitution may be recalled:

"Should the states reject this excellent Constitution, the probability is that an opportunity will never again offer to cancel another in peace—the next will be drawn in blood."

Mrs. Alinda French of St. Louis, one hundred and four years old, attributes her long life to "hard work in her youth and a dutiful son in her old age." She gets along without spectacles, is "not interested" in pensions for the aged, and not at all interested in politics. "People get over that," says she, "after they reach one hundred."

Mrs. French sleeps 12 hours a night. That explains some of the 104 years.

The human race gets used to everything. Once our ancestors shivered, fell flat on their faces, when lightning flashed and thunder growled. They thought some demon was after them. Now men put up lightning rods, properly grounded.

Once the comet was considered an avenging messenger aimed straight at sinful man. Today its coming and going are understood and predicted, its path marked out.

Something unpleasant is bound to start somewhere on the earth, with all the new theories, new hatreds, new armaments, new deadly weapons. It might start on the border between Russia and Japan's Manchukuo. When you read, "Russia uses force to halt Japanese," you know the explosion might come at any time.

All would regret bloodshed, but it would be historically interesting to see the ancient autocracy of the Mikado at war with the modern autocracy of Stalin. It would be a long fight, probably.

Watch Your Kidneys!

Be Sure They Properly Cleanse the Blood

YOUR kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as nature intended—fail to remove impurities that poison the system when retained.

Then you may suffer nagging backache, dizziness, scanty or too frequent urination, getting up at night, puffiness under the eyes, feel nervous, miserable—all upset.

Don't delay? Use Doan's Pills. Doan's are especially for poorly functioning kidneys. They are recommended by grateful users the country over. Get them from any druggist.

Baby Bond Bonus Passed Over President's Veto

PAYMENT of the veterans' bonus by means of baby bonds payable on demand was enacted into law by congress, and the money for the ex-soldiers will be available on June 15. The Harrison compromise bonus bill that went through the senate and house easily, was vetoed by President Roosevelt. The house immediately and enthusiastically repassed the measure. The senate was a little more deliberate, but within three days it, too, had overridden the disapproval of the Chief Executive, and the bill was made law. The vote in the senate was 76 to 19. In the house it had been 324 to 61.

It was a notable fact that all the senators—95 in number, for Huey Long's successor has not yet taken his seat—were present and voting. Notable, but not strange when one remembers this is an election year. Fifty-seven Democrats, 16 Republicans and 3 Radicals—La Follette of Wisconsin, Shipstead and Benson of Minnesota—voted for the bill, while 12 Democrats and 7 Republicans voted against it.

The galleries were filled and there was wild cheering when the vote was announced. Republican senators amused themselves and the spectators by twitting the Democrats on their failure to stand by their chief, the most voluble of the twitters being Senator Hastings of Delaware.

Informed of the vote, President Roosevelt at once ordered government departments to prepare for payment of the bonus certificates as quickly as accuracy will permit. Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau said that the payment would be the most difficult mechanical task the treasury had faced in its history. He said the treasury would need $2,500,000 and the veterans' administration $5,000,000 to increase the force to take care of the job. More than seven million interest calculations will be necessary.

Al Smith's Indictment of the New Deal

"WE CAN either take on the mantle of hypocrisy, or we can take a walk; and we'll probably do the latter."

Al Smith

These words of Alfred E. Smith in his speech at the American Liberty league dinner in Washington were perhaps the most interesting and significant of his utterances on that occasion, for he professed to be speaking for "the disciples of Jefferson, Jackson and Cleveland" and concerning their action in the Democratic national convention next June when the delegates are asked to indorse the doings of the Roosevelt administration. There could be no misunderstanding Smith's meaning, and he must now be considered the leader of the conservative Democrats in their revolt against the policies of the New Dealers. The concern of the administration Democrats is now as to how extensive will be the bolt; and whether the conservatives will put up their own ticket, support the Republican nominee or merely stay away from the polls. Of course in any case the Republican cause will be aided materially, unless the guesses of its leaders are all wrong.

New Deal Democrats were quite undismayed by the Smith speech, which they declared was weak and ineffective. They announced that Majority Leader Joseph T. Robinson of the senate would deliver the official reply in a radio address, and unofficial answers to Smith's denunciations came from various sources. One of the latter, by Donald Richberg and Melvin D. Hildreth on behalf of the National Progressive league, dug up this quotation from one of Smith's speeches in the 1928 compaign:

"'The cry of socialism has been patented by the powerful interests that desire to put a damper on progressive legislation. Failing to meet arguments fairly and squarely, special interest falls back on the old stock phrase of socialism . . . To refer to the remedies for all these evils as state socialism is not constructive statesmanshp, it is not leadership; and leadership is what this country is hungry for today."

The Richberg statement continued: "If Governor Smith was right in 1928, then by that same token and by his own once powerful arguments Alfred E. Smith must be wrong today, when he is giving aid and comfort to the opponents of progressive policies which he formerly espoused."

Mr. Smith in his Liberty league speech never once named President Roosevelt but he specifically put on that gentleman the full blame for repudiation of most of the planks in the Democratic platform of 1932, which he declared was the best ever put forth in this country.

"Millions and millions of Democrats just like myself, all over the country, still believe that platform," he shouted. "And what we want to know is why it wasn't carried out. And listen. There is only one man in the United States of America that can answer that question."

Stately Funeral of England's Late King

FOR two minutes Tuesday afternoon (London time) there was silence throughout all the vast British empire. In St. George's chapel at Windsor the last rites were being performed over the remains of the dead king, George V, by the archbishop of Canterbury, assisted by the archbishop of York and the bishop of Windsor. The late ruler's body had been lying in state for two days in Westminster hall, London, and thousands upon thousands of mourning Britons had passed sadly by the bier, while other throngs filled all the churches at special services. In the funeral procession King Edward VIII walked behind the catafalque wearing the uniform of an admiral of the fleet. With him were his brothers and after them came innumerable representatives of foreign nations, these including kings and princes. The United States was represented by Norman Davis, ambassador-at-large.

Albert Sarraut Becomes Premier of France

FRANCE'S new government, under Albert Sarraut as premier, it is hoped will stand up until the spring elections. If it does, the results will not be happy for Italy for it will take a much stronger stand in support of the League of Nations than did that of Laval. The new foreign minister is Pierre-Etienne Flandin, noted for his pro-British tendencies; and Joseph Paul-Boncour, no friend of Mussolini, is the minister of state concerned chiefly with league affairs. In other respects there is nothing especially notable about the Sarraut cabinet. Regnier is retained as finance minister, and he is committed to the Laval policy of defending the franc.

Albert Sarraut

Flandin went to London for the funeral of King George, and it is rumored in Paris that he would sound out British bankers on the subject of a loan of three billion francs which the French treasury sorely needs. With Laval in the discard, the British might look on this suggestion with favor.

Leaders of Jewry Plan Exodus From Germany

IF PLANS announced in St. Louis by leaders of world Jewry are carried out, there is to be another exodus, this time from Germany where the Jews are greatly oppressed by the Hitlerites. Sir Herbert Samuel, eminent British Jew, attending the national council of Jewish federations and welfare funds, said a definite method would be formulated soon to provide for the gradual emigration of at least 100,000 of the German reich's estimated 430,000 Jewish population. The undertaking will be financed by a fund of about $15,000,000 raised by English and American Jews.

As many refugees as possible will seek haven in Palestine. Others, as immigration laws permit, will be taken to America, Canada, England and European countries free from anti-Semitic restrictions.

Three Convictions in Morro Castle Case

A JURY in the United States District court in New York returned verdicts of guilty against acting Capt. William F. Warms and three co-defendants in the criminal negligence trial resulting from the disastrous fire that swept the Morro Castle off Asbury Park, September 8, 1934, taking a toll of 134 lives.

Besides Warms, those convicted were Eben Starr Abbott, chief engineer of the burned ship; Henry E. Cabaud, executive vice president of the New York & Cuba Mail Steamship company, operators of the Ward Line, and the New York & Cuba company itself.

Charges of negligence and cowardice on the part of officers and crew of the liner were made by survivors testifying at the trial. Abbott was shown to have scrambled into one of the first lifeboats put overboard after ordering an assistant to go below and investigate the progress of the fire. Warms was accused of delaying the sending out of an SOS until it was too late.

Six Army Flyers Killed in Plane Collision

DURING night formation flying near Honolulu, two army planes collided above the Hawaii military air base and fell in flames. Six of the flyers were instantly killed; two escaped by bailing out. The dead were:

Lieut. William G. Beard, twenty-eight, San Francisco, pilot of one of the planes; Staff Sergt. Bernard F. Jablonowsky, thirty-three; Private John B. Hartman, twenty-seven, Chicago; Private Bruce Taylor, twenty-six, Puyallup, Wash.; Private Truman J. Gardner, twenty-seven, Olney, Ill., and Private Gordon M. Parkhurst, forty-three, Yorkville, N. Y.

Death of G. W. Wickersham, Eminent Attorney

NOTEWORTHY among recent deaths is that of George W. Wickersham of New York, who was attorney general of the United States in the Taft administration and for many years one of the country's leading corporation lawyers. He was seventy-seven years old, and died of heart disease in a taxicab.

Mr. Wickersham was chairman of the famous Hoover commission named to investigate prohibition and other law enforcement in 1929. The commission's report opposed repeal, but the document was accompanied by the members' individual statements in which a majority urged repeal or modification of the eighteenth amendment. The net result was confusing.

Much good work, overlooked by the public in the controversy over prohibition, nevertheless was done by the commission. Its exhaustive reports, filed early in 1931, covered many phases of the crime problem and were regarded as important contributions in that field.

Surgeon General Cumming Will Retire February 1

DR. HUGH S. CUMMING announced that on February 1 he would retire as surgeon general of the United States public health service, "because of long service and health that isn't too good." He has been in the service since 1894 and has had four terms as its head. His administration is credited with completion of the quarantine system; inauguration of prelmmigration examinatlans at American consulates; establishment of a national leprosarium and national narcotic farms, and construction of eight marine hospitals.

His influence in control and treatment of bubonic plague and yellow fever has been world wide. Many nations have honored him with decorations.

It was believed in Washington that President Roosevelt would appoint as the new surgeon general Dr. Thomas H. Parran, Jr., state health commissioner of New York and assistant surgeon general on leave.

Federal Relief Costs Analyzed by K. K. Hoyt

THE present federal relief program, depending principally on work relief, CCC and public works, is alone costing approximately as much as the fourfold program which went before and which embraced these three items plus direct relief which has now been returned to the states, according to a study of the relief problem and the government finances by Kendall K. Hoyt in the Analyst.

For immediate purposes, at least, there is no prospect of much reduction in the rate of federal expenditure, according to Mr. Hoyt. In order to prevent the states from trooping back for more relief funds the government must keep its pledge to employ the arbitrary three and one-half millions of persons which have been carried since last November principally under WPA and CCC. In dollar terms this means that, according to budget estimates, the outlay for recovery and relief for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1936, will be almost the same as that for the preceding fiscal year, namely, three billions in round numbers.

Premier Nessim Pasha of Egypt Resigns

PREMIER NESSIM PASHA, weary of his job since the anti-British riots started November 13, has handed the resignation of his cablet to King Fuad I. The resignation was accepted.

Nessim found it exhausting to keep an equilibrium between the conflicting forces of the throne, the British residency, the nationalists and their compatriots. But the final blow, dealt him by the British government at London, was the thinly veiled ultimatum to Egyptian Nationalism, in the form of verbal instructions for negotiations for an Anglo-Egyptian treaty. The sting to Egyptian pride was in the warning that if the present negotiations fail, the British consider their hands will be free and will revise their Egyptian policy.

Developments in League Adverse to Italy

RECENT League of Nations developments have gone heavily against Italy's aspirations for African conquest. Of four major actions taken by the assembled powers led again by Anthony Eden of Great Britain, two definitely were antagonistic to Italy, one was a draw and one was somewhat in the Fascist state's favor. They were:

Anthony Eden

1. The league council decided to move toward an oil embargo against Italy. A committee of experts was appointed to ascertain if oil sanctions could be made effective.

2. Britain announced a military alliance with France, Greece, Turkey and Jugoslavia and these nations pledged aid should Italy attack Britain because of sanctions. Rumania and Czechoslovakia promptly joined this group, making seven nations pledged to combined action against Italy should war come over efforts to stop the Italo-Ethiopian conflict.

3. The league declined to send a neutral investigating body to Ethiopia, which Ethiopia asked and to which Italy consented.

4. The league conciliation committee published a report that no new peace proposals are possible at the present time, and that the league should pursue a policy of watchful waiting.

Shanghai: Market Place for Half of the People of China

200,000,000 Inhabitants of the Yangtze Basin Make Business for City.

A new 130-mile highway recently opened between Shanghai and Hangchow forms a modern link between the famous Chinese seaport and the vast Yangtze basin of which it is the leading market.

"It is doubtful whether there is another extensive region of wealth in all the world where the people depend to as great an extent upon a single market as do the inhabitants of the Yangtze basin upon Shanghai," says a bulletin from the Washington (D. C.) headquarters of the National Geographic society. "Approximately 200,000,000 people half of the population of China, live in the fertile area. Their needs, beyond those supplied directly by the prodness for Shanghai.

Mixture of East and West.

"Though living and growing by the commerce of the Yangtze, Shangucts of their own hands, make busihai is not actually on that great waterway. It is located, instead, some 13 miles up the murky Whangpoo, a tributary of the Yangtze.

"Even before setting foot on the spacious, bustling Bund, the traveler, who has pictured Shanghai in his mind as a typical Chinese city, is bewildered by its cosmopolitan atmosphere. Foreign commerce has had much to do with delivering the city from the Whangpoo marshes Clusters of matting-covered sampans and the gaudy bows of clumsy junks lend an aspect of the Orient to the river panorama, but they mingle with motor boats and steamboats of the latest design.

Rose Out of Whangpoo Flats.

"The skyline marks Shanghai's waterfront also breathes an atmosphere of the West. Until the turn of this century, low commodious Chinese buildings of two and three stories served the majority of the business concerns, but the introduction of excellently equipped modern offices has initiated a period of extensive building. The tendency of the city's building program has been skyward in the last few years because of congestion in the business areas brought about by meteoric trade expansion.

"A short walk from 'new' Shanghai, however, demonstrates to the traveler that the city has not discarded all things Oriental. In the Nantao district, on the southwest side, one can readily imagine that conditions have been little altered since the first foreign firm marked out its business site in the muddy Whangpoo flats.

"The Chapel district, which recently was a place of world interest when it was the battle ground during the Sino-Japanese incident, also is a native quarter, but it is somewhat more modern and progressive than Nantao.

"The foreign settlements constitute the focus of Shanghai, particularly among foreigners, for in them have been loosed the remarkable incentives and expanding forces that have built this modern seaport. The so-called American settlement was incorporated with the British in 1863 and is known as the International Settlement. The French have chosen to remain apart, and administer their own concession. The administration of the International Settlement has been a unique experiment. The municipal council or governing body is composed of a group of members elected by the taxpayers of American, British, Japanese and Chinese nationalities. There are 15 members. The settlement has 1,008,000 people. Paving, policing, planning—a multitude of tasks—face the paternal body which, gratis, guards the interests of international Shanghai. Seventeen other men handle the affairs of the French concession."

OLD SHOES WORTH $50

A leading department store was asked by an old client—a woman—to credit a pair of shoes, unused and in the same box they were originally delivered to her. The shoes were found to be a pair of high ones bought twenty years ago for $25. The store gladly credited the pair of unused shoes, as they had a museum value. As such they are worth $50 today.—Wall Street Journal.

Slenderizing Surplice Tops an At-Home Frock

PATTERN 9609

What if you do wear a forty-six? No need to sacrifice femininity on that account, for a frock with gracious, slimming lines can make you look as young as you feel. Why not choose an easy pattern with surplice bodice for your next "at home" style—like the one sketched today? Simplicity is the keynote of those sweeping lines that outline the collarless, surplice yoke. The slenderizing effect carries right on down into the skirt—a clever piece of designing, we'd say!

Pattern 9609 may be ordered only in sizes 16, 18, 20, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46. Size 36 requires 3⅝ yards 36 inch fabric. Complete, diagrammed sew chart included.

SEND FIFTEEN CENTS in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for this pattern. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, STYLE NUMBER and SIZE.

Send your order to The Sewing Circle Pattern Dept., 232 W. Eighteenth St., New York, N. Y.

RECORD BOOK MAN TO ASSIST FARMERS COMPLETE RECORDS

Tuesday, February 11th has been set aside to assist all farmers who have been keeping record books during 1935. Farmers interested in completing their records and having them summarized should bring them in on that date to the Farm Bureau office from 8:30 to 12. In the afternoon a similar meeting will be held in the First State Bank of Britt where farmers from that section of the county may come. Regardless of whether a farmer has kept the regular Farm Business Record, Triple A or Loose Leaf book, assistance will be given and new books furnished. This service will enable farmers to make out their income tax reports with little difficulty. This service of summarizing the books and making a county report so the farmer's operations can be compared with that of the rest of the county will be done free of charge and it is hoped farmers will take advantage of the service.

Treasury Fears 35½ Billion Debt

New Deal May Drive Sum to Million Times That of Century Ago.

WASHINGTON.—The national debt will have multiplied almost one million times in the last century, with well over half the staggering total accounted for by the "pump-priming" and emergency spending of Franklin D. Roosevelt's administration, if the prediction of Henry Morgenthau, secretary of the treasury, comes true.

During the same 100 years the country's population has mutliplied only 10 times.

Secretary Morgenthau, in a "confidential" report to the senate finance committee, said that New Deal spending would create a public debt of $35,500,000,000 during the coming fiscal year. At the time of his report, congress had already appropriated $18,354,000,000 for New Deal relief and recovery measures, and President Roosevelt had indicated his intention to ask for another $2,000,000,000 for relief at this session, according to Mr. Morgenthau.

Real Size of Debt.

Some idea of the real size of the debt may be gained by comparison.

The debt 100 years ago—in 1836—was $37,515. A debt of $35,500,000,000 would be, in round figures, the multiplication of the debt of a century ago almost 10,000 times for each of the 100 intervening years; more than 23 times for every day of those 100 years, and, roughly, once for every hour, day and night, of those 100 years.

A debt of $35,500,000,000 is automatically translated into a responsibility, on the average, of almost $1,200 for every family in the nation, over and above state, county and city taxes. It is a prior lien on everything the citizen owns or earns. Yet it is next to impossible for him to obtain an itemized accounting of his individual share of the debt, because some of it is added to the price of virtually every article he buys—a suit of clothes, a loaf of bread, gasoline, theater tickets, electricity, etc.

4½ Billion in Liabilities.

Nor would a national debt of $35,500,000,000 be a complete statement of what the federal government owed. During the last half dozen years, the government has embarked upon some extraordinary financial ventures, with the result that serious contingent liabilities have been taken on by the Treasury department. The liabilities are a claim on the taxpayer of nearly $4,500,000,000 over and above the national debt. It is possible that another $2,000,000,000 might be added as a moral obligation of the treasury in underwriting activities of the federal land banks, home loan banks' discount functions, FDIC, FSLIC and FHA.

The New Deal original plan, as outlined in President Roosevelt's budget message in 1934, was "to have a definitely balanced budget for the third year of recovery (the present fiscal year) and from that time to seek a continuing reduction of the national debt." Yet his budget for the 1937 fiscal year indicates a deficit of at least $1,098,000,000, PLUS the amount needed for relief, and perhaps PLUS farm benefit payments, now that the processing taxes have been held illegal.

The entire New Deal financial program admittedly depends upon recovery for success. Federal receipts must pass expenditures, forming a surplus which will go toward paying off the national debt. IF spending continues and IF federal receipts do not swing sharply up, only two courses lie ahead: More and higher taxes, or inflation.

The deficit on January 17 was $2,017,731,841, or $157,350,078 more than on January 17, 1935. The President has estimated the national debt at $31,000,000,000 by July 31.

WHERE THE MONEY GOES

Prof. Rexford Guy Tugwell, No. 1 Brain Truster of the New Deal, plans to do some gadding next year. His budgetary allowance for traveling expenses of the resettlement administration is $1,641,368, fifteen times as much as last year.

"There is $500,000,000 in the President's budget," Secretary Morgenthau told the senate finance committee in referring to the estimated deficit for the forthcoming fiscal year. "Let us use the figure $2,000,000,000 for relief and let us use $2,000,000,000 for the soldiers' bonus. So you get another $4,500,000,000 we might have to raise during the fiscal year beginning July 1, 1937. With the money coming due and the money we might have to raise, there is a total of a little over $11,000,000,000."

The War of 1812 occurred 124 years ago. The veterans' bureau is still paying $2,040 a year in pensions on it.

Weather note: Button up your overcoat, but not your pocketbook. The appropriation for the weather bureau is being increased half a million dollars to $3,900,000.

But the Workers Get Paid!

Chicago, Ill.—Residents along Perry avenue in this city were wondering how to explain the act of WPA workers in ripping up a portion of the street—because it isn't paid for yet. It was laid in the spring of 1931 and, according to residents, is still good.

Imported Bacon Cops City Sales

AAA Was Fairy Godmother to the Farmers—of Other Countries.

CHICAGO.—Retail meat markets here are advertising bacon imported from Poland for 33 certs a pound, while American bacon must bring a price from 50 to 55 cents a pound, because of the pork shortage caused by the killing of 5,000,000 pigs under the execution sentence of the defunct Agricultural Adjustment Act.

Rapidly increasing sales of pork products imported from Poland and the Free State of Danzig, spurred by the fact that America still likes bacon or ham with its morning eggs but can no longer afford home products of far superior quality, have caused an unprecedented rise in American imports of these products.

Imports Multiply Rapidly.

During the first ten months of 1935 ham and bacon imports from all countries leaped up 389 per cent over the same period for the preceding year. Imports from Poland were more than nine times what they were in 1934.

Nor was pork the only farm product so affected. During the same span of ten months meat imports as a whole increased by 44,000,000 pounds, or 87 per cent. Beef and veal imports were up 5,613 per cent.

Foreign Grain Prospers.

Imports of wheat more than doubled in that period, while corn imports increased 2,898 per cent.

That Mr. and Mrs. America were not long in "wising up" to the fact that it was not the meat packers, as they had supposed, who were paying the processing tax, is shown by the fact that the American consumption of pork products fell from 6,267,569,000 pounds in 1933 to 4,649,413,000 pounds in 1935—a drop of more than 25 per cent. In reality, the processing tax was in part passed on to the consumer and partly paid by the producer; pork which sold at 15 cents a pound shortly after the tax was levied cost 30 cents a pound eight months later.

53 Taxes Double Cost of Bread to Consumer

Chicago, Ill.—Bread, the staff of life, the commonest food of man, which has brought about revolutions when it was denied, has in the last two or three years borne all the burden of 53 taxes, all of them reflected in the price to the consumer, it was computed here.

Bakers believe that half or more of the cost of bread to the consumer may consist of taxes passed along to him, but so many and so complicated are the taxes that even they cannot compute the accurate amount.

Following is a list of the taxes:

Paid by the farmer: Real estate tax, sales tax on machinery, personal property tax on machinery and truck, auto truck state license tax, state income tax, federal income tax.

By the grain elevator: Capital stock tax, real estate tax, occupation tax, federal income tax, state income tax, state franchise tax.

The flour miller: Real estate tax, personal property tax, processing tax, capital stock tax, state franchise tax.

The railroad: Real estate tax by city, real estate tax by school district, real estate tax by county, real estate tax by state, personal property tax, personal property tax by school district, personal property tax by county, personal property tax by state, state income tax, federal income tax, state franchise tax

The flour trucker: Real estate tax, personal property tax, state income tax, federal income tax, motor license tax, occupation license tax, franchise tax.

Bread wrapper manufacturer: Real estate tax, personal property tax, state income tax, federal income tax, motor license tax, occupation license tax, franchise tax.

The baker: Real estate tax, electricity tax, gas tax, sales tax, state income tax, federal income tax, personal property tax, gasoline tax, occupation tax, franchise tax, motor license tax.

A few of these taxes were wiped out when the AAA was declared unconstitutional by the Supreme Court, and a reduction in the price of bread was effected almost immediately in many sections of the country.

Government Will Spend 6 Billion

Washington, D. C.—The total "regular" expenditures of the United States government, plus the relief and recovery expenditures, will be $6,413,000,000 for the 1937 fiscal year. The budget indicates that the regular expenditures will be $4,210,000,000. Recovery and relief expenditures will be $2,203,000,000. To this may be added additional expenses not counted on by the President. Former Director of the Budget Lewis W. Douglas points out that in 1928, when the nation was at the height of the prosperity period, the total of government expenditures for all purposes was $3,581,000,000.

1,000 Checks a Minute

Washington, D. C.—The champion check-writer of all the offices of the world has been found—the United States Treasury department. It draws more than 1,000 checks a minute—fully 60,000 an hour Checks for wages, salaries, relief, pensions, etc., go to more than 9,000,000 persons. That is a number equal to about 40 per cent of all the citizens who voted for Roosevelt in 1932.

HA. HA!

The weather man was again wrong when he predicted 30 degree below zero for Northern Iowa this Wednesday morning.....it was only 22 below!

The argument about evoluution which was most heated a few years ago has died down, but a new joke on the subject has come to our notice. A young defender of the evolution theory asked a preacher, "What difference would it make to me if my grandfather had been an ape?" To which the minister replied "Probably none; but it would have made a difference to your grandmother."

"What's in a name?" asked Shakespeare in his immortal "Romeo and Juliet." Well, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Triplett of Jenkins, Ky., recently announced the birth of their third set of tripleets.

The Reverend Lewis MacLachlan of Londan is skeptical about young men of other denominations who are attracted to his Presbyterian services. He says: "I have known them to embrace the principles of Presbyterianism, only to discover later that the principles were incarnate in one of my pretty choir girls.

New York scientists, who have investigated some 500 juvenile delinquents, have found that they're bad boys "because of physical, mental or moral defects." How interesting!

Stand behind your lover, woman," thundered the Scot who found his wife in another man's arms. "I'm going to fight you both."

CHEAP OATS IS A DESIRABLE FEED FOR BROOD SOWS

Cheap oats this winter make it desirable to include this grain in the ration of the brood sow, believes C. C. Culbertson of the Animal Husbandry Section at Iowa State College. Feeding 2 pounds of oats per day per sow along with enough corn to keep the sows in good condition will help farmers to utilize efficiently the feed they have on hand.

The amount of corn necessary for best condition varies upward from about 2½ pounds per sow daily, depending on her weight and present condition. A legume hay, such as alfalfa or leafy soybean hay, should be accessable to the pregnant sows at all times. This is best provided in racks but can be distributed on the ground if racks aren't available.

Some good protein supplement is necessary for the best development of the pigs. One-fourth to one-half gallon of skimmilk per day is probably the best protein for brood sows, but this product is not usually available in large enough amounts. Tankage fed at the rate of about .4 pound per sow per day or soybeans fed at the rate of approximately .8 pound per day per sow makes a good protein feed. Around .6 pound per day per sow of soybean oilmeal is another protein supplement that is suitable for pregnant sows.

With a well balanced ration, including a mineral mixture, and adequate exercise brood sows should stay in top condition and produce strong pigs.

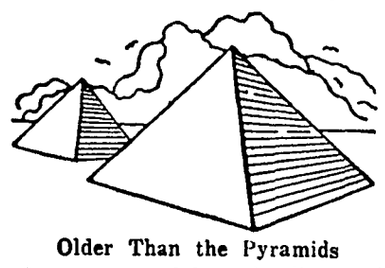
Direct Selling of Livestock Is Older Than the Pyramids

Steady increases in the percentage of livestock particularly hogs, sold direct to packers during recent years have given rise to considerable discussion of the subject among livestock men.

From 1924 through 1934, direct selling of hogs in the United States increased from 24 per cent to 41.4 per cent. Increases for other classes of livestock are as follows:

| | 1924 | 1934 |
|---|---|---|
| Sheep and lambs | 17.6% | 23.6% |
| Cattle | 9.3 | 17.6 |
| Calves | 12.3 | 27.6 |

With their eyes focused upon this recent rise in the percentage of "directs", many people have come to look upon direct selling as a recent development.



Older Than the Pyramids

As a matter of fact, the direct selling of livestock is more ancient than the Pyramid of Cheops built 5,000 years ago at Gizeh. It has been practiced from ancient times up to the present. It was the simple and natural method used in the United States during pioneer days, and, generally speaking, it followed the pioneer from the Atlantic to the Pacific Coast, in which latter region it is still the dominant means of marketing cattle, hogs and sheep.

About the time of the Civil War, the development of railroad transportation of livestock was one of the principal factors which brought about the birth of central livestock markets located in large cities at points where railroad lines converged. The business of "droving" livestock, which had been one of the principal forms of selling direct, began to feel the pressure of railroad competition. As the central livestock markets grew, direct selling became less prevalent until finally the central market system became the dominant channel through which Corn Belt livestock flowed on its way to the packing houses.

Throughout this period, however, the ancient system of selling direct played an important role. Corn Belt farmers have continuously been selling hogs direct to interior packers ever since hog production was first established in those States on a commercial basis, some of them more than 80 years ago. In the Southwest and Pacific Coast territory, where the central markets never became the prevailing system, selling direct has given convincing proof of its adequacy and efficiency as a method of marketing livestock.

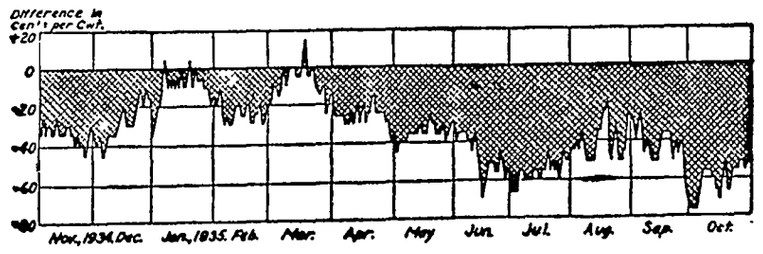
Interior Markets Do Not Base Prices on Chicago

"There is no fixed relationship between prices at any market and prices at other public markets or at interior points," declares the U S. Bureau of Agricultural Economics in its recent report on the direct marketing of hogs "Data show that a rise or decline in hog prices is as likely to appear first at the interior markets as at the public markets."

This statement is borne out by the chart shown below, based on data from the Federal Market News Service. During the period represented in the chart, interior prices fluctuated all the way from 70 cents under Chicago to slightly above.

On very few days did the Chicago price and the average interior price move exactly together. They display some general trend, due to the fact that prices of hogs everywhere are determined by the current and anticipated wholesale prices of meat and by-products. However, it cannot be said that prices at interior markets are based on Chicago. As the federal economists stated, "A rise or a decline in hog prices is as likely to appear first at the interior markets as at the public markets."

Prices at interior markets in Iowa and Minnesota are by no means uniform, the federal study revealed. They fluctuate from market to market, though not to the same degree that they fluctuate from Chicago or other central markets. The study indicated that prices at any interior market are more closely affected by prices at other interior markets than they are by central market prices.



The shaded area represents the daily difference between hog prices at the Chicago market and average prices at interior packing plants in Iowa and Minnesota. The comparison is on the basis of top prices for 220 to 250-pound hogs. The chart does not show actual prices, but merely gives the daily amount that interior prices were under Chicago prices.

For example, in February the average prices at interior plants ranged from 20c to 25c under Chicago. In March, the interior prices rose very close to Chicago prices on this particular weight of hogs, even exceeding the Chicago price on one day.

The chart shows that interior markets do not base their prices on a fixed differential under the Chicago market, as many suppose. If they did, the shaded area would be uniform in depth throughout.

Direct Selling Has Not Lowered Livestock Prices

The period of greatest growth in the direct selling of hogs in the United States occurred from 1924 to 1933. During that period, the portion of the hog crop sold direct rose from 22.05 to 43.85 per cent.

During these ten years, packers' margins, represented by the spread between live hog prices and wholesale prices of hog products at Chicago, maintained a fairly steady level. The minor fluctuations which occurred were due to changes in the cost of processing and distributing meats, including expenditures for labor, freight, rents, taxes, materials, etc. In 1932 and 1933, when these costs tended to diminish, packers' margins narrowed correspondingly, yet during this period direct selling was at its highest level.

The significant point is that the increase in the percentage of hogs sold direct to packers has not reduced returns to hog producers. Since the general level of wholesale meat prices is governed by the purchasing power of consumers, the only way that direct selling could have reduced returns to hog producers would have been by causing a widening of packers' margins. That it has not done so is illustrated by the chart, data for which were provided by the Bureau of Agricultural Economics of the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

During the past year, four out of every five dollars of the packing industry's income from livestock products was paid out for livestock. Of the fifth dollar, nearly half went into payrolls, a fourth was spent for supplies, power, fuel, etc., and a fifth for repairs, insurance, depreciation, taxes, interest, and other operating expenses. This left available for profits only about one-sixth of a cent per pound of livestock handled. Since it handles a tremendous volume, the packing industry can make a reasonable profit even on a small margin per pound. For the ten years from 1925 to 1934, the packing industry averaged approximately 3¼ per cent profit on its investment, according to figures of the Packers and Stockyards Administration of the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

Packers' Margins on Hogs at Chicago

SOURCE: U.S. Dept. of Agriculture.

The solid line shows packers' margins on hogs at Chicago, as represented by the spread between live hog prices and wholesale prices of hog products. The broken line shows the percentage of the U. S. federal inspected slaughter of hogs sold direct. It is evident that the increase in the direct selling of hogs has not caused any widening of packers' margins.

Watch Your Posture; Has Vast Influence in Health

"How you feel, how much you get out of life and how long you live depends to a surprising degree on the proper functioning of your vital organs, and their health is largely controlled by your posture—at any rate, improper posture will crowd or displace organs and interfere with functional efficiency. Many mysterious ailments are traceable to this, says Rex Beach in Cosmopolitan. He passes on these tips regarding posture from Dr. Stanley Green, who has worker them out according to the principles of "body mechanics":

Don't sit on the feet. It twists the pelvis, and may eventually produce a postural spinal curve. Sit with the weight on base of pelvis, leaning forward from the hips, knees not crossed, head up.

At the office, don't slump with weight on base of spine or middle of back or with feet elevated. It crowds the heart and lungs, compresses the vertebrae, and may cause eye strain, headache, neuritis, lame back and other ills. Sit well back in chair, weight on the buttocks, head up. If necessary to bend forward, bend at hips—not at neck or waist. Standing with weight on one leg causes a pelvic twist, spinal curvature, and flattening of the arch. Stand with weight on both legs, head erect, feet parallel or slightly turned out.

NATIONAL TOPICS INTERPRETED

By William Bruckart

NATIONAL PRESS BLDG. WASHINGTON, D.C.

Washington.—The American Liberty league has laid aside its swaddling clothes and has put on long pants in the field of politics. Although comparatively new as a group and promoted consistently as nonpartisan, the league can now be said to have plunged headlong into the political warfare. If its first big rally can stand as a criterion, its influence is due to be felt in an important way in the forthcoming national elections.

Liberty League Steps Out

This rally that really marked the league's campaign debut was a picturesque thing. It was picturesque first because of the time and the place and the very nature of the thing and the manner of approach to the voters of the country but it was more picturesque and more important as well because the headline speaker was Alfred E. Smith, one time Democratic candidate for the Presidency, and by all odds the most colorful and pungent speaker of the present day. It was a dinner of more than 2,000 persons—from every state in the Union—and it was held in exactly the same rooms of the Mayflower hotel here where two weeks earlier President Roosevelt had addressed about the same number of persons at the Jackson day $50-a-plate dinner. As a further note of interest, attention might be called to the fact that the meeting was presided over by Borden Burr, a lifelong Alabama Democrat, and the other speakers were Dr. Neal Carothers, a Southern Democrat, long head of the economics department of Lehigh university in Pennsylvania, and former Federal Judge Charles I. Dawson of Louisville, Ky., a Republican.

I referred above to Mr. Smith as being a colorful speaker, and from all of the comments I have heard, it seems to be the consensus that never has he justified the description better than in his league speech. He was introduced by Mr. Burr as "Al Smith of America," and proceeded to assure his audience that included millions listening by radio that he placed patriotism above party, that he was a candidate for no office under the sun, that he had no ax to grind and that such critical shots as he might take were without personal animosity for anyone. But he did not pull his punches when he pilloried the New Deal and he showed no mercy when he drew the deadly parallel between the Democratic platform of 1932 and the policies which Mr. Roosevelt had carried through. I believe it may be said that he reached the peak of his speech when he laid on the speaker's stand copies of the Democratic platform of 1932 and the Socialist platform of the same year and in his best East side twang he challenged anyone to deny that Mr. Roosevelt had been elected on a Democratic ticket and had carried out the Socialist promises.

The President's "breathing spell" utterance, his message to congress on the state of the Union, his staff of advisers, his monetary policies formed other meaty subjects which the former governor of New York picked to pieces in his own inimitable way. He begged congress to assert itself again and quoted from the Bible in his plea it should return to the father's house and be again one of the three branches of the federal government. He said it took courage for a lifelong Democrat to say the things he was saying, but there is no gainsaying he displayed what it took.

Through the speech was Mr. Smith's chosen theme that a great danger lies ahead, a danger that the New Deal will destroy everything which he held had made America the outstanding nation that it is. He accused the President of having arrayed class against class and asserted that what the nation faces is the most gigantic tax burden ever known. To this he added that it will not be the rich who will pay, nor the poor, but "that vast army of individuals with incomes from a hundred dollars a month to five thousand dollars a year."

Finally, in conclusion, Mr. Smith said:

"Let me give this solemn warning: There can be only one capital, Washington or Moscow.

"There can be only one atmosphere of government, the clear, pure fresh air of free America, or the foul breath of communistic Russia. There can be only one flag, the Star and Stripes, or the flag of the godless union of the Soviets. There can be only one national anthem, 'The Star-Spangled Banner' or 'The Internationale,' there can be only one victor. If our Constitution wins, we win. But if the Constitution—stop, stop there—the Constitution cannot lose."

But what of the significance of the league dinner and the Smith speech?

The Smith Walkout

Prior to the dinner, the league's executive council met in secret. Whether it committed the league to a definite stand was not formally announced, yet surely there are grounds upon which to base a statement that it means to support candidates and platforms on the conservative side.

With equal emphasis, it can be said that Mr. Smith has walked out on that section of the Democratic party that sticks by Mr. Roosevelt. He said it was a choice either to "put on the mantle of hypocrisy or we can take a walk." He explained it probably would be the latter course. And frankly it seems with the personal following that he has, a walkout by Mr. Smith cannot be described as otherwise than serious to the party from which that group is defected. It has all of the earmarks of an interesting political situation.

Immediately after Mr. Smith had spoken, quite a few Democrats in congress fired back at him and in defense of the New Deal. Men like Representative Doughton of North Carolina, a Democratic wheelhorse as chairman of the powerful ways and means committee; Speaker Byrnes, and a flock of others. They insisted generally that the Smith barrage was more helpful to the Democrats than campaign speeches they themselves could make. Administration leaders in the executive departments are beginning to fire also, but they are smart enough to let the enthusiasm aroused by the speech die down before they attempt to upset arguments advanced by Mr. Smith.

I have no doubt, from the signs even now cropping up, that an effort will be made in congress to discredit the league. It looks like Senator Black, Alabama Democrat and chairman of the senate lobby committee, probably will dig into the league's flies to show how it was financed to a large extent by such wealthy men as the Duponts, among others. Such an investigation likewise will carry an undercurrent of a movement to do away with political influence of such men as John J. Raskob, former Democratic national chairman, a league director, and Jouett Shouse, former executive chairman of the Democratic national committee and the league president. If that fight gets started it will be a mudslinging beauty.

So, summarized, the picture resulting from the league's dinner is that of a major feud, as well as a major political movement, because there is a really bitter fight between personalities in sight as well as the possibilities of a third party movement.

In the situation as it now stands, however, the Republican party holds the key. Smith and his following and the league membership generally can be counted in definite opposition to the New Deal and most all of its works only on condition that a candidate and a platform, viewed by them as sound, are put forward by the Republicans. If the Republicans turn too far to the radical side in their efforts to match the Democratic position (which necessarily must be in support of everything the President has done), then, there is likely to be a third party, which would make predictions of the outcome worthless.

Congress frequently goes off on a tangent in which it will set about exposing this or that or the other among the practices of private business. In the last several years it has been particularly active in exposing to public view secrets of corporations and individual representatives and senators have blown off much steam concerning salaries paid business executives and they have directed criticism at private business as well for some of its other expenditures.

Digging Up Secrets

A few years ago Senator Norris of Nebraska, among others, spoke at great length in criticism of our government's diplomatic service because of the salaries paid and the expenditures allowed for operation of our foreign diplomatic offices. The Norris attack apparently did considerable damage to the diplomatic service because it made many capable men fearful of entering that field where highly trained men are necessary.

But all of the time during which criticisms have been leveled at private business on account of salaries paid business executives and because of other expenses, the senate itself has been going ahead from year to year using taxpayers' money to suit its own purposes. For instance, Col. Edwin A. Halsey, secretary of the senate, lately has made public his annual report covering senate operations and it shows that the taxpayers' money to the extent of $3,296,852 had been spent for maintenance of that one branch of congress. There are 96 senators, each of whom has an office staff; there are some 30-odd committees in operation, each with a staff, and there is the regular senate organization with a large personnel. Consequently, salaries alone take up a considerable chunk of the total outlay, but Colonel Halsey's report disclosed that general "contingent expenses" of the senate had eaten up $701,000. Included in this total of "contingent expenses" was an item of $236,000 for the cost of senate investigations in the last year. Almost half of this amount was used by the munitions investigation committee headed by Senator Nye, Republican of North Dakota, who lately was made the subject of criticism on the senate floor because of his committee's attitude.

Keeping Up With Science

By Science Service

Wallace Asks More Liberty for Research

It's Principal Duty of Department, He Says

WASHINGTON. — Scientific research needs greater freedom, less regimentation into separate water-tight compartments, if it is to produce the maximum practical benefits.

This idea is laid down as basic doctrine for his department by Secretary of Agriculture H. A. Wallace, in his annual report.

"The principal function of this department is scientific research," Secretary Wallace declares. "All its other activities, such as weather and crop reporting, the eradication or control of plant and animal diseases and pests, the administration of regulatory laws, highway construction, and economic guidance, are the practical expression of research results. Research is the primary thing, the keystone of the entire structure of the department's functions and services.

Depends on Science.

Naturally the department does not rely exclusively on the findings of its own investigators; on the contrary, it draws upon the general fund of scientific knowledge as it increases throughout the world. But this is one of the tests of its scientific efficiency and value. Were the department not engaged itself in creative scientific work, it could not use creatively the findings of other institutions. Only science can assimilate science."

As illustrations of the way science overflows artificial departmentalizing, Secretary Wallace cites the dependence of aviation, farming and the shipping industries on the weather bureau, which itself must invoke the aid of physics, geology, geography and other sciences. He also calls attention to the far-reaching effects of the food-preserving industries on changing types of farming; these industries being the product of joint effort on the part of chemists, physicists and biologists. Examples might be multiplied without end.

Use Special Fund.

Yet in the past, appropriations for the support of research in the Department of Agriculture have allocated funds, "item by item, on a bureau basis, for objects sharply particularized."

To get away from this difficulty, and to push ahead faster toward practically usable results, the department is making use of a special fund for basic research appropriated by congress.

Stay Home, Young Man! Is Flanders' Advice to Youth of America

THE old physical frontiers of the nation which immortalized Horace Greeley for his phrase "Go west, young man, go west," are ended and new social frontiers must be built up to take their place, recently declared Ralph E. Flanders of Springfield, Vt., in the 1935 presidential address before the American Society of Mechanical Engineers.

Mechanized industry and technological advances have made it possible to establish the new frontiers in the province of better living standards, said Mr. Flanders before the engineers whose achievements have been criticized by some as the cause of depression under the term, technological unemployment.

If the nation does not wish to stabilize for the future in a world where social, political and industrial opportunity are greatly limited, an increased standard of living at ever increasing levels is the only solution. But the way to reach this higher standard does not necessarily mean higher wages, Mr. Flanders indicated, saying:

"Higher material standard of living does not mean higher wages, higher salaries or higher dividends. It does not mean higher prices for goods or services—least of all does it mean restriction of output. It does mean more and more goods and services at lower and lower prices relative to income."

U. S. Helium Supply Adequate for Defense

WASHINGTON.—Despite the production last year of over 10,000,000 cubic feet of light helium gas from the government's plant at Amarillo, Texas, an adequate supply of the valuable gas for purposes of national defense remains for a long time to come, says the annual report of the secretary of the interior. The United States holds a virtual monopoly in the world on the production of helium gas.

Studies by the United States bureau of mines on the rock pressure of the gas in the field indicate that only slightly more than 2 per cent of the gas reserve has been used in the six years of operation of the plant.

King Tut's Curse Is Purely Fiction, Science Discloses

Chance Remark by Native Began It All

"KING TUT'S curse again." This rumor, persistently whispered, follows the death of each person connected in any way with the opening of Pharaoh Tutankhamen's tomb.

Young Tutankhamen, 3,000 years ago, is supposed to have thrown a curse around his royal tomb. The curse is supposed to be powerful enough to strike down people who, in 1922 discovered the tomb, in 1923 entered the burial chamber, and in 1925 examined the royal mummy.

Curse Is Scorned.

Yet, Egyptologists and psychologists have emphatically debunked the Tutankhamen curse.

Dr. Otis W. Caldwell, well-known scientist, plainly calls it superstition.

He investigated and learned from various persons who worked in the tomb that no curse inscription was found on its walls. The inscription, which does not exist, is supposed to read: "Death shall come on swift wings to him that toucheth the tomb of Pharaoh."

Native Started It.

Herbert E. Winlock, Egyptologist of the Metropolitan Museum of Art, traces the beginning of the curse story to disgruntled news writers, who seized upon an idle remark by an Egyptian native. The curse story, says Mr. Winlock, started when Howard Carter's pet canary was swallowed by a cobra. A poetic native, thinking of the cobra that adorned Tutankhamen's headdress in the tomb statues, remarked:

"The serpent from the crown of the king has eaten the golden bird. Bad luck will follow."

The Tutankhamen legend has grown from this canary incident, from the imaginary curse inscription, and the general superstition that it is bad luck to disturb a Pharaoh's tomb.

"Curse" Periodically Revived.

The curse has been brought up at the deaths of archeologists who worked at the tomb, including Lord Carnarvon who, with Howard Carter, led the tomb investigation. The curse legend was revived even when a London journalist died 11 years after he reported the event of the tomb opening in Egypt. The legend has been revived when mere visitors to the tomb—and there were hundreds of visitors—have died years later.

Archeologists say that Egyptologists die no younger and no more mysteriously than men who dig up ancient history in other lands. Most fields of archeological research, whether in the tropics, the Arctic, mountain caves, or the desert, have their health hazards.

Cry of Laissez-Faire Hears an Echo From Secretary Wallace

"LET us alone!" The outcry of some of the more individualistic business men against what they deem to be too much government activity, and their passionate declarations that "natural processes" will restore prosperity, find an unexpected echo in the annual report of Secretary of Agriculture Wallace. Only, Secretary Wallace is talking of a natural wisdom more ancient than that of any business man, or indeed of any man soever.

"Nature left to her own devices may create more wealth for men than man himself could create in the same areas in agriculture of other occupations," he offers.

Whenever man takes plow, ax or grazing livestock he inevitably upsets the biological balance of the wild lands he undertakes to subjugate. Nature tolerates and even rewards his intrusion if pioneer man does not come as a lawbreaker, if he does not expose steep slopes to erosion by plowing, if he leaves enough grassroots to hold the rangelands against the winds that would raise raging dust-storms, if he leaves muck swamps and lakes to the ducks and muskrats. But let him break a basic commandment, through greed or even in innocent ignorance, and natural law inexorably sets the penalty.

Pioneer Americans who came to conquer a continent, and their enterprising grandsons who remained to create land booms, alike demanded for agriculture the things that belonged to nature. They cut too clean, grazed too close, drained too dry. Erosion, fire, drouth inevitably followed. Sawlogs, cattle and big crops paid high for a time—took equally high fines thereafter.

Ten Seconds Needed to Pass Car Ahead

WASHINGTON.—If you want to pass the car ahead of you, be sure you have from 1,000 to 1,600 feet of clear roadway ahead and allow at least 10 or 11 seconds to get back on your own side of the road again.

This is the practical rule for motorists pronounced by Prof. B. D. Greenshields, of Denison university, at the meeting of the Highway Research board here. Professor Greenshields has made a photographic record of 7,500 cars on the road.

Opportunity May Knock, but More Likely She'll Pass

It is a dangerous thing to wait for opportunities until it becomes a habit. Energy and inclination for hard work ooze out in the wait. Opportunity becomes invisible to those who are doing nothing, or looking somewhere else for it.

It is the great worker, the man who is alert for chances, that finds them.—O. A. Marden.

GAS, GAS ALL THE TIME, CAN'T EAT OR SLEEP

"The gas on my stomach was so bad I could not eat or sleep. Even my heart hurt. A friend suggested Adlerika. The first dose I took brought relief. Now I eat as I please, sleep fine and never better."—Mrs. Jas. P.

Adlerika acts an BOTH upper and lower bowels while ordinary laxatives act on the lower bowel only. Adlerika gives your system a thorough cleansing, bringing out old, poisonous matter that you would not believe was in your system and that has been causing gas pains, sour stomach, nervousness, or headaches for months.

Dr. H. L. Shoub, New York, reports: "In addition to intestinal cleansing, Adlerika greatly reduces bacteria and colon bacilli."

Give your stomach and bowels a REAL cleansing with Adlerika and see how good you feel. Just one spoonful relieves GAS and chronic constipation. Sold by all druggists and drug departments.

No Need to Suffer "Morning Sickness"

"Morning sickness"—is caused by acid condition. To avoid it, acid must be offset by alkalis—such as magnesia.

Why Physicians Recommend Milnesia Wafers

These mint-flavored, candy-like wafers are pure milk of magnesia in solid form—the most pleasant way to take it. Each wafer is approximately equal to a full adult dose of liquid milk of magnesia. Chewed thoroughly, then swallowed, they correct acidity in the mouth and throughout the digestive system and insure quick, complete elimination of the waste matters that cause gas, headaches, bloated feelings and a dozen other discomforts.

Milnesia Wafers come in bottles of 20 at 48, at 35c and 60c respectively, and in convenient tins for your handbag containing 12 at 20c. Each wafer is approximately one adult dose of milk of magnesia. At good drug stores sell and recommend them.

Bridge of Ice Forms in Niagara Gorge

This ice bridge was formed in the Niagara gorge below the falls by a combination of high winds holding back the water in the upper river back of the falls, and by the cold snap which formed giant ice cakes. The falls themselves (background) also were chained by the ice jam which lowered the upper Niagara river to an all-time record. The flow was lessened each day until a mere trickle of water was going over the brink and any intrepid soul might walk from the American side to Goat island.

FINAL CLEARANCE OF FALL AND WINTER DRESSES. Priced as Low as $2.69 & up. LUNDBERG'S, Mason City, Iowa. 1tc

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Gibbs entertained several friends at the surprise party last Thursday evening in honor of Miss Harriet's birthday. Games were played and after an enjoyable evening lunch was served.

C. A. Larson was at Chicago on business over the week end. Sam arrived in Klemme Tuesday afternoon but had to leave his car on the other side of the blocked road which leads to town, and then walk into Klemme.

Mr. and Mrs. Art Kudje entertained the following guests to a six-thirty dinner Sunday evening, followed by bridge: Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Bock of Garner, Mr. and Mrs. C. G. Waterman and Dr. and Mrs. Dulmes.

Mr. and Mrs. Jim Reed entertained at three tables of bridge on Monday evening. A delicious lunch was served. Mr. and Mrs. P. M. Wilson won the prize for high couple, while Dr. and Mrs. Schaeffer won for low couple. Mrs. H. H. Raney won the travel prize.

Carl Anderson, local telephone manager, had a birthday January 28th, and a number of friends came to his home that evening and played bridge. We didn't ask Carl how old he is, that would be useless..... we'd probably get "the wrong number."

Miss Ruby Azeltine returned to Klemme and resumed her teaching duties after submitting to a major operation which forced her to take a vacation during the month of January. Her many friends are glad she has fully recovered. Mrs. Schaeffer filled her place very capably during her absence.

And now we hear one on Ernie Schwichtenberg. Ernie came to town Monday evening but on his way home his car stuck in the drift on the Ludeke hill west of town When Ernie got out of the car he forgot to shut the doors and next day when they tried to get the car out of the snow, the first job was to shovel the snow OUT of the car.

Variety Spices Federal Projects

They Include Dance Classes, Duck Ponds, Fire Plugs and Race Tracks.

WASHINGTON. — The four billion, eight hundred and eighty million dollars that is being spent on President Roosevelt's program of made work covers a multitude and wide variety of projects. They range from teaching tap dancing, art classes, theatrical productions to the digging of a canal across Florida, the construction of duck ponds in North Dakota and some other states. The following paragraphs cover briefly a very few of the many thousands of similar projects this vast amount of public money is paying for:

An allotment of $14,762 to build a lily pond at Placerville, Calif.

A community poultry house at Lisbon, N. J., to cost $1,265.

For community gardens in Texas $2,226,500.

Money for Athletics.

For Duluth, Minn., federal government funds of $117,429 were allotted to build an athletic field, including a tennis court, ball field, field house and grand stands.

A $330,000 project for building 15,000 sanitary toilets in rural districts in twenty-one Colorado counties.

An allotment of $1,349 to paint the fire hydrants of Wilmington, Del.

An allotment of $4,265 to improve a race track at Dayton, Ohio.

At Harrisburg, Pa., $2,712 to count the trees on city streets.

Some $290,000 was set aside in New York to make maps of Geographic Distribution of Ancient Greek Dialects, an Isothermic Map of Mediterranean Region, a Profile of the Excavations at Kish, Early Bronze Age Intercourse, a Genealogy of the Julian-Claudian Line, and the Roman Coinage of the Alexandrian Mint.

Make Real Estate Survey.

Project 276, which employed 350 men at a cost of $318,000, was a real estate survey of New York city. Project 33, which simultaneously employed 1,200 men at a cost of nearly $2,000,000, was also a real estate survey of New York city.

Relief by recreation is costing more than $3,000,000,000 per year. One phase of this activity was eurythmic dancing.

An allotment of $530,784 for decoration of 1,900 federal buildings by unemployed artists.

An allotment of $3,450,000 to employ 8,500 men and women to take a house to house canvass to obtain records of the prevalence of chronic diseases and illnesses of long duration.

An allotment of $1,086,941 to make a check of retail liquor stores.

An allotment of $1,577,894 for an income tax investigation.

Alphabet Complex Again.

The President approved $1,804,948 to prepare an alphabetical list by geographical units and families of all individuals returned at the 1900 census.

For a survey of retail trade, $293,000.

For a census of business enterprise in 1935, $7,784,000.

A farm housing survey in 300 counties to include information as to physical condition of dwellings, water supply, lighting, etc., and to employ 4,992 men is costing $1,080,570.

Eight hundred dollars was set aside to employ three men to make a study of Russian rainfall.

To find out what prices farmers pay for commodities they buy, $620,472.

To correlate information on exports and imports during the past 25 years, $4,200.

To survey real property, the extent of its use, vacancy and overcrowding, $2,167,804.

To remove hindrances to the free passage of salmon up stream to spawning beds, $35,000.

To enable Indians to repair their own houses, $1,283,000.

ONE FOR THE CALENDAR

Tuesday, February 3rd should be marked down on the calendar as the rottenest business day in the history of Klemme. A careful check up showed that there were only five farmers able to reach Klemme on account of the drifts.

And then, on the other hand, the Farmers Elevator hung up some kind of a record, Monday, the day before. The writer was in their office at 3:00 p. m. and Manager Kilgore was checking over coal sales. At that precise moment they had put out 71 orders of coal. But wait ....Tuesday Clay and Sport sat in the office and hadn't taken in a nickel!

U. G. Smid Celebrated His 70th Birthday Anniversary

U. G. Smid celebrated his 70th birthday Wednesday, Jan. 29. In honor of the occasion his daughter, Geraldine, and son, Henry, invited several guests as a surprise to him.

The evening was spent visiting and talking over old times, Mr. Smid telling of his home and life in Germany, showing some pictures from there. Mr. Smid worked as a horse trainer, getting horses ready for racing. At the age of 21, in 1890, he came to America, working his way over taking care of horses being brought across. He went to Danforth, Ill., after arriving on American soil and worked for 18 years for the same man.

He was married to Miss Elizabeth Johnson of Danforth in 1897. The family moved to Indiana where they lived before coming to Klemme in 1912 where they lived one mile southeast on a farm which he still owns. They moved to Klemme in 1928 Mr. Smid has worked insurance since coming to Klemme. He is still hale and hearty and gets around the same as usual. He has made four trips to his homeland since coming to America.

A lovely birthday cake baked and decorated by Miss Geraldine Smid was very fitting for the occasion. Rev. C. Grosshuesch presented Mr Smid with a smoking stand given him by his guests.

Mr. and Mrs. Smid have 2 daughters and 3 sons and 4 grandsons. A lovely lunch was served by the hostess after which the guests departed, wishing Mr. Smid many more such happy birthdays.

SNOW PLOW TODAY

NO TRAIN HAS ARRIVED IN KLEMME TODAY (THURSDAY)

At the time we are writing this, Thursday forenoon, no train has as yet arrived in Klemme. We called Agent Heyman and he informed us that rail orders were that a snow plow and two engines would clear the line there sometime today. He did not expect any train until after the line had been cleared.

The Klemme Times this week is smaller than usual as our regular papers from Des Moines are tied up by freight somewhere along the line.

FERTILE INDIANS PLAY HERE MONDAY EVENING

The fast Fertile Indians, well known semi-pro basketball team in North Iowa, will come to Klemme Monday, February 17, weather conditions permitting, and will meet the Vagabonds, local independent team, in a game at the school gym. Last year when these two teams met, the score was tied 26 to 26 at the end of the regular playing time with the Vagabonds winning an overtime session 32 to 28. This year's engagement promises to be another good game.

The game with the Rosedale Creamery team of Fort Dodge, scheduled for last Monday evening was postponed due to the blocked roads in this section of the state.

The Man On The Flying Trapeze

George Lawhorn To Add Parachute To His Painting Equipment

Don't be surprised if you see George Lawhorn strap on a parachute when painting in high places. With this piece of equipment George will be able to land easier when falling off a high ladder. It all came about when George was painting in the vicinity of the ceiling at the Jacobs store last Thursday. George was daubing around on a rickety arrangement of two ladders and a plank when all at once he started doing a combination tap and toe dance, meanwhile flopping his arms around like a scared crow. The plank went one way, George the other, and the bucket of paint made a flip-flop, and believe it or not, landed in a galvanized pail without spilling overe a thimblefu. of paint.

It was the neatest balancing stunt we have ever witnessed. George has no business painting..... he should go into vaudeville and do trick balancing stunts. Either that, or have a parachute handy for a "happy landing."

THE CHILL OF WINTER

By Margaret E. Sangster

Pity, Oh, God, the ones who walk,
Through the chill of the winter weather—
Dreaming, perhaps, of some place where folk
Who love are gathered together.

Dreaming, perhaps, of a ruddy stove
And apples placed in a row—
Of bread and butter and comfy things,
That we, who are sheltered, know

Dreaming, perhaps, of their vanished joys,
Of their gleaming yesterdays,
When all roads led to an opened door,
And there were no dim, lost ways.

Dreaming, perhaps, of kind eyes that shine,
And of hearts that, hearing, know—
Dreaming of refuge from winter winds,
From perils of ice and snow.

Pity, Oh, God, the ones who walk,
With nothing of warmth ahead;
Give them a comfort that is real,
And a dream that is not dead!

Klemme Sportsmen Help Feed The Pheasants

YOU CAN STILL SEND IN YOUR CONTRIBUTION

The following Klemme sportsmen donated toward a fund with which to purchase feed for pheasants in this community:

Northern Lbr. Co., Paul Grange, Fred J. Arnold, C. C. Kilgore, Glen Bridges, Alvin Keeper, E. F. Jacobs, Walter Lemke, Wayne Pavey, P. W. Johnson, Willie Bock, H. Paul, D Hummel, Roland Runge, R. A. Jorgenson, A. R. Arnold, A. J. Kudjo. Arthur Wellemeyer, Dr. F. J. Colby of Forest City, Conrad Quandt, P. M. Wilson, A. H. Dulmes, C. G Waterman, Kluckhohn's, D. Christiance, Lewis Radio Shop, Hulda Wiles, W. L. Thada, Henry Lewis Benn J. Coobs, Leo Heyman.

Other sportsmen in Klemme and vicinity who wish to contribute toward the fund can mail or hand their money to Paul Grange or send it to the Times.

The farmers have been very good in doing all they can, but the sportsmen in town should do their part by at least contributing a dollar to help buy feed.

Checks have been mailed out to farmers to help pay a part of the feeding cost, but more money is needed, and needed badly. Local sportsmen are seeking help outside but the "home" boys must do their part, and although small sums are welcome.....we urge you fellows who have not already done so to send in AT LEAST A DOLLAR. If the sport you have enjoyed in the past was not worth a dollar then it was worth nothing.

Send your DOLLAR to Paul Grange. The Times will guarantee that it will be properly spent.

Herring Orders All Schools To Close

GOVERNOR ADVISES OFFICERS TO CONSFISCATE FUEL SUPPLY

Schools and public buildings thruout Iowa were requested to close at once by Gov. Clyde Herring, radio reports Wednesday noon stated. The governor has advised officers to consfiscate supplies of fuel wherever found and distribute them among families who are in need.

Funeral Rites Held For Aged Garner Lady

Garner:— Funeral services for Mrs. Christina Goll, 83, resident of Garner and vicinity for 54 years, planned for Monday afternoon at the Zion Reformed Church of which se was a member, were postponed until Wednesday or Thursday, in order that all of her thirteen children and their families might be present. Some living only seven miles away, cannot get through the blocked roads. The Rev. William Hueneman, pastor, will be in charge

She died at her home early Thursday evening. Christina Neidmeyer was born Nov. 10, 1852, at Knittlingen, Germany, where she was married to John Goll Feb. 13, 1873. Coming to Garner in March, 1882, they settled on a farm in Liberty township 6 miles southwest, where they lived until 1907, when they came to Garner. Her husband died June 17, 1919. Surviving are six sons and seven daughters. Four children died in infancy.

The children are: Gottlob of Klemme, Mrs. Louisa Barz, Mrs. Nonie Greiman, Mrs. Reka Haberkamp, Charles, John, George, Jacob Mrs. Bertha Haes, Mrs. Mary Upmeyer, Mrs. Rose Haes, Mrs. Lillie Quintus and Ben, all of Garner. There are 43 grandchildren and 20 great grandchildren. Interment will be made in Concord cemetery near Garner.

BRIDGE PARTY

Mrs. Henry Lewis was hostess to several ladies last Wednesday at a bridge party. High score was won by Mrs. Buntenbach; low by Mrs. Carolus; Mrs. Christiance, the one-eyed jack, and Mrs. Lloyd Lau the travel prize.

Bank Night Again Is Postponed

Owing to the inclement weather and blocked roads, BANK NITE at the Avery Theatre has been postponed to Wednesday, Feb. 19th. Manager Marks hopes the roads will be opened up by then, so his country patrons will be able to participate in Bank Nite. Please keep in mind the new date, Wed., Feb. 19, and try and be here.

Roads Blocked By Worst Blizzard In Forty Years

NO TRAINS ABLE TO REACH KLEMME FOR SEVERAL DAYS

As this article is being written Wednesday, there had been no trains through the Rock Island since last week Friday. Agent Heyman stated Tuesday that he expected a snow plow to go through here on Wednesday after which freight service could again be resumed

As in other places, the coal situation here is serious. Local coal dealers have done a fine job so far of supplying enough fuel for everyone. But with the tie-up in rail traffic, coal supplies enroute have been delayed. However, local coal dealers say they have coal orders ahead and are hoping to be able to take care of their customers.

Local coal dealers were out of coal Tuesday, but expected coal to arrive on the next train.

SCHOOL ACTIVITIES AGAIN ARE POSTPONED

The high school declamatory contest originally scheduled for Tuesday evening of this week has been postponed until further notice. Several of the contestants live in the country and are unable to reach town at this time.

The basketball game between Kanawha and Klemme at Kanawha has been canceled as the Kanawha schools have been closed and the fuel supply confiscated for use by the needy residents of the town.

Lee Ridder Sets An Attendance Mark

While talking basketball with L. A. Ridder the other day, the writer discovered that Lee holds some sort of record as a sports fan.

A short time ago we published an article about the first Klemme high school basketball team which was organized in 1921. We found that Mr. Ridder attended the first home game played by that team and since that time has attended every home game played by the high school. He spent two years at Manly and attended every home game there to keep his record intact.

It would be interesting to know if there is anyone in the state of Iowa who has seen more games since 1921 than Mr. Ridder. Lee has witnessed a total of 977 games in the past 15 years for an average of 65 games each season. This includes both high school and independent doubleheaders, a few girls games, high school sectional, district and state tournaments, and independent tournaments. Lee has seen 6 complete sectionals, 4 complete district and attended 2 state tournaments.

Sec Taylor, sports editor of the Des Moines Register, would call that really "Sittin' In with the Athletes."

STORM AGAIN TIED UP THINGS IN NORTH IOWA

A storm raged out of Canada late Friday night and hit full force in Iowa Saturday, said to be the severest blizzard here in over forty years, tying up both rail and auto traffic and paralizing business.

The snow drifts were piled up higher than at any time during the winter and many country roads will now be blocked until the spring thaws. Schools all over Iowa were closed Monday on account of both bad roads and fuel shortages.

Fuel and food shortages had reached a critical stage over Sunday. Klemme coal dealers have so far been able to take care of the emergency and no one here has suffered from lack of fuel. However local dealers have parcelled out coal in half ton and ton lots for the past couple of weeks.

STORM SLOWS UP PAPER THIS WEEK

The Times is publishing under difficulties this week. News is hard to get and mail service is tied up. The shop is out of paper and supplies we had ordered are tied up enroute by rail.

To meet the emergency we got a small supply for this week from the Belmond Independent. Thanks to them!

The Klemme Schools were closed Monday on account of the blocked roads as about fifty percent of the high school students are from the rural distriots and could not possibly get to town.

Carl Anderson, local telephone manager, serviced some country lines Monday by going out over the drifts on skis and repairing the lines.

Sumner Trumbell, mail carrier, has had a hard time making even part of his route.

There were no services held in either of the Klemme churches on Sunday.

FIRE DESTROYED NEUHRING HOME ON STROMER FARM

Fire, which probably started from a defective chimney destroyed the home of Mr. and Mrs. August Neuhring on the Hermam Stromer farm about six miles northwest of Klemme last Thursday morning at about six o'clock. The house, which burned to the ground, was located on the Stromer land some distance north of the farm home where Aaron Stromer lives. The house was built over fifty years ago and was one of the old land marks in Liberty township.

Neighbors who saw the fire arrived in time to help save some of the household goods. Mr. Neuhring is 73 and Mrs. Neuhring is 65 years old. A son, Arnold, lives with them

PATROLMAN WEST MAROONED AT HUTCHINS OVER SUNDAY

Clair West, State Highway Patrolman, spent Monday night and part of Tuesday in Klemme. Clair was marooned in Hutchins Saturday, Sunday and part of Monday. He was on his way to Sheldon when his car stalled in a snow drift near Hutchins and he was forced to abandon his car and seek shelter. Clair arrived in Klemme Monday night and stayed here part of Tuesday.

SOME IOWA COLD WEATHER SHORTS

FROZEN: William Irwin, Corning farmer, noticed a dog standing in the farmyard with his nose in the snow, as if following a scent. The dog did not move when he hurled a clod at it. He found it had been frozen stiff while standing in a natural position.

CATTLE TOO: After working hours to release this snow stalled truck near Blanchard, R. S. McKie finally freed the cattle with which it was loaded, preferring to let them shift for themselves instead of allowing them to freeze in the truck.

SURPRISE: With a team of horses and help, Scott Lingafelter went back to a point near New Boston, Iowa, where he had been forced to abandon his car under a snowdrift He found the car had been destroyed by fire.

THE DEBT IN HISTORY

The first national debt of the United States was incurred at its very beginning, as a result of the Revolutionary war; the figure in 1791 was $75,463,000. In 1866 the Civil war carried it to a high of $2,756,000,000. It was only $1,190,000,000 in 1915, but the World war lifted it to a peak of $26,594,000,000 four years later. By 1921 it had been reduced to $16,026,000,000.

During the current fiscal year the national debt passed all former heights and on December 31, 1935, stood at an all-time record high: $30,557,000,000.

Taxpayers Foot City Homes Cost

Part of Funds for Building Houses Is Outright Gift to Tenants.

WASHINGTON. — The government is proceeding with its plans to build hundreds of homes and many apartment houses which it is going to rent to persons who have small incomes and cannot afford to pay high rental rates for their places to live. These properties are being built out of taxpayers' money whether it comes from farms or cities.

Part of the money used is actually a gift from Uncle Sam because no repayment of it ever is contemplated. About half of the cost of each dwelling place, therefore, is paid for by the government. The remainder constitutes a loan from the treasury and the government takes a mortgage for that amount.

Secret of Low Rentals.

By that method, apartments and houses can be rented at low rates because the government will be seeking interest and installment repayments only on half of the total cost. Tenants will be able to get living quarters for perhaps $7 or $8 a room per month.

But the properties have to be managed and they have to be managed according to government (New Deal) specifications. So Secretary Ickes and Prof. Rexford Guy Tugwell are running a school to train managers for the new homes and apartment houses that are built or are building.

Explaining Tugwell's Interest.

Through Professor Tugwell's rural resettlement administration, help is being given to those persons living on wornout or rundown farms by transferring these families and all of their household goods and whatever else they possess to sections where land is more productive. The resettlement people also are taking some families out of industrial communities where they have no work and placing them on farms so they can make a living.

There are about seventy students in this new school, all of whom earn while they learn because they are on government salaries. If they learn all about government bureaus and government methods in four months, and if they can be shown how to collect rents, keep order in the apartment houses and communities and if they can learn how to maintain their buildings in good repair, they will be graduated. Then they will be ready for jobs as managers of the apartment houses or community building projects at larger salaries.

Polish Little Pigs Go to American Markets

Hollywood, Calif.—Walt Disney's three little pigs may yet be dancing the polka instead of their sprightly American jig, if the Polish influence on the American pork market, revealed by the Departmuent of Commerce, continues to increase.

With an estimated 13,000,000 little pigs unborn in America this year, because of the AAA program, imports of ham, bacon and shoulders from Poland and the Free City of Danzig increased 968 per cent for the first nine months of 1935 over the same period in 1934. The pork import from this source alone during the first three quarters of 1935 was greater than the total pork import from all foreign countries combined during 1934.

Market reports reaching the Chicago stock yards said that, while our government pays farmers not to raise pigs, Polish farmers are planning to increase hog production rapidly.

800,079 Civilian Employees

Washington, D. C.—The civil service commission report issued on January 4 shows a continued increase in the number of civilian employees of the government. On December 1 there was a total of 800,079 of these civilian employees on the payrolls, exclusive of the legislative, judicial or military branches of the government. The increase during the month of November was 3,782. The number of employees includes both those who are under civil service and those who are not.

Still 11,000,000 Unemployed

In the spring and summer of 1935 there were approximately 11,000,000 unemployed in the United States. Since that time congress, under the direction of President Roosevelt, appropriated eight billions of dollars for the purpose of creating a demand for products and so reduce unemployment. The last of the eight billion will have been spent before July 1 of this year, but at the close of 1935 there were 11,000,000 still unemployed.

The Way of Inflation

By RAYMOND PITCAIRN
National Chairman Sentinels of the Republic

If a merchant, or a farmer, or the average householder persistently spends more than he earns, he goes broke. He pays for his folly in the wreck of his business, his property, and, perhaps, his career.

With governments it can be different. From time to time various nations have indulged in continued reckless expenditures, yet escaped immediate collapse. How? By resort to the desperate remedy of inflation—whether of currency or of credit.

The difference is that the individual bears the brunt of the blow himself, while governments pass it on to their citizens.

History has demonstrated this on many occasions. Perhaps the best remembered example of recent years is that of Germany, where post-war inflation brought hardship and hunger to millions of workers. Records do not show that the clever politicians who brought it all about, or the very rich, went hungry. That was reserved for the average run of citizens, who saw prices rise so swiftly that neither earnings nor savings could keep pace with them.

For a while the situation grew so serious that workmen found it necessary to demand pay for their services at the end of each day's labor. They knew that if they waited, prices might mount so rapidly that even a week's pay couldn't buy one bowl of soup.

Germany's experience was not an isolated one. It has been duplicated to a lesser degree in many countries and in many periods of history. It is because of the evidence such experiments offer, that an increasing number of thoughtful Americans oppose the course of reckless government expenditure that causes inflation.

The concern of such citizens is not for the very rich and the very shrewd—who know just when to buy and sell, or how to rig or play the stock market. It is rather for the average family that depends on a weekly or monthly wage for income, and a savings account or life insurance policy for security. Those are the people who shoulder the burden and suffer the hurts of inflation.

And those are the people who can stop its course.

They face a great responsibility. Under our Constitution the conduct of national affairs rests ultimately in their hands. If they insist on reasonable economy, the men who represent them in government must obey the mandate. If they remain indifferent, they encourage either the burden of increased taxes, or the still heavier toll of inflation with all its golden opportunities for the speculator, and its grim penalties for the worker.

Home Rule—An American Tradition

By RAYMOND PITCAIRN
National Chairman Sentinels of the Republic

Dominant among American concepts in government stands the principle of Home Rule.

It is perhaps the oldest of our traditions. It is a healthy outgrowth of that insistence on self-government which found expression in the Revolutionary War. Regarded by the founders and developers of America as essential to their liberty, it has persisted through a century and a half of national history.

That explains why a growing number of citizens watch with grave misgiving many of the innovations in government being urged on the American people today. Among these they see:

Efforts to force on citizens, with all the authority of enacted law, the dictates of appointed Bureau chiefs.

Efforts to curb the powers of the Supreme Court whenever it upholds the rights reserved by our Constitution to the people and the states.

Efforts to centre in Washington powers and authority which, since the beginning of our nation, have belonged to the states and smaller communities.

These attempts are already under way. Others will undoubtedly follow. But, in whatever alluring forms they may be presented, all mean fundamentally the same thing—limiting the people's power in government, by taking from their local communities the right to run their own affairs.

In other words, the weakening of Home Rule.

The real significance of such proposals lies, therefore, not in what they promise, but in what they threaten to take away from the people in the way of rights and privileges and power. As a wise President once said:

"No method of procedure has ever been devised by which liberty could be divorced from local self-government."

$25,000 GOES TO DOGS

Memphis, Tenn.—"Homeless Hector" need no longer wail for a home and friends. Government officials have announced that 25,000 WPA dollars are going to the dogs here, to provide a "haven for homeless hounds" that will be something of a palace in dog heaven. It will be ready for occupancy soon, and will have all the modern conveniences any dog could desire, including plenty of food and shower baths administered by attendants.

Almost co-incidentally, the government announced plans to experiment with the planting of 400,000,000 trees during 1936.

New Deal days are dog days!

Debt Tops 30 Billions

Washington. — The United States faced the new year with the largest gross debt in its history, greater by approximately $4,000,000,000 than the war debt at its peak.

The debt stood at $30,557,000,000 December 31, as compared with $28,700,000,000 only six months before. The highest peak reached by the wartime debt was $26,594,000,000.

HOW AN AVERAGE INDIVIDUAL SPENDS HIS LIFETIME

When Dr. C. O. Estrem of Fergus Falls was called upon to deliver a three minute speech before Kiwanians here, he concluded that was a very short time to talk on any subject—so decided to relate how the average individual spends his lifetime.

Working on the supposition the average person lives to be 70 years old, Dr. Estrem figured out and delivered the following statistics during his three minute talk:

He will sleep 23 years, the other 47 to be spent in wakefulness.

Six months of time will be spent in washing himself.

4 Years In Eating ....

Four to six years will be consumed in feeding himself.

He will talk 13 years and spend 13½ years working for a living.

Will spend most of 25 years seeking comfort and pleasure, the remainder of the time to be wasted.

If he shaves daily after 20, will perform the act 18,250 times.

If he drinks two cups of coffee a day between the ages of 20 and 70 will consume 36,500 cups of the liquid, which would take 912 pounds of coffee beans to make. At a cost of 30 cents a pound for coffee this would amount to $273.60.

He will drink on an average 153,300 cups of liquids.

6 Months In Church

If he goes to church every Sunday he will spend six months in church.

Three minutes a day for 70 years amounts to 53 days, 5 hours and 10 minutes.

In conclusion, the speaker said while he was making his three minute address 14 babies were born in the United States and eight persons died

Farm Income Rise Led by Crops Outside AAA

Washington, D C.—More than half the $844,000,000 increase in total farm income from crops and live stock for 1935 over 1934 was accounted for by increased income on commodities outside of AAA control, a survey reveals These commodities made up $448,000,000 of the increase

The increased income on farm items within the control of AAA (the crops on which processing taxes were collected) was $396,000,000, which included $480,000,000 in benefit payments, indicating that crops within AAA control actually returned in income to the farmers $84,000,000 less than the year before.

The economists' explanation is that while the AAA crops sold for more, the money went to fewer farmers because of the scarcity program, the plowing under of crops and the killing of hogs.

New Deal Spending Doubles Receipts

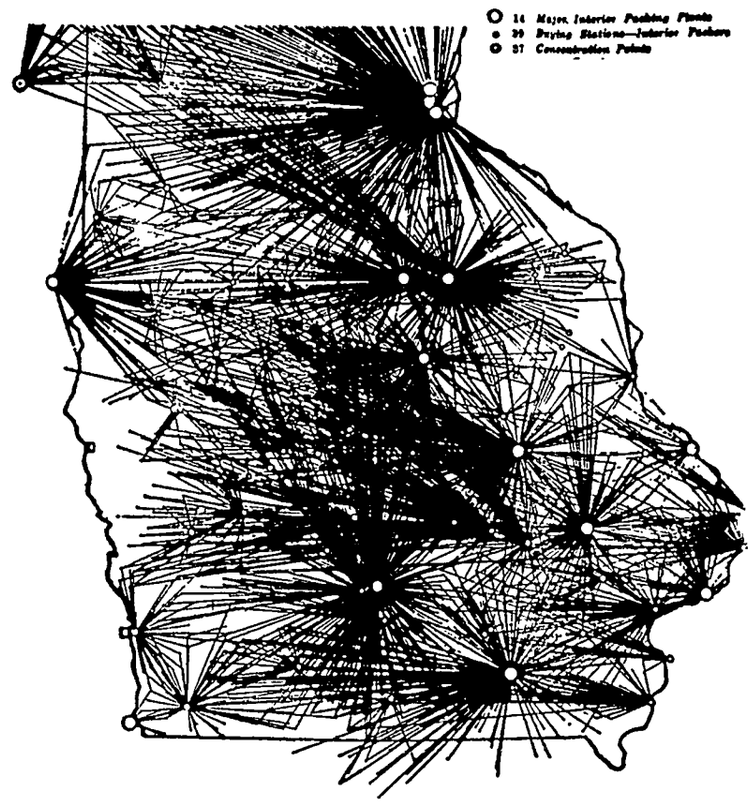
Washington, D C.—The Roosevelt administration, which January 1, 1934 predicted a balanced budget for the present fiscal year has spent almost $2 for every $1 taken in during the first six and one-half months of the fiscal year, United States Treasury department reports show Total expenditures from July 1, 1935, to January 14 1936, were $4,027,531,597 and revenues were $2,020,208,404

Direct Selling Has Increased Competition



Striking evidence of the competition for livestock which exists between interior markets in the Corn Belt is pictured in the map above which shows the situation as it exists in Iowa and Southern Minnesota.

The large dots show the 14 major interior packing plants, and the small dots the 70 concentration points and buying stations. The radiating lines indicate the points from which hogs are sold direct to these interior market outlets.

Overlapping lines reveal the competition which exists. The map does not show the competition from central markets, from the more than 600 retail dealers and small packing plants which slaughter livestock, nor the competition from packers in other States that is available to producers in Iowa and Minnesota who sell direct to those markets. If these were added the map would be too black to read.

Competition of much the same nature exists between direct markets in other Corn Belt States. Of interest in this connection is the following quotation from U.S D A. Miscellaneous Publication 222, "The Direct Marketing of Hogs:"

"There is a market difference in the character of competition at public markets and at interior buying points. At public markets the competition is for a supply of hogs that is physically present, largely out of the control of the producers, and under the necessity of early sale. At interior points it is a competition to draw hogs, that are still under the control of the producer, to different points. Competition at the public markets is more apparent than at interior points since relatively large numbers of buyers and sellers in personal contact are readily observable at the former, while at the latter the chief evidences of competition are the posted prices and the telephone or personal requests being received for bids on hogs.

But to the producer at home with hogs for sale, the latter competition is more useful since he is in a stronger position opposite the buyer with his hogs still at home than he would be if they were at a public market and had to be sold."

Chicago Hog Prices Strong On Days of Heavy Direct Receipts

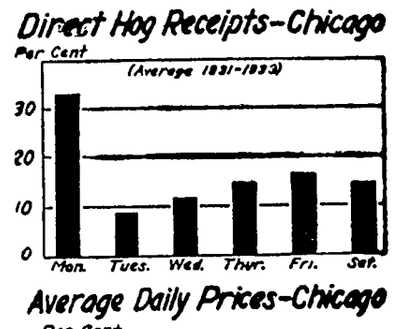
Hog prices at the Chicago market tend to be highest on Mondays and Fridays, the same days on which direct receipts of hogs by Chicago packers are generally largest.

This fact was discovered in a study of hog prices and hog receipts at that market conducted by the U. S Bureau of Agricultural Economics.

Previous to this study the belief was held in some quarters that large direct receipts of hogs by Chicago packers had a depressing influence on market prices. It was argued that the packer buyers were weak bidders on those days. Overlooked was the fact that though large direct receipts removed a portion of the demand for hogs at the central market, they also removed an equivalent portion of the supply which balanced the lessened demand.

No competition was lost by this process. It was simply moved out to the interior markets, where it is no less effective in maintaining the level of prices justified by current conditions of supply and demand.

Results of the federal study are shown in the accompanying chart.



The top half of the chart shows that the number of hogs received direct by Chicago packers is usually greatest on Mondays and Fridays. The bottom half shows that hog prices on the Chicago market on these same days are usually higher than the average of those prices for the week. Data were supplied by the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

Quality of Hogs Same at Direct and Central Markets

As the precentage of hogs sold direct to interior market has increased, a belief has arisen that the direct markets are receiving a preponderance of the good quality hogs, which in turn is believed to have increased the proportion of low-grade hogs received at central markets.

In order to ascertain the facts, the United States Bureau of Agricultural Economics sent a group of investigators to 132 markets in 15 leading hog-producing States in 1933. Working in all types of markets, these investigators classified nearly 200,000 hogs as to quality and weight.

They found that, in general, all types of markets, whether direct or central receive what is called "mine run" of hogs. The direct markets received 15.6% of choice hogs as compared to 15.4% for central markets, 51.1% of good hogs as compared to 50.7% for central markets, 30.9% of medium hogs as compared to 30.4%, and 2.4% of cull hogs as compared to 8.5%. (See chart below.)

As a result, the government men concluded that if all hogs were sold through the central markets, the proportion of each grade would be substantially the same as it is now when part are sold direct. They further concluded that direct selling has not deprived central markets of supplies of the various qualities of hogs sufficient for registering prices for the different grades.

High Snow Drifts A Hazard To Traffic On State Highways

HIGH SNOW DRIFTS CAUSE CAR SMASH-UP NEAR KLEMME

The Chevrolet car driven by ank Hrubes, Jr., of near Klemme and a car driven by Mrs. Chas. Tompkins, of Garner, collided on Highway 69 at the Hrubes farm ast west of Klemme Wednesday.

Mr. Hrubes was coming out of farm lane onto the highway and did not see the car approaching from the north because of the high drifts on both the highway the lane Both cars were damaged when they met nearly head-on ween the high drifts. The Tomp car was towed back to Garner Mrs Tompkins and children were their way to Des Moines to attd a funeral.

The front end of the Hrubes car was damaged and the frame twisted. We understand Mr. Hrubes assumed the blame for the accident and that he has settled the matter.

Where the Taxes Come From

By RAYMOND PITCAIRN
National Chairman Sentinels of the Republic

"Taxes are paid in the sweat of every man who labors."

Congress, as this is written, is beginning to remember that profound truth —and to realize that the public remembers it, too.

Therein lies a headache—not only for Congress but for all other officers of government, whether national, state or local, who have spent the people's money at such amazing speed during recent years.

The trouble is that in proportion to public expenditures, there are fewer earnings for the tax-collectors to levy on than there were, let's say, a decade ago.

Recently - published figures have brought this fact dramatically to the taxpayer's attention. They show, for example, that whereas in 1929, taxes took one-eighth of the national income (which means the earnings of all the people), by 1932, they took one-sixth, and by 1935 more than one-fifth.

Or put it another way! In 1928, the average American labored one day out of every eight to pay the costs of national, state and local government; in 1932 he labored one day out of every six for the same purpose, and in 1935, one day (and a few hours over) out of every five

Yet even that didn't meet the whole cost If government last year had paid all its bills in cash, nearly one-third of all the money earned by the American people would have been required to balance the account. Instead, government borrowed, which means that the bill must be paid out of future earnings of the workers or their children—still in the sweat of the man who labors.

Today the politicians are searching feverishly for a method of producing taxes without the inevitable sweat. They find it a difficult job. Perhaps they are approaching it at the wrong end. If they want to make things easier for the people, who ultimately pay the bills, why not turn their thoughts to the problem of spending fewer billions, rather than to the question of how to collect more?

"SHOT" OF CLOVER SEED WILL DOUBLE PASTURE YIELD

The returns from thin pasture can be doubled by drilling clover into the bluegrass sod At least this was the result obtained by 3 years of experimentation, according to H. D. Hughes, head of the Farm Crops Subsection at Iowa State College.

Either a manure top dressing or lime is recommended when seeding in clover. Both gave good results in the experiment which was conducted cooperatively by the State Board of Control and the Iowa Agricultural Experiment Station recently at Mt. Pleasant.

A pasture not reseeded last spring gave 172 "steer-pasture-days per acre last summer as compared with over 300 steer-pasture-days on a pasture that was reseeded in the early spring. These most recent results are similar to those obtained during the drouth of 1934 on pastures reseeded in the spring of 1933. During the drouth year the check pasture, which received no reseeding or other treatment, gave 76 steer-pasture-days per acre as compared with over 150 days from reseeded, treated pastures.

Disc, Reseed in March

As a result of this research work over 100 large-scale pasture improvement demonstrations are being arranged by the Extension Service in cooperation with county agents and local farmers. Cooperators who have thin, unproductive pastures are advised to drill in a mixture of 4 pounds of sweet clover, 5 of red clover and 2 of alsike late in March as soon as the ground is thawed but before the grass has started. It is important to force the discs into the ground, using weights on the drawbars if necessary. If a drill is not available, a disc can be used to make gashes in the sod, but care must be exercised not to tear the sod loose and turn it.

Phosphate Will Help

After discing, the clover seed should be broadcast and the land harrowed with the teeth sloped well forward; a roller may be used also. On most soils the application of 125 pounds of 20 percent superphosphate will prove beneficial.

It is important that stock be kept off the reseeded area until after June 1, and close pasturing should not be allowed until late in the summer. This requirement makes it advisable to reseed only a part of the pasture in any one year.

On many pastures the great benefit from reseeding cannot be obtained without applying 2 or 3 tons per acre of finely ground limestone—which should be applied in the fall before seedings are to be made the following spring.

John Day Will Start Closing Out Sale This Week Saturday

After being in the general merchandise business in Klemme for the past twenty-three years, John N. Day will start his closing out sale Saturday. Mr. Day has employed the services of Mr. Aagard of Waterloo to conduct the sale.

Mr. Day purchased the presen store twenty-three years ago from John Waterman. Prior to that time Mr. Day had a general store business in Buffalo Center for two years, and five years before that time he managed the lumber yard at Buffalo Center for the Northern Lumber Co.

Mr. Day has been postmaster here for the past two years, receiving an appointment as acting post master on February 2nd. Some months later the was given the official appointment for four years.

Mr Day says he has been in business long enough and that his duties as postmaster will keep him busy.

LOCAL COMMITTEE COMPLETES 1935 CORN HOG BUSINESS

Completion of 1935 corn-hog business was under way in Hancock County this week to permit final payments to contract signers A letter to Mr Oberhauser, county agent stated that authorization had been received from C. C. Davis, AAA administrator, and C. W. Warburt n, director of the Federal Extension Service, to continue the work on the 1935 program.

Secretary Wallace has authorized the use of existing county control associations and committees where necessary to complete county work. These records had been placed in the county agent's offices for sake-keeping pending further instruction

Ben V. Greiman, chairman, and other members of the corn-hog committee are completing compliance papers and other forms necessary to determine the obligations of the AAA to Hancock County farmers These will be submitted to R. M. Evans, state compliance director in Des Moines, and forwarded to Washington as rapidly as possible.

Approximately $15,0p0 is due to farmers in this county or compliance with corn-hog contracts and several hundred dollars for compli ance with wheat contracts.

Check writing machinery has been started in Washington and of ficials expect to complete payments on the past year's program as rapidly as possible.

No Coal, No School, Klemme Teachers Are On a Vacation

KLEMME SCHOOLS CLOSED BY SHORTAGE OF COAL

The Klemme schools were closed Monday and will remain closed for an indefinite period of time There is barely enough coal at the schoo to fire the boilers to keep them from freezing up.

The schools will remain closed until the coal shortage in Klemme has been relieved. All of the teachers have gone to their respective homes where they will remain until school is again opened.

There were no services held in the Klemme churches Sunday and most of the church goers heard sermons over the radio.

KLEMME TEACHERS RETURNED TO THEIR HOMES

Because of an acute coal shortage it was necessary to close the Klemme schools Friday and so the several teachers have gone to their respective homes. Miss Galbreth to Mason City; Miss Thorne to Dayton, Miss Azeltine to Rowan; Miss Ford to Redfield; Miss Barz to Garner, and Miss Ahrends to Alexander Delmer Kingery came from Greene Saturday evening and Mr. and Mrs A. L. Kingery accompanied him home. Supt. Hunter and family are still in Klemme but Mr. Hunter said he will leave for Charter Oak this week if possible.

Mail Carriers Travel Over Routes On Foot

MAIL CARRIERS DOING A FINE JOB GIVING SERVICE

All rural route mail carriers in North Iowa agree that carrying mail is not a Sunday school picnic in these days of blocked roads and cold weather.

Sumner Trumbell, Klemme rural mail carrier, assisted by Mr. Montgomery have given excellent service, considering the impassable roads and bad weather. Most of the route is made on foot. Trumbell has a pair of snow shoes to help him where the going is tough.

Art Schultz, Garner route 4 carrier is frequently seen in Klemme when he brings mail here for Liberty farmers who come to town t shop. Art has a crew also who make the route on foot.

Mr. Lewis, carrier on route 1, Britt, came to Klemme Tuesday with mail for some of the farmers farther out in Liberty who were coming to town to get mail.

KLEMME TRUCKERS HAUL IN 20 TONS OF COAL VIA MASON CITY

About twenty tons of coal was trucked in from Mason City Monday by local truckers and business men. The following truckers made the trip. H. J. Stille, Arley Blickenderfer, Alfred Merkel and Rob Roths. Besides these Ed Jacobs hauled over coal for his store and home in his pick-up truck; George Stokesbary brought coal in a trailer hitched behind his car; and Lloyd Lau furnished his truck which was driver by Bill Keraus and J. E. Stille. C. A. Larsen sent his truck over last week and got a load of coal.

Relief Expected Soon If Roads Can Be Kept Open

EXTRA

Train May Arrive Today, Thursday

As we add to the above report this morning (Thursday) we were informed by Agent Heyman that he expected a train in Klemme today Last night about 10 30 o'clock a train crew went through Klemme, however the outfit was only an engine and caboose and no other cars were attached. It was probably a crew going to the other end of the line to run a train through.

FIFTEEN BOYS ENROLLED IN MARKET LITTER PROJECT

Nearly 15 4-H club boys in Hancock County will be enrolled in 4-H market litter clubs this year, estimates S. J. Oberhauser, county agent. All entries should be on file by April 1 in the county agent's office.

A market litter class will be provided at the Iowa State Fair this year for the first time. The market litter project is a popular one with 4-H club boys, because they can take it up without an initial investment.

If a club member does not own a sow he may get his father to go into partnership with him and loan him the sow. Sows used in the project may be either purebred or grade, bred to farrow after February 1 and before May 1.

Each member does his work in feeding, caring for his litter and keeping his project records. The market litter club project emphasizes efficient swine production with the litter as a unit, marketing of fat hogs, hog values, and application of approved swine practices to the farm herd on a cooperative agreement with the parents.

EARLY HATCHED CHICKS ARE MOST ECONOMICAL

It is poor economy to wait for warm weather before buying or hatching baby chicks because experiments have shown that the early hatched chick will live and grow better than the late hatched one, declares N. F. Waters of the poultry husbandry staff at Iowa State College.

Late spring and summer chicks generally bring only discouragemen to the poultry farmer, and every good poultryman realizes this. Th chicks should have a good start in life before the hot summer months begin. It is a good recommendation not to hatch chicks after April 15, for the heavy breeds and not after May 15 for the lighter breeds. The first 8 weeks of a chick's life is usually the period of highest mortality and it has been proven repeatedly that the death rate in chicks increases rapidly in summer hatches.

Pullets from late hatched chicks ordinarily do not start laying until the following spring, while the early hatched ones will mature and start producing by September or October when eggs are selling at a premium. Early hatched cockerels will be ready for the broiler market before it is flooded with late hatched birds.

LAST TIME TRAIN STOPPED IN KLEMME WAS FRIDAY, FEB. 7

Coal Shortage In Klemme Becoming A Very Serious Matter

Up to the time of this writing on Tuesday, February 18th, there has been no train to stop in Klemme for twelve days, or the last freight to bring supplies was on Friday, Feb. 7th. A snow plow went through here February 14th, and the next day, Saturday, a freight train went through but did not stop. It had seventeen car loads of coal bound for further north. Another train went through here Sunday, but likewise did not stop.

In a conversation with station agent Heyman Tuesday afternoon,

TRAIN SERVICE DELAY PUBLICATION

As Klemme has been without train service for nearly two weeks, the Klemme Times is again printing under difficulties as the shop is low on supplies that were expected to arrive by freight.. Our paper supply was again obtained at Belmond, but the supply there that we can use is now exhausted.

Mr. Heyman could not furnish reliable information as to when a train could be expected.

In the meantime Klemme coal dealers are without coal and do not know when they will get in coal. There is plenty ordered and on the way, but—no train—no coal.

The last two car loads of coal arrived Febr. 5th and 6th one for each dealer Since that time there has been no coal in Klemme and many homes and business places are without coal, or only enough to last but a few days in some cases.

NATURAL GAS HELPS RELIEVE FUEL SHORTAGE AT GARNER

In order to conserve fuel and to provide coal to families on relief, gas burners were installed in the Hancock County court house as an emergency measure. By heating with gas the county can provide twenty tons of coal in storage at the court house.

Art Wille, Garner clothier was in Klemme Monday with a load of coal on his truck which he was taking to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. August Wille in Avery township. Wille had gas heat installed in his store in order to help supply coal where needed.

With natural gas available in Garner and other north Iowa towns, many business places and homes quit using coal and are now heating with gas.

It will be remembered that Klemme voted down having natural gas brought to town a few years ago. The election lost by nine votes! .....But, why bring that up now?

GOODELL DEFEATED GARNER IN GAME TUESDAY NIGHT

In a game played at Garner Tuesday evening, the Goodell High School basketball team defeated Garner High School 30 to 22. Goodell made 11 field goals and 8 free throws as against 9 field goals and 4 free throws for Garner.

"Frozen Smoke"

By Editor R. A. Jorgenson

[illegible] I have had a number of [illegible] Frozen Smoke" story [illegible] number daily [illegible] papers and has be[illegible] NBC network The [illegible] the Mason C[illegible] [illegible] ago, and [illegible] papers [illegible] The first [illegible] been published in The Klemme Times Herald.

I have a true story to relate regarding the extreme weather when the thermometer registered [illegible] degrees below [illegible] That morning when I [illegible] to stoke up the [illegible] I could get no draft, but [illegible] found that the chimney was [illegible] smoke

[illegible] what was a problem, but I finally [illegible] powder out of a couple of [illegible] shells which I had left [illegible] hunting this fall. I opened the [illegible] door at the bottom of the chimney [illegible] placed the powder below the frozen [illegible] which filled the chimney and even [illegible] over the top a bit. I touched a match to the powder, slammed the door [illegible] awaited results.

Soon a low rumble was heard, then a dull explosion and a low whistle caused by the sudden suction of air in the chimney. I went outdoors to have a look.

The frozen smoke had come out in a whole piece and had fallen on the ground I got a couple of men to help me saw it up and split it up into kindling, and say, that frozen smoke is the best kindling I've ever used.

I also had some of it ground up and put in packages which I am selling to the farmers who just rub it on pork and it on pork and it makes the best ham you ever tasted They say it's even better than smoked salt.

HOW MANY LIVES HAS N. R. A.

The Supreme Court in May 1935 held that N R A. was unconstitutional. Normally such a ruling by the Supreme Court automatically closes down the agency which is held to have no constitutional standing.

At the time of the decision N. R. A. had on its payroll close to 5,500 employees. Four months later the number was 2,700.

Late in December the President, by executive order, decreeded that N. R. A. should close down on its functions as of December 31, 1935, most of its then remaining employees being transferred to the Department of Commerce or to the Department of Labor.

In view of this record, it was assumed that N. R. A. actually had ceased to exist as of the close of the past year. But news dispatches from Washington, under date of January 25, 1936, stated:

"The N. R. A. reported yesterday about 200 cuts in personnel since the first of the year, leaving 1,679 still on the payroll." The same dispatch announced that N. R. A. is to be "entirely liquidated by April 1." The date may be significant. Possibly the President has in mind a novel April-fool joke on the country.

The division of the State conservation commission having in charge the enforcement of the game laws in Iowa was busy the last half of the year. In all 507 arrests were made. The fines collected amounted to over $5.000. Forty-three guns were consfiscated. The lawless hunter would destroy most of the hunting if the officers were not on his trail.

Iowa's share of the bonus cash is estimated at $41,000,000 and will be paid about June 15.

HOW BIG IS THE DEBT?

The federal debt today is approximately $30,550,000,000, afigure comprehensible to none but astronomers. But a little figuring with a pencil will convince even the layman of the enormity of the burden that has been rolled up for the American taxpayers some day to pay.

The silver dollar is 1½ inches in diameter. Multiplying the national debt by 1½ produces 45,832,500,000 inches, or 3,819,375,000 feet. This divided by 5, 280, the number of feet in a mile, gives 723,367 miles.

In other words, if the United States government were physically and financially able to pay its debt in silver dollars, and if all these dollars were placed edge to edge in a straight line, that line would reach to the moon, double back and return to the moon again.

That same line of silver dollars, 723 367 miles, stretched around the earth at the equator, would band the globe nearly 29 times.

DO SMALL TOWNS FARE AS WELL?

The executive director of the emergency relief bureau of New York City is authority for the statement that one out of every four or more persons in New York City, or more than 1,750,000 men, women and children, were dependent upon E. R. A. in all or in part for food, shelter and other necessities during 1935.

THE DEFINITION OF A GENTLEMAN

"A man that's clean inside and outside, who neither looks up to the rich nor down on the poor, who can lose without squealing and can win without bragging; who is considerate to women, children and old people; who is too brave to lie, too generous to cheat, and too sensible to loaf; one who takes his share of worldly goods and lets others have their share." If anything were to be added to this definition, it would be that he is a man who knows enough to mind his own business.

Iowa's average liquor permit holders spent $1 a week with the state stores during 1935.

Ray Murphy, of Buffalo Center, present secretary of agriculture, is to seek the Democratic nomination for congress in the Eighth district. Fred Gilchrist, Republican, of Laurens, now represents this district in congress and will seek re-election.

RELIEF, NOT WASTE

There is no Republican of standing who opposes the use of such federal funds as may be actually needed to supplement local funds in furnishing relief.

What Republicans do oppose is the present spending of $4 or $5 in wasteful boondoggling and over-staffed administration, to get $1 into the hands of those who need it.

Mr. Hopkins has said that people who criticize these things are "just too damn dumb to understand them." That may be true. But Republicans are not too damn dumb to understand that every dollar wasted on boondoggling hastens the day when the treasury will be empty, and the government unable to furnish relief to those who need it.—Atlantic, Iowa, Republican.

STOP SPENDING

Neither the President nor Congress has learned that the only way to economize is to stop spending. Benjamin Franklin could have told them that 230 years ago.—Boonville, Mo., News.

—o o—

HAD HIS CHANCE AND FAILED

We have trying to spend our way out of the depression for three years, throwing many billions of dollars to the winds, and we are just about where we started. Other nations that were not handicapped with Roosevelt's experimental policies and impractical brain trust have made long strides toward recovery. This is one reason why President Roosevelt is steadily slipping. He has been given his chance and failed to make good.—Iroquois, S. D., Chief.

GAME BIRDS MAKE FINAL PLEA FOR HUMAN AID

What is termed "wildlife's final feeble plea" is being made throughout the state, according to Game Supervisors of the Conservation Commission. The last call for aid was made when a recent drifting snow and prolonged sub-zero weather added to the plight of Iowa's game birds and increased the seriousness of the present dangerous situation. Experts, farmers, sportsmen, Conservation Officers, are of the same opinion—that only constant, regular and systematic feeding of the best foods and the construction of hundreds of permanent feeding and protection shelters will save enough quail and pheasants to permit an open season in 1936.

Even now it may be too late, for hundreds of birds, dead from lack of food and winterprotection, will not be found until the snow has left the ground, so that no estimate can be made of the number of birds dying from lack of food and exposure. How many have been covered over with drifting snow, no one knows. Many dead birds found are not reported to Conservation authorities. Only the preservation of the remaining birds will insure open seasons in the immediate future

Realizing that it was a physical impossibility for the State Conservation Commission to cope with the situation, sportsmen and interested persons organized a campaign Radio, long-distance telephones telegrams and letters spread the news throughout the state and even to other states, with the result that one of the greatest responses made to any plea of its kind has been brought about Hundreds of tireless workers have been distributing grain and grit. Boy Scouts, 4-H Clubs, civic clubs, American Legion posts schools, sportsmen's organizations CCC camps, industrial firms elevators, truckers, mail carriers highway patrolmen and hundreds of others have carried on the work Took funds, and contributions were sent in from every corner of the state and from other states as well. Tons of food were purchased But now comes another deep snow and 20 degrees below zero and high winds Food has been covered up shelters blown full of snow, and funds and food are running low The work must be continued, more so now than ever.

It is proven that not the lack of food alone is responsible for the loss of game bird life. Lack of suitable cover or shelter combined with the food shortage is responsible. Grit must also be supplied. The placing of food on the open snow may do some good but is soon covered up or is too far away from shelter for the birds to venture out to it.

Lean-to shelters constructed of brush, straw, hay or cornstalks, should be built with the opening toward the southeast if possible. Opening up strawstacks on the south will also help. Brush piles placed in easily accessible places, will serve It is at these shelters that the food and grit should be placed Regularly Every day is not too often Keep the shelters free of snow. Provide hoppers for the food and grit if possible Keep the snow cleared away in several spots on the south side of woodlots, hedges and orchards.

Baskets made of small sections of woven wire fecing filled with ear corn will when placed in these spots take care of many birds. The wire wire basket may be filled with ear corn and hung on a tree a few feet above the ground with a small brush pile placed underneath, that the birds may reach the basket.

The work is now started and even coming extremely important The mild weather must not stop the regular feeding. It must not stop until the snow is gone. The chances are great that sleet storms will come with milder weather. This is more serious than snow. It freezes over the nostrils of the birds and the smother. Grain should be conserved If fed in small amounts every day the loss of grain will not be great when snow or sleet come

Special services will be held in First Baptist Church Washington D C which Houston attended when he was United States senator, at Baylor University in Waco, Texas, whose founder Dr Rufus G Burleson baptized General Houston and at Independence Texas, where he joined the church

The Texas Centennial Exposition which is cooperating with the Texas Baptist Convention in plans for this religious observance will have a $500,000 Hall of Religion a spacious and beautiful building for free exhibits by all denominations In the Baptist section of the structure special stress will be laid on Houston's services to his state and to the Republic of Texas of which he was the first elected president.

1935 TREE PLANTING SETS ALL TIME RECORD

According to the Forestry News Digest, the planting of trees in the United States during 1935 broke all records for the number of trees set out. It is also a record for Iowa which planted 15,150,000 trees. The number planted in the United States was 501,789,763.

The Civilian Conservation Corps is responsible for the physical work of a good deal of the plantings on public lands, while the Soil Conservation Service made most of the plantings on privately owned lands

If weather becomes normal, egg prices are likely to be much lower in 1936 than in 1935, in the opinion of A. D. Oderkirk, extension poultry marketing specialist at Iowa State College.

METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH
Wm. Zabilka, Pastor

What announcement shall we make for services next Sunday? If there is not a great coal shortage by that time and a blizzard is not raging, there will be preaching services at 10 o'clock and Sunday school at 11 a.m.

We suggest that farmers who might be planning on coming in phone the pastor before coming. Those who live in town may also phone or listen for a 9:30 church bell.

Services at Liberty will also depend upon weather and road conditions.

WORST COLD SPELL IN 117 YEARS ENDED SATURDAY

Iowa's worst prolonged cold spell in 117 years came to an end Saturday when the thermometer started it's upward climb after an 11 below reading Friday night, 1 degree below at 8 a. m. Saturday with a continued climb to a maximum of 23 degrees above zero in the afternoon.

The minimum Saturday night was 10 above and with a steady climb the thermometer rose to 42 degrees above zero Sunday afternoon. And thus ended the worst winter weather Iowans have ever experienced

The rising temperature Sunday caused a lot of snow to melt, but it seems to be melting gradually and with predicted colder weather between the "hot" spells, danger of floods may be averted.

BIRTHDAY SOCIAL

The monthly birthday social will be held at the M. E. Church on Monday night, March 2nd, at 6:30.

Those who have birthdays in January will take care of the kitchen and dining room, furnish coffee, cream and sugar. Those who had birthdays in February will have charge of the program. Those who will have birtdays in March, will sit at their own table with one of the group bringing a birthday cake just for the March table.

Everyone should bring a covered dish and sandwiches.

KLEMME SCHOOLS OPENED ON MONDAY AFTER SHUT DOWN

Cold Spell Broken; School Need Not Conserve Fuel Supply

Klemme Schools opened Monday after being closed for a week as a measure to conserve scanty fuel supplies which might have been needed for homes, had the cold spell continued. The school had about a week's supply of coal on hand when it was closed.

All of the teachers were back in town Monday and most of the rural students were able to get to town. Many of the rural students are remaining in town this week as country roads are still blocked with snow.

Discussion Groups Planned For 1936

Provides Farm People Opportunity To Express Views On Planning

County committees engaged in one of Iowa's newest agricultural programs will use an old method, recently given new emphasis, to familiarize farmers with a program.

Rural discussion groups wherein a few persons meet to discuss informally questions of current general interest, will be organized in many counties to discuss the development of county agricultural planning and related subjects.

The small discussion groups, usually not more than 20 persons, will meet in homes or small halls to exchange ideas on the discussion topic. Individuals will be limited in the time they may use until all members of the group have expressed themselves.

Plan First Tried In Iowa

The discussion group plan, to be used in familiarizing farmers with county agricultural planning and other subjects related to it, was first tried in Iowa and a number of other states on an experimental basis in the spring of 1935. The success of these demonstration groups indicated the value of the discussion method in acquainting farmers with current economic and social subjects.

THE CAN WON'T HURT IT

A "hardy perennial" question which keeps popping up in the mail of the Homemaker's Half Hour, Radio Station WOI, Iowa State College, is this one: Is it safe to leave canned food in the can after opening?

The answer is yes. Food spoils no faster and no slower in the can than in any other container. Some acid foods such as fruit and tomatoes when left standing in the open can for a time tend to dissolve some of the iron of the container and take on a slightly metallic taste. But this is not at all harmful.

Hell Freezes Over at Last

You've often heard the expression "when hell freezes over," but this time it's literally true. Buried under six inches of snow is the little settlement of Hell, Mich., a name given by one of the early settlers who was arrested for not paying his taxes on whisky he was distilling there. He christened the town Hell, and Hell it has been ever since. The photograph shows a dam at Hell frozen over. Although the little river is not named, it presumably is the River Styx.

New Federal Reserve Board Takes Office

FIVE of the members of the new federal reserve board were inducted into office with due ceremony. A sixth, Ralph W. Morrison of Texas, was to arrive later and be sworn in. The seventh member had not yet been named by President Roosevelt. Marriner S. Eccles, slated for chairman, and M. S. Szymczak of Chicago, were holdovers. The others besides Morrison are Ronald Ransom, Atlanta banker; John McKee of Ohio, former chief bank examiner for the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, and Joseph A. Broderick of New York.

Marriner S. Eccles

The reserve board, which has been called "a supreme court of banking," has powers unparalleled in American financial history. Among these is authority to double present margins that member banks are required to maintain against deposits; the dominant voice on the open-market committee—which charts the system's participation in the government bond market, and over which it had no authority under the former law; power of veto over the heads of the various reserve banks which insures the selection of a president who will co-operate with the board, and the power to fix margins governing relations between banks and brokers.

President Asks Repeal of Three AAA Acts

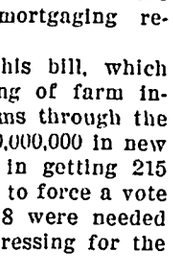
IN A surprise message to congress President Roosevelt recommended the prompt repeal of three acts auxiliary to the AAA. These are the Bankhead cotton act, the Kerr-Smith tobacco act and the potato control act. The first named is the only one whose enforcement has been attempted and its validity is up for decision by the Supreme court. In view of the court's decision invalidating the AAA it was agreed by everyone that there was no value in keeping the three auxiliary acts on the books.

New Farm Program Bill Comes Up in Senate

WHAT is known as the Bankhead-Jones bill for soil conservation, the administration's substitute for the AAA, was given the hesitant approval of the senate agricultural committee by a vote of 15 to 2, although Chairman Ellison D. Smith of South Carolina said he "personally had some doubts" as to its constitutionality. The measure would enable the secretary of agriculture to remove 30,000,000 acres from cultivation and give him even wider powers than he had under the AAA. It was evidently headed for a hot debate on the senate floor.

Dickinson Also Has Program to Save the Farmer

EVERY Presidential possibility these days must have some plan for the salvation of the American farmer. Senator L. J. Dickinson of Iowa, often mentioned for the Republican nomination, now brings out his permanent farm program which he says would divorce the farm problem from "bureaucratic control" in Washington. His plan would embrace erosion control, soil conservation, and restoration of fertility of lands. Administration would be handled jointly by the states and the federal government in a manner similar to highway construction.



Senator Dickinson

The Dickinson program, similar to that advocated by former Gov. Frank O. Lowden of Illinois, includes payment of the balance due signers of AAA contracts, a higher tariff on farm products, continued corn loans, and extension of farm mortgages at a low rate of interest.

Inflationists Ready for Battle in Congress

INFLATIONISTS in congress, led by Senator Thomas of Oklahoma and Representative Patman of Texas, were all prepared to wage a great battle to force the printing of new money. They were just waiting for the introduction of a new tax program, declaring they would try to block such legislation if it were attempted. It was believed that, if the tax issue were not raised soon, the fight would start over the Frazier-Lemke farm mortgaging refinancing bill.

The forces behind this bill, which calls for the refinancing of farm indebtedness on easy terms through the issuance of up to $3,000,000,000 in new money, had succeeded in getting 215 signatures on a petition to force a vote in the house. Only 218 were needed and its backers were pressing for the three names.

Administration leaders were confident they could defeat the inflationists by a wide margin.

The tentative tax program being considered by the administration calls for 500 millions of excise taxes for subsidies to the farmers and 230 millions of taxes of an undetermined character to "amortize" the soldier bonus in ten years. The 500 millions of excise taxes are not considered "new" taxes for the reason that they would take the place of the processing taxes levied under the defunct AAA.

United Mine Workers Defy William Green

UNITED Mine Works of America, in convention in Washington, shouted boisterous defiance at William Green's plea that they drop their campaign for industrial organization.

The A. F. of L. president opened his speech before the 1,700 delegates from the coal pits with a plea for co-operation to prevent a split in the ranks of American labor. The A. F. of L., which favors the craft (or skilled worker) unions, had ordered the miners, led by John L. Lewis, to abandon their committee working for industrial unions.

But as he warmed up to his subject, Mr. Green clashed more directly with the views of the miners and the scattered applause which had greeted his remarks changed to boos and shouts of opposition.

When Lewis arose to reply to Green he was given the support of almost every delegate in the hall.

Eastman Plans to Unify Terminal Facilities

JOSEPH B. EASTMAN, co-ordinator of transportation, is trying to wipe out an estimated annual waste of $50,000,000 in railroad terminal operations, and announced that he would soon order the unification of terminal facilities in eleven cities. This, he figures, will save the affected railroads at least $800,000 annually. Mr. Eastman had tried unsuccessfully to have the carriers make the changes voluntarily.

J. B. Eastman

The unifications will be ordered at Worcester, Mass.; Mechanicsville, N. Y.; Grand Rapids, Mich.; Jacksonville, Fla.; Montgomery, Ala.; Meridian, Miss.; Freeport, Ill.; Des Moines, and Council Bluffs, Iowa; Beaumont, Texas, and Ogden, Utah.

After the first group of orders, Eastman said that, if necessary, he was prepared to compel "other steps of increasing magnitude," but would "stand aside if railroads are able to produce their own momentum."

Unless extended by congress, Eastman's office will expire in June. He has recommended that it be continued at least five years.

Neutrality Bill Seared by J. Bassett Moore

ENCOURAGEMENT was given opponents of the administration neutrality bill by the severe castigation of the measure by John Bassett Moore, former member of the World court. His statement was presented at a secret meeting of the senate foreign relations committee but was made public by Senator [illegible] of California, who doesn't like the bill.

Calling it "a curious blend of homicidal with suicidal mania," Mr. Moore caustically denounced the bill, which would continue the present mandatory embargo on arms and munitions shipments to belligerents, but give the President discretion in limiting certain other exports to peace-time levels.

"The homicidal mania," Moore said, "glares in the proposal to try to starve other peoples who engage in war; the suicidal mania gleams in the proposal to demoralize and destroy our commerce in order that peoples at war may not be nourished by what we produce."

Especially vehement was his attack on the section giving the President discretion to curb the shipment of such war materials as steel, oil and cotton.

Kansas Republicans Offer Landon for Nomination

KANSAS Republican state committee members, the Kansas Day club and many party leaders from the Missouri valley region, celebrating Founders' day in Topeka, presented to the country Gov. Alf Landon of Kansas as their choice for the Republican Presidential nomination. In a speech to the banqueters the governor told what he hoped to do for the nation if he were nominated and elected. Refraining from "substituting epithets for arguments," he offered a program for ending federal extravagance and restoring prosperity.

Gov. Landon

Replying to the query "What would you do?" Mr. Landon proposed relief for agriculture through a soil conservation program with the honest purpose of saving the fertility of American farms and not merely that of providing a blind for further dispensation of AAA checks.

Lindbergh Case Reopened by Governor Hoffman

ON ORDERS from Gov. Harold G. Hoffman of New Jersey, further investigation of the Lindbergh kidnaping and murder case has been started. Col. H. Norman Schwarzkopf, head of the state police, assigned two of his star detectives for the inquiry, and has enlisted the aid of federal investigating agencies and the New York police.

The governor wants the investigation to be painstaking and thorough. The reprieve which he granted Hauptmann will expire on February 15. After that date at least four weeks, and perhaps five, will elapse before the date for the execution which will be ordered by Justice Thomas W. Trenchard, who presided over the trial.

The governor believes that by that time his power of reprieve will have expired in this case, and he will not grant another unless Attorney General David T. Wilentz concurs. Unless new developments warrant it, the attorney general will not agree to further delay in the execution.

Talmadge Boom Launched in Georgia Meeting

TWO thousand or more "grass root" Democrats, representing 17 southern and border states—though most of them were Georgians—assembled in Macon, Ga., and with wild yells launched the boom of Gov. Eugene Talmadge for the Democratic Presidential nomination. They adopted a motion asking him to run as a constitutional Democrat who is opposing what they called the "theorists, crackpots, brain trusters and professors" of the New Deal. Talmadge, though highly elated declined to comment or to make any announcement at the time.

Gov. Talmadge

The platform adopted by the meeting called for preservation of the Constitution, of state sovereignty and of the American form of government. It accused President Roosevelt of abandoning faith in the Constitution and the doctrines of Thomas Jefferson and of "repudiating, abandoning, and sidetracking" the platform on which he was elected in 1932. It said:

"We do not regard the occupant of the White House as a Democrat.

"He has broken the pledge of our party and violated the platform of 1932.

"We here today affirm our faith in that doctrine."

It is not easy yet to establish the possible results of the Talmadge movement. The administration leaders refuse to take the Georgia governor seriously or to admit that he can imperil their control of any of the southern states.

The situation in the South is further complicated by the sudden death of Gov. O. K. Allen of Louisiana. He was the devoted and complaisant adherent of Huey Long and had been selected to fill out the unexpired term of the late senator. Lieutenant Governor Noe succeeded to the governorship, but who will now be the leader of the Long forces was not immediately determined.

League Experts Study Oil Embargo Problem

WHETHER an oil embargo against Italy could be made effective was the knotty problem confronting a League of Nations committee of experts that met in Geneva. About a dozen countries were represented, but Poland refused to take part on the ground that it exports no oil to Italy, but only to Czechoslovakia.

League authorities said the investigation into practical possibilities of enforcing an oil embargo against Italy, in addition to the present war penalties, was likely to center to a large degree on the attitude of the United States.

These sources conceded uncertainty as to whether such an extension of sanctions could be effective if the United States administration applied no oil embargo at all, or limited oil exports to Italy to a definite known amount.

Progress of Mussolini's War in Ethiopia

RECENT heavy fighting in the Tembien mountains in Ethiopia resulted in the death or wounding of some six hundred Italians, but Rome announced that the natives were finally completely routed. In the southern sector the invaders with their swift motorized columns succeeded in driving the forces of Ras Desta Demtu 80 miles further back along the Ganale Doria river toward Alatta. The Italians said the Ethiopians were retreating in panic but still fighting fiercely. This reverse was admitted at Addis Ababa and it was announced the emperor was sending strong reinforcements to his son-in-law, Ras Desta.

Death of Gen. Kondylis, "Strong Man" of Greece

GEN. GEORGE KONDYLIS, "strong man" of Greece and leader of the coup d' etat by which the monarchy was restored, died suddenly of a heart attack complicated by asthma.

His associates said his death possibly was brought on by the defeat of the Kondylis political group in the general election in which the Liberal Venizelists won control of 142 of the 300 parliamentary seats. King George and all the high military and political leaders joined in final homage to the dead general at the state funeral accorded him.

Kondylis was premier and regent after the restoration was voted, but resigned from office when he disagreed with the king over political issues.

National Topics Interpreted

By WILLIAM BRUCKART

NATIONAL PRESS BLDG. WASHINGTON, D. C.

Washington.—If ever there were a time other than when the nation was at war when money dominated the situation at Washington, it assuredly is now. One can go where he chooses about the government departments, to the White House or to Capitol Hill and the subject under discussion is or soon will be money.

Money Dominates

A year or so ago, we heard a great deal about money. We heard of it in connection with an appropriation of $4,880,000,000 — the greatest single peace-time voting of money in our history. And, likewise, we heard money discussed when the President used his power to devaluate the dollar in its relation to gold.

Now, however, the subject of money is discussed in a slightly different vein. The question that is paramount is how can the government get the money it needs. In other words, we are now getting around to the question of taxation, and it is a question that neither the President nor his lieutenants in congress like to face. It is an election year and a tax increase in election year is not what the politicians would call smoothing the highway of a campaign.

Passage of the legislation providing immediate payment of the veterans' bonus brought conditions to a head. The President vetoed the bonus bill and congress promptly overrode that veto. So the President promptly told congress that something had to be done about it; that the only funds the treasury could muster would be by borrowing and that since congress had yielded to the vocal minority represented by the greatest lobby ever to populate the Capitol, it thereby captured for itself a problem of raising the money.

Of course, the President must assume some responsibility even though he vetoed the bonus for the reason that some of the funds which must be raised will go to pay the crop control benefits or bonus resulting from invalidation of the processing taxes and the Agricultural Adjustment act. The President, as well as the political leaders in congress, want to continue that payment and they also want to pay farmers on commitments previously made because they regard them as moral obligation under the AAA contracts, Yet the country is likely to think in terms of the bonus for the war veterans and pay little attention to the smaller amount scheduled to go to the farmers and, indeed, the veterans' bonus is almost six times that which the administration desires to pay to the farmers.

There was in this situation a development to which I believe attention should be called. Through many years congress has been an easy spender. Through the same years it has avoided at every turn laying taxes to offset the money it voted out of the treasury. Under the Roosevelt administration the peak of easy spending has been reached and congress has gone along with a vociferous "aye" on every spending proposal sent to the Capitol from the White House. The congressional attitude to which I have referred came up in bulk at the time of the bonus vote. Every time a bonus opponent inquired where the government would get the money to pay the two and one-half billion to the veterans, the answer from the bonus supporters was, in effect, "It's up to Henry."

"It's Up to Henry"

I can recall a familiar slogan, current when I was a boy, that was used always when some one desired to shift responsbility—to pass the buck. It was "let George do it." In the bonus controversy, Senator Bankhead, Democrat of Alabama, was the first member of congress whom I heard say "It's up to Henry." He meant that the job of raising the money belonged to Henry Morgenthau, secretary of the treasury, but Senator Bankhead spoke more than his own feelings when he made the statement. He put into words a thought which permeated the minds of a vast majority of unthinking representatives and senators.

Perhaps I should not say unthinking because those men were, in truth, thinking very deeply. Their thoughts, instead of turning to song in the spring, were turning to votes in November. That was the reason for passage of the bonus. Senators and representatives seeking re-election were afraid to go into the battle for nomination and re-election this summer and have war veterans drag out the skeleton of a vote in opposition to immediate payment of the bonus.

It will be a long time before those who voted for the bonus can live it down. A keen political maneuver has something in it that calls for admiration but an obvious political maneuver such as was the passage of the bonus did not give any reason for commendation except, perhaps, the justification that if the Roosevelt administration was committed to passing out hundreds of millions of dollars on boondoggling and other more or less useless projects, then the war veterans were entitled to be paid now the sums which congress promised them would be paid in 1947. That really is a powerful argument but if Roosevelt supporters make that argument they are at the same time damning the New Deal spending policies, so I fancy that such an argument will be rarely advanced.

It is entirely probable that there will be no tax bill this year unless the President's letter to Speaker Byrns pointing out the necessity for raising revenue causes an unheard of number of senators and representatives to do a flip-flop. No imagination is required to see that a representative or senator is in a tough spot when he goes back home asking the suffrage of his constituents and must tell them at the same time that he added to the tax burden which they must pay.

May Be No Tax Bill

Well, if that be true, how is "Henry" going to get the money? It will have to be borrowed and it will have to be borrowed on government bonds which add up into an increasing government deficit. It means that instead of a deficit of around three billions in the next fiscal year, the treasury will be confronted with a deficit of more than five billions and the public debt, in the meantime, will have been correspondingly increased. It means, in addition, that the banks of the country will have to pile more government bonds on top of the government bonds they have thus far absorbed in financing a policy of spending our way out of the depression.

The tragedy of the situation in congress that brought about Senator Bankhead's remark of "It's up to Henry" is that it indicates that congress has been looking upon the treasury as a source of revenue. It is not and it never has been. Government is nonproductive. It can get funds only by taxation, by taking them away from the people—or by borrowing and if it borrows it has to pay back. In either event, new taxation must come and if congress doesn't have the nerve to pass tax legislation in this session, it must lay taxes in the next session.

The newspapers throughout the country have been full of reports concerning the early start of the political campaign. The Al Smith speech, coming from the man who made it, brought about a sudden expansion in the political fire. It really opened up the fight and henceforth we are due to be surfeited with this claim or that, this charge and that denial or countercharge, as the various leaders marshal their forces.

Campaign Starts Early

Thus far, in addition to President Roosevelt's Jackson day speech to the $50-a-plate diners and Mr. Smith's Liberty league dinner outburst, we have had active campaigning by former President Hoover, by Governor Talmadge of Georgia, by Senator Borah, the Idaho Republican; by Governor Landon, the Kansas Republican, and by Senator Robinson of Arkansas, the Democratic leader in the senate, who spoke in reply to Mr. Smith. Others are in the offing for the Republican and Democratic national committees are engaging radio times in a big way.

As speeches and statements increase in number, and as fanfare grows louder, I find myself getting a bit callous to them all. I have been wondering whether the American people have lost their sense of humor completely, because the situation really has a humorous side. Unless the people's sense of humor has been dreadfully seared, it seems to me they ought to be highly amused over ridiculous statements now being made on one side of the fence or on the other. Take, for instance, Mr. Roosevelt's handwritten bonus veto message. It presented something a bit unusual because in my time in Washington it had happened only once before that a President vetoed a bill with a handwritten message to congress. Of course, it was intended to be dramatic—and it was. But the point is this: A year ago when congress passed the bonus the President made a personal appearance in the halls of congress and read his own veto message. He made his vigorous fight and he rallied his supporters in line to sustain his veto. There has been so much talk around Washington since the handwritten message went to congress that the President really was not vigorously opposing passage of the bill over his veto that I am coming to believe that was true. In other words, he thought that immediate payment of the bonus was wrong but he had a weather eye out for the forthcoming campaign and the votes the bonus might bring.

Then consider the activity of Senator Borah. I believe the Idaho senator is too smart to feel that he can be the Republican nominee against Mr. Roosevelt, but he is going through all manner of gyrations just the same. He has purposes and objectives in mind, obviously, but they are not the Republican Presidential nomination as he leads his various audiences to infer. It is to be recalled that Senator Borah has not at any time actually said he was a candidate. We have also the circumstance of Senator Robinson replying to Al Smith over the same radio and through substantially the same number of broadcasting stations.

Women should take only liquid laxatives

MORE people could feel fine fit and regular, if they would only follow the rule of doctors in hospitals in relieving constipation. Never take any laxative that's harsh in action. Or one, the dose of which can't be exactly measured. Doctors know the danger if this rule is violated. They use liquid laxatives and keep reducing the dose until bowels need no help at all.

Reduced dosage is the secret of aiding Nature in restoring regularity. You must use a little less laxative each time, and that's why it should be a liquid like Syrup Pepsin.

Ask your druggist for a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. And if it doesn't give you absolute satisfaction, it isn't a joy and comfort in constipation, it overcomes biliousness due to constipation, your money back.

BEFORE you take any preparation you don't know all about for the relief of headaches; or the pains of rheumatism, neuritis, neuralgia, ask your doctor what he thinks about it — in comparison with Genuine Bayer Aspirin.

We say this because, before the discovery of Bayer Aspirin, many so-called "pain" remedies were advised against by physicians as being bad for the stomach; or, often, for the heart. And the discovery of Bayer Aspirin largely changed medical practice.

Countless thousands of people who have taken Bayer Aspirin year in and year out without ill effect, have proved that the medical findings about its safety were correct.

Remember this: Genuine Bayer Aspirin is rated among the fastest methods yet discovered for the relief of headaches and all common pains . . . and safe for the average person to take regularly.

You can get real Bayer Aspirin at any drug store — simply by name asking for it by the name "aspirin" alone, but always saying BAYER ASPIRIN when you buy.

FARM POLICEMEN

In a recent booklet issued by the Department of Agriculture it is stated that there are three schools of thought with respect to the relationship the government should have with business. One is to leave business alone; another is to do something about it, and still another is that the government should act as a policeman.

The department's view, as indicated by its own publication, favors the policeman idea, which was quite thoroughly exemplified under the AAA, and would prevail under the proposed new farm act.

If this idea be adopted as a permanent policy, it can be judged from past experience that it would lead to ever increasing control of all farm operations by an army of government "policemen." The Potato Control Act is a sample of how far this police power would be extended if the bureaucrats could have their way.

In spite of the temporary benefits which have accrued to certain land owners under the police system, wise farmers must have realized all the time that such benefits could not be continued for more than a limited time.

The capable and industrious farmer does not need nor want a policeman standing over him with a club, telling him what he must or must not do. We have too many government policemen now, and their number should be drastically reduced, instead of being increased.

AWFUL POSSIBILITIES

Horrible as were some of the engines of death employed in the World war, they were probably less destructive than those which might be brought into play in a future death struggle of nations.

Prof. Leonard Hill, in his address as president before a London sanitary association recently cited one possibility which is terrifying in its implications. He declared that a certain kind of germ which can be easily cultivated is so deadly that a spoonful suitably distributed could kill a million persons.

This is not the first time such measures for the extermination of troops and noncombatants alike in the event of another great war have been hinted at. And there is little use to argue that such diabolical means if developed, would not be used.

Poison gas in warfare was condemned and agreements to avoid its employment were made long before the World War, but it was used with telling effects by both sides after the Germans resorted to it at Ypres, in 1915. Our own experts declare that chemical warfare will play a far more important role in any future war. And there is not the slightest doubt that disease germs would be likewise employed if a practical method of so doing were developed.

With all these added horrors in prospect, it is little wonder that thoughtful persons everywhere are seeking to prevent another world tragedy, which might easily wipe out entire populations. Civilization must preserve peace or perish by the instruments of destruction which it has created.

WEATHER MYTHS

Perhaps many credulous persons are now watching for a verification of their weather predictions, based on whether the ground hog saw his shadow in their localities on Ground Hog Day, February 2. And even if their predictions are not verified, they will doubtless offer some sort of alibi for that venerable forecaster.

Then about March 21 these same folks will watch for the "equinoctial storm" which is supposed to take place about the time when the sun "crosses the line."

Of course, no one with any knowledge of meteorology pays any attention to either of these ancient superstitions, but in the popular mind they cling with grim tenacity.

Owing to the erratic habits of the weather, any kind of prediction will come true occasionally, but scientific observers tell us that in the present state of human knowledge it is impossible to predict weather conditions more than a very few days ahead.

From the records of the last 50 years, kept by the United States weather bureau, it is shown that storms are no more frequent during equinoctial periods than at other times of the year. In fact, the most destructive of all storms—western tornadoes and West Indian hurricanes—occur principally in the summer and fall, at periods farthest removed from the eqinoxes.

But old superstitions die hard, and those concerning the weather are among the most persistent.

NEED A BUSINESS ADMINISTRATION

If we had a group of able business men in office at Washington instead of a lot of parlor socialists and theoretical asses of the brain trust variety, we might be finding solutions to our problems that will work. Instead nearly every sound-minded business man who once believed in Roosevelt has resigned and left his administration in disgust and some of them are now his severest critics. Roosevelt, himself, has been a notorious business failure and left the state of New York in hopeless debt as the result of his administration as governor.

The country needs a business administration at Washington worse right now than at any other time in its history. General Motors and Ford Motor Co. are prospering in spite of the times, because they employ business brains, not college theorists. Let's run our government as Ford runs the automobile business and we will get Uncle Sam and all of his stockholders out of the red.—Marshalltown, Ia., Times-Republican.

WHEN ECONOMY IS JUST A JEST

It is such a long time between Supreme Court decisions that things were pretty quiet in Washington. There was no news, the President announced in opening his press conference, except that Charley Michelson needed a haircut.

To which New Deal Publicity Man No. 1 responded, with a straight face, that "someone has to economize in this administration." It is a tribute to the President's sense of humor that he "joined in the laughter," although a lot of taxpayers are probably wondering why a reference to economy was greeted as a humorous remark.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

WALLACE CAN'T DODGE THE BLAME

There is no question that there is a general resentment of the return to packers and millers and manufacturers of the impounded millions of processing taxes if the taxes were paid by the consumers, as is claimed. Secretary Wallace is justly indignant at the injusticc of such a thing, although admitting it may be strictly legal. And this raises the question, Henry, as to who is to blame for putting over an illegal thing like processing taxes, which once paid out cannot be retrieved by those who actually paid.—Oskaloosa, Kans., Independent.

GOING RIGHT ALONG

The AAA boys quartered in all parts of the country evidently have orders from on high to go right along with their work. In other words, although the court has held that agriculture as a whole cannot be regulated by the federal government, the AAA agents will persist in piece-meal regulation.—Seattle, Wash., Times.

Paving of Roads Was Big Factor in Growth of Direct Selling

From 1920 to 1930 the mileage of hard-surfaced roads in the 12 Corn Belt States grew from 154,521 to 277,764 miles. During the same period, the number of motor truck registrations in the Corn Belt States increased from 378,000 to 1,278,000, according to the federal bureau of public roads.

The staccato roar of the motor truck brought in its wake a profound change in livestock marketing methods — a change which is best described by comparing the farmer of today with the farmer of 20 years ago.

The farmer of 20 years past had to rely on a team and wagon to haul his hogs over a mud road to the nearest railroad shipping point. He could haul only on certain "shipping days" when trains and stock cars were available, usually one, two, or at the most three days a week. His effective marketing radius was small. The slowness of wagon transportation tied him to the shipping point and the railroad furnished practically his only contact with livestock markets.

Today, good roads and trucks have made many markets available to him. The average Corn Belt farmer, with fast-moving trucks at his command, can reach out 50 or 100 miles or more in any direction from his farm to the most favorable market on any day he decides to sell.

With his radio, he can keep posted on market prices, both at central and interior points. With his telephone he can, at small cost, obtain bids on his livestock from any of several nearby markets. With the truck, he can get his livestock to market on the same day he decides to sell, and he can be back at his farm that same day with the money in his pocket. If the quotations at a central market appear more favorable to him than those at his nearby interior markets, he is just as free to use the central market as he ever was.

The use of trucks is not peculiar to the direct selling of livestock, since trucks are also used widely in transporting livestock to central markets. For example, during the period 1925-34, truck receipts of the various kinds of livestock at the 17 principal markets increased as follows: cattle, from 641,770 to 5,763,628 head; calves, from 568,909 to 2,444,849; hogs from 3,504,539 to 16,862,090; sheep and lambs, from 861,854 to 4,208,873. However, trucks are most economical for short hauls and for that reason their increased use has encouraged shipments of livestock to concentration points and interior packing plants, many of which are located closer to producers than are central markets.

Just as the railroad hauling of livestock gave rise to the central livestock markets, so has the development of truck transportation given increased importance to the local or interior livestock markets.

Good Roads and Direct Selling

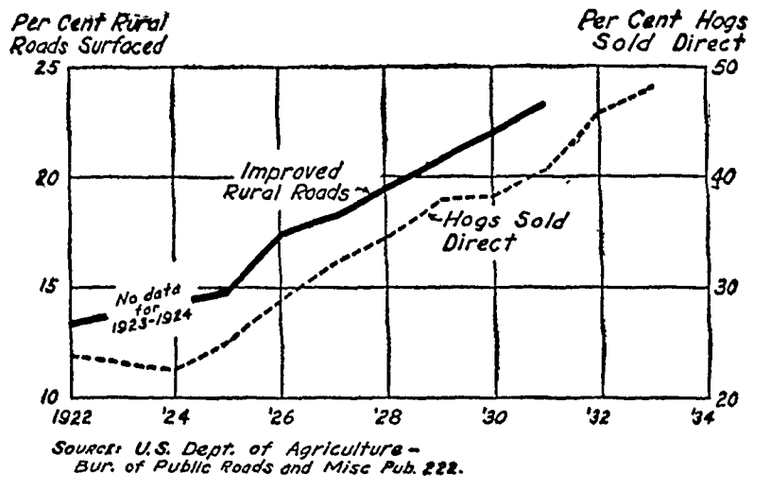
(Corn Belt States)



Source: U.S. Dept. of Agriculture — Bur. of Public Roads and Misc Pub. 222.

Note how the increase in the percentage of hogs sold direct in the Corn Belt States has paralleled the increase in the mileage of improved rural roads. Improved roads led to livestock trucking, which in turn was one of the causes of the growth in direct selling.

Washington's Birthday

By RAYMOND PITCAIRN

National Chairman Sentinels of the Republic

"The character, the counsels and example of our Washington . . . will guide us through the doubts and difficulties that beset us; they will guide our children and our children's children in the paths of prosperity and peace."

That tribute to the enduring influence of George Washington was expressed by one of our earlier statesmen during a period as critical to America as our own. It remains a true estimate today.

What counsels can we recall as, throughout the nation, we honor his memory?

The Father of His Country was more eloquent in deeds than in phrases. He lived his own precept: "Actions, not words, are the true criterion" But history has, nevertheless, recorded numerous expressions of his wisdom and foresight Many of them hold a peculiar significance in a period marked by assaults on the very Constitution in which he incorporated his hopes for the future of our Nation.

Here are some of George Washington's comments on the great Charter of Liberties so intimately identified with his life and his spirit:

"That precious depository of American happiness, the Constitution of the United States."

"The Constitution which at any time exists till changed by an explicit and authentic act of the whole people is sacredly obligatory to all."

"If in the opinion of the people the distribution or modification of the Constitutional powers be in any particular wrong, let it be corrected by an amendment in the way which the Constitution designates. But let there be no change by usurpation; for though this in one instance may be the instrument of good, it is the customary weapon by which free governments are destroyed."

"Experience is the surest standard by which to test the existing Constitution of a country."

To which might be added one more In the light of that odd adherence to a new and alien philosophy which actuates so many recent attacks on the Constitution, it seems timely to recall Washington's oft-quoted war-time order:

"Put none but Americans on guard tonight."

The Way of Inflation

By RAYMOND PITCAIRN

National Chairman Sentinels of the Republic

If a merchant, or a farmer, or the average householder persistently spends more than he earns, he goes broke. He pays for his folly in the wreck of his business, his property, and, perhaps, his career.

With governments it can be different. From time to time various nations have indulged in continued reckless expenditures, yet escaped immediate collapse. How? By resort to the desperate remedy of inflation—whether of currency or of credit.

The difference is that the individual bears the brunt of the blow himself, while governments pass it on to their citizens.

History has demonstrated this on many occasions. Perhaps the best remembered example of recent years is that of Germany, where post-war inflation brought hardship and hunger to millions of workers. Records do not show that the clever politicians who brought it all about, or the very rich, went hungry. That was reserved for the average run of citizens, who saw prices rise so swiftly that neither earnings nor savings could keep pace with them.

For a while the situation grew so serious that workmen found it necessary to demand pay for their services at the end of each day's labor. They knew that if they waited, prices might mount so rapidly that even a week's pay couldn't buy one bowl of soup.

Germany's experience was not an isolated one. It has been duplicated to a lesser degree in many countries and in many periods of history. It is because of the evidence such experiments offer, that an increasing number of thoughtful Americans oppose the course of reckless government expenditure that causes inflation.

The concern of such citizens is not for the very rich and the very shrewd —who know just when to buy and sell, or how to rig or play the stock market. It is rather for the average family that depends on a weekly or monthly wage for income, and a savings account or life insurance policy for security. Those are the people who shoulder the burden and suffer the hurts of inflation.

And those are the people who can stop its course.

They face a great responsibility. Under our Constitution the conduct of national affairs rests ultimately in their hands. If they insist on reasonable economy, the men who represent them in government must obey the mandate. If they remain indifferent, they encourage either the burden of increased taxes, or the still heavier toll of inflation with all its golden opportunities for the speculator, and its grim penalties for the worker.

$25,000 GOES TO DOGS

Memphis, Tenn.—"Homeless Hector" need no longer wall for a home and friends. Government officials have announced that 25,000 WPA dollars are going to the dogs here, to provide a "haven for homeless hounds" that will be something of a palace in dog heaven. It will be ready for occupancy soon, and will have all the modern conveniences any dog could desire, including plenty of food and shower baths administered by attendants.

Almost co-incidentally, the government announced plans to experiment with the planting of 400,000,000 trees during 1936.

New Deal days are dog days!

The Spiritual

The spiritual is a unique form of religious folksong evolved by the southern plantation negro. It is rendered without instrument of any sort, the fervent hand-clapping, tapping and patting of the feet, and the rhythmic movement of the body known as 'shoutin'" In this way is the true spiritual distinguished from that usually given by trained singers, from which, it is held, most of the real qualities are lacking

Discarded Gas Cans Popular

The discarded gasoline can is one of the most widely used objects throughout Asia and Africa. It is employed chiefly for carrying or storing water, milk, clothes and money. However, writes Katherine Gardner, Rapid City, S. D., in Collier's Weekly, there are whole towns made out of these flattened tins and some people turn them into musical instruments and bird cages. In Tibet those with sacred animals stamped on their sides are even used in the temples for the burning of incense.

SHIRTMAKER FROCK IS INDISPENSABLE

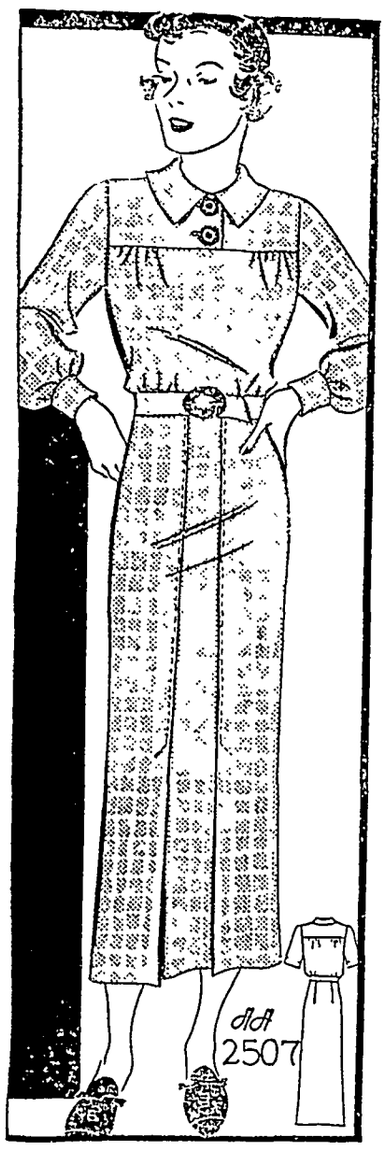
PATTERN 2507



A budget-wardrobe is a limited wardrobe, one in which each separate item must play more than one role. The shirtmaker is a very good example of this type of frock, for it's just as smart for country as town, and can go any place during daylight hours and feel well dressed. It's right for classroom and office, too, so includes both school and business girls among its wearers. So simple the veriest beginner could make it. Wool or wool-appearing cotton are excellent fabric ideas.

Pattern 2507 is available in sizes 12, 14, 10, 18, 20, 30, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42. Size 16 takes 2½ yards 54 inch fabric Illustrated step-by-step sewing instructions included.

SEND FIFTEEN CENTS (15c) in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for this pattern. Write plainly name, address and style number. BE SURE TO STATE SIZE

Address orders to the Sewing Circle Pattern Dept., 243 W. Seventeenth St., New York City.

Early Washington Birthdays

GEORGE WASHINGTON never occupied the White House. His executive mansions were temporary, and shifted from New York to Philadelphia while the White House was still a dream, observes a writer in the New York Times. Only his name, plus that dream, which was his, went to the city on the Potomac.

But in the stress of the formative years he was remembered with widespread festivities at his first birthday after his inauguration. Indeed, the anniversary had been hailed even earlier, since the first President was a national hero long before he grasped the reins of government.

Ragged soldiers had piped him a pathetic birthday tune at Valley Forge on the bitter February day that closed his forty-sixth year. Fellow-Virginians had trod a birthday measure at Richmond in 1781. Maryland and New York had toasted him when he was forty nine and already in sight of success for his arms and for his country. Frenchmen who had served by his side seized the opportunity of rejoicing convivially over the anniversary of his birth in 1784, when the hostilities and the British evacuation were both in the past. Young men who had been privileged to visit him in his famous campaign tent organized birthday honors fit for a hero; and in that first February of the new era, the celebrations first began to resemble real occasions.

In Alexandria, Va., the town nearest to the General's stately mansion, the birthnight ball was inaugurated an annual affair. In Philadelphia patriots celebrated "with that hilarity and manly decorum ever attendant on the sons of freedom." In New York there met "a select club of Whigs," and drank to Washington, and hailed him with song and sonnet and declamation.

The date thus far widely honored was February 11. Washington was born on February 11, 1732, according to the British calendar usages then officially in vogue. Nineteen years later Britain adopted the Georgian in place of the Julian calendar But the ancient dates often stuck, and it is not until 1700 that we find Washington's birthday—his first as President—being celebrated on the twenty-second of February instead of the eleventh by the Tammany society of New York

Tammany in 1790 was patriotic, anti-aristocratic, charitable and ambitious. As yet it did not differentiate between President Washington, its adopted "Great Grand Sachem," and the second of those characteristics. In this, the initial year of government under the new Constitution, New York strove to honor the Chief Executive and also to persuade the congress that had come to reside in its midst that New York city was the logical choice for a permanent capital.

Washington himself was busy in New York on that February 22. He was moving from the Franklin house, at the corner of Cherry and Pearl streets, to the McComb mansion on Broadway, near the newly rebuilt Trinity church His diary for the day records him as an active superintendent of the disposal of his furniture. On the twenty-third he transferred his family to the new abode, while understanding citizens kindly stayed away from that day's regular levee

Meanwhile in all 13 states, birthday balls had been held, not only by the cities with their higher social circles, but also in hamlets that could only muster a barn for a ballroom and a fiddle and flute for an orchestra. Soldiers had paraded. Guns had boomed, and church bells rung. Banners and armlets and headbands had blazoned forth the name and often the lineaments of Washington.

In 1791, the Society of the Cincinnati held its first Washington's birthday celebration in New York, having followed Tammany's example by resolving to mark the date each year. The President and the congress (and also the capital of the United States), had meanwhile removed temporarily to Philadelphia. But even New York's disappointment did not prevent Tammany from vying with the exclusive organization of Revolutionary officers to do honor to the day.

Alas, the good feeling did not endure. By 1796, after John Jay had come back from England with his hated treaty, Tammany was fiercely for revolutionary France; Jefferson was its god; George Washington was actually being dubbed, in public, a pro-English aristocrat, and those who celebrated his birthday were coldly accused of being (among other things) bootlickers, idolators, Royalists and sycophants. The country-wide birthday honors of that year, though even more lavish and vociferous than usual, presented for the first time the ogre of party, grinning at the feast.

By 1797, however, the Jay treaty was being regarded much more tolerantly, and certain French proceedings were being looked at a little askance. Those who refused to salute Washington on February 22, to honor a glorious record for its own sake, and to tread a measure at the evening's gala assemblies, now formed a rather conspicuous minority.

George Washington became a private citizen in that year, and was with his Alexandria neighbors at their birthnight ball of February 22, 1798—an onlooker, though in his younger days he had excelled in the minuet.

There was to be only one more birthday for a living Washington to adorn. He spent that one at home at Mount Vernon, presiding over a particularly joyous occasion. His adopted daughter, his pet, Nelly Custis, was being married to his favorite nephew, Maj. Lawrence Lewis.

The radiance went out of Mount Vernon in December of 1799 and the birthday festivities the country over were turned into mourning processions when 1800 brought the anniversary around once more. This February 22 was a universal requiem. The armlets and headbands with Washington's picture were black where once they had been gayly hued.

Throughout the country business was suspended for 24 hours. Theaters, taverns, public halls, schoolrooms and college auditoriums, village greens and parks as well as churches were given over to exercises, meetings and processions expressive of the deepest grief.

Building the Washington Monument

THE Washington monument was long a subject of discussion in and out of congress after the death of the Father of His Country in 1799 until its capstone was set in place December 6, 1884, a total of 85 years, says a National Geographic society bulletin.

On December 23, 1799, John Marshall, famous fellow-Virginian of George Washington, introduced a resolution in the United States house of representatives providing that "a marble monument be erected by the United States in the city of Washington and that the family of General Washington be requested to permit his body to be deposited under it." Martha Washington acceded to the provisions of the resolution, but nothing was done.

In 1816 and 1819 the memorial was discussed in the halls of congress and again in 1824 and 1825. And again nothing was done to carry out the provisions of the resolution.

Displeased with the failure of congress to erect a memorial, influential citizens of Washington organized in 1833 to promote the project. That body became the Washington National Monument society, with Chief Justice John Marshall as its president. The society, which financed construction of the shaft until it rose 154 feet, invited American artists to submit designs for a $1,000,000 edifice. Robert Mills won the competition, but his design was not accepted. It called for a circular colonnaded building from the center of which would rise a 500-foot obelisk.

In 1848 congress passed a resolution authorizing the Washington National Monument society to erect a monument and authorized the President of the United States and officials of the society to choose a suitable site. L'Enfant, in his plan of Washington, had provided for an equestrian statue of Washington, but the spot then was a marsh Thus the present site, only a few hundred feet away, was chosen.

On Independence day, 1848, amid colorful ceremonies, the cornerstone, filled with historical documents, was laid. Slowly for six years the obelisk rose skyward. Then dissension in the society and lack of funds caused construction to cease.

President Grant, in 1876, signed a bill which provided that the government take over and complete the erection of the shaft. Engineers discovered, after careful examination, that the foundations were not sufficient for so lofty an obelisk, the world's tallest, so they began what was called at that time "one of the outstanding engineering feats of the world"—rebuilding the monument's foundatons without damage to the structure. Then, stone by stone, the shaft rose until the pyramidal capstone was placed on December 6, 1884.

The memorial was opened to the public October 9, 1888. Lining its inner walls were placed stones presented by states, cities, fraternities, fire companies, lodges and other organizations from all parts of the country. Stones from many foreign nations also have places in its walls.

The monument cost slightly more than $1,000,000. It is 555 feet 5⅛ inches high and stands on a base 55 feet square. The lower walls are of granite faced on the outside with marble. They are 15 feet thick up to about 500 feet; the upper walls, of marble only, are 18 inches thick. It is estimated that about 23,000 stones were used in the shaft's construction.

There are eight windows at the 504-foot level from which thousands of visitors annually view the Capital city and nearby Virginia and Maryland.

The Useful Red Cross
Oxygen Is Life

Behind the gray walls of Windsor castle, on the hill above the Eton school, where your England learns discipline and cricket, King George's coffin was lowered to the vault to lie beside his father, King Edward VII, and his grandmother, Queen Victoria.

Arthur Brisbane

The magnificent crown of England was taken from the coffin before it disappeared and placed before the altar. Kings go; the crown remains.

The services were broadcast, new feature of a royal funeral. The simple Church of England burial service, read by the Archbishop of Canterbury, was heard far over the earth, wherever Britain's 400,000,000 subjects live.

Veterans having successfully climbed the long, long road, the government began the biggest "pay-off" job in history, the printing of two billion four hundred million dollars' worth of bonds, to be distributed among 3,518,191 World war veterans. The mere distributing cost alone will be $7,000,000.

Now government wonders what new taxes can be invented to pay the two and one-half billions.

Interesting news from Ethiopia sent by an American correspondent says the residence of Haile Selassie's son has on the roof a large red cross although it has nothing to do with the Red Cross. Associated Press sends news of a Swedish "field hospital," captured by Italians in the South, carrying ammunition on five trucks adorned with Red Cross flags and insignia. The "field hospital" automobiles contained, in addition, 27 cases of munitions. In modern war, the safe place seems to be bomb everything. The war drums of the Ethiopian hero, Ras Desta Demtu, were captured. He will miss them.

"The Blood Is the Life," according to an old Hebrew saying, and oxygen is the life of the blood. No oxygen means death, in three minutes or less; too little oxygen means premature death, inferior health meanwhile.

The Dionne quintuplets are marvelous in their health. The marvelous babies sleep outdoors every morning and afternoon; on one occasion the temperature was 30 degrees below zero.

All five walk, all have gained weight during the past month, and have new teeth. Annette has three new ones, twelve in all. All have beautiful blue eyes, high foreheads, pretty faces and look as French as the Marseillaise. They get plenty of oxygen, but wrap up well.

Lloyd George says the new king, Edward VIII, has the magnetism of his grandfather, Edward VII; that he comes to the throne with such great troubles ahead as few kings have ever encountered, but "his courage and his sure instinct will not fail him."

O. K. Allen, Huey Long's governor of Louisiana, died of a cerebral hemorrhage. He remained in succession to Senator Long, leader of the Long party, a short time only. Perhaps they are all together now, both aware that nothing happening on this little earth is important; Huey Long wondering why he made such a fuss about it.

The unnecessary air disaster in Hawaii, two United States bombing planes destroyed in collision while flying "in formation" and six men killed, causes aviators to say that they object to night formation flying. They may well object; nothing more densely stupid could be imagined than sending two planes to fly at high speed, almost wing to wing, inviting disaster and death. Even in these busy times there ought to be somebody sufficiently intelligent to stop that nonsense, at night and in daytime also.

Mr. John Horan of Milwaukee, called by his fellow workers "Soda Ash Johnny," first used soda ash to clean locomotive boilers, a discovery that should have made him rich, but did not.

"Soda Ash Johnny," a proud man, refused to let his son accept a pension, told the authorities: "I am still able to work, and no boy of mine is going 'on the county.'"

It will surprise you to hear that the son, aged sixty-six, had applied for on old age pension.

The statement that imagination is worse than reality applies to everything—death included, let us hope.

When a colony of nudists move to San Diego, Calif., the strongest protest comes from San Diego's Braille club, an organization of blind people. They could not actually know whether the colonists were dressed or not, but they do not like the idea.

Consider how men have persecuted, tortured and burned each other for religious differences, in matters that they could neither see nor know.

Goal Is Dependent Upon Style of Our Faculties

All I have seen teaches me to trust the Creator for all I have not seen. Whatever it be which the great Providence prepares for us, it must be something large and generous; and in the great style of his works.

The future must be up to the style of our faculties, of memory, of hope, of imagination, of reason.

Weird Tests of Nervous System Made in Cellar

Rockefeller Foundation Aids Study in London

By DONALD CALEY

LONDON.—New light on the working of the sympathetic, or involuntary, nervous system is being shed by a remarkable research carried on at the National Hospital for Nervous Diseases here.

Until some of the results of the research are published in scientific journals, in the near future, the neurologists conducting it wish to preserve strict anonymity. The reason that public attention here has been focused on the hospital and its researches is that the Rockefeller foundation has offered provisional grants totaling $600,000 towards new laboratories and the endowment of their work.

The research on the sympathetic nervous system is being carried on in a subterranean cellar which at one time belonged to a convent. Outside is a red-lettered notice reading "It is dangerous to open this door," for elaborate and often painful experiments are being made on human beings, and the sudden opening of the door might make the patient "jump" and lead to his being badly hurt.

Makes Heart Beat.

It is the sympathetic nervous system which is responsible for the beating of the heart, for the movements of the digestive organs and for all other bodily processes that are performed without conscious effort. It is also concerned with the various links between the emotions and physical reactions, such as between fear and the bristling of hair which in human beings is chiefly noticeable in the effect we call "gooseskin." Little is as yet known as to the details of how and why the activity of this involuntary nervous system varies among normal human beings—that is, for instance, why one of two brothers may be much more "highly strung" than another.

It is toward the solution of these and many other allied problems that this research is directed. The essence of the method lies in the measuring of reactions of the sympathetic nerves through recording changes in the blood-vessels, whose size is governed by the sympathetic system.

In practice, the thickness of a finger, which alters with the expansion and contraction of its multitude of minute blood-vessels, serves as the criterion. The changes of volume are naturally extremely small, but they are magnified by the apparatus—a pneumatic system being connected at one end to a sealed rubber fingerstall and at the other to an arrangement of mirrors—and are finally recorded photographically, along with a time-scale, on a moving roll of bromide paper.

Wet Feet Compulsory.

An important feature of these experiments is that the subject is made to keep his feet in warm water. This neutralizes the ordinary effect of slight changes in room temperature. Normally these changes cause frequent slight variations in the sympathetic and vascular systems, and such variations would affect the accuracy of measurements of other sympathetic reactions.

Numerous different tests can, of course, be made on each subject. Chief among these are the reactions to pain, usually induced by pin-pricks or pinches; to fear, produced by sudden noises or by threats; to such mental calculations as word-association tests; and to deep breathing.

Experiments have also been extensively made with subjects some of whose sympathetic nerves have been severed by accidents or disease, or whose brains have been injured, as by the removal of brain tumors.

Monks Maligned—That's Not What They Want!

WASHINGTON.—Monkeys have been much maligned. When they go over each other's fur in their cage, occasionally nipping something between their front teeth, they aren't hunting for what you think they're hunting for.

So says Dr. H. E. Ewing, entomologist of the United States national museum, in the current isue of the Journal of Mammalogy; and he backs up his opinion with the agreement of several fellow-scientists. Monkeys given the facilities necessary to keep clean are highly unlikely to be verminous, the zoologists declare.

But if that isn't what they're after, what are they hunting for? Doctor Ewing made some close observations and a few experiments, and one by one eliminated things that have been suggested: loose flakes of skin, salt crystals from perspiration, etc. In the end, it settled down to just hairs. When Jocko finds a loose (or perhaps just a loosening) hair on his mate's back, he plucks it out—and nibbles it up.

Sleeping Improves Memory, Tests on Students Reveal

Sandman Helps Us to Remember Our Lessons

ITHACA, N. Y.—If a person memorizes certain kinds of material perfectly, and goes to sleep immediately afterwards, he will recall more of it, and also re-learn the whole task more economically after a lapse of 24 hours, than if he waits even a few hours before he goes to sleep, Dr. H. M. Johnson, professor of psychology of American university, Washington, D. C., announced at Cornell university here.

Experiments based on different methods, made by Dr. Rosa Heine Katz, at the University of Gottingen, and by Joseph F. O'Brien, graduate student at American university, showed that all the subjects who were studied were better able to recall and also to relearn material that they had learned by rote and partially forgotten, if they slept for eight hours and then worked for 16 hours, than if they distributed their rest and activity in any other way during the 24-hour period.

Vary as to Subjects.

The differences in favor of sleeping immediately varied between 20 per cent and 30 per cent, according to the subject and the task. One would be justified in offering a bet of 100,000 to one that Mr. O'Brien's results were not due to chance, Doctor Johnson said.

Two explanations have been offered. One, which Doctor Johnson called the "hardening" hypothesis, pictures the brain as inert during sleep, giving recently received impressions a chance to become "set." The other, called the "reverberation" hypothesis, regards the brain as an active organ even during sleep, and supposes that it goes on repeating or "reverberating" recently received impressions during the unconscious period.

Highball Dulls Memory.

Doctor Johnson does not regard either hypothesis as satisfactory. The "hardening" hypothesis is cast into doubt by the poor recall of memorized material made by persons who had "hardened" their brain with the equivalent of only one highball. Furthermore, very recent studies on brain waves show that these fluctuations in the electric potential of the brain go on continuously during sleep, though not in their ordinary "waking" patterns. Finally, studies on sleep conducted by Doctor Johnson himself several years ago at the Mellon institute show that sleepers assume muscular positions which they can maintain only by dint of strenuous brain exertion.

Length of Life Is Yardstick of Culture, Says Carnegie Man

TELL me how long you live, and I'll tell you how civilized you are.

Such, briefly if somewhat roughly, is a yardstick of culture proposed by Dr. George Sarton, historian of science and research associate of the Carnegie Institution of Washington.

One of the things that advance in culture, or civilization, does for a people is increase the general hold on life. One of the appalling stigmata of a barbarous state is the terrifically high infant mortality. And even for those who run the deadly gantlet that besets children at low cultural levels, there remain the dread horsemen of pestilence, famine and war.

As we advance out of barbarity, we improve the amenities of life, insure better food supply, learn more of the causes (and hence of the controls) of disease. We even manage, to a slight extent, at least, to keep the peace. So we live longer. The lifespan yardstick stretches more and more toward the traditional threescore years and ten. We can account ourselves, relatively at any rate, civilized.

But before we can grow smug and boastful of our progress, Doctor Sarton swings out the second joint of his yardstick. Though the lifespan of Occidental peoples has increased appreciably during recent centuries, and most notably during recent decades, the increase has been on a most uneven front. The well-fed, well-sheltered, well-doctored upper classes are taller, stronger, healthier, longer-lived than the poor. There is an inequality in the distribution of length of days, as there is in material things.

A society that shows this "interclass" disparity of lifespan cannot boast itself as truly civilized, no matter how favorable the position of its most favored groups. So long as babies die as fast in our slums as they do in the jungles, so long as men and women must starve in our streets as they do in the desert, so long shall we lack any just right to look upon our culture and call it good.

Man Is Wise, Asleep, Fool or Child—Arabian Proverb

An old Arabian proverb says that men are four:

"He who knows, and knows he knows,—he is wise—follow him.

"He who knows, and knows not he knows,—he is asleep—wake him.

"He who knows not, and knows not he knows not,—he is a fool—shun him.

"He who knows not, and knows he knows not,—he is a child—teach him."

"Stuff a Cold and Starve Fever" Wrong, Says Doctor

I do not know who was responsible for the slogan, "Stuff a cold and starve a fever." Perhaps the same one who started, "Eat, drink, and be merry, for tomorrow we die." To follow the former would probably result in dying, though perhaps with little merriment. It is unfortunate that slogans have so strong a hold on people and so powerful an influence on conduct.

Don't stuff a cold or starve a fever! Eat not by slogan but to meet the particular situation. In that way lies intelligent treatment. But don't try to treat a fever, or a bad cold either, without expert advice. Consult your family doctor and follow his directions.—Dr. Walter H. Eddy, director Good Housekeeping Bureau.

A Grave Mistake for a Mother to Make

GIVING CHILD UNKNOWN REMEDIES WITHOUT ASKING DOCTOR FIRST

GIVING your child a medicine or remedy you don't know all about — without asking your family doctor first — is a bad risk for any mother to take.

Doctors and child authorities say health, and sometimes life itself, depends on this.

So — when you're offered a "bargain" in a remedy for your child; ask your doctor before you buy it. Do this for your child's sake and your own peace of mind.

Ask him particularly about the frequently used "milk of magnesia" — about Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. He will tell you that for over 60 years physicians have endorsed it as SAFE for your child. The kind of remedy you want your child to have.

Remember this when you buy, and say "Phillips' Milk of Magnesia" to your druggist. Comes now, also, in tablets that taste of peppermint, that children like to take.

Safety for You and Yours

NOW, ALSO IN TABLET FORM

You can assist others by refusing to accept a substitute for the genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. Do this in the interest of yourself and your children — and in the interest of the public in general.

BANKERS ARRANGING REGIONAL MEETINGS

Studying New Legal and Economic Conditions Affecting Bank Management

STRESS PUBLIC RELATIONS

American Bankers Association Sponsor of Meetings as Part of Nationwide Program of Banking Development

PHILADELPHIA.—Fifteen hundred bankers from fifteen eastern states met here in January in a two day conference devoted to discussions on legislative, managerial, operating and public relations problems of the banking business. This was the first of a series of meetings planned by the American Bankers Association in its nationwide program of banking development under the leadership of Robert V. Fleming, president of the association. Similar conferences will be held in southern and western sections of the country.

"It is the purpose of these working conferences to bring to association members and other bankers a thorough knowledge of the changes in banking laws and rules, provide discussion of better public relations so that there will be greater cooperation and understanding between the banker and his customers, and to give opportunity for a survey of the problems incident to the Government's competition with our chartered institutions," Mr. Fleming said in opening the meeting.

To Help Government Quit Banking

The discussions at the conference showed that the bankers are ready to make it easier for the Government to relinquish many of its emergency financial services as soon as possible by demonstrating how their institutions are able to render full banking facilities to the public on sound lines.

Bankers generally have recognized that in times of emergency the Government had to come to the assistance of the people where chartered institutions were unable to do so on account of such conditions, Mr. Fleming said They also realize that possibly many functions which the Government is performing are of a nature which cannot be handled by chartered institutions under the principles of sound banking

On the other hand, he said, "we should survey all emergency lending measures of the Government to judge which of these activities can be properly and soundly taken over by banks in their respective communities."

The attending bankers devoted time to considering the Banking Act of 1935 and the many related regulations and discretionary powers under the Federal law. These were explained by O Howard Wolfe of Philadelphia, who said he had made a count of the various places in the act where provision is made for discretionary power to be exercised by government officials through regulations.

"Confining the count only to the sections which affect practically all of us, I found there are forty-eight places where discretionary power is given,' he said. "It is a problem of no mean importance, therefore, to master banking law as it is today or may be tomorrow."

Bank Taxation and Solvency

Bank taxation was discussed by Charles H. Mylander of Columbus, Ohio, who declared that "the average American is vitally interested in taxation of banks because solvency may depend to a large degree upon the way in which the taxing power is exercised upon them."

To prove his point he cited earnings figures which showed that, in the year ended June 30, 1934, "for the United States as a whole, national banks used $14.89 out of each $100 of net operating earnings, before taxes, in payment of taxes, but in seven of the twelve Federal Reserve Districts the percentage of earnings used for taxes was above the average. It was in practically these same seven districts that the greatest number of bank failures occurred in those hectic years from 1920 to 1933.

As an example of how far taxation can go, he quoted official figures showing that in 1934 a large number of small state banks paid on the average $34.20 of every $100 of operating profits for taxes. Mr. Mylander urged that there be "brought home to the average American the self-evident truth that banks, dealing as they do only in intangible property, are not proper subjects for property taxation, that the true measure of a bank's ability to pay taxes is the earnings it can make."

WHEN BANK CROOKS SHOW PREFERENCES

The American Bankers Association reports that non-member banks suffer twice the percentage of burglaries and hold-up robberies as compared with members. Member banks display a sign showing that they receive the protection of the association's detective agents, who cause the arrest of from 150 to 400 bank crooks every year, the organization, which is a non-profit body, says.

"Professional criminals often boast of having sense enough to dodge the far-reaching system of man hunting available to members, so long as there are other banks without this protection," it says. "They recognize that once on the record of the Association's Protective Department, they must pay for every crime with which they can be identified. Detainer warrants have followed them from place to place so that penal servitude for one crime would not expiate other offenses."

Barbara Peterson is assisting with housework at the Irwin Haupt home.

Dorothy Neuhring of Belmond was a Sunday visitor at the Owen Neuhring home.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Buntenbah and children visited Sunday at the Chas. Housh home at Garner.

Mrs. Lena Schroeder entertained friends from Klemme and Garner at quilting bees Thursday and Friday of last week. Lunch was served.

Mr and Mrs. Fred Bell entertained Mr. and Mrs. Russell Bell for dinner Sunday in honor of Julia's birthday.

uneral Held Friday For Mrs. W. Hueneman

FUNERAL RITES HELD FOR PASTOR'S WIFE

s. Huenemann Is Survived By Husband and 13 Children

uneral services for Mrs. William enemann, 51, wife of the Rev. enemann, were held Friday af- noon at the Zion Reformed rch in Garner with the Rev. vin Grosshuesch of Klemme, as- ed by the Rev. D. E. Bosma of ter, in charge. Rural persons e by auto, sleds and horseback attend.

Mr. Huenemann is pastor of Zion ormed church and Peace Re- med church in Ell township ere the family resides. She died a Mason City hospital Wednesday ere she was taken for treatment b. 18 following a lingering ill- s.

Mary Sophie Huenemann, nee nsmeier, was born on the 24th of February in the year of our rd 1885 at Waukon, Iowa In ly infancy she was baptized in Reformed Church at Ludlow, by Rev. Jacob Stark. During her ldhood days she attended the blic and church schools at Wau- n. She was confirmed by the Rev. D. Elliker.

On the 23rd of Oct. 1907 she was ited in holy wedlock with Wm. enemann, of Waukon. The young uple first made their home on a m near Waukon until 1913. Mr. uenemann became convinced at is time that the Lord had a def- ite task for him to perform, and cided to prepare himself for the inistry of the Gaspel. In the spirit Ruth, who said "Whithersoever ou Goest, I will go, Thy God all be my God, and thy people all be my people," Mrs. Huene ann willingly consented to bring e sacrifice that was necessary to ake the preparation for the hus- nds life work. With their family ey moved to Franklin, Wis., where r. Huenemann attended the Mis- on House College and Seminary. fter graduating in 1918 Rev. uenemann served the Reformed ongregation at Curtiss, Wis., until 921. The second pastorate was at own Herman Immanuels congre- ation where the family resided un- l 1927. The next charge was at enno, South Dakota, where they emained until early in December 935, when they moved to Garner, here Rev. Huenemann is now in harge of the Reformed congrega- ions.

Mrs. Huenemann was ill since ast May. On the 12th of July she nderwent a goitre operation at ochester, Minn. After making a atisfactory recovery she returned o her home at Menno, about six eeks later. Her condition became erious again, soon after her return, nd she was taken to the hospital t Mitchell, South Dakota, where he remained four weeks. Again an mprovement was noticed and she eturned to her home. During the ast weeks and it was hoped that he might find added relief by tak ng treatments at a hospital. In this ope she was taken to the Park Hospital at Mason City last week. However, God in his wise provi- idence had decided otherwise, and she fell quietly asleep at 1:15 o'- clock Wednesday afternoon at the age of 51 years and 2 days. Only two days before her death her birth- day was observed. She rejoiced over the many flowers that relatives and kind friends had sent, and greeted her children who had gathered about her with a motherly smile.

Mrs. Hueneman was a true and devoted wife to her husband, and throughout the years of this minis- try was a great help to him in his important work. Her home life can be pointed out as an example for a true Christian home. All members of the various congregations that were served by them will ever re- member her as their true and kind friend. In her home life she proved herself to be a loyal and devoted mother. Always having the best in- terests of her children at heart, willing to sacrifice for the welfare of her family. Surviving her and mourning her loss are her grief stricken husband and 13 children. (One child died in infancy.) The children are: Ruben and Calvin, students at Mission House College; Ruth, student at Madison, Wis., Mrs. Miriam Huber and Mrs. Lois Streyle, both of Menno, South Dako- ota; Erna, Carl, Elmer, Edward, Lawrence, Dorothy, Paul and Wil- liam jr. Three grandchildren; her mother, Mrs. Hy Hansmeier, a. Waukon, Ia.; and six brothers Ed. Theodore and Elmer of Waukon. John and Henry of Foley, Minn., Martin of Boseman, Montana Be- sides many other relatives and friends.

The body was taken to Waukon Saturday. Services were held Sun- day in the Reformed church there with the Rev. F. E. Stucki in charge assisted by the Rev. C. Stubbi. In- terment was made at the Waukon cemetery.

SHIP AHOY! YOU CAN GET A TAILOR-MADE BOAT IN KLEMME

Northern Lumber Co. Resembles Minature Navy Yard

Clear the decks, ye swabs, and batten down the hatches! Here comes the Sea Hag, the Goom and the Skipper of the good ship Balmy Waves, or something. The three sea-going way-farers above referred to are Harold Jost, Milo Patet and Asa Arnold who have been construc- ting a sailing boat at the Northern Lumber Co., the past few weeks. The boat is shaping up nicely and most of the work has been done. It now remains to attach the rud- der, tiller, center-board, mast and sail assembly and various other nautical attachments, and the boat is ready for launching at Clear Lake.

Boats For Fishermen

The force around the lumber yard are at the present time con- structing row boats, ideal for fish- ing and will also build a boat to suit the tastes of the particular fisherman.

Klemme is surely getting "boat- minded" as we hear other rumors that some canoes and kyaks will also be constructed soon.

MILVERN LAU MARRIES AT MORRISON, IOWA, SUNDAY

Milvern Lau, son of Will Lau of Garner, and Miss Ruby McCullock, of Morrison, Iowa, were married at Morrison Sunday afternoon, March 1st, at 5.00 o'clock.

Mr. Lau, who is well known in Klemme and who is a grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Blank, is a gra- duate of Garner High School. Mrs. Lau is a stranger to most of our readers, but those who know her say that she is a mighty fine young lady.

The couple will make their home at Reinbeck.

U-DELT-EM CLUB MEETS

The U-Delt-Em Club met at the home of Mrs. Fred J. Arnold on Thursday afternoon of last week. Bridge was played at three tables. Mrs. Carl Anderson was a guest. Mrs. A. H. Dulmes won high prize, Mrs. Albert Kingery, second high, Mrs. A. J. Kudje, low; Mrs. Thada, travel prize. A lovely lunch was ser- ved.

Goodell High Wins County Tourney

SHAMROCKS LOST TO CORWTIH IN FIRST ROUND GAMES

The Klemme High School Sham- rocks were defeated by the Corwith high school basketball team Friday afternoon in the first round of the County tournament held at Garner 38 to 32 after leading the first half 21 to 17.

Jorgenson led the Klemme sco- ers with 8 points, closely followed by Brinkman and Kaduce with 7 points each. Captain Leo Brinkman played one of the best games of his career until he was forced out of the game via the foul route early in the second half. Klotzbach, Klemme guard, bore the brunt of the defen- sive work. In the back court at times he was forced to endeavor to stop the concerted drive of as many as three Corwith players single- handed. The fact that he was able to stop as many scoring plays as he did only serves to strengthen our contention that he is the outstand- ing guard in the Seven Eagles Con- ference.

Barracks, forward, was the big gun in the Corwith victory drive, garnering 9 field goals and a free throw for a total of 19 points.

Girls Win Firsts In Declam Contest

DECLAMATORY CONTEST HELD WEDNESDAY NIGHT HERE

As the Times is late getting out this week due to a rush of work and the illness of the Editor the past week, we are able to report the results of the declamatory contest held at the high school last night.

LaVonne Sherwood won first in oratorical, with Paul Schuldt, se- cond.

Delores Cook placed first, and Carmen Kluckhohn, second in dra- matic.

Marjorie Wicks, speaking in the humorous class took first and Ray- mond Keeper, second.

ANNUAL SCHOOL ELECTION TO BE HELD NEXT MONDAY

Barz and Jost, Present Directors, Only Candidates To File

The annual school election will be held next Monday, March 9th. The polls will open at 1:00 p. m and will close at 7.00 p. m.

Albert Barz and H. F. Jost, pre- sent directors, were the only ones to file for the offices, and if we are correct, both gentlemen have served one term.

Although the men are unopposed the voters should go to the polls and vote. The men are efficient and concientious and have looked after school matters very satisfactorily, and the voters can show their ap- preciation by going to the polls and voting for these men.

ROAD, LONG CLOSED BY SNOW OPENED MONDAY

The county trunk highway ex- tending from Klemme west to the Britt-Kanawha road, and which has been blocked with snow for some time, was opened Sunday night and Monday when a caterpillar tractor snow plow and another caterpillar tractor used to push the plow, was used to clear this stretch of road. The plow was run over the road twice to get it clear for traffic.

Other Roads Opened

Crews are at work every day opening up roads as fast as men and machinery can do the work, so by the end of the week most of the main country roads should be open for traffic again.

Five Seniors Played Final Home Game Tuesday Eve

Farm Is Sold

Mrs. Frank Hrubes has sold her farm, the former Henry Ludek place just west of Klemme to Aug- ust Larson, Lake Mills. The Larson family will move onto the farm this spring and Mrs. Hrubes and her son Frank will move to a 160 acre farm three miles south of Dun- can on the farm known as the Wes- ley Zeman place.

SHAMROCKS DOWNED CRYSTAL LAKE IN OVERTIME 35-31

Klemme Wins Second Place In Seven Eagles Conference

Captain Leo Brinkman, playing the final home game of his colorful high school career, dropped in the winning basket in an overtime per- iod Tuesday night to defeat Crystal Lake high school 35 to 31 and as- sure the Klemme Shamrocks of second place in the Seven Eagles Conference. This slim forward, who is the teams leading scorer, dropped in 5 baskets and a gift shot to lead his mates to victory. Jorgenson, sophomore forward, and Kaduce, junior center, each tallied 4 buckets in the evening's play; Kaduce add- ing his final counter by way of clinching the overtime win.

Four other boys who saw action Tuesday night were also playing their last home game for K. H. S. Evert and Milvern Barz, stubby for- ward speedsters, Lyndon Kilgore and Walter Klotzbach, Klemme's stellar guards, were the rest of the quintet who played to win in their final home appearance.

Ivan Scanlon, Crystal Lake ball hawk, led his team with 10 goals and a gift shot for a total of 21 points. The Shamrocks trailed all the way until a thrilling last quar- ter spurt tied the count 31 to 31. In the overtime period Brinkman counted his winning basket and Kaduce added another to put the game on ice.

Death of Charles Curtis, Former Vice President

CHARLES CURTIS, former Vice President of the United States and before that representative and senator from Kansas, died suddenly of heart disease at the Washington home of his brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Edward E. Gann. He was seventy-six years old, and was the first man of Indian blood ever to preside over the senate. He was one-quarter Kaw Indian, his grandmother having been Princess Julie of that tribe who married a French voyageur. In his boyhood Curtis was a jockey, and later a reporter. Having studied law, he became a prosecutor at the age of twenty-four in Shawnee county, Kansas, and was elected to congress in 1892. He was made senator in 1907, was defeated in 1912, and two years later was again elected senator. He was elected Vice President on the ticket headed by Herbert Hoover, and was renominated for that position in 1932.

Charles Curtis

Mr. Curtis was greatly liked by his associates in Washington and his death caused genuine grief. President Roosevelt said:

"I am deeply distressed to learn of the sudden passing of my old friend, Charles Curtis. Whether they knew him as a senator, as the Vice President of the United States, or as the man he was in his own right, his legion of friends will remember him, always affectionately, and will mourn his passing."

Vice President Garner said:

"I was always fond of him. I was associated with him in the house and senate. He was a fine man and a good friend."

Funeral services for Mr. Curtis and the interment were in Topeka, Kan.

Long Newspaper Tax Is Held Unconstitutional

ONCE again the Supreme court of the United States comes to the rescue of a free press. Unanimously the nine justices ruled that the Louisiana law imposing a punitive tax on the advertising of the principal newspapers of that state is unconstitutional. The law was passed by a legislature controlled by the late Senator Huey Long. The court said of it:

"It is bad because, in the light of its history and of its present setting, it is seen to be a deliberate and calculated device in the guise of a tax to limit the circulation of information to which the public is entitled in virtue of the constitutional guarantee.

"A free press stands as one of the great interpreters between the government and the people. To allow it to be fettered is to fetter ourselves.

"In view of the persistent search for new subjects of taxation, it is not without significance that, with the single exception of the Louisiana statute, so far as we can discover, no state during the 150 years of our national existence has undertaken to impose a tax like that now in question.

"The form in which the tax is imposed is in itself suspicious. It is not measured or limited by the volume of advertisement. It is measured alone by the extent of the circulation of the publication in which the advertisements are carried, with the plain purpose of penalizing the publishers and curtailing the circulation of a selected group of newspapers."

Raskob Sued for Alleged Income Tax Deficiency

ACTION against John J. Raskob, former chairman of the Democratic national committee when Al Smith was the Presidential nominee, and who is now president of the American Liberty league, has been begun by the government for an alleged deficiency of $1,026,340 on his 1929 income taxes. The claim was filed in an amendment to the petition recently filed against Pierre S. du Pont two days before Al Smith had bitterly assailed the New Deal. In the petition, which Raskob described as "New Deal persecution," Mr. du Pont was alleged to have understated his 1929 income by $2,897,832 and an additional tax of $617,316 was asked. In the amended petition accusing Mr. Raskob, it was alleged that he and the industrialist engaged in "fictitious" sales of securities, one to the other, to a total of about $30,000,000 for the purpose of showing losses.

New Farm Bill Pushed for Early Adjournment

LEADERS of congress hope for an early adjournment, by May 1 at the latest, and therefore they pushed the new farm bill forward, trying to get it through both houses by the end of the week. In their desire to get away from the Capital, they already had decided to let the proposed permanent neutrality legislation go by the board.

The farm bill as rewritten by the senate agriculture committee is based on the soil erosion prevention scheme. Some Democrats joined with many Republicans in opposing the measure, one of them being Senator Walsh of Massachusetts. In a statement issued to the press he declared it was a "dangerous" bill conferring "autocratic and blanket authority" on the secretary of agriculture. He said the measure was "neither valid in law nor valid in economics."

Chairman Doughton of the house ways and means committee said he expected definite word from the White House or treasury soon on the amount and kind of taxes that might be imposed to finance the new farm program.

Speaker Byrns said he could see no reason why the tax measure should not emerge from the committee by the end of February.

He and Doughton insisted they had no advance information on what the administration might propose. Many congressmen who are usually well informed said they looked for a recommendation for levies to raise more than $500,000,000, perhaps through excise taxes.

Liberty League Hits at Share-Wealth Schemes

AMERICAN LIBERTY LEAGUE has issued a document concerning plans for sharing the national wealth, calling them "not only impractical but utterly impossible." Reminding that wealth is not money, but land, buildings, industry, railways, raw materials, manufactured goods and metals, the league said the most feasible method of dividing it equally among all the people would be for the government to issue securities against all property, and then to take over its management.

Actual division of wealth might "give a city apartment dweller an unwelcome pig or sheep," the statement added, while the farmer might receive an equally unwelcome piece of urban property. Division also would destroy wealth, the league argued, because separate units of income-producing wealth "would have no value."

Michigan Party Chief Convicted of Fraud

ELMER B. O'HARA, Democratic state chairman of Michigan and former clerk of Wayne county, which includes Detroit; State Senator A. J. Wilkowski and 16 others of lesser prominence were convicted in Detroit of having attempted to steal the 1934 election. Eight defendants in the recount case, which had been on trial for nearly 12 weeks, were acquitted. Two other defendants previously had pleaded guilty, thus bringing to 20 the number facing sentence for their part in the vote recount conspiracy.

Elmer B. O'Hara

For O'Hara, the verdict came as the culmination of a series of calamities in a brief political career. Last November a jury in Macomb county, adjacent to Wayne, found him guilty of bribery in a drainage transaction in connection with real estate deals he had made before 1932 when he entered politics and was elected Wayne county clerk. He awaits sentence under that conviction. After conviction he was removed from office.

In the recount case O'Hara was found guilty on three counts, permitting others to alter ballots, conspiring to permit others to alter ballots, and conspiring to permit others to conduct the recount in an unlawful manner and change the result of the November, 1934, election.

Rigid Policy Announced on FHA Mortgages

HOUSEHOLDERS defaulting on government-guaranteed renovation and mortgage notes will be no more gently treated by the Federal Housing administration than are tax delinquents by the Treasury department. Stewart McDonald, FHA administrator, says there has been a general misunderstanding of this matter, and so he enunciates this policy:

"When a borrower under the modernization credit plan defaults on a loan, the lending institution files claim with the housing administration for the insurance on the loan. The matter of collecting the defaulted obligation then is turned over to the Federal Housing administration.

"In such cases it will be the policy of the Federal Housing administration to be just as rigid as the Treasury department in the collection of taxes. The collection machinery is well organized and, while every reasonable consideration will be given to borrowers in default, the public must not get the impression that the housing administration will be lax in performing its duty.

"There is no reason to assume that borrowers in default will be treated like tax evaders, but rather along the same lines as an individual who is in default of tax paymenta."

Relief Given Industrial and Farming States

INDUSTRIAL states, such as Illinois, New York, Pennsylvania and Ohio, although they pay most of the internal revenue taxes, receive much less of federal relief largesse than such agricultural states as North and South Dakota, Mississippi, Alabama, New Mexico, Arkansas and Arizona. This was pointed out in a statement released by the Illinois Manufacturers' association which compares the internal revenue collections of the various states with the amount each state received in relief funds for year ending June 30, 1935.

Illinois collected $323,138,933 and received in federal relief grants only $113,185,365 or 35 per cent of what it sent to the United States treasury.

New York collected $672,473,493 and got back $262,868,658 or 39 per cent of what it sent to the United States treasury.

Pennsylvania and Ohio did somewhat better. Pennsylvania collected $244,355,727 and received in relief funds $173,151,832 or 71 per cent. Ohio collected $164,079,273 and received $107,702,953 or 66 per cent.

South Dakota received $27,565,643 and collected only $1,540,795. In other words, South Dakota got back from the United States government nearly eighteen times the amount paid in internal revenue.

North Dakota got approximately $25 for each $1.75 paid in taxes, receiving $25,087,327 and collecting only $1,748,657.

Mississippi received $18,745,417 in relief funds or nearly seven and one-half times the amount collected in internal revenues.

Senator Borah Formally Enters Nomination Race

WILLIAM E. BORAH, the liberal Republican senator from Idaho, is now a full fledged candidate for the Republican Presidential nomination. He formally put himself in the running by announcing that he would enter the primary in Ohio which will be held May 12. That state requires that the candidate shall declare himself in writing, and this Mr. Borah said he would do.

Senator Borah

The senator's statement follows:

"After a thorough survey of the Ohio situation I am convinced that the people of that state should be given an opportunity to express their choice in the Presidential primary on May 12. Under the so-called 'favorite son' plan this privilege is denied them.

"To obtain an expression of popular will it is my intention to place at least eight candidates or delegates at large in the field.

"I shall make a number of speeches in Ohio and present the issues as I see them."

Mrs. Huey Long Takes Husband's Senate Seat

MRS. HUEY P. LONG, widow of the slain senator from Louisiana, took her seat in the senate to complete Huey's unfinished term, becoming the second woman member of the upper house. After eleven months she will be succeeded by Allen Allender, speaker of the Louisiana house of representatives, who was nominated for the regular term.

Mrs. Long, middle aged and comely, said:

"In my mind I have a hazy idea about the things I want to do, but I am not yet ready to announce them. I want to take my seat in the senate and get right to work—I'll need a lot of luck."

Vandenberg Doubts Value of Florida Canal

SENATOR VANDENBERG of Michigan has grave doubts of the economic necessity or value of the ship canal that is being dug across central Florida, and offered in the senate commerce committee a resolution for investigation by a special committee. In support of his move he produced letters from eleven companies operating steamships saying they would not use the canal even if no tolls were charged. They asserted the expense of employing canal pilots added to the risk of damage to ships would offset saving in navigation costs.

Work was started some time ago on the canal, which, if completed, will cost between $140,000,000 and $200,000,000.

Great Britain Rushes Rearmament Program

IF THERE must be another war in Europe, Great Britain proposes to be in readiness. The government is hurrying up its rearmament program, which will be financed by a loan of probably about $2,000,000,000. Plans for the expansion and modernization of the army, navy and air force will be submitted to parliament early in March, and it is said will include mechanization of the entire army. Impetus to the work was given by the latest statement attributed to Mussolini that the Italo-Ethiopian war "may yet be a world-wide disaster."

There were indications that Il Duce was looking more favorably on suggestions for peace, and so some observers predicted that the extension of sanctions against Italy would be delayed. The Italian armies in Ethiopia, however, were continuing their activities, one of their latest exploits being an attack on Dessye by seven planes. For an hour high explosive bombs were rained on that town, which is the field headquarters of Haile Selassie.

Washington Digest

National Topics Interpreted by William Bruckart

National Press Building — Washington, D. C.

Washington.—Five important stones in the New Deal recovery arch have been torn from their moorings now and, from all of the comments I have been able to pick up, it appears that the general situation has been clarified thereby. Two of the major New Deal items—the NRA and the AAA—have been tossed overboard by the Supreme court of the United States and concongress, at the request of the President, now has thrown three others into the limbo of unnecessary things by repealing the legislation for control of cotton, tobacco and potatoes. These three with their parent, the Agricultural Adjustment act, represented all that was basic in the New Deal farm program.

New Farm Legislation

The importance of the President's act in requesting repeal of the three compulsory crop-control laws cannot be minimized. Mr. Roosevelt recognized, when the AAA was invalidated, that the other three crop-control laws would be of no further use because they were predicated upon the national law. He recognized further that to remain adamant would be only to permit delay in invalidation of those three laws because they were all headed for an adverse decision by the Supreme court anyway. In seeking their repeal, therefore, Mr. Roosevelt simply took time by the forelock and girded his armor for a fresh start on farm relief legislation.

Where or in what form the new farm legislation will finally emerge, none can foretell. The house and senate will pass some kind of legislation to supplant the laws invalidated by the court or repealed by congress. Necessarily, this new farm legislation will be of a stop-gap character and I don't believe that any of its ardent supporters can tell you exactly what the result will be in so far as its effect upon agriculture is concerned.

As far as the compromises have been worked out, it appears that some of the leaders are willing again to enact legislation directed at crop-control in a semi-compulsory manner. If that is forthcoming, the new law actually will be nothing more than a thinly disguised attempt to circumvent the prohibitions laid down in the Supreme court opinion holding the AAA unconstitutional. In any event, the tragedy in the situation appears to me to be the absence of clear thinking, or else the circumstances we see represent political cowardice of the worst type.

It is to be remembered that in this session of congress more than any other since President Roosevelt took office, there exist a greater number of blocs; cross currents of opinion; partisan jealousy. A great deal of it is in opposition to brain trust policies sponsored by the New Deal but for political reasons the indivíduals who oppose these things dare not openly show their disapproval of Presidential policies as such. Thus, a consensus has arisen among Washington observers that representatives and senators concerned with directing enactment of new farm legislation are likely to mess up the situation rather than come forth with a definite and workable proposition.

Partisan Politics Rule

The situation at the White House and in congress in connection with agricultural policies probably is the best illustration in a definite, tangible form, of how many important federal policies are being dealt with in a partisan political way rather than, as they should be, in a scientific manner with partisan politics in the background. I need not recall how many pieces of legislation have been put through congress bearing a New Deal tag of "must." Of course, Mr. Roosevelt cannot be blamed entirely for issuing orders when congress is willing to obey. It is a fact, nevertheless, that time after time and with reference to the major New Deal experiments, the legislation has been drafted by men serving under a Presidential appointment in executive departments, the copies forwarded to given representatives or senators and instructions passed along that the administration will take no substitute. It wants the specific measure and in that form.

The result of all of this has been that in numerous cases legislation was passed without more than a few members of the house and senate having even read the bills before they were asked to cast a favorable vote on their passage.

Now, representatives and senators are seeking to dodge the responsibility for their acts. This was shown definitely in the celerity with which congress acted on the Presidential request for repeal of the three crop-control acts named heretofore. I know personally of a considerable number of representatives and senators who were delighted at the opportunity to vote repeal of those laws. They never did like them—after they found out what they had passed. But a politician is the last person in the world to admit his mistakes and the representatives and senators who voted for repeal of the crop-control laws with such enthusiasm were no different than the others. The repeal request simply gave them an opportunity to get out from under a thing which, if the legislation had gone through processes usual and normal for congress, they would never have taken in the first place.

Admits His Mistake

President Roosevelt likely will receive some credit for seeking repeal of the discredited laws. He said if he made a mistake he would be the first to admit it. So, now he has in a way admitted that he made a mistake in approving those laws although his statement concerning the repeal request was that these were useless without AAA

It is to be noted, however, that long before the Supreme court outlawed AAA there was a growing volume of discontent with the principles that law sought to apply. It cannot be that Mr. Roosevelt was not aware of this growing dissatisfaction and that his political advisers smelled a rat because a good many plans for modification had been under discussion privately among AAA advisers long before a Supreme court decision was in prospect. Practical men working with Secretary Wallace and Administrator Davis were steadily trying to accomplish changes in administration of the AAA law, and the three others as well, to make it workable. They were confronted, however, with a superabundance of brain trusters who could make a beautiful case in print for their views and during that time the brain trusters had the ear of the President while the practical administrators were left out in the cold.

It is thus that we see a development under the New Deal whereby most of the responsible people are attempting to dodge the responsibility that belongs to them. Some of them are attempting to clean their own skirts, or make their skirts appear clean, by damning the Supreme court; others are blaming our "system" for failure of the theories to work in practical application and still other groups point the finger of scorn at those charged with administration of the agricultural policy, blaming them for the failure. Things like this have developed before in Washington and have died down in due time but I believe that seldom, if ever, has occurred a situation in which the responsibility was so general and the blame so generally denied by those responsible.

Must Cut Borrowing

Washington observers are watching the President's latest maneuvers on government finance with considerable interest. The President, you know, already has told agencies of the government that are equipped with borrowing power that they must reduce this borrowing. He has, in effect, withdrawn from them authorization that would have permitted the borrowing of about $1,000,000,000 during the next year.

During the last few weeks, the Chief Executive has been concerned also with reduction in governmental spending and at the same time with plans to raise additional money. He has presented a tax bill to congress, an obstinate congress. Representatives and senators do not like to campaign after passing a new tax bill so they frankly do not like the idea of new taxes at this time.

It is too early to forecast the full importance of the President's latest moves. There are those who insist that Mr. Roosevelt is making a sincere effort to cut down government spending and to convince the nation that he is seeking to reduce the waste that is naturally attendant upon such a volume of disbursements of money as has taken place in the last three years. There are others who take the position that the President is simply building up a picture which can be shown to the voters when election time comes. They say that Mr. Roosevelt wants to be in a position to point to an accomplished reduction in federal expenditures and to assure the voters that he had permitted only such expenditures as were necessary to bring the country out of the depression.

An unbiased conclusion is that a little of each claim is true. If expenditures actually are reduced, obviously the action will be welcomed by the taxpayers. On the other hand, the ballyhoo that went out from the White House and executive departments concerning the withdrawal of borrowing power was rather unjustified. It was unjustified for the reason that the move was simply a bookkeeping proposition and, further, there was even a hint that such agencies as the Reconstruction Finance corporation and Home Owners Loan corporation had no plans for borrowing extensively during the forthcoming summer and fall.

If one looks into the future in connection with the Presidential program of curtailing borrowing and cutting expenditures, it is rather difficult to escape the thought that a continuation of policies such as have been sponsored by the New Deal in the last three years will force a renewal of these expenditures in due course. In other words, the administration course respecting these expenditures is going to depend upon the results of the November election: If Mr. Roosevelt is returned to the White House and he continues with a substantial Democratic majority in congress, there is no reason to believe that present spending policies will be entirely abandoned.

Conch Used as Fish Horn

A musical blast on an enormous conch shell announces Bermuda fish peddlers. Now and then they give the shell a lusty toot, so that every housewife within a mile has time to run down to the roadside before they arrive. Most popular sea-food in the winter are spiny lobsters, large crawfish caught at night among the coral reefs. Their antennae often have a span of four feet, and their meat is so delicious that the supply barely fills local demands. Next to lobster in the favor of Bermudians are rock-fish, hamlet and other fish suitable for chowders. Recipes for this fish vary throughout the islands, resembling New England dinners in their diverse contents.

West Highland White Terrier

The West Highland white terrier, a small dog standing 8 to 12 inches at the shoulder and weighing 14 to 18 pounds, is distinctive because of his long, shaggy, white coat. This coat should be about 2½ inches long, hard and straight, with a dense, furry undercoat. The ears are small, pointed and erect; the eyes medium-sized, dark hazel, slightly sunk in the head and widely set apart; the tail 5 or 6 inches long, straight and held gayly in the air. The nose, roof of mouth and pads of feet are distinctly black in color. The dog has an appearance of a small, game, hardy terrier, strongly built, deep in chest and back ribs, straight back and powerful quarters on muscular legs.

Taller in the Morning

You're a bit taller in the morning than you are in the evening. You see, there are discs of cartilage—elastic-like substance—between the pieces that make up your backbone. During the day these discs are compressed by the weight of the body, and you shrink a little. During your night's rest the discs expand again and you regain your full height. With a grown man the difference between morning and evening height is half an inch or more. —Pearson's Weekly.

Electron and Positron

An electron is not so much a material particle carrying an electric charge as it is an ultimate particle of negative electricity itself. Consequently it could hardly be charged positively. There is, however, a somewhat similar but nevertheless distinct particle known as the positron, or positive electron. It has the same weight as the electron and a charge of equal magnitude but opposite sign.—Chicago Tribune.

Languages of the World

Including all of its various dialects, Chinese is spoken by about 400,000,000 persons and is the most used language. Various languages are spoken in India, Hindustani being used by some 100,000,000. English is the second most commonly used language, spoken by some 180,000,000; then Russian with 140,000,000; German 110,000,000; French, 70,000,000, Portuguese, 60,000,000; Japanese, 53,000,000; Spanish and Italian, each 50,000,000; Polish, 16,000,000. These are the estimates made by Whitaker's Almanac, which gives the number of different languages spoken in the world as about 5,000.

Mathematical Ability

Rare mathematical ability is not always dependent on education. Some prodigies have been illiterate, others have known nothing of the principles of mathematics. Johann Dase (1824-1861), the greatest mental mathematical marvel in history, had no understanding of the fundamentals of mathematics, yet he could multiply two 100-figure numbers in his head in a very short time.—G. P. Elliott, Arlington, California, in Collier's Weekly.

Test Your Love

A good old Scotch custom for determining love affairs consisted of taking two nuts, bestowing on one your own name and on the other the name of your beloved, putting them on the fire, and watching how they burn. Should they burn quietly, side by side, then the issue of your love affair will be prosperous; but if one starts away from the other, the result will be unfavorable.

Loss of Arctic Ship Not in Vain, Says Explorer

Moscow.—Despite the sinking of the Soviet steamer, Chelluskin, in the Arctic ocean, its journey was not in vain, in the opinion of N. V. Pinyegin, Arctic explorer.

Valuable data on the course of Arctic streams, on temperatures, and on the location and types of sea fauna were gathered by Prof. Otto Schmidt and his hardy band, according to Pinyegin.

Also some changes in the Arctic map may be made as a result of the Chelluskin's voyage, he added. For instance, Schmidt found that some of the Arctic islands had been placed erroneously on the map. One, Solitude island, was found 30 miles from its supposed location.

Pinyegin further reasoned that the experience of the Chelluskin, which lacked only a few miles of completing its journey through to Behring strait, would teach masters of other vessel the best route through the Polar seas in the future.

After the Chelluskin sunk last February, Schmidt and his crew established a camp on an icefloe from which they eventually were rescued by air planes.

40,000,000-Year-Old-Pig Is Placed on Exhibition

Ann Arbor, Mich.—A "Merycoidodon Culbertsoni," better known as the "ruminating pig," which existed some 40,000,000 years before the era of the stockyards, was placed on exhibition in the University of Michigan museum recently.

"Mery," who resembles the razor back hog of Kansas, but with a somewhat different skull form and a long instead of a short, tail, originated in what is now known as the "Bad Lands of South Dakota." They are said to have existed in the Dakotas when the early types of mammals were dying out and modern forms began to evolve.

Ancients' Calendar Plan Complicated Proposition

Telling the seasons in olden days was a complicated business. We tick off the days and months with a pencil, but the ancients calculated by the moon, notes a writer in the Montreal Herald. It is said that Noah used the early Egyptian calendar of the five-month year, thirty days to the month, and each month three weeks of ten days. Sticks, tied in bundles, was the invariable way of telling the day and season with the greater part of the ancient world, and today some American Indians keep five bundles of thirty sticks, pulling out one stick for each day. The last bundle is repeated in each half-year to level things up, and the middle bundle is split in two to judge the approach of mid-summer or mid-winter.

In the South Sea islands the "moon stick" is used to determine the seasons. A notch is cut in the stick after each passing moon. Borneo uses a calendar consisting of various lengths of tattooed poles.

The Dyaks have a custom whereby they tell the season by the length of the sun's shadow. Calendar-makers tour the country in the season of sowing and plant these colored poles on the farms. By a system of queer calculation they adjust these poles to a certain length marked on the ground. Invariably this shadow-marking proves accurate, and in due time the calendar maker again tours the farms to receive his payment of part of the crop.

"Endemic," "Indigenous"

The terms "endemic," "indigenous" especially in biological usage, are synonymous. One botanist, for instance, may describe a tree as "indigenous in California"; and another referring to the same tree, may say it is "endemic in California." There is a tendency from the medical view to limit the use of endemic to the resultant of conditions distinctly local, but not necessarily irremovable; as the bubonic plague is endemic in India, but (probably) is removable by the extermination of the rats. Whereas indigenous would indicate the resultant of irremovable conditions, as, say, of climate —Literary Digest.

Garden of Eden Located on the Praslin Island?

The Garden of Eden, according to tradition, was located on one of the Seychelles islands—Praslin. Everything helps to bear out this legend, says a correspondent in the Detroit News. It is one of the loveliest places in all the world, exceeding even the beauty of Bali. There are many foods here to appeal to the appetite and they are nearly all ready-to-eat foods. Clothing is not a necessity, the islands being close to the Equator.

A fact which helps substantiate the claim that this was the original home of Adam and Eve, the paradise from which they were driven, is found in the coco de mer, a large nut which grows here and which, according to local tradition, was the Forbidden Fruit of the Bible. The coco de mer tree grows plentifully, reaching an average height of 150 feet and bearing nuts weighing up to 20 pounds.

All knowledge of these islands was lost for many centuries. They lie almost in the center of the Indian ocean, 1,000 miles due east of Mombasa, Africa, and were discovered in 1505. Pirates found them a safe haven to retire to. The outlaws of the sea grew so numerous here that female slaves were imported from Africa to minister to their wants, the pirates marrying them. Their descendants are the natives of today and they are a good-looking well-behaved race of people. Practically all are Christians.

"Painless" Taxes Really Hurt

By RAYMOND PITCAIRN

National Chairman Sentinels of the Republic

During recent months America has heard a growing volume of protest against the so-called "painless taxes."

That is the term used by politicians to describe those taxes which are not levied directly; but are hidden, instead, in the cost of food, shelter and other necessities. The theory is that what the average citizen doesn't know about the costs of government won't hurt him—and that it won't hurt the officials who fix those costs, either.

But unfortunately for the theory, such taxes are beginning to attain a high degree of visibility. For a while they were discernible only in the rising cost of living. Now they have come more clearly into the light. A recently published analysis of Federal income sources tells the story much as follows:

In 1932, direct taxes (on income, corporations, etc.) produced 58½ per cent of our Federal revenue, while indirect taxes (baked into your bread and woven into your clothes) produced 41½ per cent—approximately $782,900,000.

In 1933, direct taxes produced only 42 per cent of our revenue, while indirect taxes climbed to 58 per cent—approximately $1,091,000,000.

In 1934, direct taxes produced 34 per cent of our Federal income, while indirect taxes soared to 66 per cent—approximately $1,974,100,000.

In 1935, the proportion of hidden taxes dropped a bit. Direct taxes produced 38½ per cent, while indirect taxes accounted for 61½ per cent. But the total of invisible taxes continued to soar. It rose to approximately $2,234,800,000.

Who paid those taxes hidden in the cost of living? The rich? To a minor degree. But the overwhelming share was paid by that huge majority of average citizens who labor to buy food and clothes and shelter for themselves and their families. And the larger the family, the higher the bill.

To whom, then, are hidden taxes "painless"? To no one, it would seem. And certainly not to the great body of American workers and earners who continue to pay them in the form of rising prices for almost everything they buy.

Church Bells Tell Trend in Prices of Fresh Fish

Church bells act as town crier in the village of Palafrugell, writes a Madrid correspondent in the Detroit News.

Apart from directing the fire brigade to the scene of a fire, they announce fish sales and keep buyers informed on price trends in the market

And all this is done in a sort of Morse code so that if you aren't one of the Palafrugell folk then you can't understand what it's all about, nor can you buy any fish.

When a fresh catch is landed at Palafrugell, a special runner takes the news from the coast posthaste to the church sexton. This worthy at once rings the call to attention, since his reward will be a quantity of fish. And every resident in Palafrugell knows the call.

Immediately afterward a second bell is slowly tolled, and if you understand the code you will receive a running bell commentary on current market conditions, the quantity of fish available and its purchase price while you are hurrying to the market to buy

When there is a reduction in price a different bell rings the change and the varying length of the toll gives the new price until all the stock is disposed of.

Lenin's Body Rests in Red, Black Granite Tomb

The mausoleum in which Lenin's body is placed is about 50 feet high rising to a small colonnade at the top in six stages or steps, like ancient Mayan pyramids. The tomb is composed of huge blocks of red and black granite from all parts of Russia. The largest, a 50-ton monolith of black granite, is placed over the bronze entrance doors with the word "Lenin" in large letters inlaid in red porphyry The short columns which support the flat top are of various shades of black porphyry—each one a gift of a different republic in Soviet Russia.

Just inside the entrance is the giant symbol of Communism, a hammer and sickle carved in stone. Gray marble steps descend to the underground room where Lenin's body lies. The body is in the center of the room under a convex glass case, which rests on a monolith of black granite.

The color scheme is symbolic, black, red and gray Black and red are the Soviet mourning colors. Gray is the worker's color. Lenin is dressed in a plain worker's suit of cloth.—Washington Star

Wood and Cotton Supply Material for Cellulose

Cellulose is the fibrous matrial that acts as a sort of skeleton for all plant life. Its most plentiful source, wood, is about one-half cellulose. Cotton, its purest source, contains over 90 per cent of it, relates Thomas M. Beck in the Chicago Tribune.

The uses of cellulose are widely varied. Those based upon its fibrous nature are so well known that they scarcely need mentioning. The longer natural fibers, such as those of cotton, flax, ramie, jute, sisal, and hemp (but not wool nor silk, which are proteins), are woven into fabrics of various kinds. The shorter fibers, represented chiefly by wood pulp, are useless for textile purposes, but they have the property of matting themselves together to form sheets of paper

Since cellulose is built up out of sugar molecules, it would appear to be logical to use it as a food. Unfortunately, it is completely beyond the powers of the human body to digest it. But the digestive systems of herbivorous animals are equal to the job of breaking it down into its original sugar components so that it can be assimilated. Consequently we are able to use it indirectly as food in the form of animal fats and carbohydrates.

Soy Bean Classed Among the Leading Food Plants

The soy bean has been described as one of the most important food plants in the world. It contains all the elements necessary for a balanced diet Ground dry, it yields flour from which bread can be made, ground wet and curdled, it forms a curd that may be substituted for meat. Plucked green, it may be used as a vegetable rich in vitamins; fermented, it yields sauces; pressed, it produces oil for use in cooking. It is food for cattle. The bean cake makes excellent fertilizer. In addition to its food properties, the soy bean and its by-products have a multitude of industrial uses, ranging from a paint ingredient to a rubber substitute. Manufacturers of paint have found that soy bean oil can be blended with linseed oil in the preparation of paint, and that the paint film is made glossier, tougher and more durable. Since the oil is semi-drying it cannot be used in its entirety. The oil from about ten bushels of beans is required to paint the average farm house or barn, it is said.—Indianapolis News.

Cosmic Rays

The cosmic rays is still an orphan, coming almost uniformly from above, day and night alike, with no more, most investigators say, from the sun and stars than from the direction of "empty" space.

Because the cosmic rays are so very short, scientists suspect that they are very close to the ultimate kind of radiation. Discovering their source may lead to the hoped-for mechanism whereby men will understand how radiation transforms itself into solid matter and then is rejuvenated somehow to keep the fires of creation burning forever.

Something Brand New in Necklines

PATTERN NO. 1784-B

1784-B

An unusually clever and interesting yoke treatment, front and back, distinguishes this altogether lovely everytime frock. With the neck opening at the back, the V-shaped yoke extends over the shoulder and combines with a soft high neckline to give a new and flattering collar effect equally fetching front and back. The set-in sleeves drop gracefully to the wrist and the waist portion gathers to the yoke in the rear to provide essential fullness. A flaring panel as fashion dictates, features an otherwise simple skirt which is dart-fitted at the back and a novelty belt adds a finishing touch.

Fashioned of soft silk, printed or plain, in amber or green or the always fashionable black, this striking all occasion frock will add zest to your winter wardrobe and see you through the coming spring. It will wear well under a wrap and appear doubly attractive when the wrap or coat is removed!

Barbara Bell Pattern No. 1784-B is available in sizes 12, 14, 16, 18 and 20. Corresponding bust measurements 30, 32, 34, 36 and 38. Size 16 (34) requires 4 yards of 39-inch material. Every Barbara Bell Pattern includes an illustrated instruction guide which is easy to understand.

Barbara Bell Pattern No. 1784-B can be procured for fifteen cents. The Barbara Bell Pattern Book featuring winter designs is ready. Send fifteen cents today for your copy.

Happiest Age to Marry Is 33 for Man, 27 for Bride

Contrary to a common idea, early marriages are allegedly not the happiest, at least for the American populations. A new chart showing the ages at which men and women should marry if they are to have the greatest chance of happiness has been prepared by Dr. Hornell Hart, professor of social ethics at the Hartford Theological seminary. According to this chart the ages at which the chance of marital happiness is mathematically greatest are thirty-three for the man and twenty-seven for the bride.

However, the chart shows a range of greatest chance of married happiness corresponding to groom's ages between twenty-nine and thirty-seven and the bride's ages between twenty-three and thirty-one. — Pathfinder Magazine.

FLOYD GIBBONS Adventurers' Club

Hello, Everybody!

"The Man From the West"

By FLOYD GIBBONS
Famous Headline Hunter.

YOU know, boys and girls, somewhere in these United States there's a big, soft voiced Texas cowboy, and if you know anybody like that, tell him that Winifred McEvoy is looking for him.

No—don't get me wrong now. Winifred isn't looking for that guy to collect a bill, or to bawl him out for that tough cut of Texas beef she got from the butcher shop last week. She wants to thank that cowpuncher for a little favor he did her once—a little favor that she will never forget as long as she lives.

And back of that favor lies a story—an adventure story of the first water.

This yarn goes back to 1924, when Winifred, with her husband and her three-year-old baby boy, was living in England. At that time, a bunch of American cowboys were staging a rodeo at the Crystal Palace in London, and they had the whole doggone conservative town talking about the capers they cut up and the monkeyshining they did, at hours when the show was all over and they were supposed to be in bed for the night.

Those cowpunchers rode down the busiest streets in London, on horseback, at full gallop, letting out "yips" and "whoopees" until the Londoners' ears rang. They lassoed the hats off of London cops, and dropped their lariats on the necks of London gentlemen, wrinkling their immaculate collars, and discomposing them most horribly, bah Jove! Winifred McEvoy thought they were a bunch of roughnecks—and so they were. I mean, it takes a roughneck to reason with a regiment of cows. Few college professors have ever made a success of it.

Cowboys Were Wild and Fearful Creatures to Her.

Winifred never expected to meet one of these cowboys face to face. If one of them had come up and rung her front door bell, she'd have run screaming for the police. That's how scared she was of those wild and woolly westerners. But one day she did meet one—and she has never had any cause to regret it.

Now it so happened that the whole McEvoy family were pretty keen on aviation. Winifred's husband had been an officer in the Royal Air Force and had flown a sky buggy all through the World war. And after this thing I'm going to tell you about had happened, he said that he'd often been scared during the war, but he'd never run across anything in the line of fright like the terror he felt just a second or two before that big Texas cowboy went into action.

There was a big aeronautical exhibition staged at Hendon, in July, 1924, and the McEvoys went up to see it. At that time, Hendon was just a big field, with no modern facilities for safeguarding the crowds that came to see the exhibition. Nothing but a rope separated the spectators from the field, and Winifred and her husband were standing at that rope, well up in the front of the crowd.

Interestin' Doin's Take Their Minds From Baby.

They had their little boy with them, too—Winifred's husband was holding him in his arms. The little fellow didn't like that very much, though. He kept saying: "Want to sit down," and after a while, Winifred's husband set him on the ground between him and his wife. Then he became absorbed in the exhibition again.

"I Saw a Rope Settle Down Around That Baby Form"

Winifred was absorbed in that exhibition, too. She, herself, had been attached to a flying unit during the war, and she was as interested in aviation as her husband. Planes were zooming and stunting all over the field, landing and taking off so fast you could hardly keep count of them. And the next thing Winifred knew, she looked down to where her baby should have been—where she could have sworn he was—and—well—he just wasn't there.

Frightened, Winifred cast a quick glance out across the field. And there she saw something that fairly made her heart stop beating. A plane had just landed and was taxiing to a stop fifteen or twenty feet away from the ropes behind which she was standing. And toddling across the field right into the path of the plane was—her little boy.

Youngster Wanders Into Jaws of Sudden Death.

Says Winifred: "I was terrified. In one horrible second, I could see that tiny, beloved figure cut to pieces by the whirling propeller blades. I knew I couldn't get to my baby in time to do any good—and the roar of the plane would prevent even my voice from reaching him.

"Crying my husband's name, I attempted to clamber under the ropes, when I heard a quietly compelling voice that even reached my hysterical understanding. The voice said: 'Don't get excited, Ma'am,' and then I saw something happen that I didn't think possible.

"I felt a jerking movement beside me, heard a swishing sound and saw a rope settle down around that baby form. In a fraction of a second, he was pulled to the ground and dragged to safety, out from under the whirling blades of the propeller.

A Life-Line Floats in From Heaven.

"It all happened so swiftly that the crow (who were craning their necks at a particularly daring exhibition up above) didn't realize what had occurred. As I reached for my baby, the rope was deftly flicked from around his body. He was slightly disheveled, but quite unhurt. And by the time my husband and I realized that we really had a son, our cowboy friend was gone.

"I had a hazy recollection of a very large Stetson, strong hands on a rope, and a wonderful voice—but we were never able to find our baby's rescuer. I hope—if this story is ever published—that that quiet voiced man will see it, and I know that he has the constant prayers and gratitude of a widowed mother, who has now only the son he saved for her."

So, boys and girls, if you run across that Texas cowpuncher, just give him that message from Winifred.

Michigan Jack Pine Does Not Mature for 80 Years

Considerable has been said in the past regarding the large amount of mature jack pine that may be found on state-owned lands, particularly in state forests. Most of these reports emanate from those who would like to see this timber harvested for commercial purposes, writes Albert Stoll, Jr., in the Detroit News.

A careful check of the state holdings would reveal that there is very little, if any, so-called mature jack pine on these holdings. What undoubtedly is meant is the merchantable jack pine. Under the most favorable growing conditions jack pine matures in Michigan at about eighty to ninety years of age. It is conceded, however, that before this period much of this forest growth becomes merchantable for pulpwood, box wood, railroad ties and the like, but it is by no means mature. Even after reaching maturity, if fire and disease are eliminated from these stands the trees may persist for many years longer without showing signs of deteriorating.

Reforestation in Michigan did not begin until 1904, and even the oldest of our jack pine plantations are far from being mature today. It is quite true that some of the land which reverted to the state did contain a fair stand of natural jack pine which is approaching close to maturity, but there is so little of this that the state would be unwarranted in attempting to harvest it.

The jack pine tree of northern Michigan, while not as valuable commercially as other species of pines, or hardwood, has gone far in covering the lumbering and fire scars of the past generation and has a distinct recreational value.

By VIRGINIA VALE

GINGER ROGERS is a girl to be pitied, though you may not think so when you consider those gay, glamorous pictures that she makes with the nimble-footed Fred Astaire. But it's because of those same pictures that Ginger has a grievance.

For it's as a result of all that dancing that Ginger's feet hurt. She has to practice the various new routines for days at a stretch, and then do them over and over again for the picture.

Ginger Rogers

You'd think that would make her feel that, when her work was done, she'd had enough dancing. But not at all—when she arrived in New York recently for a vacation she announced that she was going to see a lot of new plays—and do a lot of dancing! As for her partner, Fred Astaire, he's so happy these days because of the arrival of his brand new son that he doesn't know whether he's on his head or his heels.

Kay Francis has a lot of fun when she deserts Hollywood; she is one of the few actresses who doesn't look actressy when she's not working; as a result of that fact, few people recognize her and she can go to theaters and night clubs without being mobbed by admirers. She doesn't depend on dark glasses, either.

Here's good news for all of us. Ed Wynn and Jack Pearl are to be heard on the air waves again, and it's quite likely that B. A. Rolfe will also return on a Saturday evening program—and as a result of the many letters that have poured in asking for him. So, you see, the letters that you write your radio favorites really do have some effect.

If you have sat and suffered through some of the shorts that supplemented feature pictures, and decided that you could think up better ones yourself, here's your chance. Centaur Films, a new organization, would like to have the public submit ideas for short subjects—and they'll give away an automobile each day for the best idea presented!

Errol Flynn, who became famous overnight as a result of his looks and his acting in "Captain Blood," is one of the few movie stars who have really written a book—written it all himself, I mean. A good publisher has accepted it. Which reminds everybody of all those announcements of the novel that Jean Harlow was said to be writing, ever so long ago, and of the reports that it never came to anything because she had a quarrel with the person who really was writing it for her. Elissa Landi has written several novels that have been published, of course; they're good enough so that she can abandon the screen for the typewriter any time she wants to. She returned to the stage briefly not long ago, but the play was not a success, and now she's going to make some more pictures in England.

Mary Pickford just can't stop working. As if producing pictures weren't enough, she's going to broadcast again—this time from the projection room of her home, Pickfair.

Isabell Jewell is finally getting the breaks that she has wanted. She did very well, indeed, in "A Tale of Two Cities." Then she turned in an excellent performance in "Ceiling Zero." So she was given a test for the role of "Lotus" in "The Good Earth," for which practically everybody, including Anna May Wong, has been tested, and so far hers is the best. They're going to get at the making of this picture at last, and a good thing it is, too—the planning and discussing of it have been going on everlastingly, it seems.

Popular football players used to sell bonds after they were graduated from college. Now they go into the movies, if they can. Nick Lukats, a Notre Dame star, is the latest recruit.

TALL TALES

As Told to:

FRANK E. HAGAN and ELMO SCOTT WATSON

A Splitting Tale

BEN SUTTON of Colorado Springs, Colo., has an Uncle Jim who never splits an armload of kindling for his wife but that he thinks of the time over on the Western Slope when he was working for a man, splitting logs. One morning he had an immense log half-way split open when 26 Ute Indians surrounded him and their chief, old Holey Moccasin, told him he'd have to go back to camp with them.

Uncle Jim knew darned well they intended to burn him at the stake but he said "All right, I'll go. But first I've got to get this log split. My boss will fire me if he finds I've gone and left it undone. Now, if you want me to go very soon, you've just got to turn in and help me."

The chief agreed to help, so Uncle Jim put 13 of the Utes on one side of the log and 13 on the other. "Now all of you get a deep holt and pull," he said. "Take both hands and I'll drive the wedges in while you hold the split open."

The redskins did just as he directed and began pulling as hard as they could while Uncle Jim began tapping at the wedges. But instead of driving them in, he began loosening them.

Suddenly he knocked the wedges out—one, two, three! . . . just like that. The log snapped shut like a steel trap and there were the Utes with their hands caught in it. Then Uncle Jim just took his maul and went up one side of the log and down the other, tapping the Indians on the head as he went. Then he left 'em. He doesn't know whether he just gave them a bad headache or killed them because he never saw any of those Utes again.

Little Drops of Water

ROBERT H. MOULTON, author and marketing authority, once lived among the ridge runners of Tennessee. He likes to recall the hazards of those earlier days when a man had to go out and get his meat before breakfast if he expected to eat at all.

"Once I was hunting squirrels in the Cumberland mountains," he recalls. "I was using pappy's old muzzle-loading rifle and was making every shot count. Had a nice bag of squirrels and started home when I discovered all my bullets were gone.

"At that unfortunate moment a huge bear appeared on the trail and began to chase me. So disturbed was I that beads of perspiration rolled off my forehead.

"Luckily for me, the weather turned cold very suddenly as I headed into a cove. The beads froze and by quick work I was able to catch one of them, ram it into the muzzle of my gun and fire it into the head of the bear.

"It probably would not have been a fatal injury to the bear but I had no more than fired when the weather turned suddenly warm again. The bear, I am happy to report, immediately died with water on the brain."

A Story Full of Interest

UP AROUND Spooner, Wis., it is natural, of course, that spoon fishing should be popular not only with the natives but with the 26,411 visitors who inhabit the region every summer. At least, that is the assertion of Fred Record, of Barrington, Ill.

"One of my friends fished a lake in the Spooner region fifteen years ago, but with indifferent success," says Record. "This man used a spoon, but for some reason the lure of its white failed to attract the specimens with which the lake abounded.

"My friend was quitting in disgust and leaned over the side of his boat. A $10 gold piece—for in those days the possession of gold was no misdemeanor—fell from his pocket, spun in the water and was seized and swallowed by a fish, which darted away.

"Five years ago, this friend and I returned to the same lake. Again, my companion's luck was poor. But just at sundown he landed an enormous pickerel which we took to camp for our dinner. You can imagine the delight of my friend, on cleaning the fish, to discover a $10 gold piece in its belly.

"The treasure was slightly tarnished, it is true. But to offset this, my friend also removed three $2 bills from the fish. The $6, we figured out later, represented 6 per cent interest on the gold piece for ten years. It pleased us to learn that the amount was exactly correct."

Age of Santa Fe Trail

The question of the age of the Santa Fe Trail has never been definitely decided, says a writer in the Chicago Tribune. Some say the path of travel from the prehistoric aboriginal settlements in the Illini country to the cliff dwellings and pueblos of the Southwest existed centuries before the white man came to America. Others maintain there is no evidence of any such primeval path and nothing to show that the mound builders of the upper Mississippi country and the pueblos of the mountain valleys ever had any social relations. The first white man to whom credit is given for having traveled at least a part of the route was Coronado. He and his men are supposed to have hit the trail on their journey to Quivera in 1541, at a point near what is now Dodge City, Kan.

NO ALKALIES FOR ACID INDIGESTION

MILLIONS have found they do not need to drench their stomachs with strong, caustic alkalies. Physicians have said this habit often brings further acid indigestion. So much more safe and sensible to simply carry a roll of Tums in your pocket. Munch 3 or 4 after meals—or whenever troubled by heartburn, gas, sour stomach. Try them when you feel the effects of last night's party, or when you smoke too much. Tums contain a wonderful antacid which neutralizes acid in the stomach, but never overalkalizes stomach or blood. No Need to Suffer "Morning Sickness"

"Morning sickness"—is caused by an acid condition. To avoid it, acid must be offset by alkalis—such as magnesia.

Why Physicians Recommend Milnesia Wafers

These mint-flavored, candy-like wafers are pure milk of magnesia in solid form—the most pleasant way to take it. Each wafer is approximately equal to a full adult dose of liquid milk of magnesia. Chewed thoroughly, then swallowed, they correct acidity in the mouth and throughout the digestive system and insure quick, complete elimination of the waste matters that cause gas, headaches, bloated feelings and a dozen other discomforts.

Milnesia Wafers come in bottles of 20 and 48, at 35c and 60c respectively, and in convenient tins for your handbag containing 12 at 20c. Each wafer is approximately one adult dose of milk of magnesia. All good drug stores sell and recommend them.

Elimination of Headlight Glare With New Material

May Also Make Three-Dimension Movies Possible

BOSTON.—A new optical material which promises to save thousands of lives now snuffed out in night driving because of headlight glare is announced by the Land Wheelwright Laboratories of this city.

Known as polaroid, the new material is also to be used for sun glasses which take away light dazzle without darkening the view, and even more important, make possible motion pictures in three dimensions that have the optical illusion of depth similar to viewing a scene with the naked eye.

Other uses promised include one-way glass for cross-court privacy in apartment buildings and brilliant building exteriors that change color as one walks by.

Substance Polarizes Light.

Polaroid resembles a sheet of glass but has the ability to polarize the light which passes through it. Now ready to be produced in unlimited quantities, the new material is the first practical use of what has formerly been a laboratory and research phenomenon.

Polarized light is light which vibrates only in one direction in contrast to the helter-skelter vibrations in the ordinary light ray.

The best way to think of the complex phenomenon is to regard ordinary light vibrations as a mass of straws tossed up in a wind. They are blown against a picket fence. All straws are stopped except those parallel to the slats in the fence and all straws coming through are lined up in one direction. The material polarized acts as the picket fence.

Would Ban Blinding Headlight.

For use in automobiles all headlights would send out polarized light vibrating in one direction and all windshields would be "crossed" so that they would not permit such headlight rays to enter and blind the driver.

The light from one's own headlights would strike the ground ahead, be scattered with a destruction of the polarization and hence such light would enter the car and make possible vision down the road just as headlights act now.

The three-dimensional motion pictures are taken with a double camera having two lenses as far apart as the human eyes. When such films are shown the two views are projected on the same screen through polarizing sheets set at right angles to each other The audience is supplied with special glasses.

New Auto Springs Look Like Hot Water Bottles; Iron Gives Way to Air

DETROIT.—Air springs for autos, consisting of bellows, are being used to replace the ordinary leaf springs, it was revealed at the meeting of the Society of Automotive Engineers here by R. W. Brown.

Still under experimental study, the air springs look somewhat like two large hot water bottles laid one on top of the other. Through tubing they connect with an air reservoir. As road shocks are encountered the air passes back and forth between bellows and reservoir.

Tests have already indicated, said Mr. Brown, that the rubberized fabric material in the air springs will stand 8,000,000 two-inch deformations under 25 per cent overload.

Body roll on curves is eliminated by the use of a small pendulum device hung inside the air spring which controls a valve mechanism. By valve action the air pressure on the air springs outside (on a given curve) is maintained at a higher pressure than on those on side toward the inside of the curve.

Extreme Skull Distortion Found in Indian Burial

WASHINGTON. — Calling a person a "pinhead" would have been a compliment, not an insult, in at least one tribe of Indians that lived in the South when white men first came into that region. Binding infants' heads in boards, to make them higher and more pointed, was carried to such an extreme that one old woman's skull, recently found near Natchitoches, La., is "pointed and almost the shape of a bishop's miter," in the phrase of the discoverer, Winslow M. Walker, formerly of the staff of the Bureau of American Ethnology here.

The Indians of this part of the Gulf country were skilled potters, making beautifully shaped bowls and bottles ornamented with patterns of incised lines.

What Happens to a Victim of Electrocution?

Science Here Gives an Answer to the Curious

WHAT happens in the body when a man is electrocuted? How does an electric current snuff out the spark of life? Can the victim be revived? Questions like these come to mind whenever an electrical accident in the home or in industry is reported, or when a criminal is legally executed by electrocution.

The questions can be answered, but medical scientists are still working to find a sure way of restoring the victims of accidental electrocution.

Victims of certain kinds of electric shock can be resuscitated. The victim of an intentional electrocution, an executed criminal, cannot possibly be restored to life, authorities agree.

Nerve Centers Destroyed.

In the legal electrocution, important nerve centers in the central nervous system are hopelessly destroyed by the heat generated in the electrocution. A number of physicians have examined the bodies of criminals after such executions. Dr. E. A. Spitzka made 27 such examinations and reported to the Medical Society of New Jersey that the temperature of the body rises and may reach 129.5 degrees Fahrenheit. (Normal body temperature is 98.6 degrees Fahrenheit. Water boils at 212 degrees Fahrenheit.)

The brain of an electrocuted criminal shows hemorrhage of the small blood vessels, anemia of the arteries and congestion in the veins. In some cases parts of the brain and spinal cord are inflated and look as if gas or air had been blown into them.

The blood itself can undergo electrolysis, be broken up into electrically charged ions and consequently is decomposed.

Electrocution "Most Humane."

Horrible as the details may sound, electrocution is said to be beyond doubt the "most humane method of executing criminals." There is no pain, consciousness is at once abolished, death is certain when from 7 to 10 amperes current at 1,800 to 2,000 volts potential are passed through the body.

What about the all-too-frequent accidental electrocutions: the man who reaches from the bathtub in his own home to turn on an electric heater and is killed by the 110 volt current of his household lighting circuit; or the lineman of the telephone company, working on a wire carrying a minute current, too low to shock him, who may nevertheless be fatally shocked if the current is unexpectedly stepped up by induction from a nearby transmission line?

Artificial respiration may save these victims and should always be tried, starting immediately and continuing it, for hours, if necessary, until the patient breathes again or the rigidity of death sets in.

New Englanders Lose Famous Accent; Boston Abandons Broad "A"

PROVIDENCE, R. I.—New England is losing its famous brand of speech.

Even literary Boston, stronghold of the broad A, is succumbing to the example of non-Bostonian accents heard over the radio, on the movie screen, and in other contacts.

Fading of New England's individual way of talking is detected by Dr. Hans Kurath of Brown university, who has completed the first systematic survey of New England speech ever attempted. The survey is for a Linguistic Atlas of the United States and Canada, which Doctor Kurath is directing.

It has taken four years to survey New England alone, Doctor Kurath reports. His staff visited 225 communities, talking with people, and making phonograph records and notations, all the way from the Green mountains to Cape Cod and from Maine to Connecticut.

Way down east, along the seacoast, New England phrases and pronunciations are best holding their own, Doctor Kurath learned. A wheelbarrow is still a "weelbarrow" in a coast village. And forty is still "foty" with the vowel sounded like a in "all." But western New Englanders pronounce their "r"s and central New Englanders are taking to the western fashion.

Feeding Sheep Cornstarch Improves Yield of Wool

LONDON.—Starch is usually thought of in connection with linen or cotton rather than wool; but two English researchers, A. H. H. Fraser and J. E. Nichols, of the Wool Industry Research Association of Leeds, state that they have used cornstarch for the improvement of wool.

The use is an indirect one: they feed the starch to the sheep. But the effects claimed are positive: the sheep, they state, produce more meat in less time, and the yield of wool is increased in both quantity and quality, individual fibers showing increase in weight and length.

Mr. Green, American Federation of Labor head, warns the miners' union not to split up the federation. Mr. Lewis, leader of the miners, tells Mr. Green, in substance, "You mind your own business." A labor split seems near.

Arthur Brisbane

Union labor should consider the fable of the dying peasant who summoned his sons and showed them how they could break small sticks separately, but could not break them when all were tied together.

Louis XI's motto, Divide et impera ("Divide and rule"), in dealing with powerful nobles, is not unknown to the enemies of union labor, or Goethe's Divide and rule! Powerful word. Unite and lead! Better word.

A lonely English soldier living on an island in the Indian ocean wrote that he wanted a wife, saying, "I have hazel eyes," nothing else about himself. Already 250 English girls have offered to marry him. The 249 disappointed may find comfort in a better marriage, picking out somebody with blue eyes. It annoys many, but it must be said that practically all the great men in history had blue or gray eyes, even men from dark-eyed races, like Napoleon from Corsica, Caesar from Rome.

To save answering questions, here is a short list: Washington, Jefferson, Lincoln, Roosevelt, Edison, Henry Ford. Look up the others.

Near Tampa, Fla., a schooner loaded with men, women, children, on the way to establish a nudist colony in the Virgin Islands, ran aground. Navigators were unwilling to sign for a nudist enterprise, afraid, perhaps, of catching cold, so the ship ran ashore.

Nudism is a queer atavistic craving. The human race began that way in the Garden of Eden, and each of us starts out as a nudist at birth. The struggle is to keep clothed thereafter.

It is a strange demoralization that makes some long to run about undressed; the more strange because they look so hideously ugly.

Discouraged by incompetence that wrecked two dirigibles, this country decided that lighter than air machines are not necessary. It was necessary to borrow a small privately owned blimp to take food to 3,000 Tangier Islanders, cut off from relief by ice. No heavier than air plane could land there before the blimp, which landed easily.

Mussolini threatens to leave the league if it includes a ban on oil in its sanctions. In modern war, no oil, no war. Mussolini may buy old American ships to use as floating gasoline storage tanks. Had he come a little sooner he could have had plenty of them at a bargain, about one thousand million dollars' worth of expensive steel floating "junk," built when this country's foolish entrance into the World war found it unprepared.

England and Russia were getting along nicely, and now the Russian envoy, Litvinoff, attending the late King's funeral, commits the British unpardonable sin.

After talking with the new king, Litvinoff, instead of expressing admiration for the overwhelming royal intellect, remarked that the new king, Edward VIII, was "just a mediocre young Englishman" and repeated what the young king had said to him, something "not done."

Mr. Norman Thomas of the Socialist left wing runs for President sometimes and says the "New Deal" is leading to Fascism, a dictator.

In Italy Socialism, and doctrines even more radical, led to the rise of Mussolini, aided by castor oil and other methods. If our dictatorship comes, some radicals will look back sadly to the good old days when you could speak your mind without being shot or put to work.

One man's frostbite is another man's good news. New Jersey fruit growers say the extreme cold, freezing the ground two feet deep, will destroy orchard pests, including the gypsy and coddling moths. The cold, which has not injured trees, is expected to discourage larvae of the Japanese beetle.

Some day scientists will show fruit farmers, including this writer, how to penetrate the earth by radioactivity, or otherwise, to the necessary depth and kill the hibernating pests. A remedy for borers would be welcome. Radio power should solve the insect problem.

Col. Charles A. Lindbergh spent his thirty-fourth birthday in Wales, his wife and one son with him. He must have felt as though he had already lived 100 years, and have wished, almost, that he had been content to remain in the airmail service, apart from the limelight.

Lonely Easter Island: New National Monument of Chile

Huge Stone Statues Whose Origin Baffles Archeologists Are Lure.

No longer will explorers and curio hunters have the freedom of Easter island, lonely landspot in the Pacific ocean more than two thousand miles off the Chilean coast. The Chilean government recently declared the island a national monument in order to protect its famous statues.

"Easter island is the easternmost habitat of the Polynesian race," says a bulletin from the National Geographic society, "yet it is in no other way comparable to other islands of the South seas except, that it is of volcanic origin.

Dotted With Inactive Volcanoes.

"Fifty square miles in area, it has no lush forests and no palm-fringed coasts. It is liberally dotted with volcanoes that long ago stopped pouring molten lava over their rims. The lower portion of the island is composed of sheets of lava, which now are in process of disintegration. Walking over these lower areas is extremely tiresome, and in places almost impossible; and riding is a very slow procedure. The surfaces of the mountain sides and hills are generally smooth since they are formed of fine volcanic ash. Both the lowlands and highlands are covered with grass.

"The island got its name from the fact that the first known white man, a Dutch navigator, landed there on Easter day in 1722.

"Lying off the usual shipping routes of the South Pacific, Easter island has never been a tourist center. A few shepwrecked men have found it a haven and a Chilean company has used it for cattle raising. Traders touch it; but its chief lure lies in its statues, huge stone monuments whose origin has baffled archeologists and historians since the island's discovery.

Many Statues Remain Unfinished.

"In open fields, in quarries, and along the edge of the sea, these grotesque images are to be found. Some stand as they were placed by the natives; no one knows when. Others have fallen on their sides or backs, while still others now are face downward or buried. While they differ in size, they are similar in shape, representing half-length human figures, with hands meeting in front of the bodies. Once they adorned stone tombs of deceased islanders, but only a few of the tombs remain. There are statues from three to more than thirty feet high but most of them are 12 to 20 feet in length. Some weigh many tons. Visitors wonder how these heavy statues were transported to their positions sometimes miles from quarries.

"In one quarry, scores of images may be seen in various stages of completion. In some cases they are completely carved but have not been cut away from their bases. Early visitors to the island found stone tools strewn about the quarry as though workmen stopped suddenly and never returned to complete their work. Why, no one knows. Script-covered wooden panels have been found but they have failed to yield the secret of the island's past. The 250 inhabitants, clustered in a village on the western side of the island, have their versions of Easter island's history but these are often too fantastic to be credible. The natives know cattle raising, their only industry, but the habits of their forbears is unknown to them.

Government by Law—or by Edict?

By RAYMOND PITCAIRN
National Chairman
Sentinels of the Republic

Dominant among the demands of men who fought the Revolution was the right to a voice in the making of laws under which they were governed.

By their victory our fathers won that right. Jealously they guarded it—in both Federal and State constitutions. Under the system thus established, the enactment of law was reserved to men chosen by the people and responsive to their will. It is the traditional American system.

But there is another type of legislation—known as Administrative Law. It is a system of edicts and decrees, handed down by rulers to subject populations. In its enactment the people have no voice.

That's one reason why so many thoughtful citizens are protesting against the flood of edicts pouring out of the offices of various boards and bureaus at Washington today

They realize that a whole new body of Administrative Law is being forced on the people, not by their elected representatives, but by appointed chiefs of bureaus and commissions, in whose selection the voters had no choice and over whose actions they exercise no control.

In recent years those citizens have observed a constantly increasing number of examples of extravagance, arrogance and interference with individual rights on the part of Bureaucrats who assumed, or to whom Congress delegated, powers vested only in the people or their elected representatives.

Today they see the growing threat of Administrative Law supplanting, unless checked, our entire American system of legislation—and with it our constitutional form of government.

Bureaucracy and democracy cannot continue to exist side by side. One or the other must yield. Whether or not we shall surrender government by the people for government by Bureaucrats is for us to determine.

As heirs of the patriots who waged a long and bitter war for the right to make their own laws, our decision should not be a difficult one.

A Number Of Farmers Moved To New Locations

SEVERAL NEW FAMILIES MOVE INTO THIS COMMUNITY

Very Few Changes Were Made In Town This Spring

We are this week publishing our "Annual Moving List." The Times has endeavored to get all of the changes in this immediate community and we present the following list of changes this week:

Lester McMurray, who lived on the Bridges place in Liberty township moves to a farm south of Des Moines. Ben Goll moves to the farm vacated by McMurray. Mr. Goll purchased this farm. Wm. Hempel moves to the Wes Lenz farm which Goll vacated, and Kenneth Zwald, a newcomer in our community moves to the Lau Estate or the place vacated by the Hempel family.

Joe Stokesbary, who has been farming two miles north of Klemme for several years moves to the Fred Klinge farm in Liberty township. Will Utt, from near Garner, moves to the farm vacated by Stokesbary. Martin Jensen and family have moved to a farm near St. Ansgar, and Fred Klinge, who purchased the Jensen place, moves to that farm.

John Meinders, who has been farming the Chas. Medaus place east of Klemme has purchased a farm northeast of Klemme where he has moved. Archie Bowers who lived on the place has moved to Garner. A family by the name of Anderson from near Britt have moved to the Medaus farm vacated by Meinders.

Lippo Wessel, who has been farming the Wellemeyer place north west of Klemme, has moved to the Mrs. Sam Eldred farm east of Goodell. Walter Lauden and Harry Larson farmed the place last year. Harry Larson moved to a farm southwest of Klemme which was vacated by Clarence V. Johnson who moved to a place east of Dows. Walter Lauden moved to a farm west of Goodell.

Frank Patterson, from south of Clear Lake, moves to the Merkel place, east of Klemme, vacated by Alvin Theiman.

Norman Liesiner, from northwest of Garner, has rented the Henry Helps farm. Mr. and Mrs. Henry Helps have retired and have moved into their new house in Klemme.

Leon Hanson, son of Sheriff E. P. Hanson, moves to his father's farm northwest of Klemme which is vacated by Peter Merkel and family.

Carl Sanderfeldt has purchased a farm near Rockwell, and so leaves the Klemme community. E. L. Rockow, of near Williams, moves to the farm east of Klemme vacated by Sanderfeldt.

C. A. Bielefeldt, who has been farming with Bill Theil southeast of Klemme has purchased a farm near Dougherty and has moved to that place. John Bachman will farm the Theil place this year.

Hiko Barkema moves to the Mart Bachman farm vacated by John Bachman.

Frank Brozik moves from the Ross farm to a place near Miller. A family by the name of Katium moves to the Ross farm.

Pete Peterson moves from Avery township to west of Goodell onto the Gus O'Krueg section.

Red Kennedy moves to a farm east of Klemme vacated by Chris Anderson.

Clint Stokesbary and family of Garner moved moved to the tenant place on Mrs. C. A. Arnold's farm, and Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Christenson moved with a brother-in-law on a farm near Belmond.

Mr. and Mrs. Orville Stewart and son, Jimmie, of Iowa Falls, have moved to the farm south of Garner vacaten by C. C. Nelson.

Henry Gobert has moved to the tenant house on the Will Messel. heiser farm and Robert McBurney will farm the place Gobert vacates

Paul Lauen has moved to the farm near Goodell vacated by Howard Barger who has moved to a place near Hampton.

Mrs. Frank Hrubes and son, Frank, Jr., have moved from their farm at the west edge of Klemme to the Zeman farm three miles south of Duncan. August Larson and family of Lake Mills purchased the Hrubes farm and have moved there.

Ross Gourley and family from near Corwith have moved to the Wellemeyer farm in Liberty township, vacated by Lippo Wessels.

Henry Yahnke and family have moved to their own house in town, the place vacated by Will and Lydia Bock. J. A. Chambers, of Corwith, owner of the farm vacated by the Yahnke family, will move on the farm, so we understand.

Garner Attorney For Represen'tive

YOUNG GARNER ATTORNEY OUT FOR REPRESENTATIVE

Clark E. Lovrien, young Garner attorney, last week placed his announcement in the Times as a candidate for Repesentative from Hancock County.

Mr. Lovrien was born at Humboldt and graduated from that High School and completed his law course at Iowa University. He located at Garner after being admitted to the bar in 1934

Mr. Lovrien is married and the and Mrs Lovrien have a baby daughter. If elected, Mr. Lovrien pledges to give his best efforts for the welfare of the county.

Our Army of "Dependents"

By RAYMOND PITCAIRN

National Chairman Sentinels of the Republic

As millions of Americans struggle with their latest tax forms, they are beginning to realize that there is a large group of "dependents" for whose upkeep they are allowed no exemptions whatever.

It is the growing army of political job-holders—every member of which is dependent for his pay-check on the earnings of the average American citizen and taxpayer.

But the burden doesn't rest on the income taxpayer alone. With other costs of government, it falls on every worker, every housewife, who either earns or spends—if not directly then in taxes hidden somewhere in the price of nearly everything he or she may buy.

And the costs continue to mount.

That's why we hear protests to Congress against taxes on "the American breakfast table and the forgotten man's shirt."

That's why a noted political observer could recently declare that the American people are spending more for government than they are for food, clothing and rent combined.

That's why statisticians can make the startling announcement that the annual total of federal, state and local government expenditures in America averages $517 per family.

Throughout the nation, it is now apparent, the taxpayers themselves are coming to a grim realization of what these things mean to them. And, what is more significant, they are making their protests heard.

It's a good sign—if we don't weaken.

Crystal Lake Cagers Won A Pair Of Fast Games Friday

CRYSTAL LAKE BEATS KLEMME SHAMROCKS 37 TO 33 FRIDAY

Reserves Also Lose 17 to 16 In Last Seconds of Play

The Klemme High School basket ball teams journeyed to Crystal Lake Friday evening and were defeated there by exactly the same margin by which they had beaten the Crystal Lake team earlier in the week on the Klemme floor. The final score of the game was 37-33

Ivan Scanlon again counted 21 points to lead his team to victory Jorgenson and Kaduce each gathered 10 points to lead the Klemme scoring. Kilgore, Klemme guard, was the sensation of the evening for the Klemme team. His sparkling floor play and stellar defensive work aided him in playing his best game of the season. Altogether the team seemed to be in splendid form for the sectional meet this week seconds of play.

Static Chaser Gets Noise Causer

SLEUTH FINDS TOWN PUMP IS CAUSE OF STATIC

An amateur radio sleuth went on a tour a few nights ago to try to locate a lot of static that was interfering with radio reception in Klemme.

On of the chief sources of static was found to come from the motor on the new well pump at the town pumping station. Another fine assortment of static was found at the Klemme school on motors in the manual training department.

The Times is citing these two instances so that the "town dads" and the school board can have the caused remedied by having filters installed.

And with this accomplished the Times believes it would be a good thing to have a "radio" ordinance in Klemme which would require that all electrical devices that cause radio interference must be equipped with filters.

The expense of filtering small motors and other static developing electrical appliances is now a very small item.

Sectional Tournament Is Big Attraction This Week

KLEMME WILL PLAY FRIDAY IN SECTIONAL TOURNAMENT

Klemme Meets Popejoy In Second Round at 3:30 Friday P. M.

The Klemme High School basketball team will play in the sectional tournament at Latimer this week end Klemme drew a bye in the first round, and in the second round will meet Popejoy at 3:20 Friday afternoon.

Goodell, the only other Class B Seven Eagles team in the meet plays Alexander in the first round Thursday at 3:20. The winner of this game plays the winner of the Galt-Chapin game Friday at 2:10. Goodell should sail through these two games in fine shape and Klemme is doped to take Popejoy. These victories will pit Goodell and Klemme against each other in the semi-finals Saturday afternoon at 2:40.

In the upper bracket Aplington seems to be the strongest contender and may battle through to meet Goodell or Klemme in the finals.

The complete list of Class B teams in the upper bracket are: Rowan, Latimer, Hansell, Aplington Geneva and Dumont. The teams in the lower bracket are: Popejoy, Klemme, Goodell, Alexander, Galt and Chapin.

Goodell, Klemme, Aplington and Chapin are perhaps the strongest teams in the sectional race.

In Class A are Sheffield, Ackley, Hampton, Clarion, Kanawha, Dows and Belmond. Belmond seems to be the favorite team in the A division.

KLEMME'S FIRST ROBINS ARE REPORTED

The writer has no faith in a Klemme Swede, so when "Happy" Johnson heard a robin singing Sunday morning he knew that he would have to have proof so he called his wife to verify the robin's song. Mrs. Johnson said they could hear the robin, but were unable to locate the first harbinger of spring.

But it remained for Fred J. Arnold, dispenser of Chevrolet cars and auto repairman extraordinary, to actually see the first robin in Klemme. Fred called the Times Office at 8:10 a. m. Monday morning and wanted a reporter sent down right away so the Editor would know that he was not lying about it, or trying to get some free publicity.

The robin probably had hard going to get here and was in need of repairs, and so picked the Klemme Auto Co. as a good place to land.

So that's that and we have had our first robin and first meadowlark and time is about up for Mr. Groundhog to again venture forth after his six weeks of hiding after February 2nd.

ROBINS, AND MORE ROBINS

Yep, Spring is here! The writer has somewhat doubted all of these robin stories, but we saw a robin Monday morning at 11:15, east of Henry Lewis' house.

But now comes a story that beats 'em all. As we reckon time according to blizzards up north here in Iowa, we designate the time by saying that "two blizzards ago" a robin sought shelter underneath Henry Runge's porch. Roland Runge reported the incident to one of the Times force.

All right, that settles it! Now then, who will be the first Klemmeite to bring in the first string of bullheads?

RIVER RISES OVER ROADS NEAR KLEMME

The Iowa River near Klemme reached flood stage Tuesday and some country roads were under water. Reports that reached the Times office was that water was over the road near the Marshall farm northwest of Klemme. Water was over the road near the Church farm south of Klemme, and road bridges southeast of Klemme were all under water Tuesday.

SCHOOL ELECTION MONDAY WAS QUIET AFFAIR

H. F. Jost and Albert Barz were re-elected school directors at the annual election Monday without opposition, for the three year term. A few less than fifty ballots were cast.

Seniors Had Pictures Taken At Mason City Saturday

The members of the Senior Class, accompanied by Supt. D. L. Hunter, were at Mason City Saturday where they had their pictures taken. The Seniors had dinner at Mason City and then attended a show in the afternoon.

Italy Wins Another Battle and Talks About Peace

FROM the Italian army on the northern front in Ethiopia comes the news that the invaders have defeated the natives in a series of severe combats and have reached and taken the mountain stronghold of Amba Alaji. The Ethiopian losses are estimated at 10,000 dead and many more wounded. The Tembien region is now completely in the hands of the Italians and their way to the center of the country is fairly clear.

Benito Mussolini

Dispatches from Addis Ababa admitted that the Italians also were advancing rapidly in the southern part of the country and said Ras Desta Demtu's army and large numbers of warriors from all over the south were gathering to try to stop them. Marshal Badoglio's troops in the north were besieging Abbi Addi, 25 miles west of Makale and the 5,000 Ethiopians there were said to be facing surrender or extermination.

With these successes on the military side, Mussolini was reported to be losing economically because of the increasing pressure of the various sanctions against Italy. Because of his weakened position at home, it was said in Geneva and Paris he probably would be disposed to negotiate peace if terms satisfactory enough to save his face are proposed.

The sanctions committee of the League of Nations unexpectedly decided that Mussolini should be asked once more whether he is ready to discuss peace; and it was understood that if he said no, the league would proceed to impose an embargo on oil. Such a step, Mussolini has repeatedly asserted, would mean war in Europe.

Emperor Haile Selassie, according to Geneva dispatches, sent a message to Great Britain, offering to discuss peace on the basis of the status quo, letting Italy retain the territory she has occupied, provided King Edward will act as intermediary.

Japan Military Revolt Ends in Failure

JAPAN was calming down after the amazing revolt and attempted coup d' etat of a thousand soldiers led by a group of young "fascist" officers who thought the Okada government was hampering the military progress of the nation. So far as can be judged at this distance, the net results of the uprising were: Admiral Viscount Makoto Saito, former premier and lord keeper of the privy seal; Korekiyo Takahashi, minister of finance, and Gen. Jotaro Watanabe, chief of military education, were assassinated by the rebels. Premier Okada escaped death, his brother-in-law being mistaken for him and slain. The mutineers, threatened by loyal troops and the fleet, obeyed an edict by Emperor Hirohito and surrendered. Of their 23 leaders, two committed suicide and the rest were put in prison to await probable trial by court martial.

One other important result is likely to follow the uprising, and that is the formation of a new government more national in character and including some able military men. That is what the army wants, not caring especially who is premier. Okada, after emerging from his place of hiding, offered his resignation, but the emperor commanded him to carry on for the present.

It may be Japan will really be the gainer for the revolt, but it suffered one great loss in the death of Takahashi, who was a financial genius.

The whole affair emphasizes the fact that the Japanese do not look with disfavor on assassinations and suicides that are motivated by "patriotism."

Building Service Strike Cripples New York

MORE than 150,000 workers in 11,000 buildings in New York city were called out on strike by James J. Bambrick, president of the Building Service Employees' International union, and the sky-scrapers from the Battery to Washington Heights were badly crippled. Elevator men stopped their cars, furnace men banked their fires and scrubwomen threw down their mops, and all marched out of the buildings and formed picket lines. There was some scattered fighting between the pickets and men hastily hired to take their places, but the entire police force of the city was mobilized in a hurry to preserve the peace.

For almost a month the union leaders and building operators had been trying in vain to reach an agreement that would avert the strike. Bambrick as he called the strike said the owners must now sign the union terms and that he would accept no calls for arbitration. Each building, he asserted, must sign for itself.

Since the strike affected not only office buildings but innumerable apartment buildings also, the occupants of the latter were deprived of heat and telephone connections, and in many cases sick persons were marooned without food supplies. This led Mayor La Guardia to call the city health officials into conference, and to declare a civic emergency and order Health Commissioner Rice to see that fires were stoked and that trips necessary to health of the tenants and care of the sick were made in all residence buildings of more than six floors.

Union officials in Akron, Ohio, warned the law enforcement officials there that a general strike would be called in that city if force were used to break the strike blockade by pickets at the Goodyear Tire and Rubber company plant. About 14,000 workers of Akron are idle because of the strike, which was started in protest against layoffs which the company said were seasonal reductions in production.

Boulder Dam Turned Over to the Government

COMPLETED two and one-half years ahead of schedule, Boulder dam and its power houses were turned over to the reclamation service. The job was the biggest single contract ever executed for the government. There was no ceremony in the transfer. Frank Crowe, construction superintendent for the Six Companies, Inc., contractors, said to Ralph Lowry, reclamation service engineer: "Take it; it's yours now," and that was all.

The dam and power houses are done, but there is plenty of work on the entire project remaining to keep the government engineers busy for a long time. The Six Companies received $54,500,000, and the total cost will be $165,000,000.

Putting New Farm Bill Into Quick Operation

IMMEDIATELY after President Roosevelt signed the new soil conservation-farm relief act passed to take the place of the invalidated AAA, Administrator Chester C. Davis began planning ways to spend the $500,000,000 authorized. Under his orders more than five thousand employees of the AAA who had been waiting since January 6 for something to do got busy placing the new program into effect.

C. C. Davis

The goal of the new law, Mr. Roosevelt said in announcing his signature, is parity, not of farm prices, but of farm income. He said the New Deal has "not abandoned and will not abandon" the principle of equality for agriculture.

The President, in a formal statement, stressed three "major objectives" of the program which he said are "inseparably and of necessity linked with the national welfare." They were:

1. "The conservation of the soil itself through wise and proper land use.

2. "The re-establishment and maintenance of farm income at fair levels so that the great gains made by agriculture in the last three years can be preserved and national recovery continue.

3. "The protection of consumers by assuring adequate supplies of food and fiber now and in the future."

Davis planned, as the first move, a series of four conferences with agricultural leaders in Memphis, Chicago, New York and Salt Lake City to formulate plans to take 30,000,000 acres out of commercial production this year and place them in legumes and other soil conserving crops.

The new law provides benefit payments to farmers who co-operate in federal suggestions for conservation of soil fertility in 1936 and 1937. It provides, also, for federal subsidies to states setting up permanent state programs in 1938 and thereafter.

Federal Judge Ritter Impeached by House

ARTICLES of impeachment against Federal Judge Halsted L. Ritter of the Southern district of Florida were voted by the house of representatives. The vote was 181 to 146. The judge is accused of accepting $4,500 from a former law partner who collected $90,000 in fees in Ritter's court.

This impeachment is the twelfth voted by the house in American history. Of the 11 men previously impeached eight have been judges, one a senator, another a cabinet officer, and the other was a President, Andrew Johnson. Only three, all judges, were found guilty by the senate, which sits as the court in such cases.

Breckinridge in Ohio's Democratic Primary

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT apparently isn't going to have the Democratic presidential primary in Ohio all to himself. C. A. Weinman of Columbus announced he had received petitions signed by Col. Henry Breckinridge of New York, to enter his name, and said he would at once set about getting the necessary 1,000 signatures from 30 counties. This does not mean an attempt to get pledged convention delegates, there being in Ohio a separate Presidential preference ballot. Breckinridge is a member of the American Liberty league, and is attorney for Col. Charles A. Lindbergh.

Texas Opens Centennial Birthday Party

"REMEMBER the Alamo," the battle cry of Texas, was heard all over the state as its centennial celebration opened at the village of Washington-on-the-Brazos, where the declaration of independence from Mexico was signed. The old "charter of empire" was taken there from its place in the state capitol rotunda in Austin, and Gov. James V Allred of Texas and Gov. Philip LaFollette of Wisconsin went along to take part in the ceremonies. The party then went to Huntsville, where Gen. Sam Houston gathered an army of Texans to fight the Mexicans, and there Gov. Hill McAlister of Tennessee made the address. San Antonio and other cities followed on the program, and the celebrations will continue for months, reaching a climax in the opening on June 6 of the centennial exposition at Dallas.

Removal of Gen. Hagood Stirs Up Big Row

SUMMARY removal of Maj. Gen. Johnson Hagood from his command of the Eighth Corps area because of his critical expressions concerning the WPA and other New Deal activities stirred up a pretty row in Washington. Gen. Malin Craig, chief of staff, signed the order to Hagood, by order of the secretary of war and the President. The Republicans in congress, backed up by Tom Blanton of Texas and some other Democrats, assailed the action vigorously, and Senator Metcalf of Rhode Island introduced a resolution for an inquiry into the incident on behalf of "free speech."

Gen. Hagood

Breaking its "usual rule of silence," the War department made public a letter from General Craig to Secretary Dern, declaring Hagood's record was "marked by repeated examples of lack of self-control, irresponsible and intemperate statements."

Hagood had told a house subcommittee that it was "almost impossible" to get WPA's "stage money" for "anything worthwhile." These remarks, said Craig, "can only be characterized as flippant in tone and entirely uncalled for and designed to bring ridicule and contempt upon civil agencies of the government."

Accusing him of "thinly veiled" opposition and "contempt" toward War department policies in the past, Craig pointed out as "contemptuous" Hagood's references to CCC activities as "hobbles," "collecting postage stamps" and "taking an interest in butterflies."

Vandenberg Won't Enter Ohio's Primary

SENATOR VANDENBERG of Michigan has formally declined to enter the Ohio Presidential primary, but does not bar himself from consideration for the Republican nomination. Writing to the Republican state committee of Ohio, in reply to an inquiry as to whether he would run, Vandenberg asserted his "sole interest" in the Republican convention was that it should make "the wisest possible decisions respecting both party leadership and party policies."

To conform to Ohio law, the Borah forces have found the required "second choice." This is Frank E. Gannett of Rochester, N. Y., publisher of a chain of newspapers, who has agreed to fight alongside the Idaho senator for Ohio's 52 delegates, to receive the votes of those pledged to Borah should the nomination of the latter be blocked in the convention. Mr. Gannett has expressed the belief that Borah is the one member of the party "most likely to recover the upstate New York vote," and he also holds the view that the Idahoan would be the strongest candidate in the agricultural states.

Nye Says War Profits Bill Must Be Considered

SENATOR NYE of North Dakota is determined that the war profits bill devised by his munitions committee shall be brought up for consideration at this session. Indeed he more than threatens a filibuster to bring this about, if necessary, to get the measure out of the hands of a finance subcommittee which is headed by Tom Connally of Texas.

The Nye bill provides for stiff taxes on earnings and virtual confiscation of individual income above $10,000 a year in time of war.

Georgia's Fiscal Affairs in a Serious Tangle

GOV. EUGENE TALMADGE is virtually financial dictator of Georgia, because the general assembly did not enact an appropriation bill, but he is having his troubles finding funds to carry on. He declared there was a "plan hatched in Washington" to hamper him, and ousted State Treasurer George Hamilton and Controller General William Harrison for refusal to honor treasury warrants. Hamilton removed all the money from the treasury vault to a bank. Three state departments provided funds for temporary operation of fiscal affairs.

Then depository banks, the United States post office and the state's attorney general took a hand. Mail addressed to the suspended officers was impounded, cutting off the flow of tax remittances; all but one of the depository banks refused to honor state checks pending a court decision on the legal status of de facto officials; and Attorney General M. J. Yeomans, once cited by Talmadge as an authority for his actions, declared his position had been misinterpreted.

National Topics Interpreted

By WILLIAM BRUCKART

NATIONAL PRESS BLDG. WASHINGTON, D. C.

Washington.—A routine War department order came through the other day which said, cryptically:

Thunder Over Hagood

"By direction of the President, Maj. Gen. Johnson Hagood, U. S. A., is relieved from assignment to the command of the Eighth corps area and further duty at Fort Sam Houston, Texas. Major General Hagood will proceed to his home and await orders."

Each day, there comes from the War department anywhere from two or three to a couple of dozen orders by which army officers are transferred from one post to another, from one assignment to another or given new instructions. It is not unusual at all. That is why I said at the outset of this item that the order respecting General Hagood was routine. But it was routine only in the language that was used. Otherwise, it was significant. Just how significant it will prove to be remains as a secret to be unfolded by the future. Suffice to say that seldom has one minor incident of government administration created such a storm as this army order because it has become a political issue. General Hagood is the third ranking officer in the United States army. He has been in the service something like forty years. His record is generally regarded as distinguished, but at the same time he has never been a pussyfoot. He has spoken boldly, sometimes too boldly and sometimes out of turn, yet I think it is generally agreed that General Hagood is sincere.

But, to go back of the "routine army order" by which he was summarily relieved of his command at the important army post of Fort Sam Houston, we find a record of General Hagood's testimony before an appropriations committee in the house of representatives. In that testimony, General Hagood spoke with his usual bluntness. He apparently offended somebody when he did it. His testimony has been criticized and commended, the War department and Secretary Dern have been attacked and defended and even President Roosevelt has been dragged into the controversy because somewhere, somehow New Deal opposition has become convinced that President Roosevelt and Secretary Dern punished General Hagood by removing him from his post because he dared to point out flukes and flaws and ridiculous aspects in New Deal policies of handling taxpayers' money.

General Hagood was called before the appropriations committee by its chairman and told to express his candid sentiments, his honest convictions and any constructive suggestions he might have respecting improvement of the United States army. The general, somewhat blusteringly, related to the committee that the army must have additional housing facilities. He related conditions in many army posts and asserted that many persons on relief were accorded better places to live than Uncle Sam's soldiers.

Speaks Freely

That part aroused no particular controversy but when General Hagood told the committee of the difficulty the responsible army authorities have in getting money with which to provide better housing for the soldiers, he stepped on administration toes by saying that it was more difficult to get "five cents for a pencil than a thousand dollars with which to teach Civilian Conservation corps boys new hobbies or boondoggling." He said he could get a hundred dollars to build a gravel walk and a rose garden but could not get ten dollars with which to repair a broken steam pipe in an army barracks.

The next outburst by the general brought forth his description that money being handled by Relief Administrator Hopkins was stage money; that nothing worth while or of a permanent character was being done with that money and the explanation that he called it stage money because "it is being handed around and you can do nothing with it in the end." His plea was that some of these funds which he said were being otherwise wasted should be employed to build structures of concrete and steel "that can be shown to our grandchildren 50 years from now."

In hearing General Hagood's testimony, the committee understood that the War department had given him permission to speak freely. Indeed, such assurance had been passed along to the committee from the War department but apparently the War department did not know what General Hagood had on his chest. If it had known, it certainly could have expected exactly such expressions because General Hagood never has pulled his punches. He has said each time what he thought.

By saying what he thought, however, he undoubtedly moved across the line of discretion. Army officers must guard their speech. They are under disciplinary regulations. It has to be so. Otherwise, we would see frequent outbursts by army officers in opposition to established policies, rules and regulations and it takes no stretch of the imagination to see what a disordered mess would result.

* * *

On the other hand, General Hagood was certainly privileged to believe that his observations were being made only for the committee of congress before which he appeared. The doors to the committee room were closed and locked and only committee members were in attendance. It happened, however, that subsequently the stenographic record of the committee hearings was made public and when that happened, the storm broke. Almost simultaneously with the removal of the bond of secrecy on the committee record, the War department order dehorning General Hagood was written. When that happened, the politicians literally blew up. They shouted charges of censorship, terrorism by the President and Secretary Dern, dictatorship, political punishment and half a dozen other vicious accusations.

Then the Storm Broke

A few of the administration spokesmen in congress defended the War department action. Almost in the same breath these administration spokesmen sought conferences with Secretary Dern and others in an attempt to persuade the President and the war secretary to soften the punishment but those moves were futile and Representative Blanton, Texas Democrat, shouted on the floor of the house that the Hagood punishment would cost the Democratic party "a million votes unless it were withdrawn."

As a part of the defense of the War department action, Gen. Malin Craig, chief of staff of the army, made public his memorandum to the secretary of war respecting General Hagood's attitude and his testimony before the congressional committee. In the course of this 2,000-word memorandum, General Craig described General Hagood as a "wise-cracker," and he was probably correct in so far as General Hagood's remarks about stage money were concerned. Yet, I have found very few among the Washington observers whose opinions are worth while who saw in the Craig memorandum any real justification for the severe punishment meted out to General Hagood.

The order still stands. General Hagood is going to his home in Charleston, S. C., "to await orders." No one familiar with the army procedure expects that General Hagood ever again will be given an army assignment. He will be sixty-four years old next year and at that time automatically retires from active duty. So there is hardly any question but that General Hagood has held his last command.

The whole situation, suddenly come to be known as the Hagood case, is bound to be multiplied and mirrored. It will figure in the coming political campaign because, however justified the War department action may have been in the interest of discipline and good army administration, there are thousands of individuals who never will be convinced that the Hagood removal was for any purpose other than as punishment because he criticized New Deal spending policies.

Although there is, and can be, no connection between the two, it was the basis for a really humorous reaction that during the time when the controversy raged over General Hagood's removal from his Texas army post, a federal government committee was busily engaged in making plans for federal participation in the Texas Centennial exposition which opens at Dallas June 6. Uncle Sam is spending $3,000,000—the largest sum congress ever has authorized for federal participation in such a show—so that twenty-odd government agencies can display to exposition visitors what the government has done with its billions since the cards were shuffled for the New Deal.

U. S. at Dallas Fair

The Agriculture department, as usual, will be represented by the largest of all federal exhibits. The Commerce department and the State, War, Navy, Treasury, Justice, Post Office, Interior and Labor departments will have their booths or buildings. The Federal Housing administration and the Farm Credit administration will be there with displays of their wares, and the Public Health service will attempt to further the cause of health in its usual splendid fashion.

One unusual feature of the government's participation will be a negro building in which it will tell the story of the negro race and its progress since the first slaves were brought into America. Plans call for the use of negro labor in the construction of this exhibit building and as far as possible negroes will prepare the exhibits.

The Bridal Veil

Why the bride wears a veil at her wedding has been the subject of many an argument among scholars. Some authorities believe that the bridal veil originated in the ancient practice of hiding the bride's face to show her submission. Others contend the opposite—that the veil originally was an emblem of independence.

BEFORE you take any preparation you don't know all about, for the relief of headaches; or the pains of rheumatism, neuritis or neuralgia, ask your doctor what he thinks about it — in comparison with Genuine Bayer Aspirin.

We say this because, before the discovery of Bayer Aspirin, most so-called "pain" remedies were advised against by physicians as being bad for the stomach; or, often, for the heart. And the discovery of Bayer Aspirin largely changed medical practice.

Countless thousands of people who have taken Bayer Aspirin year in and out without ill effect, have proved that the medical findings about its safety were correct.

Remember this: Genuine Bayer Aspirin is rated among the fastest methods yet discovered for the relief of headaches and all common pains . . . and safe for the average person to take regularly.

You can get real Bayer Aspirin at any drug store — simply by never asking for it by the name "aspirin" alone, but always saying BAYER ASPIRIN when you buy.

Vacuum Hoses Save Drillers From Silicosis

Protection for Workers on New York Job

Operators use rock drills equipped with vacuum hoses to carry off rock dust and thereby guard against silicosis, as construction begins on the last link of the West Side elevated highway in New York. The vacuum hoses, which are attached near the bottom of the drills, carry the dust to a machine where it is collected.

The threat of silicosis, dread malady which affects the lungs of workers, is a menace in areas where drilling operations are carried on in formations where silica occurs. Yet healthy adults not exposed to silica dust have been found to carry silica in their lungs. Precautions against this disease are being taken since the death of workers from silicosis in the Hawk's Nest Power tunnel at Gauley Ridge, W. Va.

SPEED IN FALLING

If one should fall from an airplane or balloon at a height however great, his velocity would never exceed 118 miles an hour at any point before reaching the earth, according to the conclusions of the Army Air Service as a result of experiments made with dummies.

This is contrary to the belief formerly held by most persons that a body continually increased its speed when falling from any distance. The fact is that this rapid increasing speed in the case of a body similar to that of a man continues only until it has fallen about 1,200 feet, after which it maintains a constant rate, due to the resistance of the air.

This discovery also explodes the theory that a person faling from a great height would lose conciousness and perhpas be dead before striking the ground, for it is well known that aviators have driven their planes at speeds of more than 350 miles an hour on a straighaway course, and at much greater velocity when diving to make an " outside loop."

The knowledge that falling speed is limited is not of much practical benefit to one who falls from a great height, however, for the 118 miles an hour possible of attainment is quite sufficient to effectively put him out of business when he strikes the earth.

WHO IS EDUCATED,

Amidst the confusion among various schools of thought regarding prseent-day education, it is rally difficult to find a satis factory yardstick with which to measure that elusive individual, the educated man.

Many hold the view that no one is truly educated unless he is familiar with the classics, proficient in several languages living and dead, versed in higher mathematics, and so on. Another school, while recognizing the desirability of a classical education when circumstances permit, denies that the classicists have exclusive claims to real education.

In this connection a thought expressed by the Boston philanthropist, Edward A. Filene, is pertinent. He declares that "the educated mind today is the mind which best learns how to use the knowledge in existence, particularly those truths which apply to the thing which he is doing."

And tha seems to be a very good definition.

POLITICS AND POSTMASTERSHIPS

Report from Washington has it now that Postmaster General Farley looks kindly on the bill by which first, second and third class postmasterships—some 25,000 of them—would be placed entirely under Civil Service, on a lifetime job basis.

Two years ago the Administration and Mr. Farley professed to be all ready to put across precisely the same change now under consideration. It got nowhere then. The plan fell through at that time because not enough of the faithful had been installed in jobs.—Worcester, Mass., Gazette.

FIGHTING FARMER PENALIZED

It is rather startling to learn that the good Doctor Tugwell has on his hands 525,000 farm families fr whom he is expected o provide subsistence pending the development of rehabilitation plans. This is one farm family out of everp twelve.

The Resettlement Administration intends to loan the farmer an amount that he can repay and grant or give him enough to buy a cow or a new machine or seed or whatever it is that he needs to get started on his own again. Plans now call for a loan and grant method of dealing with farm families who are set on the road to self-sustenance. But here enters new worry. It is recognized that with loans and grants liberally made the farmer thus aided may find himself better off than the farmer who has struggled along, and who has not permitted himself to become so impoverished as to be eligible for Government help. Penalizing this fighting farmer, because he has fought, is not only bad policy from the standpoint of society as a whole, but will prove to be the poorest kind of politics.—Chicago Drovers Journal.

SUPERMAN NO MORE

The army of Democratic employees who are working desperately to hold their political jobs by continuing the present profligate Administration for another four years, have ceased their exaltation of President Roosevelt.

They are now coming to his defense with the statments that he means well and that his heart is in the right place and he wants to do something for the people. That is all very well, but he has had three years in which to do it and has not succeeded.

Americans resent the patrenalism of the Administration which would treat them as children who are unable to take care of themselves. We have the spectacle of the senior class just from college stepping into high places of government to tell business men how to operate industry, although these experts are entirely without experience in the things they seek to regulate.—Pottsville Pa., Republican.

TOO MANY ALIENS ON RELIEF

Approximately 10,000,000 employables in this country are without work. There are 8,000,000 aliens in the United States. A great proportion of these are being cared for by the Government. One writer estimates the number of such on relief as 3,500,000. They are costing the Government about half a billion per year.

Many of these aliens have not even renounced their allegiance to the countries from which they came. They recognize no loyalty to the United States. Some of them are in those groups which hold doctrines adverse to the American constitutional government.—Seattle Republican State Call.

We Have Faith in Iowa and The Customers We Serve

We believe that you appreciate adequate and dependable electric service.

For this reason we have continued to make new investments in our property in order to maintain and improve service.

These investments have been made systematically—and have been continued in the face of adverse conditions prevailing during recent years.

The wisdom of this policy is evidenced by the quality of service that we rendered during the recent storms and blizzards that completely paralyzed all transportation and other forms of public service throughout the middle west.

One remarkable thing about statesmen who go to Washington is that they never get homesick. They are always willing to stay at least four years longer.

When a man crossing the street is hit by an automobile, they call it an accident. If he gets across the street safely it is a miracle.

Times have certainly improved. In the old days they used to pop corn and eat apples when they had a party. Now they can drink both the corn and the apple and save a lot of time and effort.

An Alabama man stole a slot machine the other day. He made the belated discovery that that's the only way to beat the thing.

For 12 years Patrolman John Mudder, of Brooklyn, N. Y., patrolled his beat without one arrest. The other day he captured a burgular in his own apartment

FLOYD GIBBONS
Adventurers' Club
Hello, Everybody!

"She Had a Hunch"

By FLOYD GIBBONS
Famous Headline Hunter.

DO YOU believe in hunches? I don't know whether I do or not. One thing I do know is that there is certainly no earthly reason why a hunch should be an indication of future events, but I'll be doggoned if they don't do that very thing right along.

Historians tell us that Napoleon worked on hunches. If he had a hunch that things weren't going just right before a battle he would retreat and attack another day, and every schoolboy knows with what uncanny success. He was superstitious, too, which is unusual in a man so intelligent, but it worked out all right for him. Here's an example:

Once, at the height of his power, a big celebration was being given in the emperor's honor. A special wooden pavilion had been built in the palace gardens to hold the big crowd. Nap started with a group of retainers to walk over to the gaily decorated hall where the guests were already awaiting his grand entry. The emperor was in a jovial mood and he hurried along with swift, firm steps. Suddenly he stopped and a worried frown came over the imperial forehead.

The procession halted with him to a man. They looked to see what had caused the great conqueror's anxiety and then smiled as they saw a tiny black cat pass directly in front of him.

Emperor Orders Return to Palace.

But Napoleon didn't smile. He snapped out an order and turning right about face retraced his steps to the palace

"We shall start all over again," the emperor said, and the rest obeyed the man who held the world in the palm of his hand. Some of the courtiers sneered secretly behind his back. Others smiled broadly at the Man of Destiny, influenced by a black cat crossing his path! All said that the delay would hurt his well-timed dramatic entrance. Napoleon said nothing.

As the return trip brought the procession to the spot where the cat had passed some twenty minutes before, the courtiers were still smiling—behind the emperor's back—at this strange whim. But their smiles, before they had gone many steps, changed suddenly to gasps of horror.

Crowded Hall Turned Into Shambles.

The brightly lighted pavilion blew up before their very eyes! A terrific explosion shattered the night and turned the crowded hall into a shambles! Wounded and blinded unfortunates, screaming with pain fought their way to the gardens, leaving hundreds of dead behind them!

Napoleon soon had the story. A bomb—timed for his entrance—had exploded directly beneath the throne! Ten minutes earlier and the bomb would have found its mark.

A cat—or was it a hunch—had changed the history of the world. All that, boys and girls, brings us to Mrs Jack Cantwell of Brooklyn, N. Y. Mrs. Cantwell had a hunch and like Napoleon she played it to win.

Tries to Deliver "Surprise Gift."

In May of 1919, Mrs. Cantwell says, she and her husband moved into her sister's home at 174 East Sixty sixth street to take care of the house while her sister was on a trip to Europe Her sister had many articles of value in her home that she didn't wish to leave unguarded.

One evening the doorbell rang and Mrs. Cantwell went to the door to be greeted by a delivery man. A truck stood in front of the house and the man announced that they had a piano to deliver. He explained that the piano was a surprise gift for her sister.

Well, that sounded reasonable, but Mrs. Cantwell had a hunch. She refused to accept the piano. The man insisted that it be delivered, saying there was no mistake and it had been paid for He had the right name and address and it wasn't fair, he said, to cause the workmen to make a return trip. The piano, in a big wooden crate covered with burlap, stood on the sidewalk ready to be moved in.

Mrs. Cantwell Refused to Accept the Piano.

Hunch Saves Family From Burglars.

Mr. Cantwell came to the door. He couldn't see why the piano shouldn't be moved in and said so. But Mrs. Cantwell was working on that hunch of hers and said she wouldn't allow it in the house without a written order from her sister.

That ended the whole thing so far as the Cantwells were concerned. Back they went to their waiting dinner, wondering if they hadn't made a mistake in refusing the piano. Mrs. Cantwell admits that she didn't have a leg to stand on when it came to explaining why she did not want the instrument in the house. She had no suspicions of the men and she had no dislike for piano music. All she had was a hunch but, as it turned out, that was plenty.

Nothing further happened that night to destroy the harmony of the Cantwells domiciled in sister's house. The couple slept the sleep of the just, but the next morning at breakfast the piano incident smacked them in the face again like a squirting grapefruit. The smack came out of this headline on the front page of their morning newspaper:

"BURGLARS ENTER HOUSE IN PIANO BOX!"

Clever Ruse Used by Thugs.

Mr. Cantwell read the article out loud. The thieves, the paper said, had gained entrance to a house by the ruse of delivering a piano. In the piano case was concealed one of their number. The box was left that evening at the home of the victims and the man had the entire night in which to rifle the place.

Well, what have you got to say about hunches, now?

Sheep Importation of 1802 Nation's Largest

The largest importation of sheep and the one which had the most to do with the improvement of the flocks in this country, was the bringing in of 75 ewes and 21 rams by Davis Humphrey of Connecticut in 1802, writes Carleton M. Allen in the Boston Transcript.

After 1807 merino wool went upwards in price due to the fact that an act was passed, causing practically an embargo, and the seemingly hostile tactics of both England and France reduced the imports of woolens by at least one-half. By the time war was declared in 1812 the supply of foreign woolens was absolutely cut off.

The effect upon the manufacture of woolens was immediate. Humphreys started a mill in 1806, using his own wool. Dupont, another original importer of merino sheep, opened a mill near Wilmington, Del., in 1812. One mill was erected in western Pennsylvania, manufacturing broadcloth from the clip of its own merino sheep. Another was started in Steubenville, Ohio. In 1810 approximately 24 woolen mills were in existence in eastern United States. Fourteen of these mills manufactured annually 10,000 yards of cloth, selling at from $1 to $10 a yard.

In 1809 and 1810 the demand for pure-blooded merino sheep was so great that rams had risen in value to $1,000 to $1,500, and ewes were sold at $1,000. Pure merino wool rose from 75 cents a pound to $2. The common wool was quoted at 37½ cents a pound.

In New England and the middle Atlantic states after 1840, the wool-growing industry, which had been mostly confined to this region, began to decline.

"Foolscap" Paper

Paper in sheets 13 by 16 or 17 inches was watermarked, by old-time paper makers, with a fool's cap and bells. Hence the name "foolscap." Why it was marked is something else again. One account states that in the Cromwellian days, after the monarchy had been overthrown and the royal paper monopolies set aside, the foolscap watermark was ordered into the paper by parliament, in place of the royal arms, as a token of derision.

If Five Dictators Unite
England Is Feverish
Wealth for a Good Girl
Gen. Mitchell Finds Rest

Rome hints that Mussolini and Hitler have arranged a protective treaty with Austria, Poland and Hungary. Five countries under dictators, united against England and France, still experimenting with the old "democracy," would be interesting.

Arthur Brisbane

One dictator, Stalin, supposed to have an understanding with France, might offset the other combination.

Also, Hitler will remember that in 1914 Germany thought she had Italy in a "triple alliance"—Italy-Austria-Germany, but Italy did not stay. Had she stayed, the war might have ended otherwise. That increases Mussolini's bitterness, with England trying to cause Italy's defeat by barbarous Ethiopia.

Mr. Eden, young foreign secretary, tells England modern conditions are "dreadfully" like conditions before 1914. England must arm herself to the teeth and have, for final objective, "a world-wide system of collective security which embraces all nations in an authority which is unchallenged and unchallengeable."

That might be done by two or three countries closely united, although the airplane makes everything in war uncertain It might destroy a capital city and an alliance in one morning, as a pistol destroys the strongest man

Countess Barbara Hutton Haugwitz-Reventlow has a new baby boy weighing seven and a half pounds, and twenty million dollars; that in gold at the present price would weigh more than thirty thousand pounds. Ask Barbara Hutton Haugwitz-Reventlow, as she holds that small baby, its eyes not focused, one small hand holding her finger, whether she would rather have the baby or the $20,000,000, and she will think your question silly. She would not take a million millions for the baby.

This proves that any good young woman who marries a kind young man may be richer than any "five and ten" heiress.

Gen. William E. Mitchell was buried in the family burial plot in Milwaukee, not in Arlington cemetery.

Having fought all his life against the enemies of his country and the stupidity of his superiors, he wanted peace at the last

He lies beside his father, a United States senator from Wisconsin.

General Mitchell has gone wherever patriotic, brave men go; some that opposed him will not follow him there.

At Greenwood Lake, N. Y., a mail-carrying rocket went 2,000 feet from New York to New Jersey over Greenwood lake, while spectators smiled in derision.

Other spectators smiled when Fulton tried his first steamboat.

In Madison, Wis., death masks of Indians, more than 3,000 years old, found in burial grounds, lead back to savages of the Eskimo type that hunted mammoths near the beautiful Wisconsin lakes 15,000 years ago. Those ancient savages, instead of burying the dead, cleaned the skeletons neatly, covered the skulls with lifelike masks of clay, kept their relatives with them for years.

The human race has done queer things always. Russia has Lenin, embalmed, exhibited in the great Red square of Moscow.

The world becomes gradually democratic. In King George's funeral procession everybody walked. At his father's funeral, the great all went on horseback, including King George's cousin, the former kaiser, on a prancing white horse.

Now King Edward VIII orders simpler uniforms, less fancy dressing in Buckingham palace.

President Lewis, fifty, head of the miners' union, plenty of cash on hand, offers William Green, American Federation of Labor head, $500,000 for a campaign to organize 500,000 men in the steel industry. Mr. Green, a long-time union man, has not accepted the offer. He knows how easy it is for one man to become a tall for the other man's kite.

Dr. Alfred Adler, competent psychologist, says the Dionne quintuplets "should be separated, for their own good."

Mothers will wonder how any psychologist could suggest separating the five small angels, Yvonne, Annette, Cecile, Emilie and Marie.

Mrs. Watson Davis, for Science Service, says the world needs just now: A remedy for the two greatest "killers of men," cancer and organic heart disease; a substitute for power, developed in primitive fashion from oil, coal, etc. That means harnessing the sun to one end of the scale, the atom at the other.

TALL TALES

As Told to:

FRANK E. HAGAN and ELMO SCOTT WATSON

The Goat That Sang Tenor

WHEN William McClenahan, newspaper correspondent of Port Deposit, Md., first heard about it, he didn't believe it. A farmer, so the neighborhood gossips said, had a goat that sang in a beautiful tenor voice. How did it happen?

Well, it seems that some member of the farmer's family had been careless and left a phonograph record of "Mother o' Mine" by John McCormack out in the yard. At least, that's the way Mr. McClenahan's story, which appeared in the Baltimore Sun, accounted for it.

The farmer and his singing goat became famous. People came to see it and paid for the privilege of hearing it sing. Then bad luck overtook the farmer. The goat stopped singing as suddenly as it had begun. So the farmer bought an expensive record by a famous grand opera star—"O Sole Mio" it was—and fed that to the goat.

The result was fatal. The goat began to sing but suddenly dropped dead. An autopsy revealed the fact that its throat was cloged up with what the veterinarian called "some foreign substance" They were Italian words and phrases. The goat was 100 per cent American, so of course, he choked to death on 'em.

His Unlucky Day

"YES, sir, I believe in that superstition about Friday, the 13th. bein' an unlucky day," said the Oldest Ranger in Yellowstone park. "I recollect one of 'em in particular.

"I was out on patrol and discovered I didn't have a bite of food in my grub bag and only one shell left in my trusty ol' gun. Well, I sneaked through the woods till I saw a brace of quail sittin' on a bush so I maneuvered aroun' so as to be sure of get tin' both of 'em with one shot.

"I let fly an' by golly, when I went to pick up them two birds I found that I'd killed six more that was sittin' on the other side of the bush Just then I heard a big commotion out in a little lake nearby There was a big buck deer that had been skeered by my shot and had run out and got hisself mired down.

"I run out to help him but before I could get to him he drowned. As I was carryin' him to shore, I sank down in the mud an' water up over the tops of my boots. So I took 'em off to pour out the water and derned if there didn't flop out of 'em a dozen of the finest trout you ever did see.

"Well, I strung the quail an' the deer an' the trout on a pole so I could carry 'em easier. But my struggles to get the load up on my shoulders was jest too much of a strain on my suspender buttons. Derned if one didn't fly off with such force that it killed a rabbit 100 yards away.

"When that happened, I jest decided it wasn't no use to try to do any more huntin'. Seemed like it was my unlucky day, it bein' Friday, the 13th."

"Man Overboard!"

MEN who go down to the sea in ships frequently see or hear about some unusual occurrences. J. W. Putman of Anaheim, Calif., who once served in the United States navy, is no exception to that rule.

One hot, sticky day as the battleships and cruisers were steaming along off the coast of China a typhoon suddenly swooped down upon them. Despite the howling wind and raging waters, the vessels managed to keep their alignment.

In the midst of the storm a lieutenant decided that he wanted a cup of coffee. So a mess boy started across the deck with a cup of coffee, a pitcher of cream and a bowl of sugar on a tray. Just as he was about to open the door to the officers' quarters, a 61-foot wave swept across the deck.

It picked up the mess boy, juggled him for a second on its crest, then carried him 308 yards astern and deposited him at the door of the officers' quarters of the next ship in line. Opening the door, he walked in and said, "Here is the coffee you ordered, lieutenant. One lump, or two, and shall I pour in the cream?"

It had all happened so quickly that the mess boy didn't realize he was on another ship until the officer roared out: "I'm a captain, not a lieutenant! I didn't order any coffee, and what are you doing here?"

Indians Traced to Yellow Race

The original red man, the American Indian, came from pure yellow stock and did not carry any black strain from admixtures with natives of Oceania, reports Dr. Ales Hrdlicka, curator of anthropology of the Smithsonian institution, Washington. He brands as "fabulous" the theories that natives of the Oceanic islands left their imprint on the American continent. These islands were occupied by the Melanesian peoples only as recently as the first millennium before Christ, at which time the New world had been populated for several thousand years from Mongolian stock. Skulls have been found in the Americas which seem to indicate Melanesian origin, but these always prove to fall within the variations known to occur among the Indians, declares Doctor Hrdlicka.

Alluring Daytime Frock With Distinctive Yoke

1832-B

The yoke of this frock is unusual and a distinctive departure from the obvious round or squared-off affair, because it extends out over the shoulders and forms flaring little caps—caps which conceal two inverted pleats and which are transformed into lovely loose raglan sleeves. The blouse gathers at the yoke and waist in front and back, rendering fullness and a soft drapey appearance. The twin panels in the skirt give you height, and the skirt an added swirl. Two huge gathered pockets in unison with the blouse are interesting features and very practical. Make a self-fabric belt trimmed with a diamond shaped buckle and two harmonizing buttons, and notice how smart and up to the minute your frock will be.

Barbara Bell Pattern No. 1832-B Is available in sizes 32, 34, 36, 38, 40 42 and 44, and can be procured for fifteen cents. Size 36 requires 4⅞ yards of 35-inch material.

Railroad Building in Nicaragua.

Prepared by the National Geographic Society, Washington, D. C.—WNU Service.

NICARAGUA has an area of some 50,000 square miles, about equal to that of New York state, and a population of approximately 650,000, close to that of the city of Buffalo. It is the largest of the Central American republics; many consider it the most beautiful. Much of the interior is mountainous; the coasts are generally flat. It faces the Pacific, with its back door to the Atlantic. Most of its people live in the cities in the western part of the republic, for the rainfall here is moderate as compared with that of the eastern coast; the climate, although tropical, is agreeable, and the land is fertile.

The cities of Chinandega, Leon, Managua, Masaya and Granada are located near the west coast and along the one line of railroad, extending from the port of Corinto, on the Pacific, to Granada, the main port on Lake Nicaragua.

Managua, the capital, is the largest, and, although badly set back by the earthquake and fire that almost destroyed the city in the spring of 1931, will in time again become the most important business center of the country.

Leon and Chinandega, cities of artisans and small proprietors, are located among very fertile farming lands and are the centers of the sugar trade. Masaya is an Indian town and owes its importance to the coffee-growing district on the Sierras, located between the lakes and the Pacific.

Granada owes her early growth to the fact that she was the chief port for the trade between Central America and Spain, by way of Lake Nicaragua and the San Juan river. Her leading citizens are not only landed proprietors, but merchants who sell goods in person over the counters of their stores.

Matagalpa, the largest town off the railroad, is the center of an important coffee-growing district. Because of its altitude, it has a more agreeable climate than the cities located in the plains; but the absence of a railroad, or even a good highway connection with the outside world, has thwarted its growth.

East and West Are Divided.

Eastern and western Nicaragua are divided by mountains and jungle covered country, which have effectively prevented intercommunication except to a very minor degree. The physical separation has operated to prevent close political union and a common national outlook; to hamper trade and commerce; and to obstruct a desirable interchange of people and ideas.

In addition, the lack of a practicable route to its east coast has forced virtually all of Nicaragua's foreign commerce to seek a longer and more roundabout route via the west coast and the Panama canal. For these reasons it has been the desire of the government of Nicaragua for many years to open a means of communication between the west and east, either by the canalization of the San Juan river or by the construction of a highway or a railroad. A highway has been under construction from Managua through Tipitapa to Rama, on the Bluefields river, where boat connections can be made with Bluefields, the largest port town on the Caribbean.

The population of the country is overwhelmingly of mixed Spanish and Indian blood, with Spanish the universal language, although one finds in Granada and the other large towns many families of pure Spanish blood. Perhaps 10 per cent of the population is pure Indian, found mostly in the area around Masaya and Matagalpa and in the thinly settled cattle-raising sections of the province of Chontales, east of Lake Nicaragua.

Still farther to the east, along the rivers that drain into the Caribbean north of Greytown, the Sumo Indians have their homes. They are a wild and timid race and have resisted all Spanish influence.

The Mosquito Coast.

Part of Nicaragua's Carribean coast has the world's worst real estate title "The Mosquito Coast." It gets its name not from the prevalence of mosquitoes, but from the Misskito Indians. Here there is decided evidence of negro blood, partly a heritage from the cargo of a slave ship that was wrecked on the coast years ago. These blacks, or mixed Indians and blacks, called "Sambos" or "Zambos," were augmented by escaped slaves from the plantations that sparsely dotted the coast in later years, and by renegade slaves from Jamaica and other islands of the West Indies.

The Mosquito coast was also a refuge for buccaneers and pirates and was visited by many trading ships seeking turtle shells. As a result, the blood of the inhabitants became badly mixed, and characteristics of many races can be detected in the present-day population.

San Juan del Norte (Greytown), at the mouth of the San Juan river, has an English-speaking negro population. Long ago the port had an excellent harbor and was a thriving community, but drifting sands have closed the entrance from the sea, and now only an occasional schooner calls.

In the boom days, when the Maritime Canal company undertook the construction of a canal, Greytown had visions of being a metropolis; now it is only a dreary community of rusted tin and frame shacks, with a population of 250 people.

In spite of the financial difficulties that have been general throughout the world and have been particularly trying in Nicaragua, the president of the republic has improved the public schools and built new roads and railroads.

Along the country's roads you will occasionally meet a high-powered car snorting its way over ruts and bumps, carrying some government official or landed proprietor on business best known to himself. The car has a number of occupants, usually half a dozen in excess of its normal capacity, for the government official travels with his guards, his friends, and perhaps a large part of his family, while the usual car-owner always has his entire family in the car and baggage and other impedimenta strapped on the running board and anywhere else that it can be suspended or attached.

Cars Nearly All American.

Practically all cars are of American make, and it is a tribute to their sturdiness that they can stand the usage to which they are subjected. New cars are frequently equipped with extra spring leaves, as spare parts are hard to get, and for service on Nicaraguan roads springs have to be strong.

The cars on the roads are few and far between, but they add the touch which shows that you are traveling in a civilized country. The creaky ox-cart is the usual means of locomotion. Small but sturdy animals, with yokes or pulling bars lashed just behind the horns, draw these carts creaking and groaning over the trails, but they get through mud that will stop a strong pony.

It is not necessary to ask for road directions; there is never more than one road or trail in the direction you want to go. A question as to distance is futile, for no peon has any conception of time or distance. A league may actually be any length from one to six miles. The usual answer to the question, "How far is it to any place?" is "No hay mas," the Nicaraguan equivalent of the answer, "Not fur," which one so frequently gets from the small darky on our southern roads.

Coffee Is the Main Crop.

The prosperity of the country depends upon the coffee crop and its price. Crops have been good in recent years, but the price has been very low. For its future Nicaragua looks to the building of the canal linking the Pacific and the Caribbean. A prosperous Nicaragua will no doubt mean a quiet Nicaragua, for prosperity will mean roads, railroads, and other public improvements. A hungry man in Nicaragua is a prospective recruit for one of the bandit gangs. Banditry probably will cease when any man seeking work can get it and when every man can boast of the few dollars rattling around in his pocket.

Gold in small quantities has been produced in Nicaragua for hundreds of years. The richest mines are in the province of Chontales. This area is also bandit-infested, and the mines are a favorite field for bandit activities. The situation has prevented the installation of modern machinery or the development of the properties on a large scale.

The Babilonia mine at La Libertad has the distinction of having had a young mining engineer named Herbert Hoover connected at one time with its management. Here only the richest strikes are now worked, the ore being brought to the mill by pack mule. The Javall mine at Santo Domingo is worked on a larger scale and at considerable profit to its owners.

Putting a canal across Nicaragua is a matter of utilizing some geographic features and overcoming others. Of outstanding importance physically are the country's mountains and its two great fresh-water lakes in its central basin, "the Great Lakes of Central America."

Farms to Feed Our Factories of the Future

Industrial Use of Farm Products Is Great Hope

By L. F. LIVINGSTON
President, American Society of Agricultural Engineers, in an Address.

THE idea of the industrial use of farm crops as raw materials is not new. Years of scientific research are behind it, but the depression, from which we now seem to be emerging, has given it a prominence that makes it one of the major hopes of agriculture today. World changes in agriculture are tending to make nations more and more self-sustaining, which means that somehow we must broaden our markets at home. One way to do this is by cultivating on American soil those agricultural raw materials we now import. The other way is by finding new uses for our crops in our manufacturing industries. We are following both of these methods of development.

Soy beans furnish the almost perfect example. Introduced in this country over a century ago from China, they were first grown in the South. Acreage was limited, however, and the beans were fed mainly to hogs. Practically none of the American production went into industrial use, regardless of the fact that soy bean oil was being imported from China for use in the paint industry. Then research tackled the soy bean and a wholly different story may be told today.

Soy Bean Acreage Increased.

In 1935, almost 5,500,000 acres in 27 states were planted to soy beans alone, and an additional acreage was planted with corn and other crops for forage. This was an increase of one-third over 1934. Almost 21,000,000 pounds of American-produced soy bean oil was used by industry. About half of this went into the making of paint and varnish. The balance went into soaps, linoleum and oilcloth, printing inks, edible compounds, and various other industrial products, including automobiles. Gear shift knobs, engine distributor covers, ornamental door handles and other parts of automobiles are now being made out of soy bean meal.

Casein, a dairy by-product used widely in industry and particularly in the manufacture of certain grades of paper, is another example of what may be done with many farm-produced materials now imported. According to the United States bureau of dairy industry, two-thirds of the casein required by American factories in 1920 was obtained abroad. As late as 1929, about one-half was imported. However, in 1934, all but 4 per cent of our industrial needs were supplied by home producers, who, with chemical and engineering aid, found that what could be accomplished by the dairymen of the Argentine and elsewhere was not beyond the ingenuity of Americans.

American factories buy nine-tenths of all the tung oil China produces, although American-refined tung oil is superior. Southern farmers aiming at this market now have 250,000 acres in tung trees—it will require one million acres or more to fill the national demand. The American textile industry's annual imports of starch amount to hundreds of millions of pounds, and we are doing something about that too.

The Farm Chemurgic council estimates that 50,000,000 acres may be planted to industrial-use crops within the next ten years "if man sets himself to the task." The council estimates 8,000,000 new acres to provide wood pulp for paper and paper stock, a forecast that is based on the success of the experiments by Dr. Charles H. Herty with fast-growing southern pines.

Possibilities in South.

The South abounds in unexplored possibilities for new crops. In southern Florida they have found that coffee and cacao may be grown if sheltered by larger trees. Rubber from American-grown plants is still a possibility. Artificial temperature control, to protect plants like the tung tree from winter frosts, is gradually being developed to a practical stage, and what vistas that will open to southern growers only the future can tell.

No discussion of industrial-use crops can be complete without mentioning cotton. Through chemical conversion into cellulose its uses have become literally hundreds. Cotton seeds, once a waste, now have a value of over $200,000,000 in a cotton crop of $1,500,000,000. Cotton seed oil, the hulls, the linters, the meal and cake, all have become valuable materials. Coated fabrics such as "Fabrikoid" consume cotton by the millions of pounds. Cotton enters into the manufacture of cements for leather, textiles and paper; into water-proofing compositions, smokeless powder, gun cotton, blasting gelatin, coal mine explosives, into toilet articles, electric insulators, motion-picture film, golf balls and women's fingernail polish. The list is almost endless.

Landing Planes in Blinding Fog With Television

New Patent Claims to Flash View of Airport

WASHINGTON. — How television may eliminate many of the hazards of blind landings in even the densest fog and blackest night by figuratively providing the pilot with fog and night-piercing "eyes," is revealed in a United States patent granted to John Hays Hammond, Jr., noted for his inventions of navigational guide systems, and son of the famous mining engineer.

Bridging the fog-filled gap between plane and airport, radio waves travelling with the speed of light carry a picture of the landing field to the pilot, simultaneously with data of the exact position of his plane over it, the direction of his flight, his altitude, wind velocity and wind direction—all the data he needs for a safe landing.

How It Works.

The sending of the picture is accomplished with the aid of television which some experts say will be here on an every day basis within two to five years.

Here briefly is how the inventor's patented system does it:

As the airplane approaches the field, it sends out radio signals. These, or the roar of the plane's propellers, are picked up on the landing field by delicate direction finders, like those used by armies to detect and trace the position and direction of flight of enemy planes.

The direction finders, operating complicated mechanism, trace this information by means of a tiny light bulb, which moves over a photograph or facsimile of the airport and the surrounding landscape with its hills, river, forest, high chimneys and church steeples. At any instant the position of the light bulb on the facsimile indicates the exact position of a plane over the field while an arrow hooked up with the bulb points in the direction of flight

Picture Appears on Panel.

A television transmitter now televises the whole picture from the airport via radio waves to the pilot, together with the other data already mentioned. This picture appears before him on the television receiver attached to the instrument panel of the plane. The aviator, therefore, will always have in front of him a view of the landing field and the surrounding country with a bright spot of light indicating the position of his plane over the field, so that he can make a safe landing at night or in fog.

Inventor Hammond also contemplates the use of his television navigation guide in much the same manner to aid the movement of ships in and out of fog-blanketed harbors.

Soviet Scientists Transfuse Animal Blood Into Human Patients

MOSCOW, U. S. S. R.—Experiments in transfusion of blood from goats, bulls and hens into human patients are being carried on by a number of Soviet scientists. The object of these transfusions is not to replace blood lost in accident or disease, as in the case of transfusions of human blood, but to stimulate the body to greater activity in fighting off disease.

Stomach ulcer, certain forms of rheumatism, various forms of blood poisoning and chronic anemia are among the conditions which, it is claimed, may be helped by animal blood transfusion by the method of these Soviet scientists.

The blood from the animals is specially treated in order to make it safe for injection into the human patient's vein. In the case of the bull's blood, only the red cells are used, on the theory that the albumen of the blood plasma, rather than the red cells, is the part of the animal blood that would prove most incompatible with human blood and therefore most injurious.

This is the explanation given by Professor Galpern of the Dniepropetrovsk Medical institute, who is said to have been the first to make experimental transfusions of large doses of animal blood to men.

Further Details Follow.

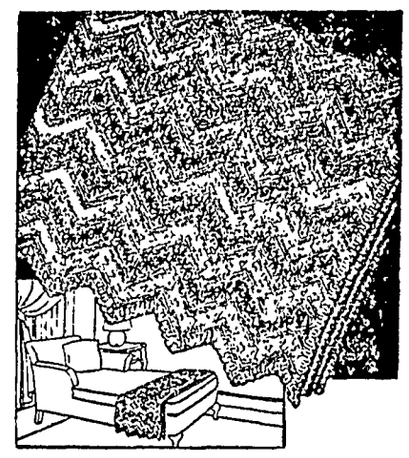
Doctor Bogdassarov explained the method in non-technical terms as follows:

"The idea of transfusion of animal blood to men in order to raise the activity of the organism in its struggle against the disease and to stimulate the increase of production of blood by the organism, belongs to the French scientists Cruchet, Cassimon and Ragot, who advanced this idea in 1928. However, this method of treatment found practically no development in the medical practice of Europe, while extensive research and practical work has been conducted in this field during recent years in the USSR.

"A year and a half ago, the Central Institute of Haemathology and Blood Transfusion in Moscow used for the first time goat's blood for transfusion in cases of ulcer of the stomach, chronic and semi-acute forms of rheumatism of the joints, various forms of sepsis, chronic anaemia, etc."

Crocheting an Afghan, Tomorrow's Heirloom

PATTERN 5254



What more conducive to "forty winks" than this fluffy, lacy afghan! Its crocheted warmth will ward off the most treacherous draughts, its color brighten and gladden any room it adorns. A very simple pattern to follow, too. The stripes look like tiny daisies strung together, and are in a crochet stitch which busy hands and needle soon learn to do by heart. Lovely in three shades of one color, it is also effective with each stripe a different color.

In pattern 5254 you will find directions for making the afghan; an illustration of it and of the stitches used; material requirements, and color suggestions.

Theater Employee Arranges to Appear on Stage After Death

He wanted to appear, after his death, on the stage of the theater where he came daily for half a century to direct the lighting. So in his will, John Reed, employed long ago as gas-lighter by the Walnut Street theater, left provisions for a Shakespearean role. He wanted to be the skull in "Hamlet."

"My head to be separated from my body immediately after my death," provided his will, "the latter to be buried in a grave, the former to be brought to the theater where I served all my life and to be employed to represent the skull of Yorick—and to this end I bequeath my head to the properties."—Philadelphia Public Ledger.

Stromer Is President

H. R. Stromer, president of the organization, was again honored by being re-elected as president and Otto Pringnitz was elected Vice-President. Walter Lemke was named as secretary and J. E Stille as treasurer. Other members of the board of directors are C. J. Wille, Joseph Schuldt and Emery Schaefer.

Business Was Good

Looking over the report as submitted it will be of interest to our readers to know that the local plant manufactured 667,432 pounds of butter. The creamery paid to the farmers of this community the large sum of $167,533.53 for butterfat.

Improvements Made

The plant was greatly improved and enlarged the past year by building a brick addition to the north side and the space thus gained was put to good use as a receiving and weighing room. Some new equipment was also installed to handle and grade the cream.

The new addition also provided more quarters for the secretary.

Goodell High Won Sectional Title

Shamrocks Lost To Goodell 41-14 In Semi-Finals

The Klemme high school Shamrocks entered the sectional tournament at Latimer last week end and after defeating the Popejoy school 70 to 5 in their first game, lost to Goodell 41 to 14 in the semi-finals Saturday afternoon.

The 70 points garnered in the Popejoy game was the largest total ever made by a Klemme team, while the 14 points made in the Goodell game was the smallest score the Shamrocks accumulated any game this year.

Goodell High School won the class B sectional championship by defeating Aplington 36 to 12 in the finals Saturday night. Hampton won the Class A championship These two teams will play in the district tournament at Sac City this week end.

Life Begins---

At Sixty-Five!

Cheer up, Grandpa, don't you cry!
You'll wear diamonds by and by
Uncle Sam has money mills
Made to grind out brand new bills.

He will help you in your cause
With his old age pension laws.
No more worry over bills,
Butchers' duns, or doctor pills.

No more panic over rent;
Leave all that to the Government.
Dine on squab and caviar,
Sport a streamline motor car.

When the blizzards bliz a bit,
Off to Palm Beach gaily flit.
Lead a life of pleasure bent,
But you must spend every cent!

Whoopee, Grandpa! Stay alive!
Life begins at sixty-five.

Troubador Concert Will Be Presented In Klemme April 6th

Mme Else Behlert Bauer, who has sung the lead in operas in such German cities as Hanover, Neuremberg, and Muich. will be featured as soprano soloist at the Troubador concert to be given at Klemme on April 6th at the Reformed Church Mme. Bauer has been directing the Troubadors of Mission House College of Plymouth, Wisconsin, for the past five years and is leading them this year in a concert of sacred and classical music.

Mme Baurer, born in Hanover, Germany, played children's roles on the stage at the age of twelve. At the age of seventeen she began her operatic studies, and at twenty-one made her initial apperance on the operatic stage. She sang in such operas as "Lohengrin," "Walkuhre" "Tannhauser" by Wagner, and "Aida" and "Carmen" by Verdi In addition to being an operatic star Mme Bauer has been featured as a concert soloist in Stuttgart, Hanover Zurich and other cities. She was especially noted for her interpretation of Greig and Brahms.

Since her arrival at Mission House College, Mme. Bauer has brought about a renaissance in musih in the school and community Besides being director of the Troubadors, she has directed a chorus of one hundred twenty-five voices in presentations of the "Messah" to large audiences.

She has also been invited to sing as guest soloist by various organizations such as the world champion American Legion band of Milwaukee.

Many Fish Dead At Crystal Lake

Crystal Lake.—The men hired to drill holes in the lake to let air into the water reported that when the holes were made, the dead fish soon came to the surface. This makes them believe a large number of fish have died during the severe winter. The oxygen was low at the time the drilling was started.

Dorance Grange Winner Of Local Spelling Contest

BRITT MAN IS CANDIDATE FOR OFFICE OF SHERIFF

Marius P. L. Juhl Was Interviewing Voters In Klemme Last Week

Marius P. L. Juhl, of Britt, has thrown his hat in the ring for the Sheriff's race in Hancock County on the Republican ticket.

Mr. Juhl has a wide acquaintance of the county and to many of our readers will need no introduction. Mr. Juhl was raised in the Miller community and was educated in the schools of Hancock County. A number of years ago he drove a Rawleigh wagon over the county and became well acquainted. In more recent years he had been farming and raising thoroughbred cattle and hogs. At the present time Mr. Juhl is a resident of Britt and is a Chevrolet salesman. He plans to make a thorough canvass of the county to personally meet the voters.

MEETING OF INTEREST TO FARMERS

A Swine Sanitation and Feeding meeting will be held at Garner Opera House on March 26, at 9:30 a m. J. W. Stouder and E. L. Quaife, specialist from Ames, will be present. A like meeting will be held at the Memorial Union at Britt the same day at 1:30 p. m.

Vagabonds Set Scoring Records

VAGABONDS DOWN ALEXANDER 84-34 TO SET NEW RECORD

Two records were broken at the local high school gym Monday night when the Klemme Vagabonds defeated the Alexander A C. 84 to 34 in a wild scoring battle. The high school team recently set a record for points made by a Klemme team when they defeated Popejoy 70 to 5. Monday night the Vagabonds racked up 84 points to completely shatter this newly set record. The other record was set by Kermit Koerner. It was Kermit's proud boast that in the 10 or more years he has played guard on Klemme basketball teams he has never scored more than seven points in any one game. Monday night he went into the game as a forward and dropped in 11 baskets for 22 points, which, by the way, lacked just three points of tying the floor record.

KILLING THE GOOSE

Mr Roosevelt wants to soak the rich. He urged in his message that levies be had on surpluses accumulated by industry. In this way he hopes to force "entrenched greed" to give up some of its surplus. Business is without confidence because industrial leaders never know from one day to the next how hard the New Dealers and brain trusters are going to hit them the next time.

Business leaders could not expand absorbing millions of unemployed workers, they had good reason to suspect that they would be required to assist in financing a continuation of the orgy of spending.

No nation can spend twice its income and hope to balance its budget without bearing down hard on the common people. Democratic leaders have said they opposed heavier taxes "until after the election." No intelligent taxpayer needs further proof of what is to be done to him after next November if the brain trusters remain in power.

A savant says we pay more for entertainment than for protection against cold, heat, disease, animals, criminals and pain. We gotcha, Professor—you've been visiting a night club.

—o o—

One of the stock queries of the Brain Trusters is "Do you want to go back to the cheap farm prices of 1932?" Of course we don't, but neither do the people of Canada, Argentine and Australia whose agricultural commodity prices have advanced during the past three years just as ours have.

—o o—

Dust storms have started again down in the Southwest and it seems to us that this is spoiling the season just a little.

—o o—

One effective way to help farmers would be to put a stop to the importation of farm products from outside countries. It is the height of foolishness to cut down on the amounts of grain grown on the American farms and then buy up the shortage thus created from foreign countries.

—o o—

Jim Farley's financial report is a perfect piece of work. If you are a voter, the postoffice has a surplus, but if you want two-cent postage, the deficit is enormous.

MUST CUT GOVERNMENT COST

If the nation is to endure as a world power, if we are to continue our high standard of living and if we are to advance as a people, we must cut Government cost in the future and conserve our resources. We cannot go on as we are going, scattering treasure to the four winds as we bulid up a bureaucracy never even approached before. Taxes are heavy now. The burden is nothing beside that we shall have to carry in the future.

Intelligent voters ought to be able to judge the future by the past and realize that their taxes will be far heavier under another Democratic Administration, if, indeed, we are to have four more years of the New Deal regime If Mr. Roosevelt is re-elected, the bureaucracy will continue, the machine still will be operated as the New Dealers look toward 1940, and we shall pay and pay and pay. The huge cost of government today is our greatest menace. and if we don't lower it somehow it will ruin us. —Sioux City Journal.

The Best Harness Made

That's the reason we sell the Boyt Harness. We know it is the best harness made.

It's by far the cheapest harness, too, when you consider service. It outwears ordinary harness two to one. Solid back leather, rustless bronze hardware and special Boyt construction have made the Boyt Harness the standard work harness of America.

If you pick out a harness because of the service it will give, you'll want the Boyt Harness. Come in and examine it. Judge for yourself.

Breathes And Messages

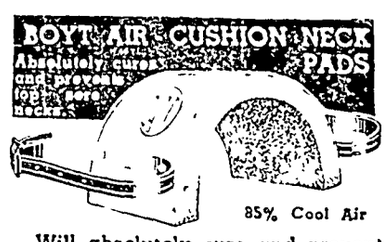
That's what farmers say who have tried out the new Boyt Air-Cushion Collars (They are not a penumatic collar)

You will see why they are the only collar that really breathes—that keep the shoulder and collar cooler and drier—that will correctly fit 95% of the horses and mules—that require no breaking in—that will stay soft and pliable—that will heal up a bad shoulder while horse is working—that needs no sweat pad.

Let Your Horses Decide!



Will absolutely cure and prevent sore necks. Made of new pure, live sponge rubber. Motion of collar causes constant air action, keeps the neck cool, clean and comfortable. Can be cleaned quickly or changed from one collar to another.

Democrats Endorse Roosevelt At Local County Convention

DEMOCRATIC CONVENTION HELD AT GARNER FRIDAY

Meeting called to order by W. A. Lee. Mr. A. C. Taylor chosen to act as temporary chairman and J. M Townsend chosen to act as temporary secretary. Moved by T. H. Thompson and second by Mike Gahan that the temporary committee be made permanent Motion carried Motion made by Mrs. Tillie Evans second by T. E. Beshey, that the roll call be made and that one from each township act on the nomination committee. Motion carried

Oscar Johnson our honorable representative, from this district gave a very interesting talk on state legislation, including his three point tax program.

Ben F. Greiman, our supervisor also gave a short talk.

Motion made by Oscar Johnson and seconded by Carl Roe that the chair appoint the resolution committee Motion carried

The resolution committee appointed by the chair read as follows Carl O. Roe. T. H. Thompson, A W Lee The report of the resolution committee is as follows:

Roosevelt's Endorsement

WHEREAS, four years ago the social, economic and financial structure of the United States and the state of Iowa was on a verge of complete collapse; agriculture was prostrate, thousands of banks were closed and others were closing daily home owners were faced with mortgage foreclosures and the loss of lifetime savings; men, women and children were on the verge of starvation, woe and misery were indescribable.

AND WHEREAS, today the nation throbs with a new prosperity, factories again hum with industry, agriculture once more florishes in the sunshine of hope, money can be invested with security or banked with safety The hungry have been and are being fed and clothed, useful occupations have replaced foreboding idleness, once more therre is light in the path of the average man and woman.

AND WHEREAS this great change in the nation dates back to the inauguration of President Roosevelt in 1933, and, in our opinion, is directly and solely the result of our great President's effort to bring about readjustment which favors all of our citizens, instead of a few.

THEREFORE, Be It Resolved, that we re-affirm our loyalty to President Franklin D. Roosevelt, who through his sympathetic idealism has steered the ship of state from troublesome into smooth waters, and that we re-dedicate ourselves to a continuation of the struggle waged in behalf of human right as against property rights since the time of Thomas Jefferson. Be it resolved that the delegates to the state convention be instructed to support President Franklin D. Roosevelt, and Vice President John H. Garner for renomination.

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED, that this democratic convention as the authorized spokesman for the Democratic party in Hancock county Iowa, place itself on record as being unalterably opposed to divided allegiances and that we condemn in no uncertain terms the efforts of enemies within and borers without, who would minimize the effort and nullify the progress made during the past three years.

WHEREAS, we are not unmindful of the stand our Governor took, and the support he and the state legislature gave the President in those troublesome times when mobs were gathering and refusing to allow sheriffs to hold foreclosed sales and even taking judges from the bench and threatening their lives. This was when the constitution was being threatened, that was the time something had to be done, and we believe when history is rightfully written, it will show the new deal saved our constitution, instead of, as our opponents say, attempted to wreck it.

WHEREAS, we acknowledge the loyal support of our Junior Senator Honorable Louis Murphy and his stand as 100 percent for Iowa and Iowans.

WHEREAS, we acknowledge the good work of our Representative Honorable O. E. Johnson and urge and recommend his re-election.

WHEREAS, we are not forgetting the good work of our County central committee in their work and and cooperation in the last campaign and the loyal support they received SLOGAN And remember the man that did not forget the forgotten man.

Moved by A. Katter and second by J M Townsend that the resolutions as read be approved. Motion carried.

Motion by A. W. Lee and second by Paul Loth, that the delegates present at the state convention have power to vote the 11 votes of our county. Motion carried.

Delegates selected to attend the state convention read as follows: Oscar Johnson, A. C. Taylor, Max Fuller Paul Loth. E. . Andregg, W. A. Lee T J Murray, C G. Stille, Victor Loebig, J.. C. Sheets, W. C. Kraus.

Alternates Joe Bonnstetter, Mrs. Edith Elling, Francis Cashman, B Gillett, Lester Stille, J. M. Townsend Crist Cook, Mrs Ruth Butts, Herman Bode, M. C. Gahan, Gus Akrow.

Delegates will attend the State convention at Des Moines on April 3rd

Motion madeby Carl O. Roe and second by A. L. Barker that these 11 delegates and alternates be accepted to act as delegates to the state convention. Motion carried.

Inter-Class Games Won By Graduating Cagers

SENIORS WON INTER-CLASS BASKETBALL TOURNAMENT

All-Stars Defeated Senior Team 27 to 19 In Fast Game

The annual inter-class basketball tournament was held at the high school last week Friday, with the junior class taking top honors.

In the first round the seniors met the sophomores and after a close first quarter, drew away to a good sized victory. Meanwhile the junior team was handing the freshmen a bad defeat.

Friday evening the Seniors and Juniors met and for three quarters the game was a real battle. In the final period the junior defense weakened and the Seniors won with ease. The sophomores beat the freshman aggregation to win consolation honors.

Saturday afternoon a team of All-stars was picked from the three lower grades, to play the Seniors. The All-Stars took a 27 to 19 victory, due mainly to the work of Ted Kaduce, who suddenly developed a spin shot which he used to good advantage under the basket.

NO MORE SCHOOL IN KLEMME ON SATURDAY

Here's a "break" and "hot news" for the kiddies! "No more school in Klemme this year on Saturday" is the decision handed down by the school board.

Part of the week's time lost because of bad weather and roads, has been made up by holding school on Sturday. The balance of the time will be worked into the regular course of study during the remainder of the school year.

Henry Runge Taking Vacation

Henry Runge has been missed from the Thada store, by his many friends the past few days and our inquiring reporter learns that Henry is taking a two weeks vacation. Mr. Runge has not been feeling well lately and a lay-off at this time was thought advisable.

BROADCAST GAMES

BASKETBALL OVER WOI

The state high school basketball tournament, Des Moines, March 26, 27 and 28, will be broadcast over WOI, Iowa State College radio station

"Andy," known to thousands of Iowans for his word picture of past tournaments, will be on hand for the sixth consecutive year to bring fans a "basket by basket" description of the games.

WOI listeners will hear the tournament Thursday from 9 50 a. m. to 12:15 p. m. and from 1.50 to 5 00 p. m.; Friday games will be broadcast from 2 20 to 4 30 p. m. and Saturday from 1:20 to 3 30 p. m.

FANNING MILL WILL LESSEN SMALL GRAIN DISEASES

Thorough fanning of wheat, oats and barley is important this year for two reasons, believes R. H. Porter, plant pathologist at Iowa State College. First, weed seeds can be removed; and second, diseasd kernels, frequently light in weight, can be removed.

Scab was extremely severe in 1935, Porter says, on all these small grains This disease has killed many seeds and in other cases it has lowered the vitality so much that weak plants will be produced in the field. Other diseases such as smut and barley stripe are prevalent this year.

Dust Helps

Tests made recently in the college seed laboratory show that New Improved Ceresan, applied at the rate of ½ ounce per bushel, should be highly beneficial in 1936. This dust prevents seedling blights of wheat, oats and barley and controls smuts of oats, stinking smuts of wheat, covered smut of barley and barley stripe. In most seasons it gives considerable increase in yield. The cost of treating small grain with new Improved Ceresan is less than 2 cents per bushel.

Formaldehyde may be used for controlling oat smuts, applied at the rate of 1 pound in 10 gallons of water sprinkled on 50 bushels. Formaldehyde should not be used on wheat, barley or hulless oats.

Copper carbonate, applied at the rate of 2 to 3 ounces per bushel, may be used on wheat for the control of stinking smut. This chemical does not, however, control seedling blights. It may also be used on hulless oats, barley, and sorghum seed

Entertained At Bridge

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Jacobs and Mr and Mrs. George Lawhorn entertained a number of friends at a bridge party at the Jacobs home Sunday evening. Bridge was played at eight tables and a delicious lunch was served after play. High score was won by Mr. and Mrs. P. M. Wilson, second high by Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Jorgenson, low by Mr. and Mrs. Carl Anderson, and travel prize by Mr. and Mrs. Jim Reed.

Quilting Bee

Mrs. Wes Schuldt was hostess to a number of ladies at a quilting bee and lunch at her home Wednesday afternoon.

Will Work For Roy Bachman

Clifford Montgomery has accepted a position with contractor Roy Bachman at Goodell and will work as a carpenter for him this season.

Past Matrons and Past Patrons Of Chapter Were Honored

At the regular meeting of the Eastern Star chapter at Garner last Friday evening, the meeting was followed by a party in honor of the Chapter's thirty-first anniversary Mrs. J. R. Mounce, Worthy Matron, gave a history of the chapter since its organization in 1905, and a list of the charter members Meetings were held at that time in a hall over the Farmers National Bank, and were held there until the present Temple was built in 1915.

All of the past Worthy Matrons and Patrons were presented and those who could not be present were represented by officers of the chapter.

A birthday cake with thirty-one candles represented the thirty-one years, and as each candle was lighted the year was announced and the Worthy Matron for that year honored.

Lunch was served in the dining room by the chapter officers in charge this year.

Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Jorgenson are the only persons from Klemme who have as yet served as Patron and Matron of the chapter.

IN MEMORIAM

In memory of our beloved mother Mrs. Wm. Lau, who departed this life one year ago, March 21, 1935.
Days of sadness oft come over us.
Tears of sadness often flow.
Love shall always keep you near us.
Tho you left us one year ago.
Never shall you be forgotten,
Never from our memories fade
Never from our memories linger.
Loving hearts shall always linger.
Around the grave where you are laid.
Sadly missed by all your children.

What Is The Constitution?

By RAYMOND PITCAIRN

National Chairman Sentinels of the Republic

It has become the fashion in recent weeks for certain public officials to say that the Constitution issue is fading from the current political picture.

They are wrong. No attempt to minimize its importance can alter the fact that the Constitution will remain a dominant issue so long as the American people are determined to resist all efforts to curtail their individual rights and privileges.

But the Constitution is far more than a political issue. It is more than a written code of fundamental law. It is the permanent expression of the American spirit—of the American Way of Life.

There are today—and there will continue to be—men, in public office and out, who don't approve of the American Way of Life. Charmed by modern European experiments, they would like to change our basic system of government by the people, to a form which places all political power in the hands of one or more officials.

The tragic evidences of lost liberties, threatened war and religious intolerance which spring from such dictatorships do not deter them. But the Constitution does. Therefore they would like us to forget about it—and its safeguards—for a while.

But we shouldn't forget. So long as the Constitution lives, our liberties are secure. If it falls, those liberties—and the American Way of Life—fall with it.

Eternal vigilance is still the price of liberty.

Kenneth Kluckholn Suffering From Infection In Eye

Kenneth Kluckholn is suffering from a painful injury which he received playing basketball last week. During a town team game Kenneth bumped his head against another player and received a deep cut over one eye. The injured eye was apparently getting along fine until Sunday when he had a severe pain which was caused by infection, so Kenneth was again under the care of a doctor.

GIVE THEM PLENTY ROPE AND THEY WILL HANG THEMSELVES!

Somebody went "hay-wire" Monday night and swiped about three hundred feet of "hay-rope" from the street in Klemme.

A rope barricade had been put up along the south side of the pavement on Main Street to prevent cars and trucks from attempting to park in the soft dirt. Evidently someone thought an easy way to accumulate rope would be merely to remove it from the standards along the street.

At any rate, since Monday night, the Town is short three hundred feet of nice, new rope and somebody has that much more on hand. "Give them plenty of rope and they will hang themselves," is an old saying, and if such is true somebody has plenty of rope for the purpose.

DISINHERITED?

By RAYMOND PITCAIRN

National Chairman Sentinels of the Republic

Through successive generations the American people have continued to receive one of the richest heritages in all history.

Freedom of speech and of opportunity . . . the right to a decisive voice in the greatest government on earth . . . a national spirit of courage and self-reliance . . . public wealth beyond the dreams of Croesus—

These are but a few of the treasures won in the blood and the sweat of hard-working, hard-fisted pioneers and left to us as a natural birthright.

How are we preserving that heritage? What is America doing to maintain or increase for posterity the things our fathers won for us? What will this generation leave to those who follow?

Today the list seems discouraging. Its items would include:

A burden of national debt which, as this is written, exceeds $31,000,000,000—instead of an increasing national wealth.

The threat of a new, alien philosophy of dependence and fear—instead of the spirit that sent Daniel Boone into the wilds of Kentucky and whole families over the hardships of the Oregon Trail.

A glorification of the economic goose-step—instead of the bold, free tread that could carry youth to whatever heights its strength and ability permitted.

No wonder, as it regards this prospect, youth in America feels disinherited. No wonder thousands of older citizens, remembering the opportunities of their own youth, are protesting against a philosophy which robs their sons of similar freedom. No wonder the true descendants of the American pioneer are insisting that personal liberty and personal opportunity must be preserved in this country.

Thousands of our ancestors fought and died to win for us those liberties and opportunities. Thousands more fought to preserve them. The newer generations have a right to enjoy the heritage. We cannot let them down.

STATE BASKETBALL CHAMPION TO BE DECIDED THIS WEEK

Drake Fieldhouse at Des Moines will be the scene of great excitement starting Thursday morning, and winding up Saturday night. Athletes from all over the state will be there for perhaps the most strenuous basketball competition in years.

Pairings for the state tourney are as follows:

Upper Bracket

Bronson (b) vs. Williamson (b)
Davenport (a) vs. Webster City (a)
Logan (a) vs. Van Meter (b)
Mason City (a) vs. Quasqueton (b)

Lower Bracket

Ames (a) vs. Wellsburg (b)
Creston (a) vs. West Waterboo (a)
Diagonal (b) vs Sharon (b)
Maloy (b) vs. Ottumwa (a)

On account of the intense interest in this year's contest, in which boys from small town schools have shown unusuall promise, nine complete games and th second half of three others will be broadcast play by play from the floor, over KSO (1430 on the dial), and WMT (600 on the dial).

The broadcasts will be as follows: Thursday, 10 a. m., Bronson vs. Williamson; 2:00 p. m., Logan vs. Van Meter; 3:10 p. m., Mason City vs. Quasqueton; 8:30 p. m., (last half of 8:10 game), Diagonal vs. Sharon; 9:20 p. m., Maloy vs. Ottumwa.

DOUBLE TEST OF SEED CORN IS RECOMMENDED

"Make a double test of seed corn this spring."

That is the advice of H. D. Hughes, head of farm crops at Iowa State College, who suggests that corn should not be discarded for seed if the first test does not show satisfactory germination. The seed may be entirely satisfactory, but the test may have been poorly executed.

Good seed corn is scarce this spring and no one can afford to let go of seed and begin again the search—with the possibility of getting something not as good. On the other hand, no farmer can take risks with poor seed, making it doubly important to test seed corn a second time.

Corn that was tested in December and found to have high enough germination to save for planting may be wholly unfit for seed now, due to the unusually low temperatures of January and February.

NEW GROCERY SYSTEM WILL BE FOUND AT DAY'S STORE

John Day has disposed of all of his dry goods, shoes, etc. and is rearranging the store for groceries. The grocery stock has all been moved to the front of the building. The new system of selling groceries will be a "self-serve", whereby the customer makes the rounds of the store selecting from the shelves and counters the articles needed. The counters are arranged in a hollow square for both display purposes for checking, wrapping and weighing, etc.

Sees A Cardinal

Shirley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. P. W. Johnson, reports that she saw a cardinal last Thursday. It is quite a treat to see a cardinal in this part of Iowa, as the bird seems to be quite rare here.

Situation in Europe Is Still Threatening

SIXTY thousand German troops in the Rhineland that was supposed to be demilitarized. Practically the entire French army in and behind the vast system of fortifications along France's eastern frontier. The French government, backed by the other signers of the violated Locarno treaty and by the little entente, Poland and Russia, demanding that Germany withdraw her troops from the Rhineland or that sanctions, economic and possibly military, be imposed by the League of Nations. Great Britain trying hard to keep the peace, reproving Germany, supporting the French demands in great measure, but urging that Hitler's proposal of new non-aggression pacts be given consideration. Reichsfuehrer Hitler reviewing his forces in the re-occupied territory and receiving the loud plaudits of the inhabitants for restoring their military sovereignty.

M. Flandin

That in a nutshell was the perilous situation in Europe as the representatives of the Locarno nations and the council of the league assembled in London to consider what to do next. Foreign Minister Pierre-Etienne Flandin of France was there with the full support of Premier Sarraut for his demands that immediate action be taken to bring Hitler to time.

The Franco-Russian treaty came up in the French senate and was ratified by a huge majority. It is this pact that Hitler gave as his excuse for re-militarizing the Rhineland, asserting that it was a violation of the Locarno treaty, being aimed at Germany. It is the final link in the "iron ring" around the reich.

Great Britain, France, Belgium and Italy, signers of the Locarno treaty, agreed that Germany had violated that pact and the Versailles treaty and referred the matter to the council of the league. But Britain, still striving to find the peaceful way out of the row, was averse to the immediate imposition of sanctions, and naturally Italy, herself suffering from that form of punishment, felt the same way. Foreign Secretary Eden of England continued his efforts to persuade Hitler to withdraw the troops from the Rhineland pending discussions, and urged upon Flandin the advisability of considering the German chancellor's proposals for a 25-year peace pact.

Co-operating with the British for peace, the league council invited Hitler to send a representative to its meeting. His reply was considered "unsatisfactory" by the British and enraged the French. He said, in effect, that he would send a representative to the council's deliberations only on condition that the other powers meet it there on a basis of full equality and promptly consider new treaty negotiations to replace the Locarno pact.

French Premier Sarraut and his cabinet, according to officials in Paris, at once instructed Flandin to fight to the bitter end for the punishment of Germany, deciding that it would be better to take such a stand, even if it "wrecks the league," rather than bargain away "the nation's just right" by accepting Hitler's proposals for a new Locarno. Sarraut was reported to be ready even to quit the league, taking France's allies with him, if the council did not accede to his demands.

Germany's "army day" celebration was much quieter in the Rhineland than had been planned, owing to the tense situation. Troops at Frankfort were inspected by War Minister Werner von Blomberg and there was a speech by Hitler; but the military parades and other features were canceled. Elsewhere in the reich the day was duly observed, but the feeling of anxiety was general and unconcealed.

The Frankfurter Zeitung, which like all German newspapers is under close government supervision, published a warning that Germany may repudiate her foreign debts if she is penalized for the rearmament of the Rhineland.

New York's Building Service Strike Ends

COMPROMISE brought to an end the two weeks' strike of building service workers in New York and thousands of elevator operators and other employees returned to their jobs in some 2,400 apartment houses and business structures. The settlement provided for immediate re-employment of all strikers and arbitration of wages and hours, and it was hailed as a "great victory" by James J. Bambrick, head of the local union and leader in the strike.

Arbitration of minimum wages and maximum hours under supervision of Ferdinand A. Silcox, chief of the United States forestry service. Wages and hours are to be fixed at the end of each of the next three years on the basis of prevailing economic conditions.

In signing a three year contract with the realty advisory board, representing the employers, union leaders abandoned their demand for a closed or preferential shop. Building operators, in their turn, agreed to reinstate all strikers instead of insisting on the retention of 15 per cent of the replacement workers hired during the strike.

Prince Serge Mdivani Killed by Polo Pony

PRINCE SERGE MDIVANI, one of the more or less famous brothers from the Russian province of Georgia who have married so many American heiresses and movie actresses, was killed by the kick of a polo pony at Delray Beach, Fla., during a game with Cecil Smith's Texan team. Only five weeks before the prince became the husband of Louise Astor Van Alen, and she and her mother witnessed the fatal accident. Serge was divorced by Pola Negri and Mary McCormic, and then married Miss Van Alen, who had divorced his brother Alexis. The latter was killed some months ago in a motor accident in Spain shortly after his marriage to Barbara Hutton had ended in divorce. The third of the brothers is Prince David, former husband of Mae Murray.

Leftist Riots in Spain Arouse the Army

SINCE the recent elections in Spain the riots staged by the leftists have been growing more vicious daily, and after disorders at Logrono in which a number of persons were killed the Spanish army was aroused to vigorous protest. Premier Manuel Azana was told by the officers that unless his new left government adopted measures to stop the widespread violence the army would take the maintenance of order into its own hands. Gen. Carlos Masquelet, minister of war, was said to be in sympathy with the army's demand.

Manuel Azana

Azana held a heated conference with Francisco Largo Caballero, president of the Socialist party and is said to have told him that he believed revolutionary Socialists were responsible for most of the disorders, demanding that the violence cease immediately. Largo insisted that the Socialists be permitted to demonstrate, but finally gave in to the premier and issued orders to all Socialists to behave themselves.

Despite strict censorship imposed by the governor of Logrono it was learned that incendiaries there set fire to six convents and churches, four rightest centers and a rightest newspaper, and then attacked the army barracks, attempting to seize artillery.

Destruction by Floods in Eastern States

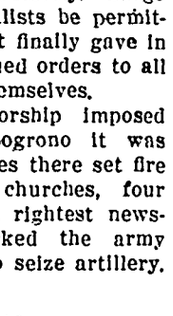
SPRING thaws and heavy rains created a serious condition throughout the northeastern states and as far southward as Pennsylvania and New Jersey, and in the Maritime provinces of Canada. The number of reported deaths was not great but many cities and towns were threatened by great ice packs that were swept down the swollen rivers, and vast areas of the countryside were under water. Textile mills and other industrial plants were forced to close down and railway traffic was handicapped.

Britain Names Inskip to Co-Ordinate Defense

PROCEEDING with its great rearmament program, the British government has named Sir Thomas Inskip, attorney general since 1932, to be the co-ordinator of the entire scheme, giving him a newly created cabinet post. This selection by Prime Minister Baldwin was a surprise. It had been thought the place might go to Winston Churchill, Neville Chamberlain, Alfred Duff Cooper or Sir Samuel Hoare.



Sir Thomas Inskip

Sir Thomas is known as an "anti-jingoist," is sixty years old and always is calm and unruffled in the house of commons or at the bar. It will be his duty as defense co-ordinating minister to synchronize activities of the army, navy, and air services.

Cummings Is Winner in Dispute With Ickes

IN UPHOLDING the conviction of Leonard Walter McIntosh, chief clerk of the department of public works of the Virgin Islands, on a minor theft charge the federal circuit court of appeals at Philadelphia ruled that the federal department of justice has complete control over the district court and the government attorney of the islands. This was a victory for Attorney General Cummings over Secretary of the Interior Ickes, for the latter's department, using the suit as a test case to determine control of the civil affairs of the Virgin Islands, had asked that the conviction of McIntosh be set aside as unjustified.

Newton Jenkins, Chicago, Out for Presidency

NEWTON JENKINS of Chicago, who as an independent candidate for the mayoralty of that city last April, received 11 per cent of the votes cast, has announced that he is a candidate for President of the United States.

"The Third party will nominate a President," he said in a mimeographed statement sent to the newspapers. "I am a candidate for that nomination."

The "Third party" to which he referred is an organization which he had incorporated last year. It has candidates for two municipal offices.

Legal Measures to Stop Seizures of Telegrams

CHIEF JUSTICE ALFRED A. WHEAT of the District of Columbia Supreme court checked the telegram-seizing activities of the Black senate committee on lobbying. He granted the Chicago law firm of Silas H. Strawn an injunction restraining the Western Union Telegraph company from giving the committee copies of the firm's telegrams.

The judge said the subpoena served on the telegraph company by the committee, calling for copies of telegrams "goes way beyond" the committee's powers.

Next day William Randolph Hearst, newspaper publisher, began a fight in court to keep an original confidential telegram out of the hands of the Black committee; and the American Newspaper Publishers' association denounced the reported seizure of that telegram, which was to one of Mr. Hearst's editors. The association advised any other editor, should he learn of similar action, to consult counsel and "take vigorous steps to protect his constitutional rights."

Franco Makes Paraguay Totalitarian State

COL. RAFAEL FRANCO, who became provisional president of Paraguay after the recent revolution there, has set up a totalitarian government modeled after German Nazism and Italian Fascism. He issued a decree which declared the state and the "liberating revolution" of February 17 as indivisible and banned for one year political, labor, or other unions which "do not emanate explicitly from the state."

Rafael Franco

Paraguay, the government asserted, will be purged of "endemic, demagogic, industrial, and sectarian evils." The official statement places in the "liberating army" the principal source of authority.

The aims of the new government, the decree said, will be the construction of a new, strong Paraguay and constitutional reorganization for a future republic.

Franco's government was formally recognized at Asuncion by diplomatic representatives of the United States, Chile, Brazil, Argentina, Peru, Uruguay, Great Britain, France, Germany and Spain.

Death of Earl Beatty, British Navy Figure

EARL BEATTY, commander of the British war fleet in 1916-18 and afterward first lord of the admiralty, died in London after a long illness at the age of sixty-five. Rising from a sick-bed to attend the funeral of Earl Jellicoe last November, he predicted that he would soon follow his colleague. Lord Beatty had a meteoric career as a naval commander and displayed his ability in the battles of Heligoland Bight and Dogger Bank, and especially in the battle of Jutland where he commanded the first battle cruiser squadron. His wife, who died in 1932, was Ethel Field, daughter of the Chicago merchant prince, Marshall Field.

Davis Sent to Europe to Study Conditions

CHESTER C. DAVIS, head of the invalidated AAA, is not going to administer the soil conservation program devised as a substitute. President Roosevelt announced that Mr. Davis would leave soon on a trip to Europe to make a special study for the government of economic conditions bearing on the agricultural plans for this country. Critics of the administration immediately assumed that Mr. Davis and Secretary of Agriculture Wallace had disagreed and that the former was being gently edged out of the picture. This Mr. Wallace warmly denied, asserting there had been no friction.

England's Bachelor King Hints He May Marry

GREAT BRITAIN is interested and pleased to learn that King Edward VIII may abandon his state of bachelorhood and take unto himself a wife. This was revealed when the king authorized these lines in the message submitting the civil list to the house of commons: "His majesty desires that the contingency of his marriage should be taken into account so that, in that event, there should be a provision for her majesty."

Five princesses of Europe are considered most eligible to become Edward's spouse. These are Irene and Catherine of Greece (whose ancestry is Danish), Juliana of the Netherlands, Eugenia of Greece, and Kyre of Russia, daughter of Grand Duke Cyril of Russia who is pretender to the Russian throne.

Killing Condemned Convicts With Gas in North Carolina

Hydrocyanic Acid Does Job by Internal Asphyxia

WASHINGTON. — "Internal asphyxia," or suffocation of the tissues is what occurs in death by hydrocyanic acid gas, the method of execution of criminals recently adopted by North Carolina and also used in western states.

The body, however, is not deprived of air as in ordinary suffocation, say by strangling. There is plenty of oxygen in the blood of a person poisoned by hydrocyanic acid. But the protoplasm—the essential material of living cells—cannot absorb the oxygen that is available. The process by which the body tissues utilize oxygen is a process of fermentation, just as is wine-making, for example. The theory is that in cyanide poisoning, the cyanide in some way interferes with this fermentation process.

Cyanide poisons the central nervous system, first stimulating it and producing convulsions and then causing paralysis. Paralysis of the breathing center in the nervous system is the immediate cause of death. So persons poisoned by hydrocyanic acid stop breathing several minutes before their hearts stop beating.

Poison Acts Rapidly.

Hydrocyanic acid is a very rapidly acting poison, but the speed with which it causes death depends on the amount of the poison taken into the body. Scientists studying its effects on animals in order to determine the fatal dose take into account not only the amount of the poison but also the weight of the animal. In the case of executions by hydrocyanic acid gas, the size of the room or death chamber would affect the speed of its action.

In the shortest case on record, the patient became unconscious in 10 second, and died from two to five minutes later, after some convulsions. This type of cyanide poisoning is known as the apoplectic type. Ordinarily in poisoning by hydrocyanic acid, several minutes elapse before any effect is noticed and death occurs between 15 minutes and an hour after the poison reaches the body. In one case of execution by this gas, the man became unconscious within one minute but the heart continued to beat for 10 minutes.

By giving a sufficiently large dose of the gas it would be possible to kill a man within a second or two, but practically this would not be possible with safety to the executioner and observers.

Blast Old Idea That Caesar Was Born by Caesarean Operation

TORONTO. — Julius Caesar, contrary to widespread belief, was not born by means of a Caesarean operation. Neither did he have anything to do with enactment of the old Roman law that forbade burial of a woman who died in pregnancy before the body of the unborn child had been removed by surgery.

The old myth about Caesar and his birth is exploded by Dr. John Harold Couch of Toronto General hospital here and Herbert Newell Couch, assistant professor of Greek at Brown university, Providence, R. I.

Reason for Belief.

A reason for the persistent linking of Caesar's name with the operation is given by the Couches in a report to the Journal of the Canadian Medical Association. The reason is quite the reverse of the traditional belief. Instead of the operation being named for Caesar, Julius Caesar's family probably got their name from it. The Couches explain it as follows:

"It is altogether probable that some distant ancestor of his was born by means of a Caesarean operation, performed on a dead mother, and the cognomen of Caesar, which is derived from the verb caedo, to cut, was attached to the newborn child for that reason. Another Roman family, bearing the name Caeso, may have derived their cognomen from the same cause. Such a method of assigning names would be entirely in harmony with the early Roman traditions. In fact, Pliny is the authority for this assumption, for in his Natural History he remarks that certain people were born by an incision of the mother and that 'the first of the Caesars' was said to have been born in this manner."

The Early Caesars.

Further evidence of the inaccuracy of the old tradition about Julius Caesar's birth is cited by the Couches.

"Not until long after the days of Julius Caesar was the Caesarean operation successfully performed on living women, and it is a matter of historical record that Julius Caesar's mother, Julia, lived for many years after his birth."

'Phooey!' Gives Way to 'Um-m-m!' in Medicines

New Drugs Will Have More Pleasant Taste

PHILADELPHIA. — Better-tasting medicines will apparently be one result of changes in the National Formulary, which might be called an official recipe book for pharmacists. The changes embodied in the sixth revision of this volume which becomes official on June 1, 1936, were explained by Dr. Adley B. Nichols, secretary of the National Formulary committee on revision, at a conference at the Philadelphia College of Pharmacy and Science.

The National Formulary—known as N. F. for short—is a companion to that other legal standard for drugs in the United States, the United States Pharmacopoeia. The latter includes drugs and remedies of proven efficacy, regardless of whether they are widely used or seldom used. Products are included in the N. F., on the other hand, on the basis of how generally they are used, Doctor Nichols pointed out.

321 Items Dropped.

In the present revision 321 items were dropped from the book because survey of over a hundred thousand prescriptions, collected from all parts of the country, showed that these items were not used in actual practice. A total of 233 new items were admitted.

Six glandular products were admitted, namely corpus luteum, ovary, ovarian residue, anterior pituitary, whole pituitary and superarenal.

Salty-tasting medicines such as the bromides should taste better because syrup of raspberry is the official "vehicle" for these preparations. The resulting effect is like adding a pinch of salt to bring out the flavor of the syrup.

Syrup of acacia is another new vehicle which makes disagreeable medicines pleasant to take because the colloidal action of the acacia keeps the medicine from coming in contact with the taste buds on the tongue.

Praise Cherry Flavor.

Syrup of cherry is another new addition which has been widely acclaimed.

"Its specific value lies in its fruity tartness which makes it a delightful mask for sour products such as the diluted acids, where the acid almost enhances the taste rather than destroys it," Doctor Nichols says.

For a change, pharmacists are advised to use syrup of thyme which has "a markedly different taste."

A valuable feature of the new N. F. is the addition of many dental products. Among these is aromatized sodium perborate. Because this is now so widely used by laymen without specific directions from a dentist, pharmacists are advised to caution customers about its promiscuous use.

"It has been the cause of severe mouth burns when used as a powder which lodges in cavities and eventually hydrolizes to sodium hydroxide."

Onions' 'Breath' Measured to Find Its Strength by Cornell U. Scientist

ITHACA, N. Y.—Onions can now have the strength of their "breath" measured.

Stated in slightly more technical terms, a definitely quantitative measurement can be made of their pungency, by a new distillation process devised by Hans Platenius, a young research scientist at Cornell university. Mr. Platenius' technique is no mere chemical stunt, either: anyone who has ever bought or sold onions in quantity knows that strength or mildness in onions is reflected in cold cash on the hard cobblestones of the produce marketplace.

The Cornell onion-"breath" measuring system is based on the fact that the pungency of an onion depends on a sulphur-containing oil. There is very little of this in an onion. One mass analysis some years ago used up more than five tons of onions and yielded less than 1 pound of the oil. But it goes a long way.

The oil, which is known chemically as allyl-propyl-disulphide, contains about 43 per cent of sulphur by weight. Hence, any method which will measure the amount of sulphur that can be evaporated out of a given lot of onions should give an indirect measurement of the quantity of the oniony oil present, and hence of the strength of the onions' "breath."

Sport of Persian Kings and Ladies Was Polo

WASHINGTON.—Polo was sport of kings in Persia over three hundred years ago. Popularity of the fast riding game spread through Asia from Japan to Baghdad, and even veiled ladies had their own sprightly polo matches on the field.

This romantic old chapter in sport history is revived through addition of two polo scenes in Persian miniature painting to Oriental collections in the Freer gallery of art of the Smithsonian institution.

The beautifully colored paintings illustrated a Persian manuscript poetically treating of "The Ball and Mallet."

Verse accompanying the pictures admiringly describes the King Muhammed playing polo on a scale not merely royal but god-like.

Model of the 200-Inch Telescope

After a long period of study, the design of the 200-inch telescope and dome of the California Institute of Technology has reached a point where preliminary sketches have been completed. The tube of the telescope, about 20 feet in diameter and 60 feet long, will weigh about 125 tons. This includes the 200-inch mirror, lying on a special support system at the lower end of the tube. It is estimated that five years will be required to complete this great telescope which will gather and focus light that started out from distant stars millions of years ago.

SOME BIG SALARIES

As provided by the revenue act of 1934, the Treasury Department has recently issued a report giving the names of persons drawing salaries of more than $15,000 a year, of which there are some 18,000. A few of the highest salaried ones are listed as follows:

William Randolph Hearst heads the list with $500,000, while Mae West drew $340,000, and Walter Gifford, president of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, received $210,000.

Nor more movie stars received a salary approaching that of Miss West, but some of them did very nicely. Bing Crosby received close to $200,000, Constance Bennett drew $176,000, W. C. Fields was paid $155,000, Marlene Dietrich got $145,000, and Gary Cooper received nearly $110,000

Walt Disney of Mickey Mouse fame is listed as drawing only $51,000 salary in 1934, but his returns from royalties probably netted him a very large sum in addition.

Col. Frank Knox, publisher of the Chicago Daily News, who is an avowed candidate for the Republican presidential nomination, would just break even if he should happen to be elected, as he now receives $75,000 a year as salary.

Perhaps the highest paid person in the United State for several years has been George W. Hill, president of the American Tobacco Company, whose salaries and bonuses combined ran beween $600,000 and more than a million dollars annually.

The question naturally arises as to whether any man is really worth that much money, but Mr. Hill's stockholders and directors seem to think so, and his company has made large profits all during the depression.

BETTER GET MARRIED

If statistics recently compiled by Dr. William F. Ogburn of the University of Chicago are to be accepted as accurate, those who desire to retain wealth, sanity, and even life itself, should get married if they are not already that way.

He declared that most of the inmates of poorhouses and insane asylums are unmarried; also that the death rate for single men and widowers is twice as high as that for married men.

It has often been asserted that married men live longer, but a cynic once declared that this was not literally true, as "it only seemed longer." However, Dr. Ogburn's researches seem to bear out the idea that married life is really conducive to longevity.

To be on the safe side, therefore, a young fellow had better get married; provided, of course, he can find someone who is willing to ssume he role of party of the second part—or maybe it's the first part.

INTERSTELLAR FIGURES

Astronomers use baffling figures, when they calculate that light travels 569,160,000 miles an hour. We try to compare that with our 45 miles in hour in an automobile, and we still can't comprehend it

A recent computation by the Washington Evening Star puts the astronomers to shame. It showed that on March 31, 1917, the federal debt was $1,282,044,346; on March 3, 1933, it had risen to $20,937,350,961, because of the war-hangover; on March [illegible], 1936, it was $31,859,000,000. There just isn't anything we can compare that with to make it intelligible.

—o o—

Walter Johnson is reported to have thrown a silver dollar across the Rappahannock River at Fredericksburg, Va., the other day. That's nothing. From Washington the brain trusters can throw dollars all over the United States.

—o o—

We, for one, can hardly drink a cup of coffee any more for fear that in buying it we are giving still another crooner a chance.

AMERICA'S BIGGEST BILL

Talking about the fact that the United States government is heading toward a $35,000,000,000 debt doesn't mean much to most of us. The figures are too big for us to understand, and besides its sort of like saying our neighbor is up to his neck in debt.

But some comparisons just developed by the United States News, a newspaper published in the nation's capital, bring the facts home to us in an intelligible way.

For example, the News shows that the 125,000,000 people in the nation spend $2,000,000,000 a year for light and power, $6,000,000,000 for clothing, 10 billion for rent and $11,000,000,000 for food. And for taxes to operate federal, state and local governmnts, the News finds they spend $12,000,000,000, making that the nation's biggest bill.

Going a little farther than the News went, we find some equally surprising facts. For every man, woman and child in the country, somebody spends an average of $15 a year for light and power; $40 for clothing; $80 for rent and$92 for food. But the tax cost per person is $96.

Take the average family—father, mother, son, daughter. Each day that family contributes $1.05 in taxes while it spends only $1.00 for food, 87 cents for rent and 45 cents for clothing. That, of course, is only an average. The man who is unfortunate enough to own his own home or an automobile or anything—literally anything, for everything nowadays bears a tax—has a much heavier load.

The figures would be much more astonishing if governments would only pay as they go. They are, instead, borrowing and piling up a debt that will have to be paid by taxes in the future.

When that day comes ,35 per cent of the national income will go to governments. Isn't it about time to call a halt?

—o o—

WHAT ARE THEY WORTH

Occasionally one hears talk about the "tremendous" salaries paid to executives of private businesses. In the first place, it should be remembered that after they pay federal, state, city, county, and other taxes, their net is far, far below what it seems.

Secondly, their salaries should be considered in relation to the job they do—in other words, in relation to the income they succeed in getting for the businesses they run.

Taxes, as an illustration, would leave a resident of New York only $87,250 out of a $200,000 salary, only $56,000 out of a $75,000 salary.

And figures show that executives received only 2.3 percent of the receipts of corporations in 1933. Their percentage was higher in that year, one of the leanest, than in better times. But wouldn't it seem that a man who made $1,000 for his stockholders was entitled to $23? If he doesn't produce, the stockholders can kick him out. If he does, his stockholders decide what he is worth.

Which certainly isn't true in politics. The politicians get a fixed salary regardless of whether they do good, bad, or ndifferent jobs.

—o o—

HIS ONE OVERSIGHT

This is the story of a prudent man, as told by a Kansas newspaper:

He brushed his teeth twice a day, wore rubbers in wet weather, did his daily dozen, slept with his windows open, was careful with his diet, had a medical examination twice a year, never smoked drank or indulged in any kind of excesses. He was all set to live to be 100 years old.

The funeral was held last Wednesday. He is survived by 18 specialists, four health institutes, six gymnasiums and numerous manufacturers of health foods and antiseptics.

He had forgotten to look out for a train at a grade crossing.

—o o—

The Iowa pioneers lived pretty hard lives. They had no fountain pens to leak on their fingers, No telephones to ring while they were taking baths. No automobiles to get flat tires and run out of gas. No radios to burn out tubes or be overcome by static. No brush salesmen to ring their doorbells. And no newspapers to make them mad. It took real men to stand up under such hardships.

Congressmen "Under Age"

There are five known cases where congressmen—three senators and two representatives—were seated although slightly under age. Henry Clay, of Kentucky, was seated in the senate in 1806 at the age of twenty-nine years seven months; Armistead T. Mason, of Virginia, in 1816 at the age of twenty-eight years five months; and John H. Eaton, of Tennessee, in 1818 at the age of twenty-eight years four months. Apparently no question was raised concerning their eligibility, of which the senate itself is the sole judge. William C. C. Clairborne, of Tennessee, was seated in the house in 1797 before he had reached the prescribed age of twenty-five, but it seems that no question was raised in this case. John Y Brown, of Kentucky, was elected for the term of 1859-61, but did not take his seat in the house until after his twenty-fifth birthday, although he missed one session of congress by so doing.—Pathfinder Magazine.

A Charming Needlecraft Picture to Embroider

PATTERN 5297

The old-time well—the bucket hanging there, just waiting to be embroidered in its natural setting. And what a lovely and colorful wall-hanging you'll have when finished! You can use as many bright threads as fancy dictates when you begin to "paint" the old-fashioned garden in lazy-daisy, French knots, running and single stitch. And you needn't frame the panel—just line it, and hang it up.

Washington Digest

National Topics Interpreted By WILLIAM BRUCKART

NATIONAL PRESS BLDG. WASHINGTON, D. C.

Washington. — Overshadowing all else in the national capital at this writing is the controversy that is boiling and surging around the head of Alabama's Democratic Senator Black, who is the chairman of the senate's lobby investigating committee. As an offshoot of this controversy, the federal communications commission is in water much too hot for bathing and it begins to appear that when the steam blows off the communications commission is likely to be a thoroughly discredited federal agency because of the part it played in Senator Black's unprecedented seizure of private telegrams from the Western Union and Postal Telegraph companies.

Need Curb on Inquiries

Speaking generally, it has been seldom that a United States senator has ever attempted to assert the authority that Senator Black has used and it is equally unprecedented that a federal agency has gone to the extremes that characterized the action of the communications commission in connection with the seizure of the messages.

But some good may come from the police court prosecution tactics employed by Senator Black and some good may come from the accusations leveled at the communications commission because that body helped Senator Black carry out his plans.

The country-wide indignation that has arisen from Senator Black's usurpation of power has brought to the front a question that needs public attention and needs it badly.

I refer, in this connection, to the steadily expanding efforts of congressional investigators, especially senatorial investigators, to take over, as their own, powers that always have been regarded as reserved exclusively to the courts. The consensus among Washington observers certainly is that the legislative inquiries have developed to a point where the most humble requirements of justice have been and are being completely ignored. Whether they are so intended, these inquiries, and this includes investigations conducted by committees not only of congress but of state legislators and even city councils, are approaching the point where they are almost tyrannical.

It goes without saying, then, that the time has arrived for citizens to assert themselves. These inquiries will not proceed when the elected legislators, state or national, learn that the people do not approve of such high-handed tactics.

Black's Activities

In order to have an understanding of the latest of these escapades, it is necessary to review briefly what has happened in the case of the senate lobby investigating committee. Almost a year ago the committee sought the aid of the federal communications commission which had the color of authority in law for investigating the business of the telegraph companies. Senator Black issued a broad subpoena, directing the telegraph companies to make available any and all messages his committee desired. Communications commission agents then went into the telegraph company files, read everything they could find and made copies of all of the messages which those agents, under guidance of Black investigators, thought would be helpful to the Black committee in exposing operations of private individuals.

The purpose of this, as outlined by Senator Black, was to locate clues to the machinations of business interests who were seeking passage or defeat for legislation pending in congress. The Alabama senator wanted to "show up" lobbyists. He contended and has maintained consistently that "these malefactors of great wealth" could not accomplish any influence in congress unless it were done secretly and "in the dark."

In other words, Senator Black persuaded members of the communications commission to help him in his fishing expedition. He persuaded that organization that it should become a party to an unprecedented effort designed as a dragnet, a movement to smear anybody and everybody who had used telegraphic service.

The Black plan was carried out in secret. Senders and receivers of messages which those agents copied knew nothing about it. The operation was just as much "in the dark" as any of the lobbying about which Senator Black complained, even more so. It was only by accident that the facts became known but when they did become known, the lid was promptly blown off.

The end is not yet, nor is it even in sight. One federal judge has issued a restraining order against such tactics and a half dozen other applications for similar orders are pending. Undoubtedly, the questions, whatever the rulings may be, will find their way eventually to the Supreme court of the United States.

The senate itself is looking into the situation. It has, by resolution, asked the federal communications commission to make a report stating the facts and by what authority it acted.

So there is much hubbub about the whole thing and if one may judge from the line of conversation generally heard around Washington, Senator Black is on the hot spot, and the spot thus far has shown no indications of entering a cooling stage.

Charge Unfairness

Senate investigations long have been considered by many people as a modus operandi that creak with unfairness. Unbiased observers frequently have criticized them because of the methods employed. It seems absolutely necessary that the senate should have power to call witnesses, to ask legitimate and proper questions and to force answers. If it is going to enact legislation to correct evils, it must be equipped with such powers. But the point is that in seeking such information, the senate has consistently permitted its committees to act in a fashion that can be described by no other word than outrageous. I have watched them over a period of nearly twenty years and seldom, if ever, has there been an important investigation that did not degenerate sooner or later into a condition that savored of police court practices.

Respectable citizens have been subpoened, have gone before the committees willing to tell their complete story, anxious to co-operate and have found themselves treated as outlaws and criminals. This situation has become so prevalent in senate investigations that when any citizen is subpoened to appear before a senate investigation these days, his neighbors and friends begin to ask each other what crookedness is involved. In other words, the psychology of the senate investigation, as it has developed through the last fifteen or twenty years, has become one that reverses the constitutional right of an individual that he is innocent until he is proved guilty.

For several years, there has been a bill pending in congress designed to prevent, or at least reduce, lynchings. The theory back of it is that many times innocent persons have been lynched and that every one has a right to a trial by jury in a properly constituted court. Over across the Atlantic ocean, dictators have operated and have employed the "blood purge," the summary death sentence or the execution without granting the accused the right of defense. Undoubtedly some persons guilty of murder or rape have been lynched; undoubtedly the "blood purge" by the Nazi rulers destroyed some bad characters and undoubtedly the summary executions by the Soviet or the Fascists of Italy have provided death for individuals who were festering sores to humanity, but there can be no doubt that in the case of the lynchings or in the case of the "blood purge" or the summary executions, many innocent persons have had their lives snuffed out.

So it is with senate investigations. Undoubtedly they have uncovered some dirty crooked dealings. Undoubtedly they have brought to public attention activities and conditions that ought to have been exposed. Yet, the fact remains that nearly all of our people are decent people, law abiding and self-respecting. And when senate investigations go beyond proper limits they approach, if they do not wholly become, tryanny.

Not Wholly to Blame

In defense of Senator Black's action in the lobby investigation, I think it can fairly be said that he is not wholly to blame if he has gone further than any other in the program of inquiry and prosecution upon which he has launched. Little by little, bit by bit, the senate has arrogated to itself authority hitherto not used by it. Little by little, it has encroached upon what many believe to be the jurisdiction of the courts and in a like manner it has taken unto itself powers hitherto supposed to have been exclusively reserved to the executive department of government.

It would seem, then, that if other senate committees had established the precedent, Senator Black could properly use the same methods. The trouble in his case is that he did not stop at limits previously set, discreditable as those limits were, but went beyond them.

To repeat, there is every indication that some good will come out of this circumstance. Important men and brilliant lawyers and great organizations like the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, the National Association of Manufacturers and the American Liberty league have taken note of the steadily expanding power claimed by the senate. This means that the questions involved will get into the courts. It is to be hoped that they will be presented to the courts in such a manner that the questions may be finally and lastingly answered, that the powers of the legislators may be delimited and that a definite expression may come from the judiciary that will determine whether members of the house and the senate can serve at once as legislators, judges and prosecutors.

Maybe Peace, After All
Building in a Big Way
A Level-Headed King
One Strike Method

The real war news from Europe—it sounds like peace news—is that England has refused France's request for immediate assistance in forcing Germany's armies from the Rhineland. England even hints that France may be partly to blame.

Arthur Brisbane

France appeals to all members of the League of Nations "in a fight for peace." But, with England holding back, other signers of the Locarno pact are not inclined, in the language of the day, to "stick their necks out."

The United States is doing and spending in a big way. The Public Works administration says more than $1,000,000,000 worth of projects have been completed, with $2,200,000,000 of other work still under construction. Twelve hundred millions have been spent for materials, all involving labor; $639,000,000 for wage payrolls, by PWA. Organized labor presents a building program of $500,000,000 to occupy the idle building trades.

If money holds out, and the inflation bonds keep their value, this will be remembered as the building age.

A level-headed young man is the new English king. After seeing the new giant Cunarder named for his mother, walking seven miles up and down in it, he visited the slums of Glasgow, called the worst and "reddest" in England. Some ultra "left wing" city councilors refused to be presented to him. "That's perfectly all right," said the king. "Tell them I'll come and have tea with them instead." This he did. Two thousand ship workers cheered and called him "Good Old Teddy."

The king, who visited individual tenements, knocking at the doors, patting babies on the head, keeps up with the times. No English king did that before.

There are different ways of handling strikes, depending on public officials. At Akron, Ohio, a strike of milk drivers disturbs consuming families and producing farmers.

Herman E. Werner, public prosecutor, says coldly: "Anyone who interferes with milk deliveries will face guns, and the order will be 'Shoot to kill.'"

Akron has 16,000 men out of work; too many, at one time, for that sized place, and the city is tired of it.

How many millions would be killed, gassed, bombed, ripped to pieces by shrapnel and machine-gun fire before Hitler or the nation back of him could be persuaded that he is not a reincarnation of Frederick the Great, or Napoleon?

This time a murderous war would be deliberate. No grand duke heir to an imperial throne has been murdered to supply the spark.

The Department of Commerce cannot explain the Arkansas air crash, on January 14, that killed 17. It says some passenger "may have incapacitated the pilot or interfered with controls."

The local sheriff says somebody inside the plane fired a kind of pistol. Bullet marks were found.

Let air passengers before embarking pass before the electrical device that reveals instantly a pistol or any other metal object. No decent passenger would object. Guns and knives might well be "parked" on entering a plane.

Japan is the question mark in the war situation, but wise Japan would not deliberately antagonize all her customers and friends in western Europe by striking at Russia, in a war interesting to all of them.

It is probable that Japan this time, as in the last war, would send "observers," thoughtful and silent, to watch the white races cutting each others' throats.

Mrs. Akeley, who used to help her husband hunt lions and gorillas before he died, has been to Africa on her own account and reports that in south East Africa natives cling to their old ways and methods; nothing will change them.

The chief who is sick wants a witch doctor to come, howl, dance and tell him that he has been bewitched into swallowing a small crocodile, which is biting his insides.

Next summer, Chicago entomologists will watch 50,000,000 mosquitoes, after they have been dyed red, green, yellow, blue and brown, and learn how far mosquitoes can fly.

The treasury finds that in the first eight months of this fiscal year it has accumulated a deficit of $2,410,000,000. The country took in $2,348,000,000 and spent $4,758,000,000. In prosperous times, the country's total income is $90,000,000,000; but when will those "times" come back?

"Fly-Safe Dates" for Wheat Puzzle

An Extraordinary Infestation May Reduce Stands of Some Grain.

Supplied by the United States Department of Agriculture.—WNU Service.

Two flight periods of the hessian fly last fall in several big grain states instead of a single flight period as usual, reduced the protection ordinarily afforded by sowing wheat on "safe dates," according to Dr. P. N. Annand, bureau of entomology and plant quarantine, United States Department of Agriculture. As a rule, adult hessian flies come out and live their short lives before certain dates which have been determined for each area by federal and state entomologists. However, abnormal weather brought out in mid-October a second brood of adult flies that otherwise would not have appeared till next spring.

This extraordinary infestation, Doctor Annand says, may reduce materially the stands of comparatively small, late-sown wheat. Where the weather next spring proves favorable to the new brood, the current crop, at least in local areas, can hardly escape serious injury.

All through the fall, Doctor Annand says, this most serious pest of small grains multiplied enormously from north central Oklahoma through southeastern Kansas, Missouri, southern Iowa, southern Illinois, and much of Indiana, tapering of into light infestations in Ohio, with somewhat heavier infestations in western and central Pennsylvania and New York. The damage feared from the fly was one of the causes of the low condition reported for winter wheat in December. Counts made by department entomologists in December in 24 fields in western Indiana showed an average of 40 per cent of the plants to be infested by the hessian fly.

Millions of flies left the stubble, where they were settling down for the winter, and moved on to the luxuriant growths of volunteer wheat that sprang up unexpectedly under late August and early September rains. Here a new brood matured, resulting in an unusual and extensive emergence of adults. These adults infested much wheat planted after the date that would have been safe if weather had been normal. Their progeny flourished in the mild late fall and early winter weather.

Fewer Apples and Better Prices, Present Outlook

Apple production the next five years may average slightly less than in the last five years, with moderate improvement in average prices to growers, says the annual outlook report of the bureau of agricultural economics.

Moderate increases in replacements and plantings will be necessary, the report says, if the average volume of production of the last few years is to be maintained ten to fifteen years hence. This is especially true of late apples.

United States apple exporters may expect increased competition in foreign markets, since foreign countries are working toward increased production and improved quality of apples. Recent tendencies of many countries to impose trade restrictions also continue an unfavorable factor in the export outlook, it is stated.

Producers of early apples are reported to have had considerable difficulty in marketing several of the crops of the last seven years. Low returns have resulted in tree removals, abandonment, and neglect of orchards. Despite this, early apples will continue plentiful for several years, says the report.

Seed Crops Below Average

Red clover seed production is estimated at about 45,000,000 pounds compared with 50,000,000 in 1934 and an average of 69,000,000 pounds from 1928 to 1932. Alsike clover seed crop is estimated at about 17,000,000 pounds compared with 22.5 million last year and a five-year average of 25,000,000 pounds. For sweet clover, the totals are 47,000,000 pounds the past year, 34.8 million in 1934 and an average of 53.5 million pounds. Alfalfa seed production is placed at 48,000,000 pounds against 50,0000,000 last year and a 1928-32 average of 49.4 million pounds.

Mark Trucked Animals

Since a good share of the live stock now going to market goes in truck lots, frequently in mixed loads, it is important that every shipper mark his animals so that they can be readily identified at the stockyards, advises a writer in the Prairie Farmer. The trucker should be furnished the marks for his bill of lading. Describing stock by color or sex is not sufficient for accurate handling. The best way to mark cattle and hogs is by clipping marks on the backs. Sheep can be marked with a quick-drying paint. You will be more certain of quick returns on your live stock consignments when it goes to market properly identified.

Flyers Offer Their All to Advancement of Aviation

To flyers, aviation is not merely an occupation, a profession; it is practically a religion. It obliterates all considerations of personal comfort, of safety, even of life. Money is entirely in the background of a flyer's life. When he goes after it he does so only as a means of further achievement in the air.

Another peculiarity of the breed is illustrated in a sentiment I heard from a young friend of mine who is studying aeronautical engineering. "I hate to think of the time when flying will become common," he said to me the other day. "It will be horrible if there are ever as many people flying as there are now driving motorcars."—Lowell Thomas in Cosmopolitan.

JIM GETS A BIG ORDER
JIM, WE'VE GOT TO GET THE MONEY SOMEHOW! THE BANK PAYMENT IS COMING DUE NEXT MONTH!
OH, STOP NAGGING—WE'LL GET THE MONEY—IF I CAN SELL THAT OLD CRAB MERRILL A FEW TRUCKS!
HE'S AN OLD SKINFLINT! HE'LL PUT SOMETHING OVER ON YOU IF HE CAN!
MR. COFFEE NERVES
—WHAT'S THE COST OF OPERATING THIS TRUCK FOR A YEAR, INCLUDING GAS, OIL AND REPAIRS?
SAY, MR. MERRILL, I'M NO ADDING MACHINE—I'M JUST A TRUCK SALESMAN!
TELL THIS OLD TIGHTWAD HE'D SQUEEZE THE HIDE OFF A BUFFALO NICKEL!
MR. COFFEE NERVES
JIM, YOUR MEANNESS MAY LOSE US A SWELL ORDER! DON'T YOU KNOW THAT MR. MERRILL OWNS A BIG TRUCK LINE?
SAY, YOU WOULDN'T TALK—IF YOU HAD MY HEADACHES AND INDIGESTION!
WHY DOESN'T YOUR BOSS SHUT HIS FACE AND GO SELL A FEW TRUCKS HIMSELF!
MR. COFFEE NERVES
—SOUNDS LIKE THE TROUBLE I HAD—MY DOCTOR CALLED IT COFFEE-NERVES—SWITCHING TO POSTUM HELPED ME—WHY DON'T YOU TRY IT?

MARY, LOOK! MR. MERRILL ORDERED THIRTY TRUCKS! NOW WE CAN PAY THE BANK!
OH, JIM... THAT'S WONDERFUL! I KNEW YOU'D GET THE ORDER! —YOU'VE BEEN YOUR OLD SPLENDID SELF SINCE YOU SWITCHED TO POSTUM!

OF COURSE, you know that children should never drink coffee. But do you realize that the caffein in coffee disagrees with many grown-ups, too?

If you are bothered by headaches or indigestion, or find it difficult to sleep soundly . . . caffein may be to blame.

Isn't it worth while to try Postum for 30 days? Postum contains no caffein. It is simply whole wheat and bran, roasted and slightly sweetened. It is easy to make, and costs less than one-half cent a cup. It's a delicious drink, too . . . and may prove a real help. A product of General Foods. © 1936, G. F. CORP

New Deal Still Blows $2 for $1

Deficit Looms Bigger Than Ever; Civil Service Is Put on Skids.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Having entered its fourth year of administration March 4, President Roosevelt's New Deal is still spending two dollars for every dollar it takes in. Federal receipts for the 1936 fiscal year to Feb. 29 were $2,348,281,700, while expenditures stood at $4,758,686,381.

This two-for-one spending progresses despite the fact that the President said, in his first annual budget message, that the nation should plan for a balanced budget—which in simple terms means spending no more money than you take in—during the "third year of recovery," which is the 1936 fiscal year.

Now all indications are that the 1936 deficit will be surpassed by the deficit in the 1987 budget, which has been estimated to be more than $4,000,000,000.

New Deal Spends 19 Billion.

Since he was inaugurated on March 4, 1933, the President has spent $19,000,000,000, of which $10,000,000,000 was for purposes other than the ordinary running expenses of the government. A further expenditure of more than $5,000,000,000 is provided for.

Most of the spending outside ordinary expenditures was for the purpose of "priming the pump," pouring Federal money out of the taxpayer's pocket on the theory that business, once stimulated by the artificial purchasing power created, would "pick up" of its own accord and put the idle millions back to work. After three years, with money still rolling out of the treasury in billions for relief and "made work" (boondoggling), the American Federation of Labor, through its president, William Green, estimates that at the end of January there were still 12,626,000 workers unemployed. The increase in unemployment of 1,229,000 from December to January was the largest such increase in five years.

As three years of the New Deal came to an end the National debt had reached a total of about $32,000,000,000, a new high for all time. And an excellent prospect for the near future was a debt of 85 to 40 billions of dollars. This would be a debt of $1,100 to $1,260 for every family in the United States, a prior lien on everything each family earns and a first mortgage on everything it owns.

Fifty Bureaus Created.

In its efforts to spend its way back into national prosperity, the New Deal has in three years introduced novel and contradictory methods. It has spent $8,000,000,000 for relief. It has set up fifty new agencies (mostly alphabetical bureaus) which have created hundreds of thousands of "administrative" laws—rules of executive order in which the executive branch of the government is both judge and jury, may fine or imprison the citizen without his recourse to the courts, and may tell him what to do with his property. In the operation of these bureaus, the New Deal has added 250,000 full time federal employees, less than 1 in 100 of them being required to pass civil service examinations. The civil service in three years has declined from 81 per cent of all federal employees to 57 per cent.

Three years have seen the crop curtailment program of AAA, combined with the drouth and New Deal free trade policies, produce the enigmatic condition of imports of foreign farm products stealing the internal market away from the American farmer at a rapidly increasing rate. Imports of grains, bacon, hams, pork, beef, animal and vegetable oils have multiplied, until in 1935 farm products worth more than $1,300,000,000 at current prices, were imported to enrich the farmers of other countries.

Roosevelt monetary policies caused the dollar to be devalued 40 per cent in gold content, with the result that on the basis of gold the farmer sold his products at prices 13 per cent less than in 1932.

Despite the fact that in his budget message at the start of the year, Roosevelt said that no new taxes would be required, the New Deal's new farm program, new relief expenditures and other costs made it apparent that $1,500,000,000 or more in new taxes would be required.

67 Taxes Squeeze Pocketbook

Chicago.—"Today we have 67 varieties of taxes, direct or indirect, which affect the prices of nearly every commodity of commerce," James M. Beck, noted authority on the Constitution, said here. "Today the American citizen is directly or indirectly taxed from the cradle to the grave. These taxes would be heavy to the point of confiscation were not the largest amount of our public expenditures raised by borrowing against the future, and thus loading down an innocent posterity with intolerable burdens."

Interest on Debt Climbs

Washington.—In the last fiscal year, the New Deal spent more than $7,375,000,000, an increase of 114 per cent in five years. The payment of interest on the national debt is alone greater than the entire expenditures of the government 30 years ago.

Fish And Game Commission Explains New Angling Rules

Several changes and additions are included in the new 1936 rules and regulations, according to the announcement of the Conservation Commission.

Opening dates on game fish remain unchanged except for trout which season opens April 15th instead of April 1st as in former years The lateness of the season and increaed danger of floods washing out newly stocked trout is given as the reason for the change in the opening date. The trout season ends on September first.

The new rules provide that carp buffalo, quillback, gar and dogfish, which are classified as non-game fish, and bullheads, redhorse, dace chubs, shiners and suckers may be taken at any season of the year.

All other game fish may be taken from any of the waters of the state between 5 a m. May 15th and midnight November 30th, except as follows

Small-mouth or large-mouth bass and catfish may be taken only between 5 a. m. June 15th and 12 o'clock midnight November 30th.

In the Mississippi and Missouri rivers, catfish, northern pike or pickerel, sheepshead and bullheads may be taken at any time. Rock and sand sturgeon may be taken between August 1st and December 1st both dates inclusive.

Rock bass, black bass, crappie, bluegill or sunfish may be taken only between 5 a. m., June 15th and 12 o'clock midnight November 30 in the following lakes: Trumbull and Lost Island in Clay County; Spirit, East and West Okoboji, Upper and Lower Gar, Minnewahsta, Silver and Swan in Dickinson County; Tuttle and Iowa in Emmet; Crystal in Hancock; Medium, Silver and Lost Island in Palo Alto, and Cornelia in Wright County.

The only change in the regulations for catch limits is that bullheads caught in a legal manner may be taken in any number from the Missouri and Mississippi Rivers and Spirit and East and West Okoboji lakes in Dickinson county.

Otherwise the daily aggregate catch limit has been set at 25 game fish of which not more than 15 may be trout, small or large-mouth bass, rock bass, sand pike, wall-eyed pike, great northern pike, yellow bass, pickerel, salmon, crappie, catfish, perch, sunfish and bluegill; and not more than 8 of any one of the following species trout, small-mouth or large-mouth bass, rock bass, sand pike, wall-eyed pike, yellow bass and great northern pike.

The possession limit, after the opening day, is two days' catch limit

Minimum size limits remain unchanged and are as follows northern pike or pickerel, 15 inches long; wall-eyed pike, 13 inches; catfish, 12 inches; black bass or sand pike, 10 inches; rock bass, silver bass, trout, crappie and perch, 7 inches; blue gill, 5 inches. On fish not named there is no minimum size limit.

KLEMME MAN ELECTED; WILL START WORK MAY 1ST

Carolus Has Been Head Butter Maker In Klemme Plant 5 Years

George Carolus, who has been chief buttermaker in the Klemme Co-Operative Creamery for the past five years, will take over the management of the Dows Co-Operative Creamery beginning May 1st.

Mr. Carolus has been connected with creamery work for the past eleven years, and before coming to Klemme was employed in creameries at Wellsburg and Dike. Mr. Carolus was buttermaker at the Dike plant, which also handled poultry and eggs, and he had thirteen men under his supervision there.

Mr. Carolus has a fine record as a buttermaker and has competed in both National and State contests, receiving high ratings, as well as a medal for his butter. He thoroughly understands the workings of the Co-Operative system and his work at the local plant has shown that he has good business ability. He is a good mechanic and keeps the plant in fine condition.

The Board of Directors of the Dows Creamery are to be congratulated on their good judgment in selecting Mr. Carolus as their new manager. They will find that Mr. Carolus is well liked by the farmer patrons; that he is a good mixer and easily makes friends. Mr. Carolus has a fine family of three girls, ages 2, 6 and 8. Mr. and Mrs. Carolus are interested in church, school and community affairs and are always willing to help where needed.

Klemme will indeed be sorry to lose this fine family from this community, but the well-wishes of everyone go with thef to their new home.

Mussolini Abolishes Chamber of Deputies

BENITO MUSSOLINI evidently expects another European war, and in preparation for it he announced several drastic measures on the seventeenth anniversary of the founding of the Fascist party. He abolished the chamber of deputies, substituting for it a council of guilds; and he also eliminated the country's large industries, leaving the medium and small private industries in existence. This latter move, he told the council of the 22 guilds of the corporative state, was to increase the nation's economic self-sufficiency. "When and how war will come, one does not know," he said, "but the wheel of fate turns fast."

Benito Mussolini

Mussolini asserted the large industries, particularly those working for the defense of the nation, would be formed into organizations called "key industries." These, he said, "will be run directly or indirectly by the government. Some will have mixed organization."

He drew tremendous cheers from the audience, rising in the gorgeous Julius Caesar hall of the capitol building, on Capitoline hill, when he declared that with this reform, the Fascist party reached fulfillment of its purposes.

Russia and Poland Don't Trust Negotiations

EASTERN Europe, especially soviet Russia and Poland, is distrustful of the negotiations among the Locarno powers. Russia, according to Karl Radek, authoritative writer in Moscow, is convinced she must rely for her safety mainly on her own resources for defense, and accordingly will strengthen her armed forces, already numbering 1,300,000 men. He described commitments of the four Locarno powers in regard to future action as "so uncertain that they can be discounted as not existing at all."

Suggestions offered in London for the summoning of an international conference to discuss new agreements Radek found to be "so vague" as to apthe world to know we will never capitulate before the resolutions and forfor which Hitler has expressed no particular love."

The Polish government was decidedly worried by reports of secret negotiations in London behind the scenes of the conference of the Locarno powers. These reports were forwarded by Col. Josef Beck, the foreign minister, who scented a plot to secure peace in western Europe at the expense of eastern Europe by granting Germany a free hand in the latter region. Beck thought there were possibilities of revision of the Versailles and other treaties. The information he sent to Warsaw led the press there to publish bitter attacks on the course Great Britain apparently was pursuing.

Hitler Considers Reply to Peace Proposals

REICHSFUEHRER HITLER recalled Joachim von Ribbentrop from London, where that diplomat had heard Germany condemned as a treaty violator by the council of the League of Nations, and with him spent several days carefully planning his response to the proposals of the other four Locarno powers. Others of his advisers participated in the conferences, but there was no doubt that Hitler himself would determine the course of the reich, and from the demonstrations in his honor over the week-end it appeared certain the German people would sustain him in his decision. Going to Breslau, still accompanied by Van Ribbentrop, Hitler told a big gathering of citizens: "We will not make a single compromise in internal or external politics. We want the world to know we will never capitulate before the resolutions and formulations of others."

Joachim von Ribbentrop

Declaring the world is getting itself entangled in military alliances, Hitler promised: "We Germans will not allow ourselves to be entangled because we have reconquered our sovereignty and intend to keep it."

The Fuehrer answered charges that his peace proposals were merely a gesture by saying: "I make no empty gestures. These were proposals to insure the peace of the world for 25 years. Let other statesmen ask their peoples to express their opinion in votes as to whether they want war or peace. Maybe then the nations will come to agreement. May God show us the right way."

Parts of the peace plan offered by the four Locarno powers that were most objectionable to the Germans were the creation of an international police zone 12 miles wide along the Rhineland frontier, and the submission of the Franco-Russian mutual aid treaty to the world court.

Foreign Secretary Eden urged Von Ribbentrop before the latter left London for Berlin to prevail on Hitler to submit counter proposals. Eden emphasized that the four power proposals were not intended to be final.

Believing Hitler would be obdurate, the French cabinet prepared a program of sanctions against Germany for proposal to the league, although Foreign Minister Flandin and others doubted that England would agree to support it. Flandin was prepared for a struggle to keep Britain, Belgium and Italy in a united front with France against German efforts to drive them apart four Locarno powers are agreed on a virtual military alliance if the reichsfuehrer fails to accept their proposals for a new Rhineland settlement.

Great Floods Recede and Reconstruction Begins

INTREPID citizens of scores of cities and towns in the eastern and New England states which were devastated by the unprecedented floods were digging out their homes and places of business from the mud and debris as the turbulent waters of many rivers subsided. Reconstruction and refitting began everywhere immediately, and this, as well as the relief of the suffering thousands, was aided by funds totaling more than $43,000,000 allocated by President Roosevelt before he left Washington for Florida.

Rough estimates were that the total dead in 13 states were 169; the homeless were 221,500, and the total property damage, $271,500,000. The last figure probably would be tripled if one took into account the losses from interruption to industry and trade and the stoppage of the wages of labor.

Cities along the lower Ohio were threatened as the flood waters raced down to the Mississippi and the Gulf of Mexico, but they had had plenty of warning and were in a measure prepared. Of course many communities were submerged, but the residents had moved to higher land.

Everywhere in the devastated regions the Red Cross workers were busy with food, clothing and medical supplies, and in many places National Guardsmen were kept on duty to prevent looting. The people of the nation were responding liberally to the call of President Roosevelt and Admiral Grayson, head of the Red Cross, for a fund of $3,000,000.

Isabella Greenway Will Retire From Congress

ISABELLA GREENWAY, the capable lady who has represented Arizona in congress since October, 1933, has announced in Tucson that she will retire from public life at the conclusion of her present term. She was first elected for the remainder of the term of Lewis Douglas, who resigned to become director of the budget, and was re-elected in 1934.

Mrs. Greenway

Mrs. Greenway owns and operates several ranches in Arizona and New Mexico and a hotel in Tucson, and is also interested in some mining companies. Undoubtedly she could go back to congress without opposition, but she says she wants to devote more time to her private activities.

Doings of the Senators and Representatives

STILL refusing to appropriate $12,000,000 for the Florida ship canal, the senate passed the army bill carrying approximately $611,000,000. More than half the sum goes for the military activities of the War department.

There will be no reduction in the number of CCC camps during most of the coming fiscal year, and the enrollees will be kept up to about the 350,000 mark. This was the decision of President Roosevelt after a threatened revolt of Democratic representatives induced him to change his mind in the matter.

Senator Black, chairman of the senate lobbying committee, has added the Wichita Beacon to the papers whose telegrams he has seized or attempted to seize. The list also includes the Hearst publications, the Cowles papers, and the Times Publishing company of Wichita Falls, Tex. John Henry Kirby, an anti-Roosevelt Democrat of Texas, learned Black had subpoenaed all his telegrams and warned the senator not to exhibit to anyone any family or private business messages.

President Goes South on His Fishing Trip

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT packed up his fishing tackle and started South for his annual angling cruise, this time on the new Presidential boat, the Potomac. He made a brief stop at Winter Park, Fla., where he received an honorary degree from Rollins college. His plan was then to board the Potomac and spend about two weeks on his old fishing grounds off the Florida coast.

Three Powers Agree to Limit Battleship Size

GREAT BRITAIN, the United States and France, the only nations remaining in the London naval conference, accepted the final draft of a new treaty limiting the size of battleships to 35,000 tons, retaining 10,000 tons as the maximum for cruisers and providing that none of that size shall be built for six years.

Norman H. Davis, chief of the American delegation, served notice that the United States would consider herself free from the large cruiser limit if Great Britain should build more than 70 cruisers.

Unsuccessful in keeping Japan and Italy pledged to naval limitation, the conferees wrote escape clauses in the treaty which would permit them to disregard the limits if Japan and other nonsigners exceeded them.

Dr. Townsend Comes Out for Senator Borah

SENATOR WILLIAM E. BORAH is campaigning earnestly for the Republican Presidential nomination, and has just received a big boost for his cause in the announcement that Dr. Francis E. Townsend, founder of the old age pension plan that bears his name, will give the Idahoan all his support. Repudiating President Roosevelt and changing his registration at Long Beach, Calif., from Democratic to Republican, Townsend said Borah was the only Republican candidate who "even approached" the standard of the Townsendites, although the senator has refused to indorse the Townsend pension plan as it stands.

Hitherto the Townsend organization had favored circulation of third party petitions in every state to enlist millions of people as a demonstration of strength.

In a speech in Chicago opening his campaign for Illinois delegates, Senator Borah lambasted the old guard of the Republican party, asserting that in 1932 10,000,000 voters were driven out of that party by leaders who "sacrificed the party" for their own aggrandizement, and that the 10,000,000 will not come back to the old fold if the old leadership controls at the Cleveland convention in June.

Plans Announced for Soil Conservation Program

SECRETARY OF AGRICULTURE WALLACE announced the establishment of five regions for administration of the soil conservation and domestic allotment act, substitute for the invalid AAA. H. R. Tolley, administrator of the new plan, said the department already has begun a field service to administer the program in various states. As under the AAA, the leading part within the states is to be played by the farmers' county and community committees.

H. R. Tolley

Mr. Wallace also directed discontinuance of the four commodity divisions whose work of liquidating AAA production control programs will be taken over by the regional directors. The order leaves intact other administrative units of the AAA, such as the division of marketing and marketing agreements, division of program planning, and the division of the consumers' counsel.

Billion and a Half Asked for Relief for Year

ONE and one-half billion dollars will be needed to carry the Works Progress administration through the coming fiscal year, according to President Roosevelt's figuring. Therefore he asked congress to appropriate that sum. He thought it would be sufficient to care for the destitute unemployed, together with $1,000,000,000 in unexpended previous appropriations and the $600,000,000 carried in the budget for the civilian conservation corps and various public works.

Limitation of federal relief expenditures to this figure, however, is dependent upon re-employment of substantial numbers of the idle by private industry, the President said.

As the President's message was presented, Speaker Joseph W. Byrns revealed that Mr. Roosevelt had advised his leaders that any increase in the appropriation over his estimates must be accompanied by new taxes to provide revenues to cover the added cost.

Effort to Keep Politics Out of WPA Administration

RUSH D. HOLT, the young Democratic senator from West Virginia, gave notice that he would continue to hammer at the Works Progress administration until a senate investigation was ordered. He demanded an inquiry into all relief activities under charge of Administrator Harry L. Hopkins, and other agencies affecting relief, the RFC, CWA, and FERA.

In reply to some of the charges made, Mr. Hopkins issued this bulletin:

"No employee of WPA is required to make any contribution to any political party. No WPA employee's job will be in jeopardy because of failure to make such contribution.

"No employee of the WPA shall at any time solicit contributions for any political party, and evidence of such solicitation will be cause for immediate discharge. The question whether or not to contribute to any political party is a matter entirely for the voluntary decision of employees.

"No person will be employed or discharged on the ground of his support or nonsupport of any candidate."

By Carter Field

FAMOUS WASHINGTON CORRESPONDENT

Washington.—Five hundred thousand additional workers must be absorbed in private employment to avoid an additional relief appropriation. That is the calculation of experts here who figured on the precise meaning of President Roosevelt's message.

To put it another way, federal relief expenditures are to be cut, under the President's plan, precisely the amount that private employers can save the government relief rolls by hiring people off them. Roosevelt figures on a saving by this method of $400,000,000. This is the amount—on the boondoggling type of project—that taking care of 500,000 workers would cost.

The cost to private employers would be much greater, of course, for private employers pay better wages than are paid on the boondoggling projects. It is fair to compare with boondoggling projects, for the President made it perfectly clear that everything from now on is to be WPA and there is to be no more PWA.

This was quite a blow, incidentally, to Harold L. Ickes. He has been conducting a great propaganda campaign for "worthwhile" projects, showing that the country approved them enormously, as indicated by various referendum ballots taken in various sections on bond issues, etc.

Mr. Ickes had a list of nearly 1,500 projects, estimated to cost $350,000,000, all approved for if and when the money should be appropriated. All these are now out the window. They didn't even get as far as Quoddy and the Florida ship canal, which Ickes never did approve.

Would Cut Relief Cost

If business does come through with the employment of an average of 500,000 additional men throughout the year, relief expenditures for the year beginning July 1 will be just $400,000,000 smaller than for the year ending June 30 next. For the present year, according to the best estimates obtainable, relief expenditures will be $3,500,000,000. For the year beginning July 1 they will be, again according to estimates, $3,100,000,000.

Next year's figures are obtained by adding the $1,500,000,000 that the President just asked to $600,000,000 already in the congressional estimates for CCC camps and other public works, and then adding in the $1,000,000,000 that, it is calculated, will be in the federal till on July 1, left over from this year's appropriations.

It is actual spending that counts, not appropriations. Naturally anything looks good compared with that $4,880,000,000 in last year's relief bill. But that billion dollars left over—at least that is what the government actuaries say will be left over—changes the picture materially.

Aside from the cost of relief and its obvious effect on taxes, the most important phase of the President's message was what it may mean to hours of labor in this country. On the very day before the message was read to congress, Senator Black announced he would make no effort to push his 30-hour bill.

The President has no intention of presenting legislation to force this shortening of hours. He alluded regretfully to the NRA codes, but there is no indication they are coming back. Indications are that the President will work for his objective of shorter hours by the labor union route, which is more satisfactory to union labor leaders, but leaves out a lot of unorganized workers.

Make Corporations Pay

There is a strong possibility that President Roosevelt's idea of eliminating present corporation taxes, as part of his new plan to force greater distribution to stockholders of corporation earnings, will be abandoned before congress concludes its labors with the tax bill.

Congress, in a way of speaking, has virtually set its heart on making corporations, and corporation stockholders, pay all the additional money needed by the treasury. It would like nothing better than to forget all about the proposed excise taxes, which were, under the President's original plan, to finance the new farm program.

But it is already realized by those familiar with the treasury revenue tables which have been submitted to the house ways and means committee that this cannot be done if the President's general idea is followed. It certainly cannot be done if all the present corporation taxes are repealed.

The point is that present corporation taxes are yielding slightly under $1,000,000,000 a year to the federal treasury. It is estimated that were they continued they would yield more than $1,000,000,000 for the calendar year 1936, because most corporation earnings promise to be better this year than last.

It is also generally conceded that most corporations would boost their dividend rates—assuming they are now pursuing the policy of putting something into surplus every year—so as to avoid the very high tax levies. There is such a thing as mass pressure, even among corporation stockholders. Treasury figures show the astounding figure of 124,120,930 persons who would draw additional dividends although their incomes are so small that they do not pay income taxes at all! True, the additional amount they would be paid is only a little more than $3 a year each, but it amounts to $383,000,000. Quite a sizable chunk to deduct from corporation taxes. The treasury loses about $60,000,000 right there!

Big Loss to Treasury

The next group numbers 2,191,302 persons, who would draw $310,000,000 more in dividends. These have incomes from $1,000 to $5,000, thus getting the lowest income tax rate. So that on these dividends the treasury would get 4 per cent—maximum—instead of the 15 per cent they would pay as corporation income taxes, plus the capital stock tax and the excess profits tax.

Also, the earnings thus forced out in dividends would distribute about $370,000,000 a year to institutional investors who would be exempt under any plan that has a Chinaman's chance of going through. Another loss of $60,000,000 from the present system.

All of which, as the ways and means committee members know perfectly well, is without making any allowance whatsoever for increased spending by corporations, which would seek to build up surplus in another form than dollars or additional plant. For example, by advertising.

Some of the biggest surplus accumulators among corporations are those which manufacture and sell to the public articles whose continued sale is dependent upon advertising. There would be a strong temptation to such a corporation, accustomed, say, to spending a million dollars a year on advertising, and to putting two million dollars a year into surplus after payment of dividends, to boost that advertising appropriation by one million and distribute the other million in dividends.

So there should really be little surprise if the Roosevelt plan winds up as a mere addition to present corporation taxes, or at least the retention of some measure of the corporation income tax, if for no other reason than to impose some tax on foreign holders of American securities.

No "Must" List

President Roosevelt has practically no "must" list of legislation for congress, if one excepts the tax bill. True, he is back of the Norris bill, which would lend $50,000,000 a year for two years, and then $40,000,000 a year for eight more, for the development of rural electric projects. But this has already passed the senate, and it is the senate where the time element is important. The house could arrange to adjourn a week from any Tuesday and not even have to hurry its normal speed.

But there are pending a great many measures which are of enormous importance, especially to business men, manufacturers, shippers, and tax producers generally. Interest in them for the last ten days has been almost entirely submerged by the greater importance of the tax bill, the one "must" measure. But there they are, and some of them will probably pass.

For instance, there is the Patman-Robinson bill. It aims at preventing manufacturers from giving big customers what the Federal Trade commission regards as an unfairly large discount. The two shining targets, of course, are the chain stores and the mail order houses.

Maybe this measure will be so emasculated that it won't mean anything. Maybe in final form it will be so drastic that it will really do what its backers hope for. Consider the possibilities of the later. One is that the big chains and mail order houses would just go in for manufacturing in a big way, probably buying out the present independent manufacturers who are selling to them more cheaply than they sell to the "little fellows" who are the competitors of the chains and mail order houses. Either that or the manufacturer whose chief business comes through orders from the chains or mail order houses simply decides to throw in his lot with the big ones altogether. The law can prevent discriminations, but it cannot force a manufacturer to sell when he doesn't want to do so.

Walsh-Healey Bill

Consider the Walsh-Healey bill. They are really two bills. But they aim at forcing contractors getting government money to comply with the old NRA codes.

In view of the fact that the government is spending such a prodigious amount these days—in fact a very sizable percentage of all the money spent, especially in the heavy industries—here is a law that is of vital interest, to put it mildly, to a lot of business men. The odds against its passage should be about three to two, but there is no telling.

Important to all railroads and truckers, and stockholders in either, is the Pettengill bill. This would permit the railroads to forget all about previous rules on long and short hauls. It would virtually permit the railroads to make rates so as to get the business or any particular bit of it, without revising all their rates and throwing their rate structure haywire.

Oak Bluffs, Mass.—The regular town meeting held here recently was delayed several minutes because somebody forgot to display the American flag. On opening the meeting, Stephen Rae, official of the local Legion, said no meeting could be held until the flag was on hand.

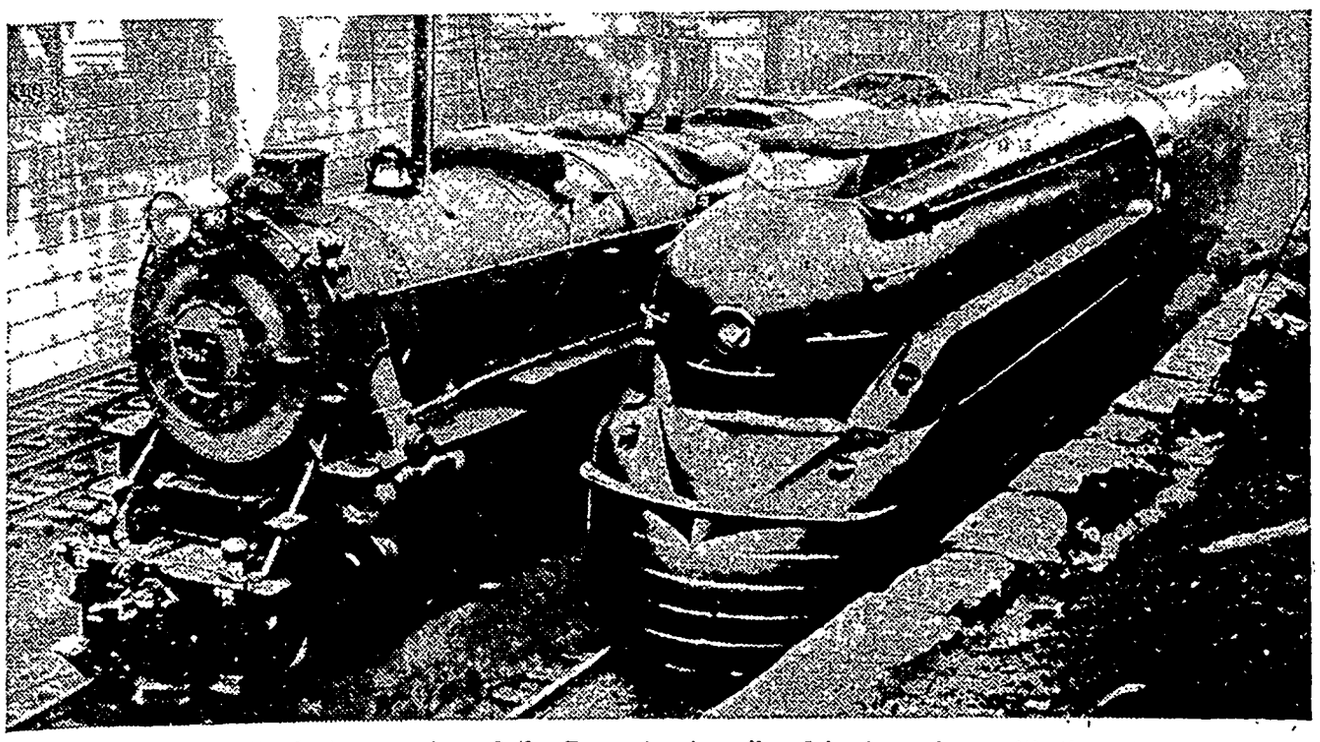
Newest Locomotive Compared With the Old Type



The newest streamlined steam engine of the Pennsylvania railroad is shown here with the old standard heavy-duty engine. The new locomotive, said to be "the most highly perfected and advanced engine design yet produced by aerodynamic science for the reduction of wind resistance," is reputed to show a reduction of one-third in wind resistance at a mile-a-minute speed.

WHO'S LOONEY?

The boys at Washington can throw themselves into reverse and travel in the opposite direction so easily that it is almost impossible to keep up with events. Dr. Mordecai Ezekiel (that's really his name) economic advisor to Henry A. Wallace, Secretary of Agriculture, is advocating a plan to insure every family $2,500 per year and wipe out unemployment and poverty. He would do it by doubling production. He would reverse the AAA system and pay manufacturers to double their output. The same group that paid farmers not to produce would pay manufacturers to double their capacity. If you get a sane answer in figuring that out you had better see a doctor, you're crazy.

—o o—

NO THOUGHT OF SPENDING LESS

The brain trusters in Washington when facing the pressing necessity of taking steps toward blancing the federal budget think of only one thing—increased taxation. It seems never to have occurred to them that a better and more effective way would be to reduce the spending of public funds within the limitations of the government income.

—o o—

TIME TO CALL A HALT

The wholesale seizure of private telegraphic correspondence by the Senate committee was outrageous. It is not within the Communication Commission's province to assign its clerks to copying telegrams for the use of any other governmental agency. This has nothing to do with the regulation of telegraph companies that was authorized by Congress. It was forseen that the Commission might abuse its authority and divert it to political purposes. But it was not thought it would go to the length of violating the privacy of messages entrusted for transmission. Senders of telegrams have always confided in the protection of the law.

Perhaps there should be more investigations of investigators..

—o o—

BACK TO THE FARM

The sooner the people and the Government officials quit looking to industry to put the 10,500,000 to work, the sooner will they have the decks cleared for action and be ready to solve the problem. Industry never did employ that many and by the wildest stretch of imagination cannot be expected to add that many to existing payrolls. What, then, is the solution? Perhaps nobody knows, but New Jersey has done something about it. There are 35,000 farmers in that State now as compared with 25,000 when the depression struck the country, with 200,000 more acres under cultivation. There are too many people in the cities depending upon jobs from others, and too few in the country making their own jobs.

'TWAS EVER SO WITH DICTATORS

The first Caesar rose to power as a popular idol, as a representative of the "Common People"; Napoleon gained his mastery first over France and then over Europe from a small and popular beginning as the "armed soldier of democracy"; Lenin set up his iron rule under the guise of the "rule of the proletariat"; Mussolini, once a Communist agitator, got his grip upon Italy under the cloak of a popular movement against monarchy; Hitler get his start by a promise to save the common people from their oppressors; and Roosevelt—but why bring that up?

—o o—

NOW WATERMELONS!

AAA is spreading out. It announces it is now ready to regulate the marketing of watermelons. Peanuts are already regulated. Next in order comes the cucumber code, or maybe onions.

—o o—

The Soviet government reports finding needles in the stomachs of prize dairy cows which died recently. Maybe somebody was only experimenting in trying to get the cows to produce needled milk.

SORDID STORY OF A BLANK CHECK

Before Congress yields to President Roosevelt's request for another blank check, in the shape of $1,000,000,000 for relief purposes, it ought to find out exactly what was done with the $4,800,000,000 which was turned over to him under the same conditions last year. it should learn where the money was mostly spent, who spent it, and what it was used for. It should inquire particularly into the innumerable cases of alleged graft, favoritism and political partisianship which have grown out of the distribution of this vast sum in less than ten months.

Reliable evidence on these points should not be difficult to obtain, even if the White House itself seems reluctant to produce it.

The President will ask for another million dollars to be distributed as he sees fit. If Congress surrenders, there will be more boondoggling and more squandering than ever before. An Administration so politically minded as the one now in Washington, can be trusted to spend the money where it will bring in the most votes and in ways best calculated to produce Democratic support.

—o o—

Nearly everything has been explained except why there are more unemployed this year than there were last year.

—o—

Secretary Wallace ought to realize that the western dust storms are trying to cooperate with him. Since it is no longer constitutional to plow under wheat, the dust storms have taken to blowing it out of the ground.

—o o—

A statesman is a politician who belongs to our party, and a politician is a statesman who belongs to the opposition.

THE BURDEN ON THE FAMILY

Conservative estimates forecast a public debt of at least $35,000,000,000 by the end of the year. Interest on a debt of that size will run at least $850,000,000 a year Assuming that there are 30,000,000 families in the United States it will cost each family 54 cents a week, or $28.08 a year just to pay the interest on a National debt, without even making a nick in the debt itself.

If the Nation undertook to pay off the entire $35,000,000,000 in a single year, each family would hav to kick in more than $21 a week, or $1,092 for the year.

Last year the National income averaged only about $30 a week or $1,560 per year.—Cedar Rapids Gazette.

—o o—

THE DEVELOPING SCANDAL

The agents employed by Administrator Hopkins to inquire into his methods of administering work relief in West Virginia absolve the WPA from "playing politics with human misery." But they have not silenced the vociferous Senator Holt, who maintains that a probe of the WPA by the WPA is "like sending Baby Face Nelson to investigate John Dillinger."

Every intelligent person knows that it is, particularly under Mr. Farley's regime, impossible to keep an organization like the WPA free from the taint of politics. What the country needs is a searching probe that would disclose the wastes inherent in the present relief system. The necessity of fundamental reform must be made plain before more billions are thrown down the WPA sewer.—Washington Post.

—o o—

TRYING IS'NT ENOUGH

The New Deal has missed the solution of the Nation's problems by miles, as one is bound is realize when there are 11,000,000 unemployed and 20,000,000 on relief.

Mr. Roosevelt has tried. Everybody agrees to that. But he tried through three years during most of which time there was nothing whatever in his way. The whole country was back of him when he went into office. Congress was his rubber stamp. The doors to the Treasury were thown open. He got the laws he wanted. No one interfered as he created bureau after bureau and spent billion after billion.

Continued majority support of Mr. Roosevelt, who has also failed to cure the depression, simply would not make sense.—Sioux City Journal.

Relics of Lost Hittites Found; Indicate Culture

What is believed to be the first step toward the discovery of the lost Hittites, who appear in the Bible as a great imperial power, has been found in Asia Minor. In a 4,000-year-old tomb was discovered a Hittite statue of a bull, seven inches high and inlaid with gold. The silversmith's art is astonishingly modern, and indicates that the race was cultured rather than primitive as previously believed.

The discovery has aroused great interest among European archeologists because previously nothing had been known of the Hittites' work except rock carving and a few potsherds.

Major Political Parties Recognize Increased Importance of "First Voters" in Election Next November.

By WILLIAM C. UTLEY

WITH one of the most spirited presidential elections of many years in prospect for this coming November, both major parties are recognizing as never before the political importance of American youth.

Since the Roosevelt landslide of 1932, seven or eight million boys and girls have become men and women and eligible to vote. This vast army of first voters makes up a block of votes greater than the plurality by which Roosevelt defeated Hoover.

Ordinarily the vote of these young people for one candidate or the other could be forecast to a certain extent, because of the custom of first voters assuming the party allegiances of their fathers which has prevailed in the United States for so long. But youth of 1936 is going to vote with a mind of its own.

There are obvious reasons for this. Times have changed. The party now in power is not the Democratic party as the fathers of these young men and women knew it. It has transcended old party boundaries in a number of ways. It is reasonable to suppose that a good share of the youths who might have cast their vote for an old guard Democratic candidate will vote Republican next fall. By the same token the New Deal, with its vigor and sweeping operation appealing to youth of a certain type, will draw some votes which would have been Republican in the old days.

The end of the trail. These two misguided youths were captured and convicted of hundreds of robberies in and around Cleveland.

Parties Organize Youth.

Both parties are well along toward organizing the younger voters in the campaign. Democrats of the ages of about twenty-one to forty are being induced to join the Young Democratic Clubs of America, under Frank Wickhem of Sioux Falls, S. D., while the Young Republicans are being organized by J. Kenneth Bradley, former state senator in Connecticut, and Miss Dolly Madison.

Naturally the two movements must operate under different conditions. The party in power is in control of federal patronage and rewards for party service, and can work its campaign on that basis. The other party must base its appeal largely on principles and issues.

With American youth holding so much weight in the political balance, it would not be amiss to review the situation in which this class finds itself today.

According to information supplied by the National Youth Administration, there are in this country approximately 23,000,000 persons between the ages of sixteen and twenty-five. Thirty-four per cent of these millions are "out of work, out of school or in relief families." About 15,000,000 are working or are in school. It is estimated that approximately 300,000 of the young people now being supported by relief have never had any kind of jobs. Figures released by the International Labor Office at Geneva, Switzerland, a few months ago indicated that one-fourth of all the persons in the world listed as unemployed were less than twenty-five years of age.

Blame Idle Youth for Crime.

The 8,000,000 youths unemployed in the United States today present a grave social problem, as well as an economic one. (This figure must not be confused with the total of 8,000,000 first voters, as the unemployed youth total includes millions who are not yet of voting age.) There are various estimates of the total number of all unemployed which have been published; the American Federation of Labor's figure (one of the highest) for January was 12,600,000. This would indicate that youth presents at least two-thirds of the whole unemployment problem.

It is this idleness of so many young persons which has been blamed for a large share of the nation's crime in the last few years. It is not the working youth who steals automobiles and holds up filling stations and stores. In revealing that the 1935 "crime age" was nineteen years, the United States bureau of investigation declared that most criminal youths committed their crimes because they were in need of something and were not able to earn enough money to obtain it honestly.

Social forces and agencies are not apathetic to the crisis that youth faces. Indeed several movements are well under way to arrive at a solution of the problem. Universities, private business and government are all in the battle, and among the leaders are such names as Frances Perkins, secretary of labor; Owen D. Young, president of the General Electric company; Henry Ford; Aubrey Williams, director of the National Youth Administration, and former Gov. John G. Winant of New Hampshire, who is chairman of the social security board. Of course civic clubs, Y. M. C. A's., Catholic Youth organizations, Boy Scouts, 4-H clubs and similar organizations are of immeasurable assistance.

Certain effects, direct or indirect, of the activities of these and other groups are changing the status of youth for the better:

It is possible that the old age pension plans will create new jobs for young men and women through the retirement of their elders.

Stay in School Longer.

A tendency is being developed to keep the young folks in school longer, the NYA funds going for this purpose, largely. The effects of this tendency are several, among them that youths are learning to become more skillful workers and more competent citizens when they reach maturity; that thousands do not reach the stage where they are classed as "employables" until several years later than they would ordinarily; and that, with their time and their energies occupied and their security better established, youths are forgetting their tendencies toward crime.

The National Industrial Conference Board, of New York, has completed a survey which would indicate that youth is benefiting from the trend in industry to shorten the working week. This study, conducted on a nationwide scale among 2,453 businesses which employ 4,500,000 workers, reveals that the nation is gradually being educated to the five-day week, which permits sharing the work among more persons by staggering the working days. This would allow youth to enjoy a larger share of the jobs available.

From the combination of the forces which have been listed here the underlying problem of unemployment will ultimately be solved, and the result should be a general uplift in the morale of youth which will benefit our entire civilization. There is nothing quite so stimulating, so provocative to further ambition in youth than the jingle of coins earned from first jobs. It makes the average youth more interested in improving society in general because the spending of his own money gives him the feeling that he is a definite, contributing part of that society, rather than a "sponger" upon it.

Where to Find Jobs?

Opinions concerning the manner in which jobs for youth are to be found or created differ widely. They will have to be found outside agriculture and industry, it is claimed by Dr. Homer P. Rainey, director of the American Youth Commission.

Henry Ford, on the other hand, takes an altogether opposite view. The venerable Detroit automobile manufacturer believes that extraordinary methods or change in the form of government are unnecessary and unwanted. He advocates increasing the production of all kinds of usable wealth—this by relieving the producer from interference by governmental and financial agencies, which relief, he asserts, would remove the evils of underconsumption as well as underproduction.

Mr. Ford says that real wages would be constantly rising and "every human being who needs employment" would find a job if, "through distribution and service," increased production principles were carried out, embellished by a boost in wages and a decrease of prices.

The old adage that "youth must be served" does not apply when there are so many millions unemployed. It is only fair that the jobs available first go to family heads, and Miss Perkins reports that industries are returning family heads to work before youths. Her theory is that the additional purchasing power created by the returning of the older workers to employment and the demand for goods which will result will create still more jobs, and eventually these jobs will be filled by youth.

Youth Needed in Politics.

If politics recognizes a fertile field in the youth of the country, so will that youth find a fertile field in politics, says Joseph C. Fennelly of Kansas City, Mo., who denounces the corrupt political machines which are admittedly operating in many localities.

"No more clarion call challenges young America," he says, "than the call to save democracy, save it from politics and crime, the call to man democracy. That is the new job for youth.

"We hear the call. What if we stand almost alone? What if we have no ready answer to the prophets of the 'isms'? We know that there is something free and fine in the plan of life which the men of young American—young men, they were—designed for us 150 years ago. We can still believe and work. We may ask help and be refused. But we can ask again; demand, if need be."

Fifty million dollars of the President's $4,880,000,000 work-relief fund was turned over to Aubrey Williams and his National Youth Administration, with its four-fold purposes:

1. To find employment in private industry for unemployed youth.

2. To train and retrain for industrial, technical and professional opportunities.

3. To provide for a continuing attendance at high school and college.

4. To provide work-relief projects designed to meet the needs of youth.

Meanwhile the criminal-youth problem is with us, and while social forces are completing the job of finding employment for idle youth, immediate reforms along certain lines could be of assistance.

These college freshmen demonstrate how youthful energies and enthusiasms can be directed toward good, clean fun, as well as education.

NEW KITCHEN STOVE MAKES ITS OWN GAS

Housewives Marvel at Coleman Range That Lights Instantly Like City Gas Cooks a Meal with 2c Worth of Fuel

A new kitchen range that offers every cooking convenience of the finest city gas range is now available to housewives, wherever they live.

W. C. Coleman, pioneer inventor of gas-pressure appliances, brings to a lifetime of inventive genius his crowning achievement in this amazing new Coleman Safety Range. This new stove makes its own gas from ordinary, low-cost gasoline. A patented method of carburization converts low-cost fuel into gas, much the same as in present day automobile engines.

The Coleman Range lights instantly, like city gas. Its fuel-saving Band-A-Blu Burners, another of Mr. Coleman's outstanding developments, produce a clean, clear blue flame, so hot that a low flame does all ordinary cooking. Tests show an average family meal for five takes about 2c worth of fuel.

Coleman Ranges are finished in gleaming porcelain enamel. The three pleasing colors combine outstanding beauty with unequalled performance.

Readers of this paper wishing full information about these wonderful new Coleman Ranges may receive beautifully illustrated literature and a valuable stove chart by simply addressing a postcard to Mr. W. C. Coleman, Dept. WU-236, Wichita, Kansas.—Adv.

Pancho Villa as Seen by One Who "Knew Him When."

IN THE red annals of Mexican history, beginning with the arrival of Cortez, down through the ill-fated Maximillian's reign and afterward to that smoke-laden era dawning with the new century and unfolding under gunfire up to the assassination of Obregon, there have been many sensational and over-confident bad men who, by the bullet and the blade, went the way of all flesh.

If by popular vote the question could be decided, Pancho Villa, who graduated from a plain cattle thief into a world-famous revolutionary, would receive the palm for spectacularism. Many times have I crossed the trail of Pancho, and on each occasion fattened his biography with data amazing and almost unbelievable. His life was a mosaic, traced with human blood on the adobe of Mexico.

Recently, through Haymon Krupp, for many years a merchant in El Paso, today an oil operator in the Lone Star state, where he attained distinction by his development of the Big Lake fields, royalties from which made the University of Texas at Austin one of the richest educational institutions in the Union, I am privileged to add another chapter to the life of Pancho, the Damned.

Starts as a Drayman.

"He turned up at El Paso in 1909," said Mr. Krupp, "with a broken-down truck and one horse, seeking employment at delivering merchandise. I gave him work at so much per load. Although he did everything possible to ingratiate himself with me, I hadn't the slightest idea that his mission was the rounding of of revolutionists bent on liberating Mexico from the Diaz rule. That, however, was his mission. All else was sacrificed to such ends.

Pancho Gets Going Strong.

"Suddenly Pancho disappeared from El Paso, and with him, as was afterwards learned, a number of men and horses. The next news I got of Villa he had raided and was occupying Juarez with a few hundred followers and was recruiting an army, with a view to seizing power. He needed blankets for his troops. Would I trust him for $40,000? I sent a carload.

"It was not long before he had completely infested Juarez and the border and by virtue of his position, supported by 40,000 peons, forced recognition as leader. His next order for merchandise, amounting to $250,000, was accompanied by a trainload of confiscated Mexican cotton. I declined the security, but was advised by the American authorities that it was negotiable and could be sold by me. I accepted it as payment in full, and disposed of the lot at a profit. That was in 1910, with Pancho going strong."

The General Staff Meeting.

"Did you see him after he left El Paso and got in action?" I asked Krupp.

"Yes. I was summoned to attend a meeting of his general staff at Juarez, and asked why I did not ship the $125,000 order for blankets, shoes and supplies that had come to me two weeks before. I told him it was because he owed me $75,000 on a previous shipment, and with that he turned upon General Cajeda and demanded that he proceed at once to dig up that sum of money, no matter where he was obliged to get it. Cajeda beckoned me to follow him, which I did, just around the hall into another room, where I received the exact sum due in silver, Mexican and United States currency, with the positive assurance on Cajeda's part that Pancho would personally shoot him through the belly for letting that much cash exchange hands. Not so. I saw General Cajeda several times after that.

"But it was not beyond Pancho to shed blood with little provocation. It was his habit to send men to bury money in a certain spot and then kill them when they reported that orders had been carried out. My total transactions with Villa amounted to over $3,000,000, all of which he paid with exception of $175,000.

Tragic End of Revolutionist.

"Pancho was captured by Huerta, escaped into New Mexico, was chased by General Pershing, but got away to return in 1914 and joined Carranza against Huerta, then president. Later he turned against Carranza, was captured in 1915 and given a ranch in Paral by the Mexican government, where he lived in high style until 1923, when he was shot from ambush while driving his car with some convivial friends. No other occupant of the auto was hit. Abyssmal ignorance was the cause of his undoing. He could barely read, and in consequence became suspicious of all those around him. There can be no question about his genius for leadership, and in the beginning of his insurrection he had a Robin Hood's power. With a little more education and a sense of proportion, Villa might have loomed large in the history of his country."

If Russia Joined Japan
Not Heroic Action
Lloyd George Hopeful
England Still Safe

Editors talk about Asia, led by Japan, conquering the world. They might speculate on a union between Japan and Russia.

Arthur Brisbane

Improbable, you will say, truly, but if Russian-Japanese hostility could be changed into Russian-Japanese agreement a new world chapter might open.

You hear of Russia's "red army," 1,300,000 men, thoroughly armed, and 7,000,000 reserves. You see photographs of Russia's amphibian tanks, mounted with machine guns, rolling over the land and swimming rivers; you read about intensive training of tens of thousands of Russian air pilots, parachute jumpers, etc., and see even the broad-shouldered young Russian women drilling with rifles. Western Europe may have a problem closer at hand than Japan.

---

Our British cousins in the Revolution cheerfully let loose howling, scalping Indians on their cousins in the American colonies, and bolshevism might cheerfully turn Asiatic killing efficiency against western "capitalism."

You remember how cheerfully the great historian Gibbon predicted that, in the American war, "with firmness all may go well," because "Scotch Highlanders, Irish, Hanoverians, Canadians, Indians, etc., will all in various shapes be employed."

There is no reason why Russia of 1936 should be more squeamish now than England at the end of the Eighteenth century.

---

Lloyd George, who ought to know about Europe and war since he and old Clemenceau won the big war, tells Universal Service this present war is "off," France having learned that "even her most ardent friends in Europe shrink from war."

Lloyd George declares that peace "without derogating from the dignity of any of the powers" will be preserved, if France does not make it impossible.

Lloyd George says not 1 per cent of Englishmen would vote for war, and not 10 per cent for employing sanctions against Germany.

---

If enough rich Americans go to England to "escape kidnapers" the kidnapers may move over after them, as professional gamblers follow on big ships. London police arrested Alfred Molyneux, thirty-one, trying to extort $1,000 from the Countess Barbara Hutton Haugwitz-Reventlow, offering to reveal a plot to kidnap her baby. Police knew by the moderate price it could not be an American "snatcher" or confederate. Easily caught, the young man confessed he had invented the plot.

---

With "visibility cut to zero," street lights burning by day, not visible across the street, dust storms are blowing over parts of Oklahoma, Kansas, Colorado and New Mexico.

By such displays of nature's power, for which man's foolishness is responsible, fertile areas of the world have been changed to deserts.

---

A bill that would have limited work to five working days of six hours each, or thirty hours a week, is dead in congress for the time being. It would have given workers twenty-four hours off on Saturday and Sunday, eighteen hours off on every other day—eight hours for sleep, "ten hours for what we will." All that will come some day, but not by discouraging improved machinery.

---

An intelligent young man who fought well in the big war speaks of "the 2-to-1" advantage which modern methods give the defense over the attack. To let the other man or nation come at you, if you are prepared, has been wise in the past.

It might be different in future wars, if the attacker, with a couple of thousand airplanes, dropping explosive bombs and poison gas, should surprise the enemy. "Defense" would have no 2-to-1 advantage over that sort of attack.

---

Lloyds, the great English insurance concern, at first refused to insure against war at any price. Now Lloyds will insure, otherwise "bet," nine and a half to one against war within six months. Wall Street wanted that news and of course cheered up.

---

A mother of Fort Worth, Texas, offered her body to Chicago's Cook County hospital for dissection after natural death, if the hospital would provide a free operation for her son. The hospital declined the body, performed the free operation. Now twenty, all women but one, offer to sell their bodies, "delivered after death."

---

The governor of Campeche in Mexico, after keeping all churches in his state closed for more than a year and a half, now permits all to reopen.

A fight against religion often starts violently, to wind up feebly.

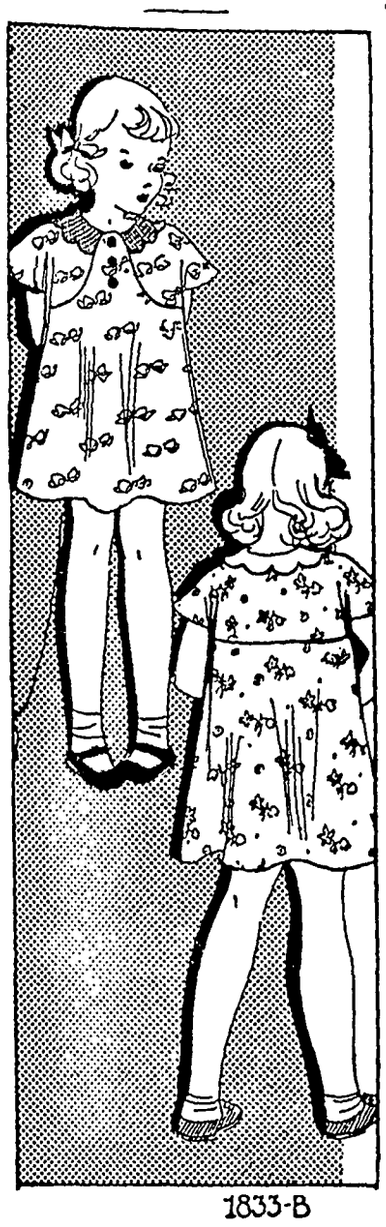
Distinctive Dress With Scalloped Collar for the Charming Little Girl



1833-B

Any little girl from two to six will look simply charming in this distinctive tiny frock which has a high waist finished off with a dainty scalloped collar, and three little buttons.

The shape of the collar gives the dress a fetchingly demure look that is adorable on all little girls. Notice the soft flare of the skirt and the loose short sleeves—simplicity is the keynote. This design requires a minimum of time and effort to make. Try it in gingham, wool challis, muslin or a silk with a wee little flower design. You can also make this version in a simple crepe which is used in party frocks.

Barbara Bell Pattern No. 1833-B is available for sizes: 2, 3, 4, 5 and 6 years. Size 4 requires 1¾ yards of 35-inch fabric, plus ½ yard of contrasting.

Send your order to The Sewing Circle Pattern Dept., 367 W. Adams St., Chicago, Ill.

Schoolmistress Had Class That "Knew" the Answers

An education officer of Sofia, inspecting the first class of a school, was very much impressed by the alacrity with which all the children held up their hands when their schoolmistress asked them a question; and whenever she singled out a child to give the answer, that child invariably knew it.

He congratulated the schoolmistress upon the success of her teaching. Thereat she blushed and hesitatingly explained that she had taught all the children to hold up their right hands when they knew the answers to her questions and their left hands when they did not. Of course she had only asked for answers from children who had held up their right hands as a sign that they knew.—New York Times.

Find Picture of Adam and Eve on Tablet of 4000 B. C.

The great mound of Tepe Gawra in northern Iraq, composed of the ruins of ancient cities built successively one on the other, has yielded another clew to the past. This most recent find, announced by Dr. E. A. Spelser, of the University of Pennsylvania, concerns the Bible. It is a clay tablet on which are impressed the figures of a man, a woman, and a serpent. Archeologists, quite naturally, think these figures may represent Adam and Eve. And since the estimated age of the tablet is about 6,000 years, it indicates the story of the first man and woman was passed down among the ancients many years before it was recorded in the Bible.—Pathfinder Magazine.

Relics of Lost Hittites Found; Indicate Culture

What is believed to be the first step toward the discovery of the lost Hittites, who appear in the Bible as a great imperial power, has been found in Asia Minor. In a 4,000-year-old tomb was discovered a Hittite statue of a bull, seven inches high and inlaid with gold. The silversmith's art is astonishingly modern, and indicates that the race was cultured rather than primitive as previously believed.

The discovery has aroused great interest among European archeologists because previously nothing had been known of the Hittites' work except rock carving and a few potsherds.

Major Political Parties Recognize Increased Importance of "First Voters" in Election Next November.

By WILLIAM C. UTLEY

WITH one of the most spirited presidential elections of many years in prospect for this coming November, both major parties are recognizing as never before the political importance of American youth.

Since the Roosevelt landslide of 1932, seven or eight million boys and girls have become men and women and eligible to vote. This vast army of first voters makes up a block of votes greater than the plurality by which Roosevelt defeated Hoover.

Ordinarily the vote of these young people for one candidate or the other could be forecast to a certain extent, because of the custom of first voters assuming the party allegiances of their fathers which has prevailed in the United States for so long. But youth of 1936 is going to vote with a mind of its own.

There are obvious reasons for this. Times have changed. The party now in power is not the Democratic party as the fathers of these young men and women knew it. It has transcended old party boundaries in a number of ways. It is reasonable to suppose that a good share of the youths who might have cast their vote for an old guard Democratic candidate will vote Republican next fall. By the same token the New Deal, with its vigor and sweeping operation appealing to youth of a certain type, will draw some votes which would have been Republican in the old days.

The end of the trail. These two misguided youths were captured and convicted of hundreds of robberies in and around Cleveland.

Parties Organize Youth.

Both parties are well along toward organizing the younger voters in the campaign. Democrats of the ages of about twenty-one to forty are being induced to join the Young Democratic Clubs of America, under Frank Wickhem of Sioux Falls, S. D., while the Young Republicans are being organized by J. Kenneth Bradley, former state senator in Connecticut, and Miss Dolly Madison.

Naturally the two movements must operate under different conditions. The party in power is in control of federal patronage and rewards for party service, and can work its campaign on that basis. The other party must base its appeal largely on principles and issues.

With American youth holding so much weight in the political balance, it would not be amiss to review the situation in which this class finds itself today.

According to information supplied by the National Youth Administration, there are in this country approximately 23,000,000 persons between the ages of sixteen and twenty-five. Thirty-four per cent of these millions are "out of work, out of school or in relief families." About 15,000,000 are working or are in school. It is estimated that approximately 300,000 of the young people now being supported by relief have never had any kind of jobs. Figures released by the International Labor Office at Geneva, Switzerland, a few months ago indicated that one-fourth of all the persons in the world listed as unemployed were less than twenty-five years of age.

Blame Idle Youth for Crime.

The 8,000,000 youths unemployed in the United States today present a grave social problem, as well as an economic one. (This figure must not be confused with the total of 8,000,000 first voters, as the unemployed youth total includes millions who are not yet of voting age.) There are various estimates of the total number of all unemployed which have been published; the American Federation of Labor's figure (one of the highest) for January was 12,600,000. This would indicate that youth presents at least two-thirds of the whole unemployment problem.

It is this idleness of so many young persons which has been blamed for a large share of the nation's crime in the last few years. It is not the working youth who steals automobiles and holds up filling stations and stores. In revealing that the 1935 "crime age" was nineteen years, the United States bureau of investigation declared that most criminal youths committed their crimes because they were in need of something and were not able to earn enough money to obtain it honestly.

Social forces and agencies are not apathetic to the crisis that youth faces. Indeed several movements are well under way to arrive at a solution of the problem. Universities, private business and government are all in the battle, and among the leaders are such names as Frances Perkins, secretary of labor; Owen D. Young, president of the General Electric company; Henry Ford; Aubrey Williams, director of the National Youth Administration, and former Gov. John G. Winant of New Hampshire, who is chairman of the social security board. Of course civic clubs, Y. M. C. A's., Catholic Youth organizations, Boy Scouts, 4-H clubs and similar organizations are of immeasurable assistance.

Certain effects, direct or indirect, of the activities of these and other groups are changing the status of youth for the better:

It is possible that the old age pension plans will create new jobs for young men and women through the retirement of their elders.

Stay in School Longer.

A tendency is being developed to keep the young folks in school longer, the NYA funds going for this purpose, largely. The effects of this tendency are several, among them that youths are learning to become more skillful workers and more competent citizens when they reach maturity; that thousands do not reach the stage where they are classed as "employables" until several years later than they would ordinarily; and that, with their time and their energies occupied and their security better established, youths are forgetting their tendencies toward crime.

The National Industrial Conference Board, of New York, has completed a survey which would indicate that youth is benefiting from the trend in industry to shorten the working week. This study, conducted on a nationwide scale among 2,453 businesses which employ 4,500,000 workers, reveals that the nation is gradually being educated to the five-day week, which permits sharing the work among more persons by staggering the working days. This would allow youth to enjoy a larger share of the jobs available.

From the combination of the forces which have been listed here the underlying problem of unemployment will ultimately be solved, and the result should be a general uplift in the morale of youth which will benefit our entire civilization. There is nothing quite so stimulating, so provocative to further ambition in youth than the jingle of coins earned from first jobs. It makes the average youth more interested in improving society in general because the spending of his own money gives him the feeling that he is a definite, contributing part of that society, rather than a "sponger" upon it.

Where to Find Jobs?

Opinions concerning the manner in which jobs for youth are to be found or created differ widely. They will have to be found outside agriculture and industry, it is claimed by Dr. Homer P. Rainey, director of the American Youth Commission.

Henry Ford, on the other hand, takes an altogether opposite view. The venerable Detroit automobile manufacturer believes that extraordinary methods or change in the form of government are unnecessary and unwanted. He advocates increasing the production of all kinds of usable wealth—this by relieving the producer from interference by governmental and financial agencies, which relief, he asserts, would remove the evils of underconsumption as well as underproduction.

Mr. Ford says that real wages would be constantly rising and "every human being who needs employment" would find a job if, "through distribution and service," increased production principles were carried out, embellished by a boost in wages and a decrease of prices.

The old adage that "youth must be served" does not apply when there are so many millions unemployed. It is only fair that the jobs available first go to family heads, and Miss Perkins reports that industries are returning family heads to work before youths. Her theory is that the additional purchasing power created by the returning of the older workers to employment and the demand for goods which will result will create still more jobs, and eventually these jobs will be filled by youth.

Youth Needed in Politics.

If politics recognizes a fertile field in the youth of the country, so will that youth find a fertile field in politics, says Joseph C. Fennelly of Kansas City, Mo., who denounces the corrupt political machines which are admittedly operating in many localities.

"No more clarion call challenges young America," he says, "than the call to save democracy, save it from politics and crime, the call to man democracy. That is the new job for youth.

"We hear the call. What if we stand almost alone? What if we have no ready answer to the prophets of the 'isms'? We know that there is something free and fine in the plan of life which the men of young American—young men, they were—designed for us 150 years ago. We can still believe and work. We may ask help and be refused. But we can ask again; demand, if need be."

Fifty million dollars of the President's $4,880,000,000 work-relief fund was turned over to Aubrey Williams and his National Youth Administration, with its four-fold purposes:

1. To find employment in private industry for unemployed youth.

2. To train and retrain for industrial, technical and professional opportunities.

3. To provide for a continuing attendance at high school and college.

4. To provide work-relief projects designed to meet the needs of youth.

Meanwhile the criminal-youth problem is with us, and while social forces are completing the job of finding employment for idle youth, immediate reforms along certain lines could be of assistance.

These college freshmen demonstrate how youthful energies and enthusiasms can be directed toward good, clean fun, as well as education.

NEW KITCHEN STOVE MAKES ITS OWN GAS

Housewives Marvel at Coleman Range That Lights Instantly Like City Gas—Cooks a Meal with 2c Worth of Fuel

A new kitchen range that offers every cooking convenience of the finest city gas range is now available to housewives, wherever they live.

W. C. Coleman, pioneer inventor of gas-pressure appliances, brings to a lifetime of inventive genius his crowning achievement in this amazing new Coleman Safety Range. This new stove makes its own gas from ordinary, leaded, low-test gasoline. A patented method of carburization converts liquid fuel into gas, much the same as in present day automobile engines.

The Coleman Range lights instantly, like city gas. Its fuel-saving Band-A-Blu Burners, another of Mr. Coleman's outstanding developments, produce a clean, clear blue flame, so hot that a low flame does all ordinary cooking. Tests show an average family meal for five takes about 2c worth of fuel.

Coleman Ranges are finished in gleaming porcelain enamel. The pleasing colors combine outstanding beauty with unequalled performance.

Readers of this paper wishing full information about these wonderful new Coleman Ranges will receive beautifully illustrated literature and a valuable stove chef's chart by simply addressing a postcard to Mr. W. C. Coleman, Dept. WU-236, Wichita, Kansas.—Adv.

Pancho Villa as Seen by One Who "Knew Him When."

IN THE red annals of Mexican history, beginning with the arrival of Cortez, down through the ill-fated Maximillian's reign and afterward to that smoke-laden era dawning with the new century and unfolding under gunfire up to the assassination of Obregon, there have been many sensational and over-confident bad men who, by the bullet and the blade, went the way of all flesh.

If by popular vote the question could be decided, Pancho Villa, who graduated from a plain cattle thief into a world-famous revolutionary, would receive the palm for spectacularism. Many times have I crossed the trail of Pancho, and on each occasion fattened his biography with data amazing and almost unbelievable. His life was a mosaic, traced with human blood on the adobe of Mexico.

Recently, through Haymon Krupp, for many years a merchant in El Paso, today an oil operator in the Lone Star state, where he attained distinction by his development of the Big Lake fields, royalties from which made the University of Texas at Austin one of the richest educational institutions in the Union, I am privileged to add another chapter to the life of Pancho, the Damned.

Starts as a Drayman.

"He turned up at El Paso in 1909," said Mr. Krupp, "with a broken-down truck and one horse, seeking employment at delivering merchandise. I gave him work at so much per load. Although he did everything possible to ingratiate himself with me, I hadn't the slightest idea that his mission was the rounding of of revolutionists bent on liberating Mexico from the Diaz rule. That, however, was his mission. All else was sacrificed to such ends.

Pancho Gets Going Strong.

"Suddenly Pancho disappeared from El Paso, and with him, as was afterwards learned, a number of men and horses. The next news I got of Villa he had raided and was occupying Juarez with a few hundred followers and was recruiting an army, with a view to seizing power. He needed blankets for his troops. Would I trust him for $40,000? I sent a carload.

"It was not long before he had completely infested Juarez and the border and by virtue of his position, supported by 40,000 peons, forced recognition as leader. His next order for merchandise, amounting to $250,000, was accompanied by a trainload of confiscated Mexican cotton. I declined the security, but was advised by the American authorities that it was negotiable and could be sold by me. I accepted it as payment in full, and disposed of the lot at a profit. That was in 1910, with Pancho going strong."

The General Staff Meeting.

"Did you see him after he left El Paso and got in action?" I asked Krupp.

"Yes. I was summoned to attend a meeting of his general staff at Juarez, and asked why I did not ship the $125,000 order for blankets, shoes and supplies that had come to me two weeks before. I told him it was because he owed me $75,000 on a previous shipment, and with that he turned upon General Cajeda and demanded that he proceed at once to dig up that sum of money, no matter where he was obliged to get it. Cajeda beckoned me to follow him, which I did, just around the hall into another room, where I received the exact sum due in silver, Mexican and United States currency, with the positive assurance on Cajeda's part that Pancho would personally shoot him through the belly for letting that much cash exchange hands. Not so. I saw General Cajeda several times after that.

"But it was not beyond Pancho to shed blood with little provocation. It was his habit to send men to bury money in a certain spot and then kill them when they reported that orders had been carried out. My total transactions with Villa amounted to over $3,000,000, all of which he paid with exception of $175,000.

Tragic End of Revolutionist.

"Pancho was captured by Huerta, escaped into New Mexico, was chased by General Pershing, but got away to return in 1914 and joined Carranza against Huerta, then president. Later he turned against Carranza, was captured in 1915 and given a ranch in Paral by the Mexican government, where he lived in high style until 1923, when he was shot from ambusb while driving his car with some convivial friends. No other occupant of the auto was hit. Abyssmal ignorance was the cause of his undoing. He could barely read, and in consequence became suspicious of all those around him. There can be no question about his genius for leadership, and in the beginning of his insurrection he had a Robin Hood's power. With a little more education and a sense of proportion, Villa might have loomed large in the history of his country."

If Russia Joined Japan
Not Heroic Action
Lloyd George Hopeful
England Still Safe

Editors talk about Asia, led by Japan, conquering the world. They might speculate on a union between Japan and Russia.

Arthur Brisbane

Improbable, you will say, truly, but if Russian-Japanese hostility could be changed into Russian-Japanese agreement a new world chapter might open.

You hear of Russia's "red army," 1,300,000 men, thoroughly armed, and 7,000,000 reserves. You see photographs of Russia's amphibian tanks, mounted with machine guns, rolling over the land and swimming rivers; you read about intensive training of tens of thousands of Russian air pilots, parachute jumpers, etc., and see even the broad-shouldered young Russian women drilling with rifles. Western Europe may have a problem closer at hand than Japan.

Our British cousins in the Revolution cheerfully let loose howling, scalping Indians on their cousins in the American colonies, and bolshevism might cheerfully turn Asiatic killing efficiency against western "capitalism."

You remember how cheerfully the great historian Gibbon predicted that, in the American war, "with firmness all may go well," because "Scotch Highlanders, Irish, Hanoverians, Canadians, Indians, etc., will all in various shapes be employed."

There is no reason why Russia of 1936 should be more squeamish now than England at the end of the Eighteenth century.

Lloyd George, who ought to know about Europe and war since he and old Clemenceau won the big war, tells Universal Service this present war is "off," France having learned that "even her most ardent friends in Europe shrink from war."

Lloyd George declares that peace "without derogating from the dignity of any of the powers" will be preserved, if France does not make it impossible.

Lloyd George says not 1 per cent of Englishmen would vote for war, and not 10 per cent for employing sanctions against Germany.

If enough rich Americans go to England to "escape kidnapers" the kidnapers may move over after them, as professional gamblers follow on big ships. London police arrested Alfred Molyneux, thirty-one, trying to extort $1,000 from the Countess Barbara Hutton Haugwitz-Reventlow, offering to reveal a plot to kidnap her baby. Police knew by the moderate price it could not be an American "snatcher" or confederate. Easily caught, the young man confessed he had invented the plot.

With "visibility cut to zero," street lights burning by day, not visible across the street, dust storms are blowing over parts of Oklahoma, Kansas, Colorado and New Mexico.

By such displays of nature's power, for which man's foolishness is responsible, fertile areas of the world have been changed to deserts.

A bill that would have limited work to five working days of six hours each, or thirty hours a week, is dead in congress for the time being. It would have given workers twenty-four hours off on Saturday and Sunday, eighteen hours off on every other day—eight hours for sleep, "ten hours for what we will." All that will come some day, but not by discouraging improved machinery.

An intelligent young man who fought well in the big war speaks of "the 2-to-1" advantage which modern methods give the defense over the attack. To let the other man or nation come at you, if you are prepared, has been wise in the past.

It might be different in future wars, if the attacker, with a couple of thousand airplanes, dropping explosive bombs and poison gas, should surprise the enemy. "Defense" would have no 2-to-1 advantage over that sort of attack.

Lloyds, the great English insurance concern, at first refused to insure against war at any price. Now Lloyds will insure, otherwise "bet," nine and a half to one against war within six months. Wall Street wanted that news and of course cheered up.

A mother of Fort Worth, Texas, offered her body to Chicago's Cook County hospital for dissection after natural death, if the hospital would provide a free operation for her son. The hospital declined the body, performed the free operation. Now twenty, all women but one, offer to sell their bodies, "delivered after death."

The governor of Campeche in Mexico, after keeping all churches in his state closed for more than a year and a half, now permits all to reopen.

A fight against religion often starts violently, to wind up feebly.

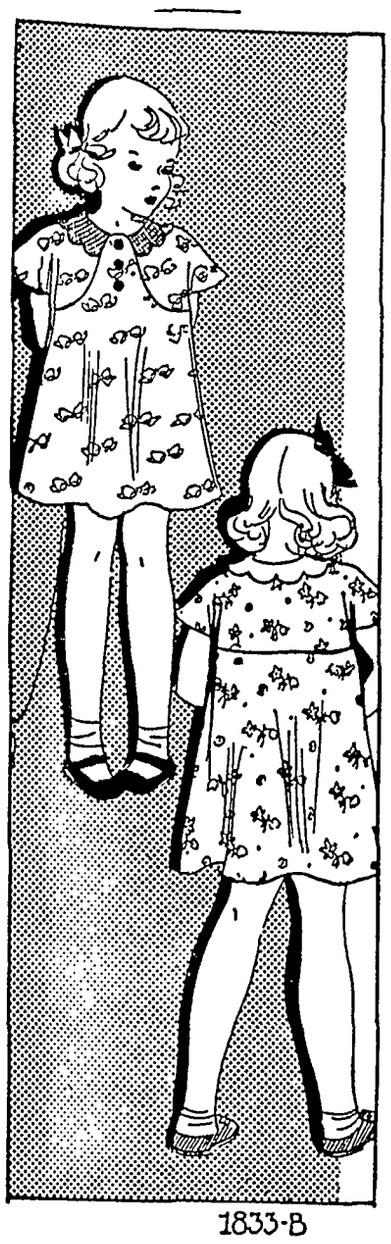
Distinctive Dress With Scalloped Collar for the Charming Little Girl



1833-B

Any little girl from two to six will look simply charming in this distinctive tiny frock which has a high waist finished off with a dainty scalloped collar, and three little buttons.

The shape of the collar gives the dress a fetchingly demure look that is adorable on all little girls. Notice the soft flare of the skirt and the loose short sleeves—simplicity is the keynote. This design requires a minimum of time and effort to make. Try it in gingham, wool challis, muslin or a silk with a wee little flower design. You can also make this version in a simple crepe which is used in party frocks.

Barbara Bell Pattern No. 1833-B is available for sizes: 2, 3, 4, 5 and 6 years. Size 4 requires 1⅝ yards of 35-inch fabric, plus ⅛ yard of contrasting.

Send your order to The Sewing Circle Pattern Dept., 367 W. Adams St., Chicago, Ill.

Schoolmistress Had Class That "Knew" the Answers

An education officer of Sofia, inspecting the first class of a school, was very much impressed by the alacrity with which all the children held up their hands when their schoolmistress asked them a question; and whenever she singled out a child to give the answer, that child invariably knew it.

He congratulated the schoolmistress upon the success of her teaching. Thereat she blushed and hesitatingly explained that she had taught all the children to hold up their right hands when they knew the answers to her questions and their left hands when they did not. Of course she had only asked for answers from children who had held up their right hands as a sign that they knew.—New York Times.

Find Picture of Adam and Eve on Tablet of 4000 B. C.

The great mound of Tepe Gawra in northern Iraq, composed of the ruins of ancient cities built successively one on the other, has yielded another clew to the past. This most recent find, announced by Dr. E. A. Speiser, of the University of Pennsylvania, concerns the Bible. It is a clay tablet on which are impressed the figures of a man, a woman, and a serpent. Archeologists, quite naturally, think these figures may represent Adam and Eve. And since the estimated age of the tablet is about 6,000 years, it indicates the story of the first man and woman was passed down among the ancients many years before it was recorded in the Bible.—Pathfinder Magazine.

John Havlik Tells Of His Experiences In Mexico

y special request I will attempt et down herein some of the in- nts and facts that I witnessed ing a tour of the southern states Mexico this past winter. Travel- in company with Mr. John Hol- of Britt, I left on the 17th of ember, routing by way of Jeffer- City, Memphis and Vicksburg. first radical change in topogra- and farming methods I witness- between Jefferson City and la. Farms here consisted of a dilapidated shack, 1 or 2 acres corn, 1 mule, a plow and a few (semi-wild) roaming thru the ber. The Mississippi river bot- lands were mile after mile a ettlion of Negro shacks and cot- fields. Spending a forenoon in ksburg we drove thru the Na- al Military Cemetery and visited Museum of Civil War relics. An hor of a Union gun boat was ught to this Museum just a day ore our visit. Some of the origin- trenches can still be seen on the unds.

Crossing the river by ferry, our t stop was Monroe, La. Here the wers were blooming and children re shooting firecrackers, remind- me very much of a 4th of July Iowa.

Turning southward again and veling parallel to the Gulf, we ve through the town of Beau- n, Galveston and Houston, Tex. ally reaching the southern-most of Texas. This territory, re- imed by irrigation, is devoted cipally to the raising of citrus its and vegetables. During the t year the valley shipped 20,000 loads of fruits and vegetables; ny carloads being destined for eign markets.

Making a one day excursion into tamoras, Mexico, we first visited e market. As the Mexicans desire eir foods well seasoned we found e market strongly fortified with ions and garlic. All foods are enly exposed for public handling d inspection. Many fruits are in a te of decomposition, but seem to main in their tray day after day. cidentally the Mexicans are of- ded and resent the act, if any reigner holds his nose. A visit to e cemetery disclosed the fact that ults are opened and bones are own out if the rent on the vault ould lapse. At a local cafe we re given a choice of two out of ree meats. I chose venison and ail. In addition we were given her Mexican dishes of Tamales, rtillas and a Bean custard.

In leaving the valley we followed e river road to Laredo, a city of ,000, which is port of entry into exico on the Pan-American high- ay. Eighty percent of its popula- on is Mexican Consequently, with is majority, the town officials are ericans also. Having purchased ur passports ($1.12 apeice), our re numbers were checked, also the otor number, and leaving our re- istration card at the border we ere allowed to proceed.

After we ascended Mamuligue as a short drive brought us to ont rey, a city 150,000. The main oroughfare encircles the entire ity. The majority of the other roads re one-way streets. This town of- rs the tourist a wonderful exam- ple of extremes and contrasts. A leet of Oldsmobile taxis stand wait- ng at the depot. While on that self ame street you may pass yokes of xen pulling their loaded two-wheel art. Still further down the street ou may pass a Mexican riding a onkey and finally you will pass a exican peon, trudging wearily be- ind his burro, with peices of tire rapped to his bare feet, his only oments to the spirit of progress.

There are homes that rival the rchitecture of those displayed at he Century of progress in '33. Yet arcely half mile distant you may nd a squalid hut, made of cane talks and with a thatched roof, while pigs and chickens walk in and out the door, semmingly with the same privileges as those acoorded members of the family.

In driving to Satillo we ascended from an elevation of 1700 feet to 5300 feet. The town being adver- tiseed as the mile-high city. Here we visited the factory where the beautiful Mexican shawls (serapes in Spanish) are made. Having first dyed the wool, the serapes are then made on old fashioned shuttle looms. Purchasing a number of these we returned to Monterey and the next day proceeded to Victoria

In all the miles we traveled in Mexico we saw two teams of horses and two tractors. The farmers still use wooden plows as described in Biblical history, merely a pointed log with an extension by which it is guided, while the oxen are yoked to their horns. A few have modern steel walking plows. Having seen a number of farmers drag brush ac- cross their fields we later came to the realization that this was their method of harrowing their soil.

Returning to the border a brief inspection by the Mexican customs and then we crossed over to the American side where we fared not quite as well. A more extensive in- spection by the American customs forced us to leave a few pounds of potatoes at the customs office, not withstanding the fact that they were purchased in Texas prior to our entry into Mexico.

During a short stay in San An- tonio we visited Brakenridge park and later the Alamo. It was in the Alamo, still standing, that 170 Texans were massacred by the Mex- icans under General Santa Anna in 1836.

Approaching Oklahoma City we drove into a dust storm and at times visibility was reduced to forty rods. We arrived home on the 30th of March, having traveled approxi- mately 5,000 miles in a 1918 model T Ford.

In so doing, we gained for our- selves the unique distinction of hav- ing driven the longest distance, in driving the oldest Ford the great- est distance into Mexico.

Sincerely,

J. L. HAVLIK, Garner

VIRGIL COOK HAS HIGH HERD IN HANCOCK C. T. A.

Virgil Cook, of Klemme, holds the honor of having the highest producing herd in the Hancock County Cow Testing Association for the month of March, 1936. His herd of fourteen with one cow dry aver- aged 1292 pounds of milk and 45 5 pounds of butterfat Quite a num- ber of these cows are descendants of the cow called 'Grannie" who held the state butter championship a few years ago. To this herd he feeds a ration of 400 pounds ground barley, 400 pounds ground oats and 100 pounds cracked soy beans. His feed bill amounted to $76 12 "Feed the grain raised" is his motto. Herein lies the secret of farm profit.

Harold Quintus of Garner holds second place with his herd, having an average of 1241 pounds milk and 44 pounds butterfat. He has 18 cows in the herd with one dry.

Bothland Ormsby Pontiac, a cow owned by I. C. Hastings of Garner holds the butterfat and milk record for the month with 3040 pounds milk and 94.2 pounds buttertat. This cow produced over 95 pounds butterfat since December 12, 1935, and giving an average of 97 pounds of milk per day.

Mr. and Mrs. John Larson receiv- ed a message the forepart of the week stating that John's brother, Merinus Larson, had died at his home in Montana.

An Easter Poem

"When Christ Arose"

By Amy Vance Weeks

When Christ arose on Easter day,
The sunbeams burst through clouds of gray;
The violets bloomed their bluest blue
And hyacinths increased in hue
While jonquils looked a bit more gay!

The hilltop breezes stopped to play
With tulips blooming by the way;
The starry-eyed narcissus knew
When Christ arose!

As angels rolled the stone away,
A choir of lilies breathed a lay;
Wee buds were christened with the dew,
And bluebells chimed the anthems through!
Each flower rejoiced and knelt to pray
When Christ arose.

FORMER KLEMME RESIDENTS PARENTS OF CHAMPION BABY

Henry Linne, Jr., Is Believed To Be North Iowa Record Holder

Henry Jr., the 16 pound young- ster who arrived at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Linne. of Clear Lake, at 2 o'clock last Sunday mor- ning, is the fifth child in a family of sturdy youngsters.

Henry is believed to be about the heaviest baby ever born in this sec- tion of the country, but his young sister, Gertrude Marie, 5 years old, was only 3 pounds short of his weight when she was born.

Mrs. Linne, of German descent, is a woman with many of the ideals typical of the pioneers of this state. Mr. Linne, who came to this coun- try from Sweden is a hardworking carpenter. At present he is engaged in building the new schoolhouse at Clear Lake. The Linnes, who have resided in Clear Lake for many years, are former residents of the Klemme community.

SEED CORN OFFERED FOR SALE MUST BE LABELED

All seed exposed, advertised or offered for sale in Iowa is required by state law to be properly labeled and the label on seed corn must give the percentage of germination, month and year tested, year grown and in what county and state grown.

Attention is called to this require- ment because the germination of seed corn is lower than usual this year in Iowa, and many dealers are forced to sell lower quality seed.

One difficulty which seed corn dealers are faced with is the varia- tion within samples. For example, it is practically impossible in any year to obtain large quantities of seed that will germinate 100 per- cent. One test might show a germin- ation of 100, a second 97 and an- other 98 or 99 percent.

In general the higher the germi- nation, the less variability one may expect in making different tests of the same sample of seed corn.

The following table of tolerances is published to inform farmers of the natural variation that may be found when a certain sample of corn is tested more than once. If a second or third test finds the germi- nation falling within the allowable variation, there is no need believ- ing that the seed was improperly labeled. If a sample tests much ower the dealer should be notified and other tests made.

Table of Tolerances

Seed corn testing:
over 90 percent—6 percent variation
80 to 90 percent—7 % variation
70 to 80 percent—8 % variation
60 to 70 percent—9 % variation less than 60 percent—10 % variation

PRE-EASTER CONCERTS GIVEN AT KLEMME CHURCHES

The Klemme community enjoyed two fine pre-Easter musical con- certs when the Methodist Choir gave their Easter Cantata at the church Sunday evening, and The Troubadours of the Mission House Col- lege gave their concert at the Re- formed Church Monday evening.

Both of these fine music concerts were well attended and greatly en- joyed by lovers of fine music in the community.

BOARD NAMES W. H. GALBRETH FOR SUPERINTENDENCY

Has Had Extensive Teaching Work And Is Well Trained

At a special meeting Saturday evening, the Klemme school board met to consider engaging a superin- tendent for the coming year. W. Henry Galbreth, who has been prin- cipal in the high school at Hospers, Iowa, in Sioux county in the north- west corner of the state was selected as being the best qualified for the position.

Mr. Galbreth's credentials were found to be the best out of around fifteen applicants for the job. Mr. Galbreth, who is 28 years old, is married, has had extensive teaching experience and has fitted himself for a superintendency for attending summer schools for the past years and making a special study of school management.

The Board expects to hire the balance of the teaching staff Mon- day night. So far contracts for teaching have been signed by A. L. Kingery, Miss Barz and Miss Azel- tine, according to Pres. H. F. Jost.

FRED OXLEY IS CANDIDATE FOR SUPERVISOR

F. J. Oxley, Corwith, and former member of the Board of Supervisors of Hancock County, is this week placing his announcement in the press of the county that he is a can- didate for the term beginning Janu- ary 1, 1938.

Penn Eckles' term as supervisor expires on that date.

Mr. Oxley needs no introduction to the voters of the county and Mr. Oxley says to tell our readers, "My past record is my O. K."

U-DELT-EM CLUB MEETS

Mrs. A. H. Dulmes was hostess to the U-Delt-Em Club Thursday after- noon. Her sister, Mrs. Lida Filkins, of Grundy Center, was a guest. Mrs C. G. Waterman received high prize Mrs. Earl Schaeffer, second high, and Mrs. R. A. Jorgenson, the lucky number prize. A delicious lunch was served.

WILL BUILD NEW CORN CRIB AND GRANARY

Verner Stromer is completing plans for the construction of a new corn crib and granary which he will build on his farm a mile north of Klemme his summer. The Verner Stromer farm is one of the nicest looking and best improved along highway No. 69.

Flandin Calls on Germany for a Showdown

PIERRE-ETIENNE FLANDIN, French foreign minister, speaking at Vezelay, demanded in the name of his government that Adolf Hitler lay his cards on the table, and intimated that unless Germany gives concrete proof of no aggressive intentions in central or western Europe, France will decline to negotiate further with the reich and will prepare for war. Flandin made it clear that France will stand firmly with her allies, the little entente and Russia. Said he:

M. Flandin

"The Fuehrer says Germany does not want to take anything from anybody, but he already had said that after the Saar plebiscite. He then also reaffirmed the Locarno treaty, which since has been repudiated. In the name of the integral sovereignty of the German people, does the Fuehrer intend, when he thinks the moment favorable, to bring up the Danzig question?

"When he proposes a nonaggression pact with Lithuania does he accept definitely the status of Memel or is he just stalling for time to prepare new deeds of force in violation of treaties?

"If Germany intends to assert her right to possess and exploit colonies, what colonies is she going to claim?

"Is it not significant that at the moment Hitler launches his peace appeal, Nazi propaganda is redoubling in Austria, Danish Schleswig, Polish Silesia, among the German minority in Czechoslovakia, and even in German Switzerland?

"Yes or no, does Hitler renounce annexation and even full absorption of the populations of these territories into the reich, or does he proclaim that these are internal affairs of the German people in which he does not intend to let other nations meddle?

"If the latter case be the truth, then we understand why Germany is rearming at a record pace."

Germany Almost Solidly Supports Hitler

GERMANY'S men and women to the number of 44,389,140 declared by their votes in the reichstag elections that they supported the policies of Hitler. Only 542,808 had the nerve to vote against the reichsfuehrer, and a still smaller fraction refused to go to the polls. Among the latter were the former Crown Prince Ruprecht of Bavaria and his wife.

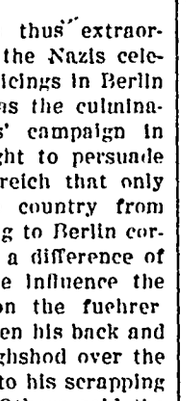
Hitler's victory was thus extraordinarily complete, and the Nazis celebrated it with wild rejoicings in Berlin and other cities. It was the culmination of a three years' campaign in which the leaders sought to persuade the population of the reich that only Hitler could save the country from great danger. According to Berlin correspondents, there was a difference of opinion there as to the influence the triumph would have on the fuehrer. Some said it would stiffen his back and induce him to ride roughshod over the powers which objected to his scrapping of the Locarno pact. Others said the election would make him feel so strong he would be willing to make a concession to his neighbors in an effort to help establish "the new order in Europe" to which he referred so frequently in his election speeches.

The new reichstag will be the largest in history, having about 740 members. Most of them will be officials of the Nazi party.

For the first time in the history of aviation a polling booth was established in the air. It was aboard the new dirigible Von Hindenburg, whose 104 passengers and crew voted solidly for Hitler. The Hindenburg and the Graf Zeppelin cruised over the Saar and the Rhineland all day long.

Japan Expects Trouble With Soviet Russia

THOUGH Koki Hirota, the new Japanese premier, said a few days ago that while he was in office there would be no war, it is evident his government really is looking for serious trouble with Russia. This feeling is expressed by Eiji Amau, spokesman for the Tokyo foreign office, who said: "Japan must prepare for Soviet aggression."



Eiji Amau

Recent activities indicate the Reds are availing themselves of the critical situation which developed after the recent military revolt in Tokyo and are increasing the strength of their troops along the Manchukuan border."

Amau said the "recent Soviet policy has been to fire on any persons near the border." He said he regards this a rather strange behavior on the part of a "friendly neighbor." He said Premier Hirota had protested the alleged action to K. K. Yurenev, Russian ambassador to Japan.

Almost every day there are reports of clashes on the Mongolian border, each side blaming the other as aggressors. The Outer Mongolian government, reinforced by conclusion of its mutual assistance pact with Soviet Russia, dispatched a note to the Japanese-sponsored state of Manchukuo, declaring its readiness to resist any invasion.

Italian Bombers Wreck Second Ethiopian City

MUSSOLINI'S air bombers were busy again in Ethiopia, virtually ruining Harar, second city of that country, with a downpour of explosives. Most of the populace had fled when scouting planes gave a warning of what was to come, so the casualties were few. An official telephone message from Harar to Addis Ababa said fifteen incendiary bombs struck the Egyptian Red Cross hospital and others hit the Ethiopian Red Cross hospital.

A French mission, the French consulate, the Ethiopian radio station and prison all were reported officially to have been ruined.

The attack on Harar, coupled with a heavy bombardment of Jijiga, fifty miles east of Harar and a center of Ethiopia's southern defenses, raised native fears in Addis Ababa that the capital itself might be the next target.

Government in Business Decried by Committee

ACCORDING to the committee on government competition with private enterprise, whose report has been made to the President, that practice is wholly destructive except in situations where the public welfare can only thus be served. "The government's function," the report said, "is to protect economic activities of its citizens and not to supplant them."

The committee unanimously agreed that only under the following conditions is the government justified in entering into competition with private enterprise:

1. When required to assure adequate preparation for, and creation of, the facilities for national defense.

2. For the conservation of natural resources.

3. When private enterprise fails to conduct needed scientific research and exploratory activities to advance industrial development, or in the interest of public health and safety.

4. When private enterprise fails to render a service necessary for the general welfare.

Alien Deportation Bill Reported to Senate

DESPITE vigorous opposition, which will reappear on the floor of the senate, the senate committee on immigration and naturalization reported favorably the Kerr-Coolidge alien deportation bill, which Secretary Perkins has been trying to get through congress for three years. It will give her and two other members of an interdepartmental board discretionary power to harbor radical and even criminal aliens, otherwise deportable, in this country. The same bill recently was reported favorably by the house committee.

Secretary Perkins

Pending action by congress on the measure, Secretary Perkins has been holding up the deportation of some 2,800 aliens mandatorily deportable under existing law, contending that they are "hardship cases." Some are radicals, some have criminal records, and others entered the country illegally. By "hardship cases" Secretary Perkins means that they would be separated from family ties or put to some other inconvenience.

Senator Robert R. Reynolds of North Carolina, Democrat, not long ago attacked the action of Secretary Perkins in holding up the deportations and denounced the pending bill as a "sham and a mockery" and a subterfuge to shield all kinds of radicals, criminals, and dependents unlawfully in this country.

Secretary Perkins refused to produce information respecting the 2,800 "hardship" cases until Reynolds introduced a senate resolution, whereupon she permitted him to examine the records.

Third Party Is Favored by Farmer-Laborites

FORMATION of a third national party was suggested in a resolution adopted by the Farmer-Labor party convention at St. Paul, Minn., and the delegates noisily welcomed the hint that Gov. Floyd B. Olson of Minnesota might be its Presidential candidate in 1940. Just now Mr. Olson is after a seat in the senate. The resolution was adopted by a vote of 368½ to 250½ although several leaders pleaded that the move be put off for four years.

Governor Olson said privately that in his opinion the resolution could do no harm since it does not commit the liberals to putting a national ticket in the field this year. Neither does it authorize formation of such a ticket unless a second convention convenes and ratifies any action a proposed "exploratory conference" may take.

Digging Themselves Out From Flood Debris

Throughout the eastern and New England states, as the great floods receded, the people in the devastated regions speedily began the hard task of cleaning up their cities and towns. Characteristic scenes are here presented. 1—WPA workers clearing the mud and wreckage from streets in Pittsburgh. 2—View in Johnstown, Pa., as citizens were digging out the debris. 3—Man and wife in a Pittsburgh suburb doing their "spring house cleaning" after the waters had left their bungalow.

He also aided in the recovery of the bodies of Wiley Post and Will Rogers.

Takes First Air Trip Across U. S. at Age of 84

From covered wagon across the Indian-infested plains of the Middle West to luxurious air line travel is a far cry and covers a lot of time, but Mrs. J. H. Pierson has enjoyed that experience. In celebration of her eighty-fourth birthday Mrs. Pierson flew on one of United Air Lines' Overland Trail transports from Chicago to San Francisco. It was her first flight and she liked it so well that she immediately formulated plans for flying across the continent, which she crossed back in 1867 in a covered wagon at the age of fifteen, two years after the Civil war was over and before the coming of the railroads to sunny California.

Philadelphia is pointing the way for the rest of the world in aerial transportation, with work being started on what will be the "perfect air terminus." ## When Christ Arose

By AMY VANCE WEEKS

in Indianapolis News

WHEN Christ arose on Easter day,
The sunbeams burst through clouds of gray;
The violets bloomed their bluest blue,
And hyacinths increased in hue
While jonquils looked a bit more gay!

The hilltop breezes stopped to play
With tulips blooming by the way;
The starry-eyed narcissus knew
When Christ arose!

As angels rolled the stone away,
A choir of lilies breathed a lay;
Wee buds were christened with the dew,
And bluebells chimed the anthems through!
Each flower rejoiced, and knelt to pray
When Christ arose.

WHY is it that there are usually some sinister associations about the word Easter when we find it on the map? It doesn't seem quite in keeping, states a writer in London Answers Magazine.

The classic example is Easter island, in the Pacific. It got its name in quite straightforward fashion, when a Dutch admiral discovered it one Easter Sunday, over 200 years ago.

But the place itself has a forbidding, desolate air. There are few trees, and even birds, usually plentiful in these islands, seem strangely scarce. But there are great volcanic rocks and craters, and strange relics of a vanished civilization—huge platforms and mysterious statues, with features that are grim masks of cruelty and defiance, staring eerily into nothingness.

Not a pleasant place, Easter island, apart from its famous statues, but they give it the final touch that makes it wholly sinister, a place of mystery and terror.

None of the other "Easters" quite come up to this standard, but there is a touch of the creepy about the great cavern in South Patagonia which has been named Easter Hole. Most caves have a slightly sinister air, and this is a particularly large and awe-inspiring example. And Easter Sunday canyon, in Arizona, has something of the same forbidding character.

It's a relief to come to our own Easter—Good Easter, a tiny village in Essex. But Good Easter hasn't always been good. Start delving into its past and you find that it has specialized in witches.

It's only some 60 years ago that some of the villagers threw an old woman into a pond because she was suspected of being a witch, and the "ordeal by swimming" was one of the favorite methods of the old witch-finders. If a woman was a witch she floated; if she wasn't, she sank.

More recently even than that, Good Easter still had its "witches," or believed that it had them. One man, who died some years ago, had this reputation because his cabbages were always better than anyone else's, so people believed that he "bewitched" their gardens.

A strange story, too, was told about this man's wife. It was said that, meeting another woman with a handsome baby girl, she exclaimed:

"What a beautiful child! But it will never get any bigger!" And soon afterwards the baby died.

Good Easter seems a healthy enough place, and its people live to a ripe old age. So far as it is concerned, the sinister element belongs to the past, not to the present.

HOT CROSS BUNS

THE custom of having hot cross buns on Good Friday is very old. The buns originally were supposedly made of a dough kneaded for the host and accordingly marked with a cross. They were said to keep for 12 months without being moldy, and were often hung up in houses as charms against evil.

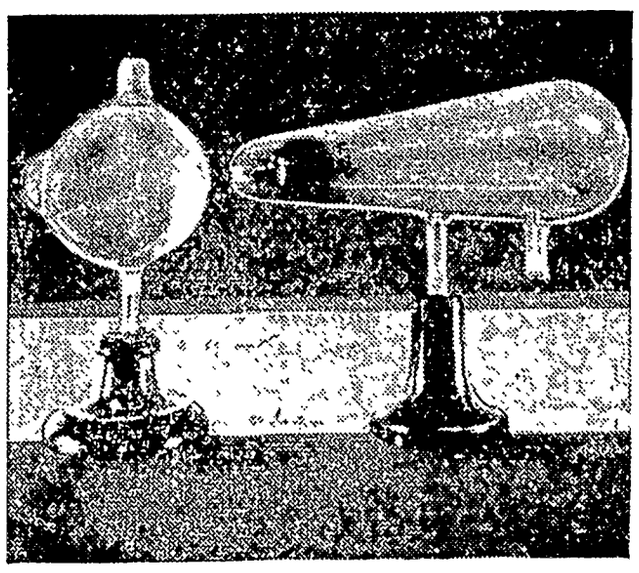
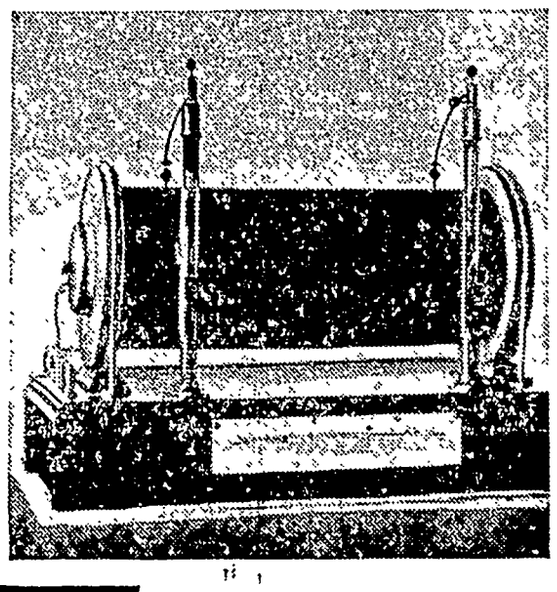
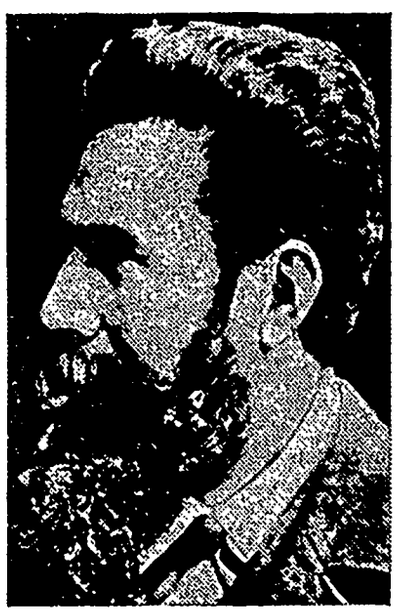
Arnhym, who is a German-born scientist, states that the electric eye weapons will be the major factor in the next war. The photograph shows Mr. Arnhym receiving a message from a plane, with R. L. # Campaign for Early Diagnosis of Tuberculosis







Forty years ago this spring jokesmiths were making the world laugh at an amazing news item from Wurzburg, Germany. A professor of physics at the university there had announced the discovery of a ray which permitted him to see through solid objects. When he was asked what it was he said he didn't know—it was invisible. He had proved it was not light, yet it would take a photograph. He frankly called it an "X" (unknown) ray. The local scientific society voted that the new ray should be named after its discoverer. So today it is called either the X-ray or the Roentgen ray, after Wilhelm Konrad Roentgen. The National Tuberculosis association, which is conducting throughout April an "Early Diagnosis Campaign," has for its slogan, "Fight Tuberculosis With Modern Weapons," and calls attention to the fact that the X-ray and tuberculin test are the weapons it means. The illustration shows the necessary apparatus and a portrait of the immortal Roentgen.

The National Tuberculosis association's early diagnosis campaign is receiving the aid and support of health officers, physicians and surgeons in all parts of the country. Persons who have reason to suspect that they have contracted the disease are urgently advised to submit themselves to the tests, which may be given in innumerable cities and towns in all the states, both in private laboratories and in those maintained by municipalities. Cure of tuberculosis is now comparatively sure if treatment is begun in its early stages, so no time should be lost in determining its presence and starting the curative measures.

THE original Easter lily was developed in Philadelphia only a half century ago, according to G. B. Stichter, field inspector of the bureau of plant industry, Pennsylvania department of agriculture.

In 1879, a woman returning from Bermuda brought with her two bulbs of a lily which she found growing wild. These bulbs were given to Mary, a florist who had greenhouses in Gray's lane, below Woodland avenue, Philadelphia. The florist planted the bulbs, and for some time they attracted no attention.

A Dutch lily had been used at Easter time, but this was unsatisfactory because it was impossible to control accurately its time of blooming.

Florist Was Successful in "Forcing" the Easter Lily.

Since Easter comes at varying times, it was impossible to "force" this lily in order to have it bloom at a specified time. Therefore, the Dutch lillies were not popular as Easter flowers.

The florist propagated the lily from Bermuda until in three years she had about 100 bulbs. It was then that a Philadelphia florist purchased the bulbs and experimented with "forcing" the lily, in order to have it bloom when wanted. This florist was successful in his experiments, and the lilum harrisii resulted. Since it was possible to cultivate this lily so that it would be in flower exactly at Easter time, it became the Easter flower.

The growing of Easter lillies is today a giant industry, but strangely enough the lily used now—the lilum gigantum—was propagated and improved in Japan from the lily first developed in Philadelpia. It was taken to Japan, where conditions for its cultivation were ideal, developed, and brought back to America. The present-day lily has a larger flower, with more sturdy foliage than the original Easter lily.

Bacon, Eggs, Easter Dish

According to Brand's Popular Antiquities, the custom of eating a gammon of bacon at Easter, still kept up in many parts of England, was designed to show their abhorrence to Judaism at that solemn commemoration of the resurrection. There is also mention, in the same authority, of eggs and bacon composing a usual dish on that day in the Sixteenth century.

Well Proved Fact

Taking all the evidence together, it is not too much to say that there is no single historic incident better or more variously supported than the resurrection of Christ.—Westcott.

FARM RELIEF PARADOX

Improve the soil, but raise less. That is the paradox presented by the latest "farm relief" act, which is just now being widely discussed both with respect to its practical administration and with a view to its ultimate effects by those who have given thought to the probable consequences of the new law.

It is proposed to distribute some 500 million dollars a year to farmers who cooperate in a plan to take a portion of their land out of production and devote it to conservation purposes, such as soil improvement, the prevention of erosion, and the like. What is proposed to do with the improved land later on has not been disclosed.

The immediate effect, it is assumed would be a reduction in farm production of salable crops, in the hope of increased prices for what is produced, thus continuing to put into practice the "economy of scarcity" theory which has been highly favored in government circles for some time. How long such a program and its heavy drain on the public treasury can be continued is an important question.

Surely the government can not continue to pay vast sums for such a program indefinitely, and when payments for non-produc tion cease it is inevitable that the land temporarily left idle, and improved through the soil conservation plan, will again be cultivated, with the result that surplus crops greater than ever before will be produced.

To an unbiased observer the conclusion is inescapable that the long range effects of the new plan will be more harmful than beneficial to the farmers themselves. The beneficiaries of the plan, if any, will be the politicians, who are willing to adopt any temporary expedient, however unsound, in the hope of capturing the farm vote next November.

LIFE LARGE AND SMALL

Some interesting reflections on the size of living things are made by the noted scientist, Julian S. Huxley, in a magazine article. Many of the facts he relates are not only interesting, but surprising.

When we speak of living things, in the broad sense, we must include the vegetable kingdom, so the largest living things are to be found among the big trees in California. These, incidentally, are also the oldest, with an age of around 5,000 years.

These trees, some weighing nearly 1,000 tons, are massive indeed when compared with the largest animal, the whale, whose weight seldom reaches more than 100 tons. Yet a large elephant could maneuver inside a whale's skin.

Most wonderful is what we find among the smaller orders of life. We can see a flea, though with difficulty catch him, yet 80,000 would scarcely weigh an ounce.

Some of the insects which are hardly visible to the naked eye are fitted out with "compound eyes, a nice nervous system, three pairs of jaws and three pairs of legs, veined wings, and striped muscles." Tiny birds weighing only 10 grams, or about as much as 10 big ants, fly thousands of miles during their migrations. And ants, by the way, are strongest living things in proportion to their size.

Man is about half-way in the scale between large and small mammals, and when grown he contains about a hundred million cells. He requires all his brain as well as his strength to cope with the great animals on one side and the insects on the other. And then there are the microbes to worry about.

RECORDS AND RADIO

Another indiction of the advancement of true art: Discarding the phonograph and its records and then turning on the radio to listen to a recorded musical program.—Fond du Lac Commonwealth.

If you want to make a million dollars, invent a gadget for a radio that will enable a listener-in to heckle the broadcasting candidate.

A white sow on an Illinois farm gave birth to 19 pigs. Lucky for this family that the A.A.A. had been declared unconstitutional.

The Soviet average wage in 1935 is placed at 2,271 rubles. Wonder how much that is in real money?

Some relief rollers say that after buying food and gasoline and beer for the month they find they don't have anything left for the other essentials of life.

INFLATION LOOMS

Out of Washington comes the rumbling of inflation like distant thunderclaps preceding a storm.

The treasury of the United States is the strongest in the world, but is being depleted at a rate so fast that it cannot be replenished by any honest means. Relief spending is only one of the major causes. Others include indirect expenditures, alleged but not proved, to have the effect of direct relief and increases in the regular budget items, such as Army, Navy, and the departments. Social security, farm relief and the bonus are setting up vested interests which amount to pipelines from the Treasury without shut-off valves. The flow will increase with the years.

How long can the borrowing continue? Until the banks can no longer buy the Government I.O.U.'s. And when will that be? No one knows exactly, but there have already been signs of financial regurgitation as banks have tried to swallow the vast and frequent offerings. Whether the bonus and Security Act borrowings can be downed without throwing them back on Washington remains to be seen.

There is the issue. It must be faced. Curb the excess spending or squander the country into squalor. Cease piling up an unpayable debt or—inflation looms.—St. Louis Star-Times.

A MAN'S BEST YEARS

An Ohio psychologist, Dr. Harvey C. Lehman, after much research has come to the conclusion that the age of 41 years is the high spot in production for writers and that poets are at their best around 35. Other specialists are in proportion, with the usual exceptions, of course.

Speaking of late bloomers in literature and the arts generally, how about William De Morgan? Up to a gracious maturity of 65 years he was interested in decoration, with emphasis on pottery and tiles. Then he burst out with "Joseph Vance," not a negligible novel, and within five years had turned out three or four more that made a lot of pre-war readers in England and America do a lot of new reading. There was Mark Twain, who did some of his best work after he was 50. Think of Hugo and Dickens! How about Joseph Conrad? He was a sea captain when he turned to writing fiction and not by any means in his first youth when he started; when he died at 67 he was famous with a lot of good books to his credit and still more in his inexhaustible mind. Was he at his peak. The general impression seems to be that he was. Howells wrote his greatest novel at 48.

Sixty-four out of 74 winners in the schools of the county entered.

TRY A GREEN TONIC

The best of spring tonics—vege table greens! Cook them in as little water as possible, as rapidly as possible and uncovered if you want to save minerals and vitamins and preserve color.

Oook several kinds of greens together for variety. Try spinach and dandelions together. Or vary your seving method. Browned butter is very good on greens. A bit of onion juice brings out more flavor. Or cook the greens with bacon or salt pork.

A big bowl full of steaming colorful greens on your dinner table will make you sure that spring is here.

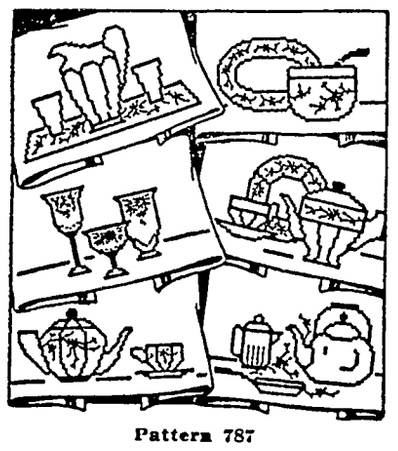
Cross Stitch Kitchen Towels That Are Fun to Embroider—or Give Away



Pattern 787

Just a bit—but a telling bit—of decoration is all that's needed today to make our household linens smart. And so, simple cross stitch brings color and life to humble tea-towels which make dish doing a pleasure rather than a duty. These motifs of glassware and china—in cross stitch—are easy to embroider. This half dozen makes fine pick-up work, and also a grand prize for a bridge party—or most acceptable for a fair donation.

Pattern 787 comes to you with a transfer pattern of six motifs averaging 4½ by 9½ inches; details of all stitches used; and material requirements.

Send 15 cents in stamps or coins (coins preferred) to The Sewing Circle, Needlecraft Dept., 82 Eighth Avenue, New York, N. Y.

THE FERRY-MORSE SEED BREEDING INSTITUTE *knows its business from the ground up

You can depend on Ferry's seeds to produce true to type and quality wherever you live — in any climate. How can we say this? Because we conduct over 50,000 tests annually, to make sure they will grow. Over 9000 tests to make sure of their quality. And that's just part of the continuous activity at our Rochester, Mich., and Salinas, Cal., stations. For 80 years this work has progressed — improving and maintaining the established quality of vegetable and flower seeds.

We develop our foundation stock at the stations. It is then used for seed production on our farms or under our supervision. The resulting seed is sold only after tests have shown that it is of proper quality and germination. You can buy Ferry seeds today in your own neighborhood, many for as little as 5c a packet.

Write for a free copy of our Home Garden Catalog to help you plan your purchases from the Ferry display in your local stores. Ferry-Morse Seed Co., Detroit and San Francisco.

Newly Found Nerves Act as "Spares" to Speed Heart Action

Tests on Dogs Reveal Their Dual Function

NEW YORK.—Science's first step toward an understanding of recently discovered nerve fibers for speeding up heart action, a discovery which may lead to their identification as hitherto unknown sympathetic nerves, was announced to the New York Academy of Sciences here by Dr. Lucien A. Brouha of the University of Liege, Belgium.

Discovered at the University of Ghent in 1934 by Jourdan and Nowak, the tiny fibers have remained pretty much of a mystery to science, the only definite fact known about them being their position alongside the vagi nerves which run from the brain to the heart and which serve to retard the cardiac beat.

Even now, Doctor Brouha explained, little is known of their function in the normal body—but in dogs whose sympathetic nervous system has been removed, these new nerve fibers take its place. Indeed, so successfully do they substitute for the missing nerves that Doctor Brouha finds it absolutely impossible to distinguish a normal dog from one without its sympathetic system.

How Dogs React.

It was the ability of the new nerves to replace the sympathetic system in dogs that led Doctor Brouha to his conclusion concerning the possible function of the nerves as a substitute for the removed system. In the normal body, he believes, the nerves may aid heart regulation to a very small extent, although he said that in all probability they have additional functions as yet undiscovered by science.

In research leading to these results, Doctor Brouha conducted pioneer treadmill tests on dogs both before and after removal of the sympathetic system. The experiments were performed in co-operation with Dr. David B. Dill of the Harvard University Fatigue laboratory where Doctor Brouha is carrying on his investigations this year.

Outstanding among his finds were that the general behavior of a dog whose sympathetic chains have been removed remains normal, although the heart beat of the animal at rest is slightly less than normal, and that emotional excitement produces the usual definite cardiac acceleration.

Substitute for Regular Nerves.

Another important find was that the capacity to stand very intense exercise is not at all diminished three months after the removal operation, that time being necessary for the dog to recover from the operation.

Experimentally checking the possible influence of a rise in body temperature or muscular metobolism, Doctor Brouha found that they are definitely not responsible for the accelerated heart beat. Nor are adrenalin or sympathin, for with the removal of the sympathetic system, these hormones are not secreted into the blood stream

10,000 Sterilizations in California

PASADENA.—Over 10,000 human sterilization operations—10,801, to be exact—have been performed in accordance with the California state sterilization law, E. S. Gosney, president of the Human Betterment Foundation here, announced after compiling the 1935 figures.

These operations, Mr. Gosney pointed out, were performed on inmates of state institutions since 1909. Neither the figures nor the California sterilization law have any connection with privately performed sterilization operations such as the one now figuring in the Ann Cooper Hewitt law suit.

Discussing the sterilization law for inmates of state institutions, Mr. Gosney said:

"The consistently careful administration of this measure in California is reflected by the fact that during the first six years of the enforcement of the law, sterilizations per year increased from 11 to 116; total 577; yearly average, 96. During the last 20 years they have gradually increased from 182 in 1916 to 870 in 1935.

New Sky Wanderer Found by Belgian

CAMBRIDGE, MASS.—A tiny wanderer of the sky, now known only as an object, probably either a comet or minor planet, has been discovered by Prof. E. Delporte of the Royal Belgian observatory. Information regarding the discovery has been received by Harvard college observatory and distributed to the American observatories.

The object is so faint that only large telescopes can sight it. It is located somewhat west of the constellation of Leo.

X-Ray Burn Hazard Is Reduced by New Baffle Method

Cancer Treatment Enhanced by Increased Radiation

NEW YORK.—A new method of decreasing materially the dangerous X-ray burns which have long been a hazard in the treatment of cancer and other malignant growths by these piercing radiations was described before the meeting of the American Physical society here recently by Dr. G. Failla, physicist of New York.

One possibility of the new method is that better treatment of deep-seated cancers will be achieved, according to Doctor Failla, because the present limitation of the amount of radiation which can be given a patient is determined by the burning power of the rays on the skin. Any method to reduce the skin burning from X-rays will allow more potent radiation treatment.

Damaging Electrons Eliminated.

Doctor Failla, long known in this country for his basic contributions to medical X-ray therapy, told how he is now cutting out much of the secondary electrons which are an essential part of any X-ray beam. It is these charged particles of electricity which actually split apart the atoms of the skin and produce ionization in them. It is ionization which causes the skin reddening and damage even though seemingly adequate protection is afforded by heavy shields of lead.

The lead shield, Doctor Failla points out, protects other parts of the body than the point where the radiation is desired but, of necessity, the opening for the X-rays allows any electrons also in the beam to come through.

How New Method Works.

Doctor Failla's new method takes advantage of the fact that when electrons strike matter they are deflected at large angles. By setting up a system of baffles or stops a beam of X-rays containing only the desired gamma ray type of radiation can be attained. The deflected electrons are caught by the baffles.

"The advantage of the use of X-ray beams stripped of secondary electrons," said Doctor Failla, "is apparent in X-ray therapy, since the ionization in the skin is reduced."

Animal's Ears Are Best "Mikes" Scientists Find

PRINCETON.—Quantitative measurements on the ears of guinea pigs show the animal ear to be a far more effective microphone than those constructed mechanically, according to the announcement of Profs. Ernest G. Wever and Charles W. Bray, of the Princeton University Department of Psychology.

Small currents arising in the cochlea of the inner ear and measured on an oscillograph provide an accurate measurement of the response of the animal to sound, and the results of recent experiments show that the animal is capable of responding to tones of a wide range of frequencies, even though these tones be quite faint, whereas it is a well-known fact that mechanical microphones must sacrifice either sensitivity or range.

That this electrical method of measuring sound effect is accurate was determined several years ago when the small currents were amplified about half a million times and run into a telephone receiver. It was then possible for one person to talk to the animal and another person in a distant room not only to recognize the words but the voice of the speaker.

Find Sex Hormones Will Influence Eggs

WOODS HOLE, MASS.—Male sex glands of unhatched chicks were caused to develop decidedly female characters by injecting the female sex hormone substances theelin and theelol through the eggshells, in experiments reported before the meeting of the Genetics Society of America here. The research was carried on by Dr B. H. Willier of the University of Rochester and Drs. T. F. Gallagher and F. C. Koch of the University of Chicago.

The theelin and theelol were injected in rather heavy quantities. From day to day, eggs were removed from the incubator, opened, and the developing embryos dissected. The ovaries of the chicks that would have grown up to be hens were not affected. Neither were the left sex glands of the chicks that might have been roosters. But the right sex glands developed, surrounding their characteristic male tissues, other tissues just as characteristically female.

Boys "Cry Babies" as Much as Girls

NEW YORK.—Little boys cry just as much as little girls.

So Dr. Catherine W. Brackett of the Child Development institute, here, has learned by timing the crying of pre school youngsters.

Between the ages of eighteen months and four years, the average child spends 2.5 per cent of his days—or nights—crying. That makes an average crying time of 36 minutes a day.

TALL TALES

As Told to:

FRANK E. HAGAN and ELMO SCOTT WATSON

The Double Tragedy

A FEW years ago a group of forty Chicago and Milwaukee newspaper men were guests of the Milwaukee railroad and Rocky Wolfe, now a widely known radio sport commentator, on a week-end outing in Manitowish, Wis.

Among the extraordinary sights of the resort town were live porcupines strolling about a nine-hole golf course played by the scribes and a mother hawk, whose broad back and spread wings were used by three baby hawks as a landing stage, high above ground.

A dormant appreciation of Nature having been awakened in the minds of the visiting city folks, they were treated by Wolfe to the prize story of the vicinity.

A Manitowish hunter, according to Rocky, reported that he had shot a fox which had a dead porcupine in its mouth. The fox was already dead when shot, for the spines of the porcupine had killed it.

It was learned later, Rocky averred, that the porcupine had been a pet which earned a living by carrying fruit on its back from its owner's orchard to the cider mill.

"And I am ashamed to report, gentlemen," Wolfe concluded, "that both animals were intoxicated when the double tragedy occurred."

The Colorado Cinder Beetle

WHEN the Santa Fe railroad was built into Colorado, its coming brought rejoicing to the residents of the rich Arkansas River valley. It meant an outlet for their crops and prosperity. But that lasted only a little while. Then disaster swept down upon them.

Every night a large section of the roadbed disappeared. Something was taking away the cinder ballast. Train schedules were disrupted and there were endless delays until the damage could be repaired. In several cases freight trains were wrecked or derailed.

Santa Fe officials were frantic, for no one could discover what was carrying away the ballast. Finally a newspaper man, Charley Blakesley of the Kansas City Star, suggested that possibly the Colorado cinder beetle was eating up the ballast and his surmise proved correct.

How to check the ravages of the insects was the next problem. That was solved when it was discovered that the cinders used for ballast were from soft coal. So hard coal cinders were substituted and the cinder beetles broke their jaws trying to eat them. For some time, it is said, passengers on the Santa Fe were kept awake at nights by the cinder beetles screaming with the pain of their broken jaws. So the railroad speeded up the schedules of their passenger trains. They now went so fast that the passengers heard the moaning of the broken-jawed cinder beetles merged into a symphony of sound, like the rustle of wind through pine trees, that quickly lulled them to sleep.

When a hardier race of cinder beetles developed with jaws capable of eating hard coal cinders, the Santa Fe was ready for them. They began using crushed rock and since that time have had no trouble with the little pests.

Massachusetts Melons

THE visitor from Georgia motoring through the Berkshires of Massachusetts looked rather scornfully at the crops in the fields along the road.

"Why, I don't see any melons up here," he said to the farmer leaning on the fence. "Can't you raise them?"

"No, we don't seem to have any luck with melons," replied the Yankee. "I tried to raise some a while back—tried it year after year, but I couldn't ever get a good crop somehow. The trouble was that the soil was just too rich for 'em.

"I'd plant my seeds, the vines would start growing, the blossoms would come out, and then they'd set and the melons would begin to form. Then the sun would get hotter and the nights would sprinkle our Berkshire dew on 'em. And that dew, I tell you, acts like magic, it makes things grow so. But I never could get any melons, though."

"Is that so?" exclaimed the Southerner, "Why couldn't you?"

"Well, I tell you," answered the son of the Berkshires. "Those vines just naturally grew so fast they dragged the melons all over the field. They just plumb wore 'em out before they had a chance to get ripe. So I just had to give up tryin' to raise melons."

"Marine Store Dealer"

When a sailing ship came into port in the old days a man used to go aboard and bid for the old sails that had been torn by tropical storms. He was also given odd lengths of rope and all the junk accumulated during a voyage of many months. "Marine store dealer" was the man's title, and he dealt with ships which sailed the Seven seas. Later there was little for the marine store dealer to do—the big shipping lines managed their own affairs. As his trade with ships went, the dealer started to buy rags, old bottles and the like from houses in seaport towns. Now he has become the unromantic rag-and-bone man—though still his official name is marine store dealer.—Pearson's Weekly.

Press a Button and Robot Gives Train Information

Visitors to Glasgow may see the first "robot" railway time-table introduced in Scotland. The new system was inaugurated at Glasgow Central station. The "informator" shows at a glance the train service from that station to any desired destination.

Similar in size and appearance to the automatic ticket machines on the London underground system, it has a window at the level of the eyes of an average-sized person. At the back of the window is a card with the names of the various stations served from the central station. Attached to each name is a number, and just below the window is a series of numbered keys. By pressing the button corresponding to the number attached to his destination the inquirer causes a card to slide into view which gives a complete list of the trains to and from the specified station.—Washington Post.

...ding the statement above that the ...about reducing the government ...pay roll and untang... ...Deal ...ting the functions is, ...Rise just so much hally... ...hoo, I think it ought ...ld at the same time that ...al spirits are rising. There was a time a few months ago when the national trend was decidedly against Mr. Roosevelt. It even went so far as to cause many individuals to say that Mr. Roosevelt would be defeated for re-election. The picture around the first of April was quite different. There is in Washington quite a general feeling that the Roosevelt re-election chances have improved and are continuing to improve. This condition is quite evident to observers continuously on the job here for even in the personal manner of the President himself there is an outward appearance that he believes the situation is well in hand.

As far as I can discover, one reason why the New Dealers feel so much better is that events leading up to the national Democratic convention seem to be cleared of any harassing possibilities.

I am sure that it will be recalled how something like the blues overcame many New Deal stalwarts after former Gov. Alfred E. Smith of New York, 1928 Democratic Presidential candidate, let loose a blast at the New Deal in his Liberty league dinner speech. I happened to be in a position to know that the Smith speech caused all kinds of commotion and fear among New Deal leaders. They know, as everyone else knows, that "Al" Smith has a big personal following. When he threatened "to take a walk," he let loose a declaration that was charged with dynamite and the New Dealers could not calculate how much dynamite.

Now, however, it appears quite certain that much of the danger inherent in the Smith declaration has been eliminated. Notwithstanding the Smith indictment of the President for repudiation of platform promises and his description of the Roosevelt policies as "a national menace," there is going to be a pitifully small number of anti-New Deal Democrats in the Philadelphia convention. The number will be so small, in fact, that however vociferous they become, their shouts will be heard no more than the wail of a child in a storm.

It was to be expected, as I have reported to you before, that the routine type of Democratic politician will forget any differences he has with the New Deal and be regular at convention time and during most of the campaign. That type of politician, be he Republican or Democratic, cannot afford to bolt. If he bolts, he cuts off his own nose and most politicians do not enjoy being de-nosed for that is tantamount to being politically dehorned. So, while the Philadelphia convention of the Democrats may have some seething underneath the surface, it is without the realm of possibility that there can be any important revolt against renomination of Mr. Roosevelt. Likewise, it is just as far-fetched to think that the platform which that convention will adopt for the campaign will not be exactly as Mr. Roosevelt dictates it. Actually, there is nothing on the horizon now to indicate any changes from the way I have just described it.

Inasmuch as the New Dealers can properly regard their situation pretty well in hand, they naturally can feel a bit cocky over the difficulties in the Republican ranks. First, the Republicans are at a disadvantage in that their convention in Cleveland is to be held at an earlier date than the Democrats meet. This, however, is more real than apparent. It is thus because of the intra-party battles that appear certain to come to the surface at Cleveland. The Republicans are not together, not unified, on anything. A half dozen candidates with appreciable followings are snapping at each other and two or three factions are announcing almost simultaneously what the platform is going to say. It just cannot help leading into a beautiful mess at Cleveland unless the Republican leaders show more intelligence than they have shown thus far.

G. O. P. in a Hole

In the meantime, the Democrats are making note of the various battle charges. You can be sure they will use them. Whoever the Republicans nominate at Cleveland necessarily faces a big fight but as the situation now stands, I think the Democrats will be able to make it an offensive campaign whereas ordinarily the party in power must give over much of its campaigning to a defense. This is true unless the Republicans can get together and take the offensive themselves by criticizing and attacking on a united front.

Of course, much water can run under the bridge before the November election. It is always possible that the party in power can make mistakes, can be led into a blind alley under the political guns of its opposition. The Democrats have made many mistakes already but the anti-New Deal opposition shows no indication of plans to take advantage of those mistakes. So the circumstances, as of this time, give every reason for the New Dealers to feel satisfied with the campaigning up to this time.

The French have a saying, referring to a man's age, "One year more, one care more"—Un an de plus, un soin de plus.

Arthur Brisbane

European nations might take for their motto, "One treaty more, one more danger of war."

Italy, Austria, Hungary have a three-power treaty under which Italy guarantees Austrian independence, against any attempt by Germany to absorb Austria, for instance. There is possible cause for war if any cause were lacking.

---

Sao Paulo, Brazil, worries about reports brought by health officers from the forests of the upper Sorocabana area. In that region, where mosquitoes are thick, explorers frequently saw "monkeys with high fevers" drop out of trees and die, dozens of them, victims of yellow fever.

Fortunately for Brazil cities, the jungle mosquito that bites monkeys and gives them yellow fever keeps away from cities. The fight against disease-bearing mosquitoes and rats would keep men busy, if they were not busy already killing each other in war.

---

Edward VIII, new king of England, visited the magnificently luxurious ocean steamer Queen Mary in Glasgow, then went from house to house, knocking on doors, visiting some of the worst slum dwellings in all his kingdom.

Later, talking to Lord Melchett, the king put the problem of England, this country and the whole world in these few words:

"How do you reconcile a world that has produced this mighty ship with the slums we have just visited?"

---

A marvelously illustrated ancient manuscript of the Koran, found in a shop of an antiquity dealer of Cairo, Egypt, was bought for fifty pounds. Heaven knows how many thousands of pounds it is actually worth.

The Koran is said to have been written by a highly educated Jew, who suggested ideas to Mohammed, the latter being unable to write.

It is possible, however, that angels, supposed to have revealed divine truth to Mohammed, also taught him to write.

Good news for tree growers, fruit trees or others. You may get rid of insect pests by hammering the trunks of trees with a riveting machine, such as is used in driving rivets in city skyscrapers.

A California inventor patented the process. This writer proposes to try it in a New Jersey orchard at the earliest possible moment. The riveting is said to loosen insect pests, after which it is easy to wash them off with a strong spray of water, no chemicals needed. To save the tree from injury, it is probably desirable to put several thicknesses of old automobile tires or tubes between the bark and the riveting machine.

There is plenty of money in this country, billions of it, Jesse Jones will tell you, but it is not circulating, as unhealthy for money in a country as for blood in your veins.

You know the strange, perhaps true, story of a man who unwittingly passed a counterfeit $10 bill. It went through the hands of ten individuals, paid for $100 worth of goods, and came back to the man who originally passed it. He identified and destroyed it.

One hundred dollars' worth of debts had been paid, nobody was any the worse. Money is a queer thing.

Do not give "living toys" to your children for Easter presents. Many parents and friends thoughtlessly give children helpless living creatures, easily hurt—live chicks, or newly hatched ducklings.

The helpless creatures are roughly treated, mutilated, fortunate if they happen to be promptly killed, by children that know no better.

---

Doctor Townsend promises $200 a month to everybody past sixty. That would cost twenty-four thousand million dollars a year. Congressmen know it can't be done, but do not dare say so individually.

Townsend clubs have organized millions of votes. The $200-a-month promise made that easy. Congressmen do not want those votes cast against them as individuals.

The hard-working, intelligent Swiss nation is said to be disturbed by the prospect of another war as by none other.

Every Swiss under fifty is armed, trained and ready. Even in the big war nobody tried to invade Switzerland—too much hard climbing, and the conqueror would not know how to run the hotels, even if he acquired them.

The immediate business of this country is to find some way of controlling flood waters—probably not impossible

Two Lovely Blouses That Will Give Your Suit That Feminine Appearance

1850-B

Blouses have to go a long way toward giving the tailored and mannish suits a sweet and feminine appearance. The model at the top is a new lingerie blouse made of madonna blue crepe de chine and trimmed with tiny crystal buttons. Soft puff sleeves tightly banded and a fluffy bow at the throat contribute the feminine touches.

At the bottom is a most attractive shirt blouse—it has a charming Peter Pan collar and buttoned panel for the waist closing—the model is made of batiste with either short sports or long bishop sleeves.

Barbara Bell Pattern No. 1850-B—both blouses—is available in sizes 14, 16, 18, 20; 40 and 42. Corresponding bust measurements 32, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42. The top blouse requires 1⅞ yards of 35 or 39-inch material for size 16 (34), and blouse (B) requires 1¾ yards or 2½ yards with long sleeves, size 16 (34).

Send your order to The Sewing Circle Pattern Dept., 367 W. Adams St., Chicago, Ill.

FRED GREIMAN, SR., HANCOCK PIONEER FARMER, IS DEAD

Funeral Services Were Held On Tuesday In Elltown Church

Funeral services for Fred Greiman, Sr., 82, pioneer resident of Hancock county, were held at 1 30 o'clock Tuesday afternoon at the Ell township Reformed hcurch, preceded by services in the home of his son, Ben V. Greiman, with the Rev. William Hueneman and Rev. Calvin Grosshuesch in charge. He died on Sunday at the home of his son, Ben V., where he had gone eight months ago. He had been ill for about two months.

He was married to Miss Dina Katter, who died five years ago They celebrated their golden wedding anniversary seven years ago on the farm they settled on. Surviving are his sons, George, William. Fred Jr., Henry, Ben V., Oscar, Addis and Clarence, and daughters, Mrs Charles Goll, Mrs. Lew Weaver, Mrs. Wesley Lenz, all living in or near Garner and Klemme; and Mrs. Chas. Griffen, Alberta, Minn., fifty-eight grandchildren and 18 great grandchildren; four sisters and two brothers. Two sons. Herman and Ed preceeded him in death.

Fred Christian Greimann was norn on the 9th day of December in the year of our Lord 1853, at Emigloh, Westphalen, Germany. He was the son of Friedrich William Greimann and his wife, Anna Maria Elsabina Holdbruegge. He was baptized in the Lutheran church Dec. 20. 1853.

The following year he came with his parents to America After an ocean voyage of 6 weeks they landed at New Orleans. He was the only infant on board the ship to survive the trip. All the other infants died during the trying voyage and were buried at sea. From New Orleans they traveled by steamboat up the Mississippi river to Guttenberg, Clayton county, Iowa He was confirmed in the year 1870 in the Lutheran Church at Clayton Center. His memory verse was Psalm 119. 9 "Wherewithal shall a young man cleanse his way, by taking heed chereto according to Thy word.'

At the age of 24 he came to Hancock county with his brother and sister, and settled on the farm 1½ miles south of Garner, which has been his home ever since On April 9th, 1879 he was united in marriage to Miss Dina Katter and to this union were born 14 children 12 of whom survive. Mrs. Greimann preceeded her husband in death on August 15, 1930.

Mr. Greimann was one of the early members of the Peace Reformed church. He was a loyal and faithful member of the congregation throughout his life and served for many terms as deacon and elder As a father he provided for his children, not merely in a temporal way, but took special interest in their spiritual welfare by providing them with a Christian training both in the home and the Church. All of his children are to this day loyal members of the Reformed Church.

As a Christian citizen he also had a great interest in the welfare of the community. In his earlier days he held some township and school offices and was especially interested in co-operative work, such as the creamery and elevator and even at the time of his death he was one of the directors of the Klemme Bank His name apears on the list of the charter members of the local Farm Bureau.

Mr. Greimann was always very active until last fall when his health gradually began to fail. Since last October he made his home with his son, Ben. About three weeks ago his condition became serious, and in spite of excellent care it became obvious that the time of his departure had come. He was called out of this life Easter Sunday, April 12th 1936 at about 9 o'clock in the morning, at the age of 82 years, 4 months and four days.

Be Yourself!

—Thelma Davis

If we just squarely shoot the game
According to our light,
And plug along the best we can,
We'll get long alright!

I'd like to see us be ourselves,
And to ourselves be true.
We rubber stamp our lives
Because someone expects us to.

The mode and style so stifle us
With thing "that's being done,"
That little self that lives in us—
Let's let him out to run.

I think we have a certain niche
That's ours—and ours alone. .... .... ..
Direct and simpl honesty
Will many faults condone.

Statement of Account

Last August 1935, there was contributed by the business men $318 toward a celebration. Of this amount $183.03 has been paid out for expense. There is a balance of $134.97 on deposit in the First National Bank, Klemme, Iowa, in the Celebration fund.

February 10th, 1936, a committee from the Fire Company met with the Town Council and made the town a proposition that the Klemme Fire Company is willing to pay $300 toward a new fire truck, equipped with booster pump, and in addition the Fire Company is in favor of using the $134.97 balance left in the Celebration fund and now on deposit in the First National Bank, toward a new truck.

DICKINSON FILES NOMINATION PAPERS SIGNED BY 14,000

Senator L. J. Dickinson filed papers, said to bear the signatures of 14,000 voters in every Iowa county, for renomination in the republican June primary to the senate.

P. T. A. MEETING WAS TUESDAY

P. T. A. meeting was held at the school auditorium Tuesday evening with a large crowd present. State Police Patrolman C. E. Benedict, of Garnre gave a very interesting talk on rules of driving.

The President of Waldorf college was present and gave a short talk. He had with him, a Mr. Andrews, one of the college men, who gave two groups of well rendered selections on his accordian, which were greatly enjoyed by those present.

A short business meeting was held. After the secretary and treasurer's reports, officers for the ensuing year were elected: Art Wellemeyer, president; Mrs. R. A. Jorgenson, vice president; Mrs Earl Schaeffer, secretary; and C. G. Watermam, treasurer.

Gingerbread with whipped cream and coffee were served by the committee in charge.

A TEAM ANY FARMER WOULD BE PROUD TO OWN

A number of people admired the fine team of sorrel horses that Elmer Schaefer drove to town Saturday forenoon. Elmer has as fine a team as has been seen in these parts for many a year. The team, perfectly matched sorrels, weighing thirty-five hundred pounds, are a fine sight to see. That Elmer thinks a lot of them is best demonstrated by saying that he has turned down several offers of $600 for the pair. Good horses are worth real money these days and you yould have to look a long way before you found a better team than the sorrels referred to above.

Wedding Anniversaries Observed During Week

50TH WEDDING ANNIVERSARY CELEBRATED LAST WEDNESDAY

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Reimer Were Married Half Century Ago

Garner:— Fiftieth anniversary of a wedding that was solemnized on April 8, 1886, was celebrated last Wednesday afternoon in Garner at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Riemer, who have enjoyed a fruitful and happy half century of wedded life.

Surrounded by their five living children and other close relatives and friends, the couple were honored at a family dinner. Gold and white streamers and bells decorated the dining room at the Reimer home this noon, and a beautiful wedding cake, decorated by Mrs. Blumer, was the attractive centerpeice at the bounteous table. Several large bouquets of snap dragons also graced the table. Rev. Hoon gave a short talk after the meal, and in the afternoon open house was held for neighbors and friends.

Mrs. Reimer, whose maiden name was Augusta, was born to Mr. and Mrs. Carl Bredlow in Germany on June 9, 1858. She came with her parents to America when only 10 years of age, settling with them in Wisconsin, where several years later she met the man of her choice.

Mr. Reimer was born June 8, 1857, in Germany, and came to Wisconsin in 1882. Three years later he met Miss Bredlow and they were married by the Rev. George W. Simons at Elba church, near Columbus, Wis., on April 8, 1886.

Reminiscing of that eventful day 50 years ago, Mrs. Reimer recalled that her wedding dress was a bouffant one, containing countless yards of blue wool crepe trimmed in velvet.

Mr. Reimer recalled that he had to hitch four horses to a spring wagon to go 40 rods to the church through deeply gutted mud roads. History repeated itself 25 years ago and mud roads leading to the farm home in Liberty made it impossible for more than 40 guests to attend the silver wedding anniversary.

In the fall of 1888 Mr. Reimer came to Hancock county and decided to buy a tract and start a farm on the prairie that was then Clerman township, the name later being changed to Liberty. With Phillip Ell breaking the land for him, he built a 14x20 foot, two-story frame house and furnished it as well as possible.

It was at this farm, which is a far cry from the modern set of buildings now on the place and the comfortable home the Reimers have in Garner, that the young couple farmed for 27 years. In 1916 they retired and moved to Garner where they have lived ever since.

The five children who were present with their families are· Elizabeth, Mrs. E. G. Beier of Liberty; Wil Reimer of near Miller; Carl Riemer, of near Garner; Ben Riemer, who works the home farm in Liberty; and Melinda, Mrs. E. J. Blumer of Liberty. One son, Emil, the fourth child born to Mr. and Mrs. Reimer, died in infancy.

Mrs. Riemer's two brothers, Will and Charles Bredlow, both of whom live near here, and a sister, Mrs. August Nuehring, were present at the festivities. Her other sister, Mrs. Minnie Bucholz of Columbus, Wis., and Mr. Riemer's half brothers and sisters who live in Germany, could not be present because of distance.

Charles Bredlow and Mrs. Neuhring have the distinction of having attended the wedding of the sister, 25th anniversary celebration, and last Wednesday's event. The Rev. and Mrs. T. Ernest Hoon were special guests for the ocassion.

Chris Jacobs of Garner, was a visitor in Klemme Tuesday afternoon

FRED KLUCKHOHN AND WIFE CELEBRATE SILVER WEDDING

Relatives Gave Surprise Dinner At First Methodist Church

Easter Sunday was the twenty-fifth, or Silver, wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Kluckhohn of Klemme. Relatives of the bride and groom of twenty-five summers had planned an anniversary dinner in their honor and on a ruse Mr. and Mrs. Kluckhohn were driven by the church where relatives had gathered to shout 'suprise" as they came past. The couple were ushered into the church to the strains of "Here Comes The Bride."

A big dinner was served in the dining room of the church. The table was decorated with silver streamers and a large wedding bell was suspended above the table. In rront of the bride and groom who sat at the center of the long table, was placed a beautifully decorated three-tiered wedding cake. A small silver-colored ladder was also placed in front of the couple, each rung of the ladder representing five years of wedded bliss. On top of the ladder stood a minature bride and groom dressed in formal wedding attire.

The program given was: a poem read by Otho Keraus, followed by vocal duets by Miss Carmen Kluckhohn and Mrs. Carold Larson. W. C. Keraus gave a speech and presented Mr. and Mrs. Kluckhohn with an electric waffle iron as a gift from the relatives gathered there. Mr. and Mrs. Kluckhohn responded with short talks. Mrs. Carold Larson daughter of the happy couple, also read a number of letters of congratulation from relatives unable to attend the gathering and presented the gifts which they had sent.

It will b interesting to know that the spot where the celebration was observed was also the first home of Mr. and Mrs. Kluckhohn, as the new church building stands on the same location as the house into which they moved 25 years ago and where they lived for a time.

Mr. and Mrs. Kluckhohn were married at Remington, Indiana, on April 12, 1911 by the Rev. Richard H. Crowder, pastor of the M. E. Church there.

After their marriage they lived in Klemme for six years, then moving to a farm near Austin, Minn. where they lived for a few years and again moving back to Klemme where they have lived since. Mr. Kluckhohn, since moving back from Minnesota, has been in the general merchandise business here with his brothers, Frank and Clarence.

Mr. and Mrs. Kluckhohn are the parents of one child, a daughter, who is now Mrs. Carold Larson of near Klemme.

The following relatives were present at the anniversary celebration Sunday, April 12th to honor Mr. and Mrs. Fred Kluckhohn: Mr. and Mrs. Carold Larson; Mrs. G. W. Kluckhohn and Mrs. Sadie Turgasen; Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Keraus, Otho and Verle; Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Kluckhohn, Clarence and Eugene; Mr. Frank Kluckhohn, Kenneth, Franklin and Carmen; Mr. and Mrs. August Larson and Mr. and Mrs. Harry Smith.

ROSS FAMILY GATHERING HELD AT BRITT SUNDAY

Mr. and Mrs. John Day and Mrs. Wm. Smith attended a Ross family gathering and dinner Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Homer Huuskamp at Britt. Others who were present were Mr. and Mrs. Dorance Day of Mason City; Mr. and Mrs. Bert Mathews of Clear Lake; Walter Ross and family, Alex Ross and family and Dave Ross nd family of Garner.

Tobacco Chewing Is Listed Among Ways to Start a Fire

Everybody knows that smokers often contribute to fire hazards, but now, under certain circumstances tobacco chewers are in the same category. At a recent safety conference it was shown how the bleaching room of a textile factory is no place to chew in.

The insurance engineers sprinkled sawdust on a table on which was spilled a small quantity of bleach containing sodium peroxide. Tobacco juice on this combination caused a burst of flame.

No Need to Suffer "Morning Sickness"

"Morning sickness"—is caused by an acid condition. To avoid it, acid must be offset by alkalis—such as magnesia.

Why Physicians Recommend Milnesia Wafers

These mint-flavored, candy-like wafers are pure milk of magnesia in solid form—the most pleasant way to take it. Each wafer is approximately equal to a full adult dose of liquid milk of magnesia. Chewed thoroughly, then swallowed, they correct acidity in the mouth and throughout the digestive system and insure quick, complete elimination of the waste matters that cause gas, headaches, bloated feelings and a dozen other discomforts.

Milnesia Wafers come in bottles of 20 and 48, at 35c and 60c respectively, and in convenient tins for your handbag containing 12 at 20c. Each wafer is approximately one adult dose of milk of magnesia. All good drug stores sell and recommend them.

FLOYD GIBBONS Adventurers' Club

Hello, Everybody!

"The Theater of Death"

By FLOYD GIBBONS
Famous Headline Hunter.

SOME of you older boys and girls of the Adventurers' Club will recall Chicago's Iroquois Theater disaster of 1903. I remember it very well. I remember standing horror stricken in the street, that cold December afternoon, as the victims were being carried out of the burning theater.

Five hundred and seventy-five persons lost their lives in that terrible catastrophe and 90 per cent of them were women and children who had come to attend the opening matinee of the musical show, "Mister Blue Beard." As the shocked firemen and police carried out the charred victims they piled the bodies one on top of the other on the sidewalk.

Once in a while someone would see a thin vapor rising from the lips of one of the still forms in the heap. That meant one of them was still alive and the vapor was the breath showing as it froze on striking the zero air.

Over would go the pile of bodies into the street as the frantic rescuers pulled the living person from beneath the dead and rushed the still breathing form into a nearby restaurant for medical aid. Every table in that restaurant held its load of dead and dying!

Fatal Panic of the Iroquois Theater Fire.

Inside the theater witnesses said the scenes of horror were indescribable. Panic had followed the discovery of the fire and women and children were being trampled to death in the mad rush for the exits. These exits were locked and before each closed door the firemen found bodies, piled to the ceiling, where they had died so near, and yet so far, from safety.

Miss Alpha Jackson of Franklin Square, N. Y., was in that fire. Alpha is a big girl now but she was a little girl then and a member of a famous child ballet which was on the program that fateful afternoon.

"Mother" Follis was in charge of the ballet and in the business of training children for stage work and, according to Alpha, was quite a character. Her children were always well trained and could be depended on to do their part. Alpha says the kindly old lady was a strict disciplinarian and demanded implicit obedience, but on the other hand she treated each child as though it were her own.

Ballet Girls Fluttery Before Their Cue.

"Back stage" as the show started, Alpha says, all was confusion, the confusion that always attends the opening performance of a new show. There was a very large cast and much scenery to handle. The scenery was very fluffy and not fireproofed the way it is today but the new theater boasted a fireproof steel curtain and was considered the last word in safety.

Alpha with 11 other little girls was seated before a make-up mirror in the dressing room. They were nervously waiting their cue to go on stage and had no thought of the tragedy that was about to unfold before their eyes.

Suddenly a scream, followed by a roar that shook the theater, startled them. They jumped to their feet in alarm and looked anxiously around. The door opened and Mother Follis stood before them. She was pale but calm.

"Sit in your chairs," she commanded, "and don't you move until I come back."

The little girls, Alpha says, obeyed as usual like soldiers. Mother Follis' orders were always obeyed to the letter. But the awful sounds of panic and confusion that came to the children through the thin walls of their dressing room made them rigid with terror. What was happening out there? Why had the music stopped? These and other unanswered questions nearly drove the little girls hysterical but they kept their seats. Mother Follis had ordered it.

Death Was a Member of the Audience.

And outside, on the stage and in the audience Death was already taking its grim toll. Had the girls known what was happening around them they would certainly have stampeded and been trampled to death in the mad rush for the doors. They could hear screams of terror and pain and the tramping of many feet on the steel staircases back stage. Now and then a crash as of a body falling came to their frightened ears.

Meanwhile, Mother Follis was having her share of anxiety. Caught in the mad rush, as she went to investigate, the ballet mistress was borne with the fear-crazed crowd right through the stage door to the alley in back of the theater. With her mind only on her girls who waited for her to come back she fought to re-enter the theater. But by then the firemen had arrived and no one was allowed to enter. The stage was already a burning inferno and unless help came her girls would die for obeying her.

Firemen and police held her back but Mother Follis would not be held back. She was used to being obeyed and fought for her way. She screamed that her children were trapped in their dressing room. Firemen said they would get them. But Mother Follis was afraid they would not know where to look. She would not direct them unless they let her go.

Mother Follis Makes a Dramatic Rescue.

And, as usual, Mother Follis had her way. Back into the burning theater she went with a fireman at her side. The door suddenly opened, Alpha says, and a blast of smoke swept in. The ballet girls screamed in terror. One spark and their flimsy ballet dresses would burst into flame. But through the smoke Mother Follis' orders came clear and distinct. "First position." Twelve pale little girls stood in line. "Forward, march! one-two—one-two—"

And 12 little girls, looking neither to right nor to left, marched out behind their beloved "Mother." The stage, Alpha says, was now clear of the frenzied crowd. Flames crackled around them and smoke made their eyes water but not a fluffy skirt was disarranged as the little ballet marched out to open air and safety!

The crowd sent up a cheer as the girls marched out the stage door, in perfect formation. Not a dancing-pumped foot was out of step. Then as eager hands reached for the children something happened that DID break up their formation.

Hawk Family Ordinary Up to Entirely Beneficial

There is a hawk species, according to a representative of the United States Department of Agriculture, that ranges in human significance from "ordinarily neutral; sometimes injurious" up to "almost entirely beneficial." These are the hawks which the farmer, the sportsman, the outdoorsman generally, should learn to recognize and to salute with "Pass, friend," when he sees them. A group, known to hawkmen as the Buteos, or "mouse hawks" prey predominantly on field mice and other small rodents. These hawks very seldom err in the direction of taking song birds or game birds.

An important item in the dietary of the beneficial hawks is insects. They devour huge numbers of fat caterpillars, wireworms, beetles and grasshoppers. One species, the sparrow hawk, is misnamed and should be called the grasshopper hawk. In grasshopper time its food consists almost entirely of these leaping pests.

Eagles, which are close kin of the hawks, come in for a bit of debunking. They are not the fierce and glorious birds of prey that fly through political speeches. The golden eagle feeds mostly on rabbits—and carrion. The bald eagle, America's proud emblem, feeds predominantly on fish which it either steals or finds dead along the shore.

DRIED GRASS FOR HENS, GOOD FEED

Chemist Accidentally Finds Valuable Egg-Booster.

C. F. Schnabel, a Kansas City chemist, accidentally stumbled onto this discovery. For seven years he had been trying to boost egg production and disease resistance in his small flock by feeding green stuffs of various kinds, including alfalfa meal. Beyond 10 per cent, alfalfa meal was harmful; common vegetables were no better. Then in 1931 his greens mixture happened to have a lot of dried young wheat and oats in it. His hens began laying their heads off: 108 Leghorns averaged 64 per cent from May to September and mortality was cut in half. Mr. Schnabel was puzzled, and set out to find out why. After several years' more work he found the secret: Dried young grasses! These, states a writer in the Country Home, reach their peak in nutritional value just before jointing, normally about the twentieth day. Cut prior to jointing, there will not only be another crop but the dried grasses will be two or three times richer in protein and vitamins.

Potato growers in the Kaw and the Missouri river bottoms who have been planting cereals after harvest for green manure have on this basis been plowing under a crop worth $200 an acre to poultrymen.

Scientists in the United States Department of Agriculture, at Purdue university, Louisiana State and elsewhere who have been investigating the curing of alfalfa, soy bean and other hays report a much higher vitamin A content in hays cut early and cured so as to preserve the leaves and green color.

Vitamin A is the one which is so highly prized in eggs, butter and other human foods, and it is this vitamin which is lost when hay is cut too late, or when the leaves shatter, or are blanched by sun or rain. With vitamins being poked at us from all directions, we get a little confused, but it's hard to ignore the practical results which men like C. F. Schnabel are getting.

Advice on Feeding "Green" Ducks Given by an Expert

To grow "green" ducks the first feed should consist of equal parts of bran, shorts and corn meal, with about 10 per cent beef meal added. One per cent charcoal is also recommended, advises a poultryman in the Montreal Herald. Moisten with water just to make it crumbly; sprinkle with sand just before feeding. The sand serves as grit. Feed only what the ducklings will eat up clean at each feeding. When the ducklings are well started, green feed may be added, such as clover or alfalfa hay chopped fine and added to the mash. Increase the green feed gradually until it reaches about one-fifth of the ration.

When the ducklings are six weeks old, discontinue the green feed and at the commencement of the seventh week feed this mixture: Fifty pounds corn meal, 35 pounds shorts, and 15 pounds beef meal, with coarse sand sprinkled over the mixture. When the ducklings are about ten weeks old, they should be ready for market. Market them just before they start to change their body feathers.

Cleanliness in Poultry Yard

Cleanliness is not an easy thing to maintain in poultry quarters; it involves constant attention to the countless details which the care of poultry involves from the time that the chicks leave the incubator to their final trip to market. Even the incubator will not stay clean of itself, eating and drinking utensils soon become soiled by discharges and contaminate their contents, quarters are quickly fouled if not given attention, yards suffer the same fate and hold in their upper layers of soil embryo parasites, waiting to again obtain entrance to living bodies where they may complete their cycle of life. No one measure suffices to insure cleanliness everywhere, but the hoe, the broom, the scrub brush and the pail of hot water are valuable allies in the fight against disease.

In the Hen Yard

Each hundred birds in satisfactory production will drink four to five gallons of water a day.

Where pullets show lack of good condition, an attempt should be made to find the cause. Intestinal coccidiosis and worms may be to blame.

Hundreds of baby chicks are "executed" yearly at the University of Wisconsin in experiments designed to probe poultry diseases.

Club members are learning to dress the poultry grown in their projects, thus increasing the returns obtained when the birds are marketed.

To produce eggs with high hatch ability of strong, vigorous chicks requires green feed or a substitute like alfalfa, some vitamin D and milk.

If egg production is low and loss of birds is heavy, immediate treatment for worms is justified when it is learned that they are causing the trouble.

Hear Lloyd George
News From the Cosmos
Statesmen and Politicians
Sloan's Fine Figures

Lloyd George, who ran the big war for England and won with the help of old Clemenceau, not sympathetic with France this time, says England is dangerously involved and "we shall send our young men to die, this time on German soil, to punish these arrogant and aggressive Teutons for daring to make preparations for the defense of their own soil against a foreign invader."

Arthur Brisbane

Lloyd George is bitter in his denunciation of the suggestion that England be dragged into another war. "France," says he, "can spend $500,000,000 on the erection of huge fortifications. We can vote plans which involve expenditure of an extra fifteen hundred million dollars for protection. But if the Germans propose to throw up even a pillbox to guard their famous cities and their greatest industrial area . . . then 'measures must be concerted' between the general army staffs of Britain and France."

The "fastest" double star is found, and that is the big news. "Twin suns" close together, in the constellation of Ophiuchus, revolve completely around each other in twenty months. The shortest period of revolution for any other "binary" star is five years. Some revolve only once in a hundred years.

Nature is both fast and slow; the electron in the atom revolves around the proton thousands of millions of times in a second. The lens-shaped Milky Way above your head, in which our sun is one of thirty thousand million specks of light, revolves once in 225,000,000 years. No limit to bigness, no limit to smallness, apparently.

That naval conference in London ends, quite to the satisfaction of England, with the situation about as it was when Hiram Johnson of California put the situation in these few words:

"Great Britain builds as she prefers; the United States builds as Great Britain permits."

England actually says to the United States, "You must build no more cruisers with eight-inch guns; we do not like them." And the United States humbly says, "All right, then we shall not build any."

It is the old story: England has statesmen, we have politicians—and some of them are Anglomaniac snobs.

Big business, like little business, has had its trouble, but here and there it is still big business. In his annual report for General Motors, Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., reports net sales last year amounting to $1,155,641,511, against $862,672,070 the year before; a gain of more than two hundred and ninety-two million dollars. That means many new cars, and families made happier. The company paid out in wages more than three hundred and twenty-three million dollars, not including wages paid indirectly to thousands of workers producing materials of which automobiles are made.

Sixty of Mussolini's planes have wiped out Harar, Ethiopia's second biggest city, one of 40,000 inhabitants. "Civilized" Europe, England leading, bemoans the fact that a Mohammedan mosque, the Coptic cathedral and a Catholic church were blasted.

They forget what happened in the big war, at Rheims, Louvain and elsewhere, and the German cannon "Big Bertha" throwing at Paris shells that might well have wrecked Notre Dame, the Madeleine or the Sainte Chapelle.

War is as ruthless as was nature in the earthquake that destroyed the great cathedral of Lisbon, killing thousands that had gathered there seeking divine protection.

When Pittsburgh is through with the disaster that has almost overwhelmed the city, a monument should be erected in a park, or on the mountainside, in honor of the courage and recuperative energy of the great industrial city. With lights turned off, water flooding the streets, many men and women calmly continued their work, wearing coal miners' light-bearing caps, like so many gigantic glow worms. Americans still possess resourcefulness and can do what they must do.

"To him that hath shall be given," even in Wall street speculation.

Beginning May 1, if you buy $100 worth of stocks, you must put $55 of your own into the deal. This will compel small fish to operate on a small scale and get rich slowly, if at all.

It has been suggested here often that airplanes might fight forest fires, possibly by laying down from overhead a soapy layer to shut out oxygen. Utah's officials have planned a new parachute, instantaneously opening, that would land from one to six firefighters and apparatus from planes, wherever desired.

Horses Again in Demand, Spring Sales Indicate

St. Francis, Kan.—Spring sales are proving the farmers are using more horses and mules. There was a time when the tractor reigned supreme. In a sale of 70 head of horses and mules held in St. Francis the average price for the 70 head of animals was $80. A five-year-old mare, weighing 1,400 pounds, brought $160. In view of this increased demand farmers and stockmen are paying more attention to the breeding of horses and mules.

POLITICS AND JUSTICE

Critics of the Supreme Court, most of whom would usurp for themselves the powers given to the Court by the Constitution, are indulging in a breathing spell. The reason is that they found the mind of the general public not yet ready for anything that would hamstring the agency that has kept our government from becoming a dictatorship, socialism or monarchy.

The talk started when the NRA was ruled illegal. But the NRA was unpopular anyhow. Then the AAA fell. It now appears that the AAA's friends were decreasing in number. Attacks on the court therefore fell on barren ground. The intelligent Americans ealized that no one branch of the government—executive, legislative, or judicial—should be made all powerful.

But the campaign is not yet over. The Court's critics are biding their time; holding their breath in the hope that they eventually will be supplied with really popular ammunition. They may even renew their campaign anyhow, for personal power is a thing that all men like.

One talking point in the past has been the implication that the Supreme Court played politics .The facts belied that because frequently the justices voted for things which were politically and personally objectionable but which at the same time they felt were legal.

Arthur Krock able Washington correspondent for the New York Times, summed up the political aspect recently when, after a study of history, he wrote:

"The records of Congress and the Chief Executive with respect to political motivation do not compare favorably with the record of the Court. This with the added circumstance that no safe substitute for the system of judicial supremacy has as yet been responsibly made by a major party leader accounts for the fact that, once more, in the fire of criticism, the Supreme Court is still stronger than its assailants in the forum of public opinion."

POLITICS VS. ECONOMICS

The Washington politicians would have us believe that they have found, in this election year, a "painless" tax; that they are going to sock business and leave the rest of us alone.

That sounds awfully good. We all realize that a $35,000,000,000 federal debt must be paid sometime and, naturally, we are quite willing for the other fellow to pay it But let's look into this thing a little.

Stiff taxes on a mill that makes overall do not seem to bother anybody but the mill's manager. Yet when the taxes are levied, the overall mill manager has three courses before him:

1. He can reduce the profits paid to stockholders; 2. He can cut the wages of workers in the mill; 3. He can pass the tax along to the man who buys the overalls.

People won't invest money in one plant that pays them only 2 percent when they can get 4 or 5 some place else, so the first alternative is out.

Actually there is only one source of revenue—the consumer. Already, though he may not know it, the average individual is working two days a week to pay the cost of government. He cheers because he pays no income taxes. But his loaf of bread bears 53 taxes before he eats it.

The in sidious thing is that the voters make no real squawk about the frittering away of billions so long as they do not realize they are providing the money. And the money fritterers are afraid, for the time being, to admit that everybody pays the bill.

BRITAIN HAS GOVERNMENT SURPLUS

The report of the Chancellor of the Exchequer shows that Great Britain closed the fiscal year just ended with a surplus. It was the fourth successive year in which British governmental income has exceeded expenditures, following depression deficits. Recovery in Great Britain has progressed upward since the nation was turned away from unbalanced budgets and governmental experiments.

3392 MORE EMPLOYEES ON PAYROLL

The Veterans Administration is taking on 3,392 more employees to speed payment of the soldiers' bonus.

Of these 1,562 will join the horde of federal workers in Washington. The others will be added to the "field" forces. All have not yet yone to work even though the rush in the number of applications has eased off.

In the first week of February, the applications totaled 214,183, surging to a peak of 857,139 the second week in the month. The last week in March, the applications totaled onlp 91,817.

AN IMPORTANT CROP

Among the recent agricultural developments, on of the most striking is seen ni the rise of the soybean industry, last years crop of 39 million bushels being twice as large as that of the preceeding year. Fifteen years ago the American crop was less than three million bushels.

The soybean is a native of Asia, and in China and Japan it is extensively used for human food. In the United States it is now used chiefly as stock feed and as a soil improver, but it is also employed in the manufacture of plastics, paint, varnish and linoleum. The oil is used in numerous kinds of food.

State experiment stations and experimental farms operated by large feed companies agree that soybean oilmeal possesses many advantages as a stock and poultry feed, being more palatable and easier to digest, besides promoting more rapid and satisfactory growth than other protein feeds.

1300 FIRMS MAKE $122,896 PROFIT

More than 1,300 of the country's most "important" corporations are shown by Standard Statistics Company to have had a total net income of $1,597,649,000 last year.

In percentages, that reflected a 42 per cent increase over the net income of the same firms last year. But statisticians, translating the net into dollars, found the average per firm only $122,896, which would be a small profit for a company capitalized for millions.

Hitler had two big dirigibles flying over the Reich advertising his political campaign. But we don't believe they would be as effective as relief checks.

The ability to live without work always has appeared to be a gift, but only in recent years has it become a gift of the government.

According to an advertising authority, all a fellow needs to get a job as a model for collars, garters, union suits and other mens' apparel is a firm chin, steely eyes, shapely cheek bones, good teeth, plenty of wavy hair, broad shoulders and an erect carriage. He must also look romantic, if anyone gets what that mans.

Lovely shirred sleeves finished off with wide contrasting cuffs and a jaunty neckline are enchanting features of this dress. Carry it out in a becoming polka dot of crepe, silk, lawn, or a smooth rayon. By the way it's very easily made because the dress is all one piece with two pleats and stitchings in the front skirt, and a flattering blouse that's trimmed with square buttons. It's accented at the waist with either a self-fabric or purchased belt.

Barbara Bell Pattern No. 1846-B is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18 and 20. Corresponding bust measurements 30, 32, 34, 36 and 38. Size 14 (32) requires 4½ yards of 35 inch material plus ⅜ yard for contrasting neck band and cuffs.

Women of Iran

Women in Iran have always played a very important part in economic and political life even if they have not been in evidence socially. They have always enjoyed a much better position than many of their sisters in Europe.

Car That Launches Airplane Employed by Oregon Police

Oregon state police have purchased a surprising weapon. It is a motor car equipped to launch an airplane, and the small plane so to be used. When the car attains speeds in excess of 25 miles an hour, it is said, the pilot of the plane accelerates his motor and takes off from the platform above the car's top on which the plane is carried.

Woman Patron Buying Ham Asks Butcher to "Burger" It

He was just a country butcher, but he deals with a lot of city slickers and he must be alert to see to it they put nothing over on him. He was discussing the suggestion that many of the customers who come to him are so dumb that he could sell them tripe for porterhouse steak. As an example he explained that a woman came into his shop and asked for a pound of ham. This he cut, and then to his surprise the customer said, "Now please burger it."

The butcher did not grasp the request immediately, and then it dawned upon him that the buyer wanted meat for a hamburger steak. Trying to explain the makings used for a hamburger, the woman became very indignant, saying she knew what she wanted.

Not willing to accept his explanation, he did the next best thing and ran the slice of ham through the chopper, wrapped it up, and the customer went away in contentment. Her subsequent visits to the store were friendly and the subject was never mentioned.—New York Sun.

New Housing Program of the Administration

FEDERAL money totaling $976,000,000 will be spent in the next four years on low-cost rent and slum clearance construction projects, provided the administration's housing bill, introduced by Senator Robert F. Wagner of New York, is passed by congress. Mr. Wagner hopes it will be put through during the present session.

Sen. Wagner

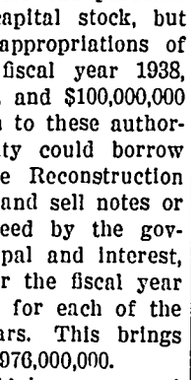
The measure is a compromise of the many proposals made by the various relief and housing agencies of the New Deal and was drafted after a series of conferences with President Roosevelt. It would create another bureau, with five directors, including the secretary of the interior in his ex officio capacity, receiving $10,000 salaries. The authority could employ officers, agents, counsel and other personnel without limitation as to number or compensation and without regard for the civil service laws. This authority would supplant the existing housing division of the Public Works administration.

Only $51,000,000 would be appropriated for the present, of which $1,000,000 would be used for the purchase of the authority's capital stock, but the bill authorizes appropriations of $75,000,000 for the fiscal year 1938, $100,000,000 for 1939, and $100,000,000 for 1940. In addition to these authorizations, the authority could borrow $100,000,000 from the Reconstruction Finance corporation, and sell notes or bonds, fully guaranteed by the government as to principal and interest, up to $100,000,000 for the fiscal year 1937 and $150,000,000 for each of the succeeding three years. This brings the grand total to $976,000,000.

The authority would be empowered to make grants not to exceed 45 per cent of the total cost and loans for the remainder to any public housing agency for the acquisition of land and the construction of "low-rent" housing projects. The loans would be repayable over a period not to exceed 60 years, at such rates of interest as the authority decreed. In addition to the loans and grants, the authority could develop and administer so-called demonstration projects, which "as soon as practicable" would be sold to public housing agencies.

Senate Begins Impeachment Trial of Judge Ritter

RESOLVING itself into a court, the senate began the impeachment trial of Federal Judge Halsted, L. Ritter of Florida—the twelfth such case in 137 years. It was believed the trial would last at least one week. The defendant was represented by Carl T. Hoffman of Miami and Frank R. Walsh of Washington and New York. The prosecution was in charge of Representatives Summers of Texas, Hobbs of Alabama and Perkins of New Jersey.



Judge Ritter

Originally approximately 60 witnesses were summoned for the trial, but 29 were excused because of withdrawal by the prosecution of two specifications in article seven charging Judge Ritter acted improperly in electric rate and banking proceedings.

Judge Ritter is charged in seven impeachment articles voted by the house with allowing A. L. Rankin, a former law partner, exorbitant receivership fees, with "corruptly" receiving $4,500 from Rankin, with violating the judicial code in practicing law while on the bench, and with evasion of taxes on part of his 1929 and 1930 incomes.

In a 12,000-word reply, Ritter denied all of the charges. He asserted none of the actions cited had "brought his court into scandal and disrepute" or "destroyed public confidence in the administration of justice" in that court.

Wallace Reports Some Big AAA Payments

DUE to the insistence of Senator Vandenberg for publicity on large AAA benefit payments, Secretary Wallace has begun telling about them. He made a partial report, withholding the names of recipients with three exceptions. This revealed that the largest cotton rental benefit payment, $123,747 for 1934, went to a Mississippi company headed by Oscar Johnston, an AAA official. Among the largest cotton payment recipients in 1933 were the Mississippi state penitentiary, which received $43,200 for controlling production on its cotton acreage, and $25,500 to the Arkansas state prison.

Among other large payments reported under various crop control programs were:

Sugar—$961,064 to a Puerto Rican corporation; $862,460 to a Hawaiian producer; $92,237 to a California beet sugar producer; $65,505 to a Colorado beet sugar grower.

Corn-hogs—$150,000 to the "largest hog farm in the world," located in California; $49,194 to a farming company in New Jersey; $19,098 to a Massachusetts producer.

Wheat—$29,398 to a California farming concern for the second 1934 and first 1935 periods; $26,022 to the "operator of a number of farms" in Washington state; $23,845 to a California bank, owner of a large wheat acreage; $22,325 to a "large Montana farmer."

Cotton—$115,700 in 1934 to an Arkansas concern; $80,000 the same year to another Arkansas company.

Tobacco—$41,454 to a Florida concern; $20,430 to a Connecticut producer; $16,843 to a South Carolina grower; $15,450 to a Kentucky grower.

Supreme Court Hits at Arbitrary Power

IN A decision concerning a specific action of the Securities Exchange commission the United States Supreme court ruled against the SEC, and in its pronouncement it uttered a significant warning against the exercise of arbitrary power by governmental agencies. Especially censured were the "fishing excursions," often undertaken by commissions and congressional committees. Said the court:

"The philosophy that constitutional limitations and legal restraints upon official action may be brushed aside upon the plea that good, perchance, may follow, finds no countenance in the American system of government. An investigation not based upon specified grounds is quite as objectionable as a search warrant not based upon specific statements of fact.

"Such an investigation, or such a search, is unlawful in its inception and cannot be made lawful by what it may bring, or by what it actually succeeds in bringing to light."

The decision was concurred in by six justices; a dissenting opinion handed down by Justices Cardozo, Brandeis and Stone, agreed with the warning of the abuse of power, but contended that the act of the SEC, held unlawful by the majority, was a legal and just means of stamping out frauds in security sales.

Tornadoes in the South Kill Scores of Persons

TORNADOES tore across Mississippi, Alabama, Georgia, Arkansas, and Tennessee, leaving death and destruction in their wake. About 400 persons were killed and hundreds of others injured, and the property losses ran up into the millions. The little city of Tupelo, Miss., suffered the most, with nearly 200 on the death list and more than a hundred homes smashed into kindling wood.

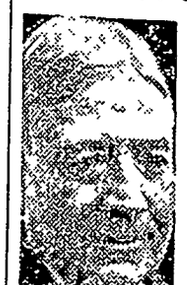
A few hours later another tornado struck Gainesville, Ga., and in three minutes had nearly ruined the business section of the town and killed more than 150 persons. In fires that followed the storm the bodies of many victims were burned beyond recognition.

The mining communities near Columbia, Tenn., to the north and east of Tupelo, counted seven dead. Red Bay, eastward in Alabama, lost five lives to the merciless wind. Near-by Booneville, Miss., had four killed and Batesville, Ark., suffered one death.

The tornadoes struck while the southeast was reaching a final total on storms which smashed through that region a few days before, causing 43 deaths in Georgia, the Carolinas, Alabama and Florida.

Lowden May Be Keynoter for the Republicans

LEADERS of both major parties are perfecting the arrangements for the national conventions and picking out the chief orators for those occasions. The Republicans have tentatively selected Frank O. Lowden, former governor of Illinois, as temporary chairman and keynoter of the gathering in Cleveland. If this choice stands it is presumed the permanent chairman will be an Easterner, possibly Walter Edge of New Jersey, former ambassador and senator.



F. O. Lowden

Some Western governor is wanted by the Democrats as their keynoter and the honor may be given to Paul V. McNutt of Indiana, C. Ben Ross of Idaho or Clyde C. Herring of Iowa. For permanent chairman at Philadelphia Senator Robinson of Arkansas is likely to be picked. The speech putting President Roosevelt in nomination for a second term may be delivered by Senator Wagner of New York.

New York Republicans of the Old Guard persuasion scored a decisive victory over Senator Borah in the primaries, and the Empire state delegation to Cleveland will be unpledged to any candidate. The triumph of the conservatives was complete.

Five Army Flyers Die in Crash of Bomber

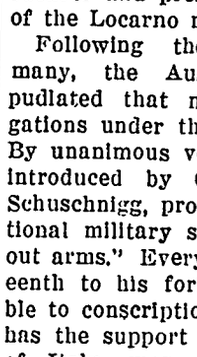
DRIVEN far off its course by storm, a twin motored bombing plane on its way from Maryland to Langley Field, Va., against the Blue mountains near Fredericksburg, Pa., in the night, crew of five men all perished in burning wreckage. The victims, Lieut. Stetson Brown, St. Johnsbury, Vt.; Staff Sergt. Ernest Engle, Pa.; Private Arthur Metz, Carlisle, Pa.; Private William [illegible], Kees Rocks, Pa.; Cadet Pat[illegible] paugh, Cleveland, Ohio.

The crash would have been worse if the plane had been 250 feet higher. A state highway patrolman who said it appeared to be in trouble as it approached the mountain ridge.

It tore a wide path through heavy timber as it struck, then nose first into a steep cliff, where the mountain falls sharply away for a 100-foot drop. Near-by residents heard it, but before they could get to the scene the plane was afire, its front buried in the ground, its tail caught in a tree.

Hitler's Peace Program Is Formally Submitted

ADOLF HITLER'S proposals for peace in Europe, together with his flat rejection of the plan of the other four Locarno powers for settlement of the Rhineland situation, were delivered to British Foreign Minister Eden by Joachim von Ribbentrop, and passed on by Eden to the French and Belgian ambassadors in London. The British cabinet thought the German scheme was worthy of consideration, but the French government looked upon it as a "cunning plan" to split the Locarno powers and make Hitler the virtual dictator of Europe. Premier Sarraut of France, Foreign Minister Flandin were reported acting on steps for frustrating the plans of the fuehrer and preserving a united front of the Locarno nations.



Adolf Hitler

Following the example of Germany, the Austrian diet has repudiated that nation's military obligations under the St. Germain treaty. By unanimous vote it approved a bill introduced by Chancellor Kurt von Schuschnigg, providing for general conscription. This move, which has the support of Premier Mussolini of Italy, was not unexpected, though it aroused the little entente nations to anger, probably their formal protests will bring no result.

Bruno Hauptmann's Body Cremated in New York

WITH the "utmost privacy," funeral services were held in New York for Bruno Hauptmann, who was executed in Trenton, N. J., for the kidnaping and murder of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh's baby son. The body was then cremated and it was announced that the ashes would be taken to Germany. Hauptmann went to the chair steadily, insisting that he was innocent of the crime.

Ten Weeks' Embargo on Exports of Tin

SECRETARY OF STATE Hull placed a ten weeks' embargo on shipments of scrap tin to foreign countries, beginning April 16. He acted under a recently enacted law designed to preserve America's resources of vital war material. His move was generally regarded as aimed at Japan, one of the largest purchasers of scrap tin from this country.

The United States is dependent on foreign countries for most of its tin. As a result the re-conversion, or retinning, of scrap has assumed growing economic importance.

Italy Claims Big Victory Over Ethiopians

PEACE negotiations between Italy and Ethiopia, outside the League of Nations, seem imminent, for emissaries of Emperor Haile Selassie already have been received by Marshal Pietro Badoglio, and the Italian undersecretary of colonies is in east Africa to conduct the preliminaries. This news followed closely the dispatches telling of a great victory won by Badoglio's northern troops over 20,000 fresh and picked Ethiopian soldiers whose fight was directed and watched by the emperor himself. The battle, at Mai Cen, lasted all day and the Ethiopians left 7,000 dead on the field as they fled to join the main body of 50,000 troops south of Lake Ashangi eight miles away. Italian fatalities included 16 officers and about 1,000 soldiers, most of the latter being Eritrean Askaris. It was believed Marshal Badoglio would follow up this victory with a smashing blow at Dessye, main concentration point of the Ethiopians, unless peace negotiations stop him.

Marshal Badoglio

Just before this battle the Italian air bombers attacked and practically ruined Harar, second city of Ethiopia. Most of the populace had fled when scouting planes gave a warning of what was to come, so the casualties were few. An official telephone message from Harar to Addis Ababa said fifteen incendiary bombs struck the Egyptian Red Cross hospital.

real story, however, has been t has come in snatches from of the men and women who ere, who still are. It has been part by volunteer workers, by workers; by the rank and file great army of rescue and reation.

WANTED TO DIE

ppened at Springfield, Mass. water trapped a family of There was a woman who 250 pounds, her ninety-six-year grandfather and her husband. rcumstances were unusual in ; these people had had time e out. But they wanted to the woman, bed-ridden three years with a broken hip, the flood meant lasting peace.

Red Cross workers, evacuating families from the city's danger spots, reached their home. The woman would not budge. Her husband, grimly determined, stood guard before her, barring the way.

It was necessary to knock the husband out to get the woman into the rescue boat. After she was taken to a hospital she went on a hunger strike. The husband, meanwhile, had disappeared, fearing arrest for resisting rescue.

Several days passed and the woman began to weep for her husband. For the first time she was receiving medical care, and life was worth holding on to. The Red Cross located the missing husband and a touching reunion took place at the side of the cot in the hospital ward. The woman will be give a new start in life . . .

Sometimes the line between drama and melodrama is drawn with a sure, bold stroke. This is true in the following instance. A Red Cross nurse who is a war veteran set out for Washington for much needed hospitalization. Second Lieutenant Mary Scanlon was trapped by rising water in Bellaire, Ohio, enroute. For 48 hours she washed dishes and tended frightened children at a refugee center, putting the need of others before her own pressing need for rest and medical care . . .

During the first flood crest the Coast Guard cutter Kenosha, under Capt. Henry Rogers, was rammed by a log in the Ohio during a blinding blizzard. The cutter, loaded with relief supplies, was bound for Powhatan, Ohio. The crew stuffed the jagged tear in the hull with blankets, keeping the vessel afloat for eight hours until a second cutter pulled alongside and pumped the Kenosha out sufficiently to shore and patch her. After which she proceeded to Powhatan under her own power . . .

PEOPLE RETAIN HUMOR

When flood waters sideswiped Hadley, Mass., homes and outbuildings were swept downstream. Sheds and roadside stands were tumbled end over end for nearly a mile. Citizens of the community formed a posse to hunt their dwellings and spent the better part of a day stalking service stations and sheds in mid-stream. The fortitude of these people was remarkable. They had lost everything, yet they could joke about their "strays" . . .

A section of Winchendon, Mass., was isolated when a wooden bridge was shaken loose and floated down-river. Residents of the section took to boats and chased the bridge, gaining slowly but surely. Bank watchers hooted encouragement. The bridge was caught, towed back and moored over its foundations. When the water receded it dropped into place so accurately that traffic immediately crossed . . .

Two residents of Wheeling, W. Va., are dead. They contracted pneumonia while engaged in rescue work. They voluntered their services to aid the plight of their neighbors, these men; and paid for their heroism with their lives. The desolation of a flood must also be reckoned in terms of its aftermath . . .

THOUSANDS NEED HELP

With flood crests receding, loss to the individual family becomes more apparent. It is no longer colored by excitement, by terror. There may be something almost majestic about a house, immersed to its gables, gallantly straining against raging torrents. But a home has a ghost-like, a half buried high-and-dry look when the water has drained away.

Furniture is warped and broken. Mud and silt are piled feet deep over once choice belongings. Plaster has flaked away, pyramiding the soggy mess below. Walls have buckled; plumbing and electrical fixtures must be relegated to the junk pile. The home is dead with its mouth agape, and its window eyes have been poked out, and it is no longer a home at all. Small wonder that flood sufferers without resources must be helped to face the future. The Red Cross reports that in Wheeling alone, 15,000 families will require some form of household goods or home repair assistance . . .

An expectant mother at Powhatan Point, Ohio, was in desperate need of essential supplies. She lay on a mattress in a dance hall in the midst of 75 other refugees. Lamplight flickered dimly and couples moved about the floor—not in the dance but to keep warm. The Point was practically isolated.

Somehow a relief truck fought through from Wheeling carrying the essentials for the stricken woman. A little later she gave birth to a child, both lives doubtless saved by the dogged persistence of relief workers who traversed impassable stretches of what had once been roads . . .

The United States Coast Guard rescued 10,000 persons from Wilkes-Barre and Kingston homes. The Susquehanna loops here, and flood waters spilled across at right angles, closing the loop. There resulted some of the swiftest and most treacherous currents ever encountered by small craft.

The Red Cross chapter at Wilkes-Barre, Pa., established a first aid station in a trolley car placed at the end of the Market street bridge. This made light and heat possible. Physicians were in charge, aided by Red Cross nurses and the Chapter First Aid crew of 45 men. As Coast Guard boats brought refugees to the bridge, they were inspected, then either sent to a hospital or treated on the trolley if requiring medical attention . . .

The flood is over. Rivers in practically all affected areas are homeward bound for their banks. Mass feeding and shelter stations are caring for comparatively few these days.

But rehabilitation has just begun. For long, weary months relief agencies will interview individual families and survey damaged homes. This, the heartbreaking aftermath of catastrophe, is the version of the flood tale which will live longest in the memories of families who have lost the bulk of their possessions. The rest of the world soon forgets.

Jacket Costumes Lead Fashion Parade

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

JACKET costume! A mere matter of two words and about the most important chapter in the story of the new spring and summer fashions is told. The consensus among style creators who know whereof they speak is that becomingness, femininity and individuality are the keynotes of women's fashions this season.

The new costume with its inevitable jacket (if not a cunningly devised cape) does just that. It flatters, it feminizes and being in a widely versatile mood, it tunes to type at the will of its ingenious designer. So it is that the colorful spring parade is mostly a matter of just one jacket costume after another.

Trekking along in the procession, boleros of Spanish extraction hobnob with jackets that have gone obviously Chinese. Hosts of smart Etons vary the program together with a goodly showing of stylish fingertip jackets. The new "baby reefer" and the just as new and important "baby swagger" are likewise keeping step to the spring song of fashion.

The new redingote, Eton and bolero costumes in navy or black which are considered fashion "firsts" on the style program form intriguing alliances with prints that pride themselves on their gay coloring. Jacket linings, sleeve facings, blouses and innumerable trimming details of bizarre print in contrast to monotones challenge designers to work out stunning effects.

Jackets of bright print or embroidery worn with gown or skirt in a solid color are outstanding. This is true not only of silk and woolen ensembles but swanky printed linens and colorful peasant-print cottons are especially attractive styles, according to this formula.

At a recent preview of foremost styles presented by the Chicago Wholesale Market district to an audience of fashion enthusiasts who had gathered from far and near to witness this significant event, the idea of the jacket costume was dramatically stressed for both daytime and evening dress. The jacketed models herewith illustrated were selected from this showing of surpassingly chic clothes as being not only practical but also flatteringly wearable.

The model to the right features a swank bolero type. The brief jacket is lined, cuffed and collared with the same print that fashions the frilly blouse pictured with bolero removed in inset. The fine pleatings, the peplum tabs below the very wide belt, the straight narrow silhouette of the skirt and especially the huge full-at-top sleeves are highly significant style details.

The perfectly stunning spectator-sports costume to the left eloquently bespeaks the "reason why" jacket ensembles are at the top o' the mode. A style so breathtaking as this will coax a burst of enthusiasm from even the most blase. The dress of voguish sheer white woolen is topped with a jacket of unique cut that is handsomely all-over braided with soutache. The original model is done in bright navy but black on white is equally as effective. Which leads us to tell you that some of the smartest costumes going this season are white worked with black soutache or made up with effective touches of black-and-white print. Note the scroll of soutache finishing the skirt hemline. It tells you that designful hemlines are a very important style gesture.

PLEATED SLEEVES

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

Designers are doing interesting things with sleeves. Pleated sleeves are very high style this season. This frock of dusty pink moss crepe makes appeal because of its sophisticated simplicity. Its pleated sleeves give an air of distinction. The belt, tiny collar and felt beret are in the popular Dubonnet shade. Suggestive of spring and employing all the modern touches is the lovely petit point bag in pastoral design by Madame Jolles of Vienna. This charming bag with its dark ground and subdued colorings with jeweled clasps at the side of the gold frame makes a striking contrast to the gown.

Fancy Buttons

If you are having a number of buttons covered for a suit or dress have a few extra ones made and drop them in your mending basket. No doubt you will be very grateful for them later on.

LACE NOW INVADES WHOLE DRESS FIELD

The new summer collections in Paris are always eagerly awaited. This year they have brought more in novelty and charm than could have been anticipated. Femininity characterizes the fashions offered by all of the great designers, and in achieving feminine charm, the couturiers have chosen the preferred medium—lace. This return to favor of a material so long overlooked by the mode is outstanding, and it has come back not only in the classic varieties of lace to which we have become accustomed, but in many new and fascinating forms, which seem very definitely fabrics.

These new types are being employed widely for street dresses and summer suits, definitely tailored in effect. The prominence given lace in this type of clothes has also called attention to the practicalness and charm of cotton nets and tulle as a material for tailoring. Suits of these materials are shown and the new laces are utilized for long redingotes which veil evening frocks in an alluring mist.

Hand-Knit Silk Ensembles Are New Fashion Offering

Import collections show a number of hand-knitted silk ensembles. Anny Blatt, first to create a hand-knitted evening gown, has launched a hand-knitted silk wedding gown and a fine, sheer hand-knit veil. Her collection also includes knitted silk suits, dresses and blouses in daytime, cocktail and dinner styles.

New pure silk yarns have been developed for both hand-made and machine-knit costumes. They are easy to work with, wash like lingerie and are dressy enough for afternoon and bridge wear. The new silk yarns, which are the latest word to knitters, come in a wide range of colors both dark and light.

Who Are You?

The Romance of Your Name

By RUBY HASKINS ELLIS

A Robertson?

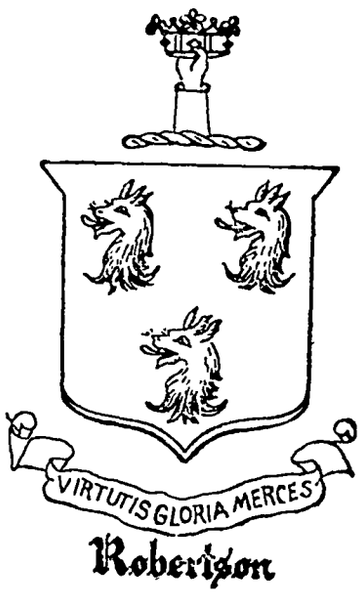
THIS is an old, old name, perhaps the most ancient of all Scottish surnames. It is claimed that Robertsons and Robinsons were Thanes, belonging to the oldest nobility of their native country, being firmly established there before the coming of William the Conqueror in the Eleventh century.

Robertsons trace descent to the ancient earls of Athol, whose house sprang from Duncan, king of Scotland, eldest son of Malcolm III.

Robert Bruce I was the son of Isabelle, great-granddaughter of David I, a Robertson, thus connecting the family with all the Scottish kings down to James VI.

The Robertson clan was seated in the highlands of Perthshire. The first to assume the name as a surname was Robert Reach, noted for his excursions into the lowlands of Scotland. He is credited as being the hero who delivered up to the vengeance of the government the two slayers of James I. For this he was rewarded with a crown charter erecting his estates into a free barony and given a coat of arms.

The motto on the arms shown, "Virtutis gloria merces," "glory is the reward of bravery," refers to this feat of the first Robertson to take the surname. The meaning of the name is derived from two Saxon words, "rod" and "bert," or "famous in council."



There were many distinguished men and women by this name in every period of Scottish and English history. William Ewart Gladstone was a descendant of the Robertsons of Rossshire.

In America there were dozens of first settlers by the name of Robertson, too many to mention in this brief sketch but they were represented in both the Massachusetts Bay colony and in the Virginia colony. Consequently, there is a host of descendants in every part of the country. These descendants are eligible to many patriotic organizations because of the conspicuous services rendered by these sturdy Robertson pioneers, who constituted an important factor in building a new nation both in Colonial and Revolutionary times.

Patrick Henry of Virginia was a descendant of William Robertson of Edinburgh.

Gen. James Robertson, also a Virginian of Scottish parentage, accompanied Daniel Boone on one of his famous frontier expeditions beyond the Alleghenies. General Robertson explored Tennessee, founded settlements at Watauga, and in 1779 founded the city of Nashville. His brilliant campaigns with the Indians won the rank and title of brigadier general bestowed upon him by Washington in 1790.

A Mackay?

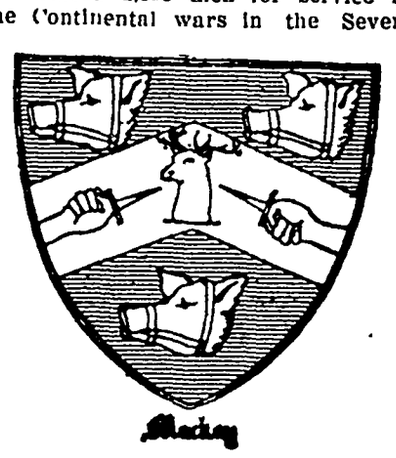
THE ancient name of the Clan Mackay was Morgan, whose members were people of the purest Celtic stock. Their domain was in the extreme north of Scotland and they bore the onslaught of the early Norse invaders.

A chieftain of the clan was Lord Reay, a great diplomat, whose ancestors raised 2,000 men for service in the Continental wars in the Seventeenth century. He was made governor of Bergen. Another leader was Chamberlain of Holland.



The war-cry of the Mackays was "The White Banner of Mackay," and their badge "Bulrush."

The plaid is in varying shades of green with black stripes. The shield of the family arms is shown here.

One of the first of this clan to come to America was Daniel, who settled in Newton, Mass., before 1673.

SEVERAL FUNERALS HELD PAST FEW DAYS

FRANK QUIGLEY, GOODELL, DIES OF HEART ATTACK

GOODELL—Frank Quigley, 72, pioneer resident of this vicinity, died at 4 o'clock last Thursday morning, an hour following a heart attack. He was apparently in good health previously.

Mr Quigley was one of three Irish immigrant boys who came to this vicinity when he was 18 and played an important part in community activities. Surviving are his widow, three sons, a daughter and a sister. He was an important contributor to the local Catholic church which was built in 1925.

Funeral services were conducted at the Catholic church Saturday.

FUNERAL SERVICES HELD FOR JOHN RUST ON FRIDAY

GOODELL—Funeral services for John Rust, 58, who died in a Mason City hospital from pneumonia and poisoning caused by a rat bite were held Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the home and 2:30 at the United Brethern church. The Rev. Harry Herlein officiated.

Ten days ago while he was hunting eggs in a manger in his barn a rat bit him on the hand, resulting in complications. He was recovering from pneumonia when he died.

Surviving are his widow and a daughter, Edna, who teaches at Floyd.

FINAL HAMMILL RITES HELD AT BRITT THURSDAY

Many Pay Last Tribute To Former Governor As Body Lies In State

BRITT—Residents of Britt were joined by many other Iowans, distinguished officials and lodge heads Thursday afternoon in paying final tributes to John L. Hammill, who had served Iowa as governor for three terms in addition to holding many other official positions. Business in Britt was suspended during the services.

During the day, as the body lay in state at the M. E. church, many came to see for the last time the face of the man who was largely responsible for Iowa's good roads program, who held high ranks in Masonic circles, whose public life was marked with the same sincerity as that of a valuable citizen and who had many other achievements. A guard of honor, furnished from Mason City national guard companies, stood near the casket.

Private proceedings were held at the home, preceding the public services at the M. E. church at 2:30. A delegation of Mason City guardsmen arrived to escort the body from the church to the cemetery.

Research Succeeds

DR. J. S. LONG, prominent research technician and formerly Professor of Chemistry at Lehigh University, has made known the development of a new method of processing oils which go into the manufacture of house paint. The new process is said to give paint a superior resistance to conditions which serve to bring about checking, cracking, peeling and fading of ordinary paint products. This new product is handled in Klemme by the Northern Lumber Co.

DEVOE HOUSE-PAINT LAUGHS AT SUN AND WEATHER!

"I'll show you how to avoid Expensive Repaint Jobs!"

YOU'VE SEEN HOUSES with unsightly paint that has checked and cracked . . . and in some places, bare patches that have peeled. Those homes are subject to quick decay. Their owners face premature, and heavy, repair bills.

The new Devoe 2-coat system effectively resists these common paint failures. New pigments and new oils block off destructive sun-rays. The new Devoe House Paint lasts twice as long as average paint.

Before you paint your home this year, I want you to see how the new Devoe paint system cuts your paint bills in half . . . makes your money go twice as far.

The Spirit of Jefferson

By RAYMOND PITCAIRN

National Chairman
Sentinels of the Republic

"Since the days when Jefferson expounded his code of political philosophy, the whole world has become his pupil—"

Many Americans undoubtedly recalled that tribute during the recent birthday honors to the author of our imperishable Declaration of Independence.

How well, one wonders, do those of his pupils who wield political power today, remember the teachings of the Sage of Monticello? How faithfully do they apply his principles? Let's recall—for them and for ourselves—some of the precepts that Thomas Jefferson left us as a guide. Here, in his own words, is a record of his answers to many of the problems which confront us today—

Our Constitution

"I do with sincere zeal, wish an inviolable preservation of our present Federal Constitution according to the true sense in which it was adopted by the states."

"No Constitution was ever before so well calculated as ours for extensive empire and self-government."

Public Debt

"Taxation follows public debt, and in its train wretchedness and oppression."

Economy in Government

"I am for a government rigorously frugal and simple."

"We must make our election between economy and liberty, or profusion and servitude."

Centralization of Power

"It is not by the consolidation or centralization of powers, but by their distribution that good government is effected."

"Were we directed from Washington when to sow and when to reap, we should soon want bread."

Personal Liberty

"A wise and frugal government, which shall restrain men from injuring one another, which shall leave them otherwise free to regulate their own pursuits of industry and improvement, and shall not take from the mouth of labor the bread it has earned. This is the sum of good government."

Freedom of the Press

"Our liberty cannot be guarded but by the freedom of the press, nor that be limited without danger of losing it."

The People

"If we can prevent the government from wasting the labors of the people under the pretense of taking care of them, they must remain happy."

So long as our public men—and we, ourselves—remember those teachings, the spirit of Jefferson lives. When we forget them, that spirit dies—and with it the true spirit of America.

PLANT CORN AT RATE TO CORRESPOND WITH TEST

Iowa farmers who have seed corn of a good strain which does not germinate well may expect a satisfactory yield if they determine the exact germination and increase the rate of planting in production to the percentage of kernels which do not germinate strong. For example seed which germinates only 75 percent strong should be planted 25 percent thicker than one would plant if the germination were 100 percent strong.

The Nebraska Experiment Station reports the results of careful studies made in the dry season of 1931 in which seed corn germinating 100 cent was planted 3 kernels per hill seed germinating 75 percent was planted 4 kernels, and that germinating 60 percent was planted 5 kernels, all gave almost exactly the same acre yields.

Stand May Vary

The number of stalks per hill varies considerably when imperfectly germinating seed corn is planted thick, but it has been found that this does not necessarily mean a decrease in yield.

But to get satisfactory results from the planting of seed corn that does not germinate perfectly it is important that one shall know very definitely just what the percentage of strong germinating kernels is and increase the thickness of planting in just that proportion. The same lot of seed should be tested several times in order to be sure of its exact value.

Planting low germinating seed at the rate at which good seed will give maximum yields is certain to give poor results. Low yields are more often associated with poor stands than with any other condition.

HAS EXCITING EXPERIENCE IN BANK ROBBERY

Donald Nissen well known in Klemme, and a nephew of John Day, had an exciting experience on Monday afternoon which he does not care to go through again. Just at closing time bandits entered the Morningside State Bank, Sioux City where Donald is assistant cashier Bank employees were forced to lie on the floor while the robbers scooped up over $3000 in cash One of the bandits shot at Nissen as he tried to touch off a tear gas apparatus. Luckily for Donald the robber was nervous and the bullet went wild.

45 Inch Muskellunge On Exhibition At State Hatchery

The gill-netters for the State Conservation Commission are working nightly at Clear Lake, and have had good results the past few nights The nets are hauled in and the spawn taken from the pike for the hatchery. A good supply of game fish are found. Pike weighing up to eight pounds have been taken from the nets.

Muskellunge Caught

A 45 inch muskellunge, weighing over thirty pounds, was taken from the nets last week and is now on display in the fish hatchery. All other varieties of lake fish were also on display. Fishermen state they believe fishing will be good at Clear Lake this season.

National Press Building Washington, D. C.

Washington.—It has been several months since the administration farm relief program, the agricultural adjustment act, was declared dead, but like the words of the song, "the memory lingers on." And it is quite apparent that mistakes as well as memories of the AAA will continue through the heat of the coming Presidential campaign and probably considerably longer for it is only necessary to recall that the stepbrother of the AAA, the federal farm board of the Hoover administration, still is the butt of much criticism and many pointed paragraphs.

Memory Lingers On

One of the main reasons why the memories linger on, where those memories involve AAA, is Michigan's Republican Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg. Senator Vandenberg never did get enthusiastic about the merits of AAA as they were expounded by Secretary Wallace, Administrator Chester Davis and other New Deal spokesmen and when the Supreme court of the United States threw out the processing taxes upon which the law was predicated, Senator Vandenberg was in a delightful spot from a political standpoint. He has not found it necessary to say "I told you so" and has had, I imagine, a great deal of personal fun in simply hinting to or reminding others of his previous stand.

But it was not until the Michigan senator began pulling figures out of his senatorial hat, showing how benefit payments from the AAA had gone to great and wealthy corporations in sums as high as a million dollars or more, that he held a key to the New Deal skeleton closet. They know now, however, exactly what he meant when he announced in the senate several weeks ago that no such plan as the AAA could be administered without vast sums being distributed in what he termed unwarranted payments—unwarranted from the standpoint of help for the smaller farmers.

Secretary Wallace stalled off Senator Vandenberg's demand in the senate for a complete list of beneficiaries who received checks from AAA in excess of one thousand dollars for quite a while but there were too many senators who believed as Senator Vandenberg did, that the truth ought to be known. Of course, as the procedure usually goes in Washington, many things are done without actual force being used. It was thus in the case of the AAA payments. Democratic senators who foresaw their inability to prevent a senate vote demanding a list of AAA payments persuaded Mr. Wallace to make public the list voluntarily and it was done just in advance of senate action So, we now have for the first time, at least, an indication of the grotesque results of the agricultural adjustment administration program that was hailed from the Atlantic to the Pacific as an ideal plan.

The dynamite in the situation lies in the fact that there were dozens, even hundreds, of corporations which received AAA checks among the big bounties paid to induce curtailment of basic foreign crops. This would not be so bad except for the fact that the brilliant planners of the AAA continuously stressed its value to the small, debt ridden farmers. Throughout the time the law was under consideration and through the two years of its operation, never did Mr. Wallace or Mr. Davis fail to point out in their numerous speeches how great sums of money, collected in processing taxes, were being distributed to thousands of farmers and that these payments were in time going to put agriculture on its collective feet.

Dynamite in It

Now, however, the truth of their statements has been proved but when the whole truth had been exposed on the floor of the senate, it was found to go far beyond the small, debt ridden farmers.

The whole truth disclosed, in fact, that several million dollars had been paid even to corporations chartered by the British government and with home offices in England Wall Street, that home of "entrenched greed," received its share and its share was substantial. On top of all of this there lately has come a disclosure that a great wheat farmer in Montana received something like $50,000 for agreeing not to plant wheat on land which he had rented from the Indians through the Federal Department of the Interior for the specific purpose of raising wheat.

The list of huge benefit payments is much too large to include in this letter but the fact remains that it showed how even the best laid plans of mice and men oft go astray, even when those men are brilliant brain trusters who themselves claim to know all there is available for human understanding. Beyond that, the Vandenberg disclosures have set in motion discussion that will come pretty close to continuing into every farmhouse in the land. Unless I miss my guess, and I am no Doctor Tugwell, thousands of farmers are going to bitterly resent the fact that their payments were small, whereas gigantic corporations received sums ranging from ten to a thousand times as large.

In behalf of the AAA officials, it must be said that there will be as, indeed, there has been already, considerable unfair criticism. The criticism to which I refer is of this type: that they should have discovered in advance of the payments that funds were going to these corporations. Assuming that they could have discovered that fact in advance, there was no alternative for them except to pay the checks authorized by law. Congress made the law, or rather congress passed it under the lash of the administration, but it was on the statute books and administrative officials are not supposed to disregard such provisions.

Unfair Criticism

If there is to be criticism it should be directed at the initial framing of the statute that brought about the condition. The results that have attracted so much attention since Senator Vandenberg's exposure constitute one of the curious coincidences and queer quirks of planned economy.

And a further word about the criticism. A great many people are likely to forget that while their check was in three figures and some corporation received one in six figures, the condition results wholly from the fact that one owned more land than the other. You may properly say this should have been foreseen and I believe you will be making a correct statement. But surely this is a fact: the AAA officials cannot be blamed for sending out the checks when the law said they should do it regardless of the name or nature of the beneficiary. The fault lies solely and completely with those who, from their professional desks, conceived the whole scheme and gained President Roosevelt's approval for it.

Development of the vulnerable spots in the AAA crop curtailment program probably will prove beneficial to the country as a whole eventually. For one thing, these disclosures have forever choked off proposals of that kind. They may result as well in strengthening the new proposition for crop control through the medium of soil conservation. In other words, since the bulk of the congress thinks through legislation only in the terms of administration arguments, they will likely be less prone to enact legislation without knowing what results will be obtained.

Vulnerable Spots

It seems to me that the new farm-aid plan likely will be stronger and probably more workable and certainly less extravagant than was the AAA because the AAA weaknesses have been exposed. These exposures ought to have an effect also among thinking farmers who hereafter are unlikely to accept dogmatic statements and rainbow pictures painted for them by political demagogues and professional farm leaders without examining the practicability of the scheme. Personally, I am convinced that a great many farmers were led to believe that AAA was their only salvation and they gained this conviction solely because the other side never was told to them.

* * *

While we are talking about mistakes and about the results obtained by brilliant theorists, I hear more and more discussion of the latest move by Chairman Henry P. Fletcher and his Republican national committee. Mr. Fletcher has hired ten university professors to head up what he calls the committee's research staff and in announcing their appointment he stressed a declaration that "the division is not a brain trust." But "brain trust" it is going to be called notwithstanding Mr. Fletcher's assertion that they were practical men and women of experience. They are going to be a brain trust in exactly the same sense that Mr. Roosevelt's "brain trust" has been denominated. And how else could it be? There actually seems to be little choice between the type of men Mr. Fletcher has chosen and the Tugwells, Hopkinses and other doctors and professors who have constantly had the ear of the President. These men will have Mr. Fletcher's ear and undoubtedly will pour into it their own theories of government and their own ideas of approach to the problem that confronts the Republican national committee, namely, the defeat of Mr. Roosevelt.

Fletcher's Brain Trust

I have observed political battles for a good many years and I have observed the management of governmental responsibilities through a parallel period. The conclusion is inescapable, as far as I am concerned, that practical men always have done a better job, always have been better administrators and better planners, than the men and women who have spent their lives lecturing from a university classroom rostrum I once criticized Professor Tugwell by saying that his qualification for the post of under-secretary of agriculture consisted of tending flowers in a window box and I am wondering now whether Mr. Fletcher's new brain trust is any better equipped for its job. However, we must not forget, the country now has one brain trust trying to find out what is wrong with another brain trust.

'NO SECRETS' IS NEW NAVAL THEME

United States, Britain and France Sign Pact to Inform One Another of Annual Construction; Italy May Agree.

By WILLIAM C. UTLEY

BEFORE the recent naval conference began in London it was a foregone conclusion that nothing in the way of a treaty agreement between the principal powers limiting or reducing the quantity of naval armaments would result. Prevention of a world naval race was the highest hope held out by any of the delegates.

Conditions were uncertain with war clouds brooding over Europe, Asia and Africa, and with Japan already having announced her intention to break the 5-5-3 ratio of the old Washington and London pacts.

Predictions were correct. Old treaties were scrapped at St. James' palace. But out of the wreckage of former treaties arose a new idea which gives fair promise of bringing a solution to the problem of meeting changing international conditions over the years—a problem which all too often renders long-term treaties with rigid limitations impractical.

Even more important is the tendency of the new plan to do away with nations' inherent distrust of one another. Under its precepts the signatory nations, rather than conceal their naval building programs (often because such programs are out of line with treaty limitations), furnish one another with complete information each year as to the entire building programs which they plan for that year.

No Quantitative Limits.

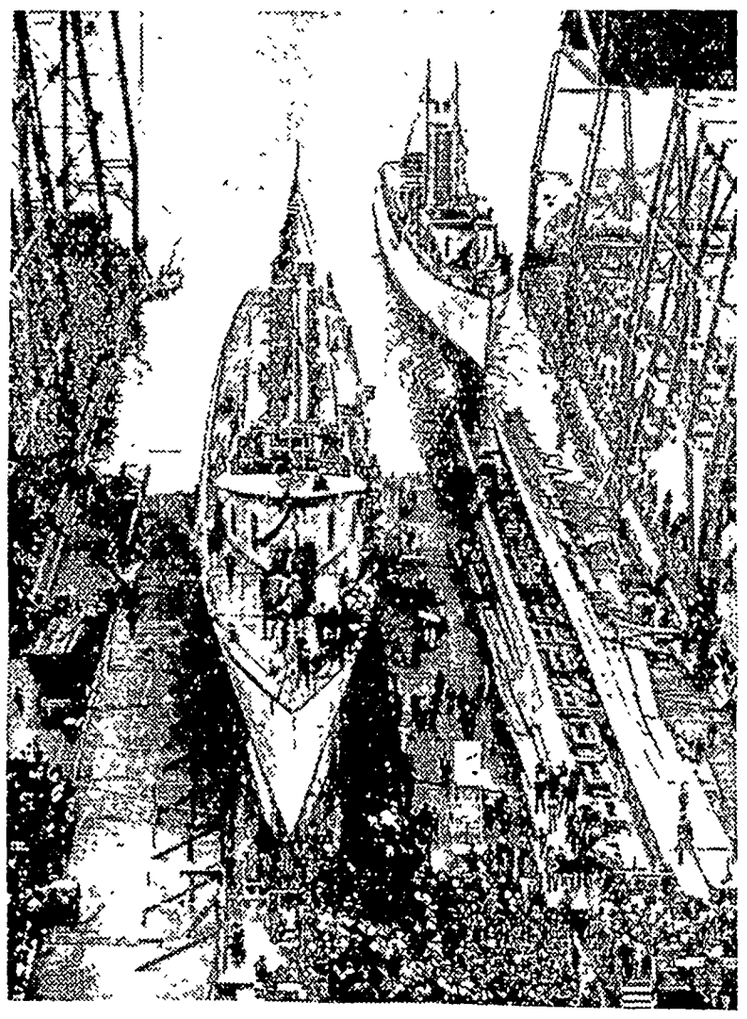
Under the "informational" plan there are no limits on the number of ships any nation can build—although there are limits upon the size of the ships. But when the building information is submitted each year, it is believed that the various nations will be able to effect annual agreements which will be mutually satisfactory. To the lay observer it might appear that the notification principle might hasten a naval race rather than deter it. But delegates to the London conference were inclined to the opposite view.



New U. S. Destroyers Cassin and Shaw Being Launched From Philadelphia Navy Yards as Fleet Is Increased.

Norman H. Davis, the American delegate, said that the foremost accomplishments of the new treaty were "the provisions which for the first time introduce the principle of advance notification of building programs combined with a rigid and detailed system of exchange of information."

In his speech at the signing ceremony, Davis said:

"We have undertaken to keep each other informed not only of our current construction in navies, but also of our projected construction. We undertake to notify each other of all vessels which we contemplate laying down. Anyone who thinks for a moment will realize the manifest advantages of such an undertaking. Dread of the unknown has been a seriously disturbing factor in international relations.

"The fear of what your neighbor is about to do causes distrust and suspicion which may in turn lead to a competitive increase in armaments. We hope to eliminate this fear in respect of naval armaments by telling each other frankly and honestly in advance of our intentions. We believe that such an act will tend so to regulate the rapidity and development of the construction of one nation that it cannot be regarded as a menace to others."

Hope Japan Will Sign.

The treaty was signed by Great Britain, France and the United States. Japan is going to sign the submarine protocol agreed to during the negotiations. Italy, it is believed, will sign the entire treaty before the year is out. It is hoped that Japan will also sign it

Assuming that the proper bodies in each of the signatory nations will ratify the treaty, it will become effective January 1, 1937, which is the day after the treaties of Washington in 1920 and London in 1931 expire. Ratification by the United States senate is expected, although there was some alarm on this point because of notes exchanged by Britain's Anthony Eden and America's Davis. While the notes ostensibly are merely a "gentlemen's agreement" to maintain the naval parity principle between the United States and Great Britain, they have in some quarters been suspected of being, in effect, an out and out alliance between the two countries. Should the senate regard these notes in the latter vein, ratification of the treaty would undoubtedly be less certain.

It would be a mistake, naval authorities point out, to suppose that the treaty in itself will provide any important results. Its importance lies, rather, in the new trend of naval bargaining which it establishes.

Because no ratios are defined, and no quantitative limitations prescribed, nations are not likely to be offended by being regarded as inferior. Neither will nations which sign the treaty be restricted from building over quantitative limitations should they find themselves suddenly plunged into a war. Under the Washington and old London treaties the signatory nations were bound to stay within certain limits regardless of the way in which their relations with non signatory nations might change during the span of the treaties.

Treaty Lasts Six Years.

While the new treaty will last for six years, expiring on December 31, 1942, it will provide for constant consultations between the powers which sign it.

During the first four months of each year each signatory nation is now required to send to each of the other signatories a complete list of all the naval building which it plans for that year. It is to be expected that these lists will be "padded" every year so that the actual loss in any bargaining which follows will be unimportant.

Further, four months before the keel of any fighting ship is laid, all signatories must be duly notified as to its intended category, its displacement, dimensions, speed designed, type of machinery, type of fuel, accurate number and caliber of all guns over three inches, approximate number of guns under three inches, provision for mine laying, torpedo tubes and the number of aircraft which can be carried. When the keel is actually laid notice must immediately be given, as it must again when the ship is completed. If during the construction changes in design of any ship are altered, notification must also be given for these changes.

Notification is not necessary upon ships of the auxiliary type, such as hospital ships, repair ships, tankers, transports and the like, or upon craft of less than 100 tons burden. Exchanges of lists of all such minor ships are called for, however, when the treaty goes into effect.

Competition Cost Reduced

The limitations which the treaty imposes upon the sizes of ships and their guns are designed to reduce the cost of competition in naval building, by making it more uniform. These limitations are modified by a number of "escape" clauses which are inserted to make provisions for extraordinary circumstances, such as war.

Success or failure of the "informational" plan depends greatly upon how well the nations, even those who did not sign stay within the qualitative limitations of the treaty. Should Japan depart drastically from these limitations in her new naval building it is almost certain that the worth of the treaty would be reduced. for the United States and Great Britain are not only agreed to maintain the 5 5-3 ratio by keeping pace with Japan's building, but would have to design their new building programs to offset the competition in the Far East.

The size limit for battleships remains at 35,000 tons, because of the need for that type of ship in the United States navy, with its extensive coast lines to defend; minimum is 17,500 tons. Guns are limited to 14-inch size tentatively; If Japan's new ships carry 16-inch guns, the limit will move up two inches.

There is a second category of battleships which has been created for the nations whose purses will not permit the giant capital ships. This "B" category comprises ships of not more than 8,000 tons with guns of at least 10-inch dimension.

Large-Cruiser "Holiday."

Under the division of "light surface vessels" come three classes: (a) Ships up to 10,000 tons carrying 8-inch guns; (b) ships from 3,000 to 8,000 tons carrying not over 6.1-inch guns, and (c) ships under 3,000 tons carrying not over 5.1-inch guns.

No construction will be permitted between the minimum of 17,500 tons for capital ships and the top limit of cruisers of 10,000 tons. Since a "holiday" has been declared on the construction of 10,000-ton cruisers for six years, the non-construction zone will actually exist between 8,000 and 17,500 tons. The United States, which prefers the larger type of cruiser, will begin building some of the 10,000-ton class when the "holiday" is over.

The existing treaties declare a limit of 1,850 tons, but this has been thrown into the discard because France and Italy never did agree to that limit and have already built destroyers of considerably larger size.

Parade of British Home Fleet Five Miles Long Is Led by Giant H. M. S. Renown.

Aircraft carriers, formerly limited to 27,000 tons, have now been cut down to 23,000, with 6.1-inch guns. Two thousand tons is now the absolute limit of all submarines

It would be hard to find any real merit in the new treaty other than the trend away from secrecy and the suspicion which nearly always arises from it

PERFORMANCE AND PROMISES

... headlines across the top of The New York Times recently presented a study in contrasts which effectively portray America today

The first warned that Communists were using the WPA projects to stir discontent. Another described glittering new economic experiments for reducing the countries unemployment. The third was, in brief, a history of this country's progress.

It was a report before the American Chemical Society by a chemist of the ... Pont Company, of the production of a new synthetic fiber, one-third thinner than the finest natural silk. A ball of this new gossamer textile, weighing only one pound, if unrolled, would stretch across the ... States from the Atlantic to the Pacific Ocean.

What is more important than the fact that the thread itself would reach across the continent is that the development of new products by constant industrial research spreads jobs from ocean to ocean. All the political promises that could be spread on the pages of an average size newspaper are dwarfed when laid alongside the jobs ... ...ve and will be produced as well-organized industrial organizations delve into the secrets of science for other uses of present products and development of completely new products.

As was pointed out at the Chemical meeting by Dr Ernest B. Benger, the manufacture of rayon alone gave employment to about 60,000 workers in one year. They received approximately $60,000,000 in wages, ... more than $53,000,000 of raw and materials were consumed by the makers of rayon, which is a synthetic product itself, produced by industrial science.

When we look back at the beginning of our Republic, we wonder how our forefathers managed to see so far ahead. They ... the most pliable forms of government in the world; one that has withstood wars abroad and at home, and that so far has stood firm against attacks by Socialists, Communists and dictators.

But every now and then a trend crops up that the people are forced to strike down. George Washington foresaw one of them when he said

"If, in the opinion of the people, the distribution or modification of the constitutional powers be in any particular wrong, ... be corrected by an amendment in the way in which the Constitution designates. But let there be no change by usurpation; ... though this, in one instance, may be the instrument of good, it is the customary weapon by which free governments are destroyed."

Some European nations did not heed similar warnings. They have dictatorships. And unhappily in our own land there are a few who would do by indirection the things they cannot do directly.

GAME MANAGEMENT IN IOWA

For years the American people have taken wildlife for granted, thinking it only a part of their natural heritage and little or no thought was given it. As a result, due to the the thoughtless destruction of their natural homes, many species of game birds and animals as well as fur-bearing animals, once plentiful in Iowa, have slowly dwindled before the advance of civilization In recognition of this the State Conservation Commission of Iowa has recently adopted a Game Managment Program which, it is thought, will perpetuate all species of wild life as well as meet with the approval of farmers and sportsmen. The present plan is the outgrowth of the experience gained through operation of the plan adopted by the former Fish and Game Commission, and is designed to overcome the shortcomings of the former plan.

To perpetuate game, it is necessary that the things which provide them with food and cover be restored on the land in or that they can propagate under natural conditions. Under the Iowa Game Management Plan only such lands as the farmer cannot make use of in his regular agricultural practices are utilized for the purpose of raising game.

This can be accomplished by fencing waste areas; allowing the shrubs, trees, and grasses to grow unburned and ungrazed by livestock; planting trees and sowing grasses which will provide cover and food in fence corners, barren hillsides, marshes, slough and eroded ditches; planting food patches at strategic locations near game cover in order that game can get food at all times without necessarily exposing themselves to predators and the severe winter weather.

In order to speed up this work, the Conservation Commission has set up a ... Division under the supervision of a Superintendent of Game and the State has been divided up into eight districts of from ten to sixteen counties each, with each district in charge of an Assistant Superintendent of Game, who, together with the Conservation Officers, works with farmers, sportsmen, 4-H Clubs, junior groups, CCC Camps, etc., in improving the environment for wildlife.

While game is a product of the land, its presence there is due entirely to the environment that it finds there. It lies with the power of the farmer to have his farm attractive or unattractive for game. Therefore, it is necessary that any plan of game management first of all must be attractive to the farmer in order that he will be interested in producing an annual game crop and then control the take of game from his farm, seeing that only the surplus is removed and that a sufficient seed stock is left for the next year. In order to encourage and help the farmer in his work, upon application to the Conservation Commission, a representative will check over his farm and make the necessary recommendations to improve it for wildlife of all kinds.

The farmer then enters into a cooperative agreement with the Conservation Commission to follow out the game management practices recommended for his farm and to give his written permission to sportsmen to hunt on his land during the open season when a surplus of game is present. If and when the recommended improvements are carried out, the land is posted by the Conservation Commission with game management area signs and a trespass permit book is furnished at no cost to the farmer. When this has been done the farmer then has control of the unauthorized trespass on his farm as provided in Section 1709-el, Chapter 81, of the Code of Iowa. Anyone who hunts thereon without authorization violates this section and is punishable by the same fine or imprisonment as provided for any violation of the Conservation Laws.

Game Management is not merely another scheme to aid the sportsman to kill. It seeks to encourage wildlife of all kinds on the farm; song birds as well as game birds and fur-bearing animals, not only in order that they may be trapped or shot for sport and profit, but that the farmer may realize the practical benefits that may be derived from them, and the sportsman will know when he sees a game management area that a real effort is being made to improve his sport along this line of recreation and that it is his duty to respect the farmer's rights on his farm and to cooperate with him in perpetuating wildlife for all times.

Farmers who are interested in improving the environment for wildlife on their farms, as well as sportsmen who are anxious to improve their own sport by helping their farmer friends build up the game supply on their farms, are urged to write the State Conservation Commission, Des, Moines, Iowa.

The "Personal Touch" In Taxes

By RAYMOND PITCAIRN

Newspaper-reading Americans are learning the names of a lot of once-unfamiliar taxes these days.

What do they all mean? Let the experts explain. The important fact is that whatever their titles, whomever they are supposed to hit—we, the people pay the final bill.

Not directly, of course—but in the natural course of events As economists explain, the industries and other producers at whom such levies ostensibly are aimed must raise the tax money somehow How? The obvious method is to add it to the price of their products of the things which the average worker and his wife and children need and must buy

"Hunger Marchers" Parade in the Capital

ABOUT six hundred men and women, members of the recently organized Unemployed Workers' Alliance, staged a big parade of "hunger marchers" in Washington, shouting demands, singing and waving banners. They sought to present a petition to President Roosevelt in the White House but the best they could do was to obtain an audience from Secretary Marvin McIntyre for a delegation headed by David Lasser, president of the alliance.

Vice Pres. Garner

Lasser declared after spending 30 minutes with the President's secretary: "Mr. McIntyre gave us a lot of nice words, but nothing substantial. If nothing is done to give these people jobs there will be a hunger march on Washington next summer in which hundreds of thousands will take part. We are tired of Mr. Roosevelt's promissory notes."

Lasser and his delegation also called on Vice President Garner at the Capitol and got even less satisfaction from him.

"The jobless feel that we have been sold out by the Democratic party," Lasser declared.

"I resent that," snapped the Vice President, reddening. "I have been in politics for 40 years and I don't think anybody has ever been sold out by the party."

The marchers carried banners and placards with such inscriptions as: "Give the bankers home relief; we want jobs!" "Slaves will not be killed," "We demand employment insurance," "Pass the Marcantonio bill," this being a 6 billion-dollar relief bill introduced by the New York city representative.

Labor Says Industry Is Arming for Conflict

BEFORE the senate subcommittee on labor appeared spokesmen for organized labor with charges that there is a great movement of machine guns, tear gas and police clubs into industrial centers for use in contending with strikes and attendant disorders. The first witness to tell the story of the arming of industrial plants for conflicts with labor was J. P. Harris, a steel worker from Portsmouth, Ohio. In support of his assertions came a mass of data compiled by the senate munitions investigating committee and presented at the hearing by Heber Blankenhorn, an employee of the national labor relations board.

At one point Harris testified that he knew the Wheeling Steel corporation at Portsmouth was "arming," a statement that brought from corporation officials at Portsmouth an assertion that company police were armed to protect property against "thieves and firebugs, and they will continue to be armed."

At another point in the hearing three was testimony that general "rumors" were being circulated that the Ford Motor company was "shot through" with spies, hired to report on the activities of labor.

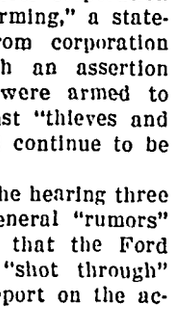
Maryland Young Democrats Hear Mr. Roosevelt

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT, accompanied by Mrs. Roosevelt, attended Easter services at St. Thomas Episcopal church, after the First Lady had witnessed the Knights Templar sunrise service at the Arlington amphitheater. Next day the President went to Baltimore where he addressed the Maryland Young Democratic clubs.

Mr. Roosevelt accepted an invitation to speak before the annual convention of the Daughters of the American Revolution which opens in Washington April 20. He also will deliver an address on April 25 at the Jefferson banquet of the National Democratic club in New York city.

Death of James M. Beck Is Loss to Nation

SUDDEN death, due to a coronary thrombosis, came to James M. Beck at his residence in Washington, and all informed Americans mourn the demise of this public spirited citizen and eminent authority on constitutional law. Though he was a sturdy and conscientious opponent of the present national administration, leading officials in Washington united with the Republicans in declaring that in his death the nation had sustained a great loss.



J. M Beck

Mr. Beck was not only one of the foremost lawyers of America but for more than three decades was a public man of distinction, holding numerous offices at Washington, and an influential place in the counsels of the Republican party. Born in Philadelphia in 1861, he first held office as United States attorney for the eastern district of Pennsylvania, as a Democrat. He left that party on the silver issue and was made an assistant attorney general by President McKinley. In 1921 Mr. Harding appointed him solicitor general, an office which he filled with distinction. He then served three terms in congress, where he was one of the best debaters, and retired in 1934 because he thought congress had become a "rubber stamp." Since then he had been prominent in the legal attacks on various phases of the New Deal.

Richard Yates, former governor of Illinois and former congressman, died in Springfield at the age of seventy-five years. The son of the Civil war governor of the state, Mr. Yates was for many years a picturesque figure in Illinois politics and an influential member of the Republican party.

League of American Nations Proposed

IN THEIR formal acceptances of the invitations of the United States government to the forthcoming inter-American peace conference, three of the Latin American nations have proposed that a league of American nations be formed to preserve peace in the western hemisphere. The suggestion comes from Presidents Alfonso Lopez of Colombia, Jorge Ubico of Guatemala and Rafael Trujillo of the Dominican Republic. They believe the proposed league would be not only a means of preventing war in the New World but also would be an effective adjunct to organizations working to preserve peace in all the world.

Congressmen Working on Taxes and Relief

CONGRESS settled down to earnest work that would clear the way for early adjournment, the two chief matters under consideration being taxes and relief. Democratic members of the house ways and means committee worked in executive session to draw up the new revenue measure which they expect will yield about $799,000,000 in additional taxes during the next year. The minority members stayed away, scornfully asserting their presence was useless because the preparation of the measure was utterly partisan. Representative A. P. Lamneek of Ohio, Democrat, was insistent on his plan to raise $500,000,000 by a flat 20 to 22 per cent tax on corporation income.

Harry L. Hopkins

Harry L. Hopkins, head of the WPA, appeared before a subcommittee of the house appropriations committee, also in executive session, to urge compliance with President Roosevelt's request for an additional billion and a half to finance relief in the 1937 fiscal year. Various committee members at once demanded that Mr. Hopkins tell what had been done with the $4,800,000,000 granted last year.

The committee extracted from Mr. Hopkins a reluctant promise that relief funds will not be spent hereafter on projects not approved by congress, these including especially the Florida ship canal and the Passamaquoddy tidal power experiment.

Hagood Given Command of Chicago Area

FOLLOWING a conference with Maj. Gen. Johnson Hagood, who was removed from command of the Eighth corps area for criticizing WPA methods, President Roosevelt took the soldier back into his good graces and appointed him to the command of the Sixth corps area with headquarters in Chicago. He will replace Maj. Gen. Frank McCoy and the assignment takes effect May 2. General McCoy is transferred to the Second corps area at New York to succeed Maj. Gen. Dennis E. Nolan, who is retiring.

Calles Is Expelled by Mexican Government

PLUTARCO ELIAS CALLES, former president of Mexico and for long the most powerful figure in that republic, was forcibly exiled to the United States, together with three other once prominent citizens, by the Mexican government, which declared their presence there was dangerous to the welfare of the country.

Summarily ousted with Calles, who for 11 years ruled Mexico with an iron hand, were Luis Morones, former minister of labor and leader of the regional confederation of workers and peasants; Luis de Leon, former minister of the inferior and agriculture; and Rafael Melchor Ortega, former governor of Guanajuato

The four men were, by order of President Cardenas, placed aboard a plane at Mexico City and taken across the border to Brownsville, Texas. From there they took another plane to California.

Leftists charged that Calles and his associates were fomenting agitation against the Cardenas administration. This Calles denied, adding: "A state of anarchy exists in Mexico and communism is spreading with government help."

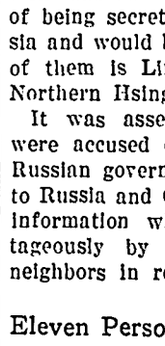
Spanish Parliament Ousts President Zamora

SOMETHING new in Spanish history took place in Madrid. The parliament, by a vote of 238 to 5, ousted Niceto Alcala Zamora from the office of president of the republic. This action, accomplished by a coalition of Socialists, Communists, Left Republicans and ten minor groups, was taken on a Socialist motion that the president had acted illegally in dissolving the last parliament before the elections and that therefore he should be expelled from office.

Diego Martinez Barrio, speaker of parliament, was made temporary president to serve until elections are held.

Black's Lobby Committee Wins Court Decision

SENATOR BLACK'S lobby committee won a considerable victory in the District of Columbia Supreme court when Chief Justice Wheat refused to enjoin the committee from using the telegrams from and to William R. Hearst which had been seized. The judge held that the court had no jurisdiction over the committee, and said he could not see that the freedom of the press was in any way involved. Said his honor:



Senator Black

"I have not been informed yet of any case in which any court has assumed to dictate to a committee of the senate what it should do and what it should not do, and I do not feel that I have any right to inaugurate any such principle as that."

Elisha Hanson, counsel for Mr. Hearst, announced that he would appeal from the decision, and it was certain that the case would ultimately be taken before the United States Supreme court.

Continuing its investigation, the Black committee heard the testimony of Fred G. Clark of New York, national commander of the Crusaders. Mr. Clark denied that the organization had ever engaged in lobbying, and declared that it had assailed the methods of lobbyists in a national radio broadcast.

Japanese Arrest Five Mongolian Officials

HEADQUARTERS of the Japanese army in Manchukuo announced that five Mongolian officials high in the service of the Manchukuan government had been arrested on the charge of being secret agents of Soviet Russia and would be court-martialed. One of them is Lin Sheng, governor of Northern Hsingan province.

It was asserted that the officials were accused of conniving with the Russian government and of supplying to Russia and Outer Mongolia military information which was used advantageously by both of Manchukuo's neighbors in recent frontier clashes.

Eleven Persons Killed in Air Liner Crash

FLYING through a fog on its way to Pittsburgh, a Transcontinental and Western air liner went far out of its course, plowed through the forest seven miles southeast of Union City, Pa., and smashed into a granite wall on Chestnut Ridge. Nine passengers and two pilots were killed. The stewardess, Miss Nellie Granger, managed to drag one man and the sole woman passenger from the flaming wreckage, bound up their wounds, ran four miles to a farmhouse from which she telephoned to Pittsburgh the news of the disaster, and then returned to the scene to care for the survivors until a rescue party could arrive. The pilots were flying on a radio beam, and it was believed their radio failed.

Tangle of Diplomatic Rivalries in Europe

MUSSOLINI'S African adventure and Hitler's Rhineland doings and future intentions, tangled together, have created a situation that seemed to imperil the formal friendship between Great Britain and France. The British were insisting that Italy be curbed, that her use of poison gas in Ethiopia be taken up by the League of Nations and that peace negotiations between Italy and Ethiopia be opened quickly to forestall any attempt by Premier Mussolini to sign a settlement which might rise from ruins of Haile Selassie's Ethiopian empire. Foreign Secretary Eden indicated the British were determined to make peace progress "before we leave Geneva."

The conciliation committee of the league was making little or no progress, and in Rome Mussolini told his cabinet that Ethiopia's armies should and would be "totally annihilated." His own forces, meanwhile, were moving rapidly toward Dossye and Addis Ababa.

France was reverting to her former policy of letting Italy go ahead with its African conquest, devoting her attention mainly to Germany and central Europe. The British continued to treat all that in a conciliatory way which disgusted the French. Premier Sarraut handed in his government's reply to the Hitler settlement proposals, submitting in return its own plan. This demanded that Germany keep "hands off" the rest of Europe for 25 years, renouncing her apparent intentions of action against Austria, Danzig and Memel, and claims for colonies. It submitted a French peace plan based on "collective security" with regional mutual assistance pacts backed by an international army directed by a commission working through the league.

"Twelve Stories Up"

By FLOYD GIBBONS

Famous Headline Hunter.

DING up! Take the next car, please! It's an indoor aviator who's come to tell us his tale of woe today—Distinguished Adventurer Edward T. McCrann, one of the best doggone elevator pilots that ever answered a buzzer.

Ed jumps around almost as fast as that elevator he used to drive. When I first heard from him he was living in New Haven, Conn. Two years later, when I had occasion to communicate with him he had moved to Washington, D. C.

It's five years since Ed has run an elevator, and he still remembers it as one of the most monotonous jobs he ever had. It was just the same old trip, from morning to night. The same old buzzer ringing and the same people getting on and off in the same old building in Hartford. Only once did anything out of the ordinary occur—but Ed admits that that occurrence relieved the job of all of its monotony for a few minutes.

It happened about 7 o'clock on a June evening in 1929. Nearly all the tenants were out of the building. The superintendent came up from the basement and started looking over the elevator. He said there might be something wrong with it because he had heard a rasping sound in the shaft that shouldn't have been there.

Elevator Man Goes Up on Top of His Car.

One look at the top told the story. Some workmen had been doing a job of repair inside of the shaft. They had strung a wire to furnish them with light, and had left it behind when they finished. That wire tangled with the main cable, way up at the top, just where the cable came out of the heavy grate that supported the motor. The super asked Ed if he'd ride up on the top of the elevator to the top of the shaft and unfasten that maverick wire.

Ed was just a high school kid then. He was lean and active, and the job didn't look any great shakes to him. He consented readily. After all, it was something to break the monotony of that everlasting up and down trip. The super got into the car and dropped it down below the door level. Ed climbed on top, and up they went to the top of the shaft, just above the twelfth story.

The super ran the car slowly as they neared the top. When it got close enough so that Ed could reach the dangling wire he yelled, and the super stopped the car. The car halted just even with the twelfth floor. Ed reached out and began untangling the wire.

The superintendent opened the car door and stepped out onto the twelfth floor. "Hiley, Ed," he called, "I'm going down the hall for a screw driver. I'll be right back."

Ed yelled, "All right," and went on with his work. The wire was fastened a little higher than he'd thought. He grabbed the grating under the motor and lifted himself up.

His toes were barely touching the top of the car and he was straining his left arm to reach the end of the wire when he heard someone enter the elevator behind him. Thinking it was the superintendent he paid no attention. He made another lunge toward the wire—caught it.

He Clung Perilously by His Fingers to the Grating.

Elevator Descends; Ed Is Left Dangling at Top of Shaft.

And then, to his consternation, the motor began to whine and the car dropped away from under him, leaving Ed in a panic, clinging to the iron grating with both hands.

By the time Ed's presence of mind came back to him the elevator was halfway down the shaft. He started to yell, but he was so close to the motor that he couldn't be heard above its noise. The elevator went clear to the bottom and stopped. The door clanged open and someone walked out. Then everything was quiet except for Ed's cries. What had happened? Could it be possible that the superintendent had forgotten all about him? Ed yelled again. The sound echoed hollowly in the long shaft. Then silence—the dead, eerie silence of an empty building. And Ed hanging by his fingers 12 stories above the ground.

"The seconds," he says, "seemed like years. Try as I might I couldn't get my mind to working. It was racing like mad trying to figure a way out, but it never found one. There just wasn't any.

"The grating was greasy and I could feel my fingers slipping—slipping. Suddenly I heard steps in the hall and yelled again. It was the superintendent coming back with the tools. He must have guessed what had happened when he heard me and saw the elevator door was closed. He yelled something to me but I was so scared I couldn't make out what he was saying. My fingers slipped a little more. Then I heard him racing down the stairs."

Superintendent and Elevator to the Rescue!

Again Ed's fingers slipped. He tried to hang on with one hand while he got a fresh hold with the other—and almost lost his grip altogether. It seemed years—seemed as though he was holding on with nothing but his fingers, when finally he heard the elevator start upward and knew that if he could hang on just a moment longer he'd be safe.

"There were tears in my eyes," he says, "as that car came shooting up toward me. My body was covered with sweat, and I can't say if it was cold sweat or hot. My hands slipped again as the car came on. I didn't have the courage to look down—didn't know how close the elevator was—when at last, my clawing fingers lost their hold on the grate. I shut my eyes as I started falling. A prayer ran through my mind and—."

And then Ed came to a stop with a thud—safe on the top of the car, but six feet from where he had started.

When Ed got off the top of that elevator cab he was limp as a rag. It wasn't until next day that he found a solution to the mystery of the moving elevator. A doctor on the twelfth floor came out in a hurry and, seeing the cab without an operator, ran it down himself.

He had heard Ed yell, he said, but paid no attention to it. "And if you could feel one hundredth of the horror I felt as I hung in that dark shaft," said Ed, "you'd realize why I shiver just a little bit, even now, when somebody mentions that doctor's name."

Success

It is said that a man can succeed by lie with his eyes, but not with his mouth. The face is such an index to character that the very growth of the latter can be traced upon the former, and most of the successive lines that carve the furrowed face of age are of the smooth outline of childhood engraved directly or indirectly by mind. There is no beautifier of the face like a beautiful spirit. The want of mind lowers all the powers of the body; but so does an evil and debased mind which is still more wonderful. —Brian Brown.

Find Castaway

A Robinson Crusoe was discovered by the crew of the French windjammer Tolosa, on Rinca island, 100 miles north of the Strait of Magellan, South America. He was clothed in goat skins and uttered guttural cries, though he led them to a natural spring when they indicated they wanted water. The man appeared to be of Nordic stock, either Scandinavian or German, or possibly British. He is considered to be a shipwrecked sailor who has lost the power of spech, probably through never having spoken to a soul for many years.

Ethiopia Rains Bombs
Six Marriage Troubles
Marilyn Miller Is Dead
Another Big Question

Addis Ababa is bombed by Italian planes from more than a mile above the city, natives shooting at the Italian pilots with rifles that could not possibly carry one-quarter of the distance. Correspondents with receiving sets listened to the Italian pilots talking to each other by radio. Halle Selassie, hurrying south, was not at home when they called. That war should be over soon.

Arthur Brisbane

Dr. Alice E. Johnson, psychiatrist of Philadelphia's Municipal court, gives six reasons for marriage failures. They are: Different family backgrounds of husband and wife; relatives interfering, especially mothers-in-laws; infidelity; incompatibility; alcoholism, and a desire to "dominate." There is a seventh reason, to be found in the nature of man, who is still 98 per cent in the age of barbarism.

Marilyn Miller is dead, only thirty-eight years old. The little town of Findlay, Ohio, or the bigger town of New York, might well erect some monument to her memory. She contributed a great deal to human cheerfulness and happiness, and it may be said of her, as Samuel Johnson said, referring to the death of the great actor, Garrick, that her death "eclipsed the gayety of nations and impoverished the public's stock of harmless pleasure."

A lady who signs "B. A. G." is interested in very serious things. She writes: "The more I hear of those big armies, the more I am reminded of the huge population of hell. What is your idea of hell?"

That big question may be answered later. An aged colored man once told his pastor: "I don't believe in hell because I don't think any constitution could stand it."

"It worries me," says the lady, "that so many men are afraid of poverty here upon earth, and not afraid of hell." Miss B. A. G. is certain that hell is real, a belief that must be comforting to those anxious to have the wicked punished.

Winthrop W. Aldrich, head of the Chase National bank, biggest in America, knows about money, as did his father before him, the late senator from Rhode Island, who invented the Federal Reserve plan and put it through. Mr. Aldrich thinks it would not be a good idea to turn money loose and encourage a speculative, stock-gambling boom. He remembers 1929.

Under certain circumstances "the prospect of inflation is very grave indeed," says Mr. Aldrich and warns against "the erection of a top-heavy structure of credit again."

When a woman starts, she keeps going, nearly always. Nothing could stop Joan of Arc, Dr. Mary Walker, or Nellie Bly on her trip around the world. Now Amy Johnson, married name Mollison, sets out alone in a streamlined monoplane to beat the record on a fight to Cape Town and back.

All alone, down to the other side of the world and back again, over ocean, forests, wild beasts and wilder men. And fools used to say women lacked courage!

An offensive and defensive treaty between Japan and Germany, like the one between France and Russia, is considered a certainty.

It should be possible for nations that want to survive and prosper to get together and let others that must fight kill each other off until they tire of it. This country, at least, should carry out that plan.

Japan and Russia have passed from the "warning" stage to border fighting on the Russian side. Planes, war tanks and heavy artillery are taken across the Manchukuo border by Russia, and that "looks like business."

Russia will soon know how much Mongolia will be worth as a protection against Japan, and Europe may soon know the value of Russia as a protection against Asia.

The Canadian Press news service says Canada's wealth has shrunk almost six thousand million dollars since 1929. That will be only a temporary shrinkage.

You know that England is worried about something when you read that she now demands that the league establish an oil embargo against Italy. A little late, but it is explained that England is outraged by Italy's use of poison gas against the Ethiopians.

Mussolini used something worse than poison gas against England when he occupied the Lake Tana region.

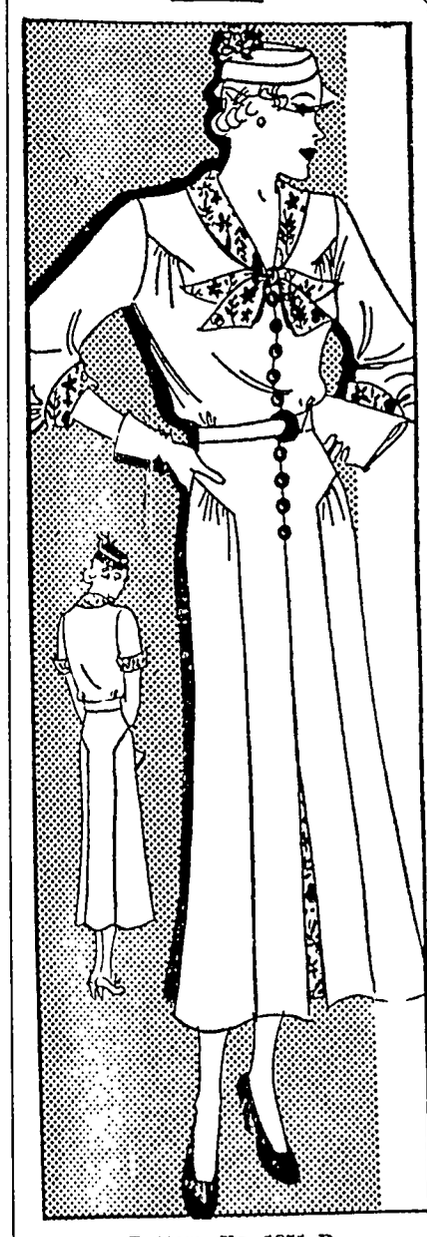
Printed Trimmings of Silk Used on Elegant Daytime Frocks of One Color



Pattern No. 1851-B

The smartest of the new dresses are those in a single color with flashes of printed silk to trim them. This design is one of the best, made of blue cloky silk and trimmed with a print in red and blue on a white ground. The front of the oodice has a row of buttons extending to the hipline and a collar of the printed silk. A slender, panelled skirt is split up the front to show a printed strip that is attached underneath. Three-quarter sleeves are gathered into fitted cuffs in harmony with the collar. And by all means don't overlook the novelty shoulder and hip yoke.

Barbara Bell Pattern No. 1851-B is available for sizes 14, 16, 18 20; 40 and 42. Corresponding bust measurements 32, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42. Size 16 (34) requires 4½ yards of 39-inch fabric with ¾ length sleeve. Enclose fifteen cents for pattern.

Send your order to The Sewing Circle Pattern Dept., 367 W. Adams St., Chicago, Ill.

Farmer Enters Grade School and Joins Grandchildren

E. G. Mealer, sixty-seven-year-old farmer of Jonesboro, Ark., has started to school with his grandchildren, with hopes of learning to read and write. His desire for an education so late in life was prompted because of his love for the Bible, from which he can quote entire chapters, learned by memory after they had been read to him.

Who Pays The Job-Holders?

By RAYMOND PITCAIRN
National Chairman Sentinels of the Republic

If a business man or a farmer hires worker he likes to feel that the new nd is capable of the job. He real-es that no worth-while enterprise can e well conducted unless it is compe-ently manned.

But in the important business of anning his government, the average tizen shows less concern. That, at y rate, is indicated by recently pub-hed figures which reveal that of the any thousand persons added to the ederal payroll since 1933, fewer than ne out of 100 were appointed under e Civil Service or "merit" system.

It wasn't always that way. Here's ow figures present the picture of the ast twenty years.

During the Wilson Administration 1.2 per cent of employes in the Ex-cutive Department of the Federal gov-rnment were under the merit system. y the Coolidge Administration the roportion had risen to 74.8 per cent nd four years later to 80.8 per cent. hen came the swift inflation of the ublic payroll during the past three ears, and with it a retreat from Civil ervice rules.

Today less than 58 per cent of job-holders in the Executive Department of our Federal government remain un-der the merit system, and in some in-stances new appointees replace experi-enced workers who won their places under Civil Service methods.

Probably these figures explain why so many groups and individuals, who realize what inflated payrolls cost the workers and earners of America, are protesting against the spoils system in the appointment of Federal job-holders.

They explain why those taxpayers demand a return to the merit system, under which a man is appointed be-cause he demonstrates that he can do the work rather than because he can show that he knows the right poli-ticians.

Public Office still remains a Public Trust. The citizens who pay his salary have a right to demand that their trustee, no matter what his office, dem-onstrate his ability to fill the job. Un-der the merit system they have that assurance. Under the spoils system they lack it.

Which method would the successful merchant or farmer follow if he wanted his affairs efficiently con-ducted? The answer is obvious. Tax-payers should demand the same evi-dence of competence in the men and women appointed to government jobs.

Remember, no matter who benefits by putting them on the public payroll, it's the people, foot the bill.

ERVIN LUCAS BUYS SCHAEFER LOTS ON MAIN STREET

Ervin "Curley" Lucas has pur-chased the two business lots west of the Wellemeyer building from Mrs. E. B. Schaefer of Forest City. The lots are on the corner of Main Street and First Street.

Mr. Lucas could not be reached at the time we go to press but we understand that he expects to put up a brick building on the lots and will run a garage and filling station

Mr. Lucas, who is a son-in-law of Henry Keeper, is a mechanic nd has been employed at Ames where he and his family reside.

THE MEDICINE CABINET

Cleansing tissues and vanishing cream,
Aspirin and ankle lotion—
The medicine chest will split a seam
With any further commotion.

Think of the days in our untouched youth,
When bathroom shelves were restricted
To oil of cloves for an aching tooth,
And not for the sore afflicted.

But castor oil! Ah, those were the years
When life was as free and airy
As mugs devoid of suitable beers
And a cage without its canary.

NOTICE OF HEARING OF RESOLUTION OF NECESSITY FOR PAVING CERTAIN STREETS IN THE TOWN OF KLEMME, IOWA, AND FOR THE ESTABLISHMENT OF A STREET IMPROVEMENT DISTRICT.

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN:

Notice is hereby given that there is now on file in the office of the Town Clerk of the Town of Klem-me, Iowa, a proposed resolution of necessity for the construction of street improvements by paving in said Town to-wit

Commencing on Main Street at the East line of Second Street, extending thence West on Main Street to the point were said Main Street inter-sects the first tracks on the right-of-way of the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific Rail-road Company in said Town.

The type of material shall be two strips of seven inch reinforced Port-land Cement pavement, each seven-teen feet in width, each laid adja-cent to and on each side of an eight-een foot pavement slab now laid on said street. The method of construc-tion shall be by contract. Private property will be assessed for the cost thereof and in said resolution of necessity, it is proposed that so much of the cost of said improve-ment as the law permits, shall be assessed to the abutting and adja-cent property, specially benefitted by said improvement in the manner provided by law. The cost of such construction shall be assessed as a special tax against all lots or parts of lots, according to area, so as to include one-half of the privately owned property between the street improved and the next street, whether such privately owned pro-perty abut upon said street or not

Said resolution of necessity fur-ther provides that the cost of the intersections or twenty-five percent of the total cost of said improve-ment shall be paid by said Town, out of its Improvement Fund or out of the proceeds of bonds issued against the Town Improvement Fund against which bonds may be issued upon all the taxable property within said Town, as by law provided.

Said proposed Resolution further provides that the Council may issue certificates or bonds, as the case may be, for the purpose of provid-ing for the payment of so much of the cost of said improvement assess-ed upon property subject to assess-ment therefor, in anticipation of the deferred payment of assess-ments.

A hearing will be held in the Council Chamber of the said Town of Klemme, Iowa, to be held at Town Hall in Klemme, Iowa, at 8:00 o'clock in the forenoon on the 21 day of May, 1936, regarding the adoption of said resolution of nec-essity, and unless property owners at the time of final consideration of said resolution, have on file with the Clerk, objections to said improvement or the amount of the proposed assessment, they shall be deemed to have waived all objec-tions thereto.

Dated this 29 day of April, 1936.
A. J. KUDJE
Town Clerk

A CORRECTION IN ANNUAL TOWN REPORT

The Annual Report, Town of Klemme, is being published this week due to an error in the publication last week.

The error is under the head-ing "Disbursements" and ap-pears in the Water Department Balance due on Well and Pump which should have been $8,-156.90, instead of $156.90 as published.

The report as published this week is correct.

New shingles were put on the roof of the Joe Johnson residence the past week. This is the place where Walt Thada lives.

Mrs. U. G. Smid, who has been a patient at the Hampton hospital for the past couple of weeks is expect-ed to return home either today or Thursday. Mrs. Smid is making a good recovery from her recent seri-ous illness.

BILLY LEMKE CELEBRATED BIRTHDAY SUNDAY

Billy, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Lemke was sixteen years old Sun-day and in honor of the event his mother prepared a fine dinner to which were invited some of Billy's friends. Harold Abele, Buster Jor-genson and Loran Gast, Bill's sisters Ethel and Lorraine of Mason City, and Arnold Volkman of Mason City were also present. Mrs. Lemke had baked a nice birthday cake which was used as the centerpiece for the table. So well did the boys fare that they all stayed for the after-noon and supper.

THE SHIP WAS LAUNCHED!

Capt. Milo Patet, Skipper Harold Jost and First-Mate Asa Arnold launched their sail boat at Clear Lake Sunday and spent consider-able time cruising about the lake, learning the inside "dope" on sail-ing.

The young men spent a lot of time during the past winter build-ing the boat, and did a fine job of it. The boat sails perfectly and is a neat appearing craft.

Some of the nautical-minded cit-izens of Klemme were at the lake to watch the sailing progress. The writer was one of the privileged few to be given a ride.

KLEMME LADIES ATTENDED MISSIONARY MEETING

Mesdames R. W. Elder, Wm. Zabilka, Ed Schoenwetter, Lew Abele, and Emil Beier attended a W. F. M. S. district meeting held at Clarion last Friday. Mrs. Zabilka was on the program in the afternoon while the Standard Bearers had a banquet in the evening and Miss Novella Bredbener was on that pro-gram.

Honored On Her 50th Birthday

The home of Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Lau was the scene of a very pleas-ant gathering on Sunday, April 26, when nearly 30 of Mrs. Lau's rela-tives arrived with well-filled bas-kets for a family re-union in honor of her 50th birthday.

Years ago Mrs. Lau's father, the Rev. Wm. Koerner expresesd the wish that as each of the children reached their 50th birthday they would celebrate with a family re-union. This they have done and as Mrs. Lau is the youngest, she is the last to be honored in this manner.

A bounteoous and delicious din-ner was served cafeteria style after which the time was spent visiting.

Those present were: Mrs. Lau's sisters and their husbands, Mr. and Mr. H. J. Stille, Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Stille, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Stille; her brother, Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Koerner, her daughter and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Jas. McHugh and Kathryn and her son, Norman Lau. All but two of Mrs. Lau's neices and nephews and their families were present.

A brother, the Rev. W. F. Koer-ner of Springfield, Minn. and C. E. Lau, an older son of Mr. and Mrs. Lau could not attend.

The gifts which Mrs. Lau received were especially fine in that they will be a source of enjoyment for many years as well as happy remind-ers of this very pleasant event.
